

This is a digital copy of a book that was preserved for generations on library shelves before it was carefully scanned by Google as part of a project to make the world's books discoverable online.

It has survived long enough for the copyright to expire and the book to enter the public domain. A public domain book is one that was never subject to copyright or whose legal copyright term has expired. Whether a book is in the public domain may vary country to country. Public domain books are our gateways to the past, representing a wealth of history, culture and knowledge that's often difficult to discover.

Marks, notations and other marginalia present in the original volume will appear in this file - a reminder of this book's long journey from the publisher to a library and finally to you.

Usage guidelines

Google is proud to partner with libraries to digitize public domain materials and make them widely accessible. Public domain books belong to the public and we are merely their custodians. Nevertheless, this work is expensive, so in order to keep providing this resource, we have taken steps to prevent abuse by commercial parties, including placing technical restrictions on automated querying.

We also ask that you:

- + Make non-commercial use of the files We designed Google Book Search for use by individuals, and we request that you use these files for personal, non-commercial purposes.
- + Refrain from automated querying Do not send automated queries of any sort to Google's system: If you are conducting research on machine translation, optical character recognition or other areas where access to a large amount of text is helpful, please contact us. We encourage the use of public domain materials for these purposes and may be able to help.
- + Maintain attribution The Google "watermark" you see on each file is essential for informing people about this project and helping them find additional materials through Google Book Search. Please do not remove it.
- + Keep it legal Whatever your use, remember that you are responsible for ensuring that what you are doing is legal. Do not assume that just because we believe a book is in the public domain for users in the United States, that the work is also in the public domain for users in other countries. Whether a book is still in copyright varies from country to country, and we can't offer guidance on whether any specific use of any specific book is allowed. Please do not assume that a book's appearance in Google Book Search means it can be used in any manner anywhere in the world. Copyright infringement liability can be quite severe.

About Google Book Search

Google's mission is to organize the world's information and to make it universally accessible and useful. Google Book Search helps readers discover the world's books while helping authors and publishers reach new audiences. You can search through the full text of this book on the web at http://books.google.com/

WAGNALLS'.

10-12 DEY ST., NEW YORK,

Universal Verdict: "By far the best of Josiah Allen's Wife's books."

Sweet Cicely; or, Josiah Allen as a Politician.'

By JOSIAH ALLEN'S WIFE. Copiously Illustrated, $2.00.

Senator Henry W. Blair writes from Washington:

"I have read 'Sweet Cicely' with very great interest, as, in fact, I read everything from the pen of Josiah Allen's Vice, just as soon as I can get it. I have often thought when wearied out with grave and exhausting labors that one put reason why I wanted to live, in fact, why I continue to live, is, that Miss Holley writes a book occasionally and that I read it and keep on reading the old ones until a new one comes. Her works are full of wit and humor, and yet maning the most logical, eloquent, pathetic and instructive productions of our time in the discussion of the great testions of temperance and woman suffrage, which seem to me to be the really leading ones affecting the social condition. think 'Sweet Cicely' is the best of all her works. I sincerely wish that every person in the country would read it."

Miss France E. Willard says:

"Modern fiction has not furnished a more thoroughly individual character than 'Josiah Allen's Wife.' She will be Encubered, honored, laughed and cried over when the purely 'artistic' novelist and his heroine have passed into obwith and for this reason: Josiah Allen's Wife is a

'Creature not too bright or good

For human nature's daily food.'
See a woman, wit, philanthropist, and statesman all in one, and 'I prophesy' that 'Sweet Cicely's 'gentle, firm hand dail lead Josiah Allen's Wife enward into literary immortality."

Commercial Gazette, Cincinnati, says:

*Her experiences among the statesmen at Washington are intensely amusing; but there is the ever-present thorn of standing truth sticking in the side that aches with laughter."

THE WIT OF WOMEN.

By MISS KATE SANBORN. Beautifully bound, cloth, square 12mo, $1.50.

SOME ANTITHESES OF CRITICISM:

"Women have more wit than humor."—Dr. Oliver Wendell Holmes. "Women have more humor than wit."—John Boyle O'Reilly.

"It sparkles with fun in every conceivable form."—Congregationalist.
"Anything more horrible than the specimens she (Miss Sanborn) has collected cannot be imagined."—The Book

"Miss Sanborn displays both judicial fairness and literary discrimination in her selections."-Troy Times. "Much of the book is very sapless and fetched from afar." - Omaka Bee.

"There is not a dull page in the entire collection." - Commercial Bulletin.

ARTHUR.

An Opera without Music. By the author of 'The Buntling Ball.' Square 12mo, cloth, $1.50. WHAT TWO LADY AUTHORS THINK OF IT.

Lucy Larcom says:

"The 'New King Arthur' is the work of a skilled and careful literary hand and a keen and versatile mind. The wand nonsense of it are irresistible. The 'Dedication to Tennyson' might be called sublimely saver. It is a power-time upon 'priggishness.' No one can question the ability of the unknown author."

Beth Thomas (author of a 'New Year's Mask') says:

"It is a delightful piece of work. Its wit sparkles and flashes at every angle of vision. It is inapproachable in UR. Its milery and clever parody of a stately original, and merits to become a classic. I should say there is not come of the present time of the present time. ... Withall the author's dest command of many in the shyming show him (or her) to be no novice." .In. , . . . &

NOTES IN SEASON.

CHARLES SCRIBNER'S SONS will publish soon a novel by Frank R. Stockton.

CUPPLES, UPHAM & Co. have just published "Sermons Preached in the First Church, Boston," by Rev. Rufus Ellis, D.D., with a fine portrait.

THE EXCELSIOR PUBLISHING HOUSE, N. Y., will publish, on the 12th inst. "The Life of Charles Stewart Parnell, and what he has Achieved for Ireland," by J. S. Mahoney.

T. B. PETERSON & BROS. will publish at once "The Master of L'Etrange." by Eugene Hall, a bre-story, in which the mysterious and super-tural are largely drawn upon.

FREDERICK WARNE & Co. regret that, owing to a unforeseen delay in the mechanical production of their two new golden illuminated Scripttext books, "Heavenly Echoes" and "Holy lessengers," they were unable to fill their orders in time for the Christmas trade. They will, however, have a full supply on hand to meet all calls for the New Year and Easter trade.

ROBERTS BROS. will publish this month, "Zeph," a posthumous story, by Helen Jackson; "Madame Mohl, her Salon and her Friends, a Glimpse of Parisian Society during the time of Louis Phillippe," by Kathleen O'Meara, with two portraits, one by W. W. Story, and the other from a sketch by Madame Mohl herself; "Rachel," by Mrs. Kennard, a new volume in the Famous Women series, and Prof. J. R. Seeley's "Brief History of Napoleon I."

D. VAN NOSTRAND will publish in a week or two Aug. J. Bowie's work on "Hydraulic Mining in California." It will form a small quarto of about 325 pages, illustrated, and with a large map, showing the original water-courses of the State. This work has been a long while in preparation, and is promised to be an exhaustive practical treatise upon the whole subject, containing descriptions of the use and construction of ditches and flumes; of wrought-iron pipes, and of dams—flow of water on heavy grades, and its applicability under high pressure to mining.

D. LOTHROP & Co. have just published "December," edited by Oscar Fay Adams, which is the first of a series of monthly volumes of poetry, the contents of each of which relate to the special month of its issue; "An American Banker in England," by a well-known banker of Boston; "Clover Leaves," a dainty volume of poems, by Ella M. Baker; "Woman in Sacred Song," sketches of female composers of sacred music, with specimens of their work (sold by subscription); also "In Time of Need," a small quarto, made up of Scriptural texts, with blanks for additions, prefaced by a poem by W. F. Sherwin, of the New England Conservatory of Music.

D. C. HEATH & Co., Boston, have just issued an outline map of the United States in four sections, each 29x42 inches, drawn under the direction of Albert B. Hart, Ph. D., Instructor in American History in Harvard University. This is the first map of a series to be edited by Edward Channing, Instructor in History in Harvard University. present map is the republication of one that has proved useful at Harvard and Johns Hopkins Universities. Though designed primarily for the purpose of illustrating lectures in American history, it is admirably adapted for the elucidating of geographical and geological problems. It will also make an excellent test map in geography.

CASSELL & Co. will publish at once Charles Lowe's historical biography of Prince Bismarck. This work, which will be in two volumes, is the first attempt yet made to supply the Englishreading public with a complete historical sketch of the career of the great German statesman. Heretofore we have had to content ourselves with translations from the German, dealing with isolated phases of Bismarck's work and character, but now we have a connected and elaborate account of his whole career, and at the seg. ca. time a political history of modern Gern.. Lovell. Professor Norman Smith, of Columbia Co., E. 2 v. has written a preface for the American ed Ticknor. Mr. Lowe has been for some years the c). spondent of the London Times at Berlin. Nany.

"This book is not a history" the author says, "but a collection of historical materials." Thus in Greek history it gives a bare chronicle of great deeds, pictures of buildings and statues, extracts from speeches, laws, poems. In the early mediaval period, during the crusades, through the Resaisance, the French revolution and the nineteenth century, studies are offered of the government, famous men and works, contemporary literature, etc., of the various leading nations. The book is particularly useful as a work of reference for young renders. Handsomely printed and Tennyson, Alfred, (Lord.) Tiresias, and other poems. N. Y., Harper, 1885. 3-100 p. S.

(Harper's handy ser., no. 46.) pap., 25 c.
"'Tiresias' is, indeed, a graceful idyll, something after the manner of the earlier 'Ulysses,' But it is by no means the strongest poem in the volume. The lyrics which follow, 'The wreck,' 'Despair,' and 'The flight,' are instinct with nervous force and fire, and alive with many perfect lines which will linger long in the memory....
The volume contains another addition to the 'ldylls of the king,' entitled 'Balin and Balan.' It is an introduction to 'Merlin and Vivien,' and though it has not the tense satiric force of that splendid poem, it yet possesses a grace and charm of its own. There are lines in it which recall the author's happiest moods. . . . The volume is one which all lovers of lyric verse will be glad to read and to own."-Boston Advertiser.

NOTES ON CATALOGUES.

H. GRAY. Manchester, Eng., has issued an interesting hand-list of "Books on Coins, also of Tradesmen's Tokens." (16 p. 16°.)

The Cleveland (O) Public Library, Wm. H. Brett, librarian, has issued a handsome author-and bile catalogue of its German books, brought down to the 31st October of the present year. An appendix comprises a full list of the German works of reference. The catalogue in every particular is a creditable piece of work, the typography, paper, and press work not excepted. (96 p. O.cl.)

THE ST. LOUIS PUBLIC LIBRARY has issued a "Finding List of Books in the Juvenile Department of the St. Louis Public Library" compiled by Richard Spamer, acting librarian. The list is brought down to November 1, 1885, and is made up of short titles under author, title, and series. The work has been carefully done, and with he found of great use by bookselvers and others who desire to have a good list of books for children in a nutshell 133 p. O. pap., 10c.).

NOTES ON AUTHORS.

FRANK A. Burk is writing a biography of Mr. Cameron, the elder, of Pennsylvania.

MR. W. If MAILOCK's forthcoming novel is to have the suggestive title of "The Old Order Changes"

GEORGE W. CANLE'S long-promised new story of Acad an life in Louisiana will be entitled "Grande Point."

It is now an "open secret," says the Interary World's New York correspondent, that John Hay wrote "The Breadwinners."

MRS. BANCROFT, the English Actress is en-all the theatrical celebrities of the last twenty

MR. ROSSITER JOHNSON has begun in the New York Examiner a series of articles setting for the causes and principal incidents of the American civil war; the series, it is expected, with altimately appear as a book.

300K BUSINESS PERMANENT-LY CHANGING?

e for selling is over and gone for the the time for taking stock and countofits, or the contrary, is at hand with As we said last week, the year ply not shown as great an improvebook trade as was hoped for, although rts of the country a very satisfactory business is reported. It is doubtful r own trade has shared in the benefit perity of the classes whose business btedly been better during the past anning for a fair share of the prosh is, we may hope, to come after the ression of the past few years, it is imist of all, that the book trade, and each member of it, should face the quesr or not the conditions of book-sellermanently changed so as to call for method on the part of alert and live :n.

: during the coming year to go somelly into this question, putting aside traditions, and theories as to "reg-"irregular" bookselling, and enget at the real facts. It is undoubtot only that a new class of retail it is to say, the bazaar shops or the ealers who make bookselling a part ness-has sprung up, but that there is of publishers, who publish chiefly of trade. The important question ers in the proper conduct of their lecide, is as to what permanent inclass of trade will have upon what is lled the "regular" bookseller and, to add, the "regular" publisher. g to do is to get at the facts in the

as far as is consistent with ordinary business precaution, and any which they know as to the local trade in their own vicinity and elsewhere: and we shall try to supplement any statements which we receive, either for publication or for private consideration, with investigations of our own. We would point out especially that many lines of books on which there is no copyright or proprietary interest of any kind are, as a matter of fact, sold on quite a different basis from copyright books—not so much because of the difference made by copyright as because the element of risk was long ago eliminated from their natural price. A publisher issuing a set of Dickens or Thackerey is pretty sure to make both ends meet in the long run if he can see his way to printing a better edition at a lower price than any already in the market. This kind of publication has been pushed within the last year or so into lines not hitherto considered safe, the best illustration of which is found not so much in the case of George Eliot's works as in those of Carlyle and Ruskin. It had never been supposed that Ruskin's works were capable of wide popular sale, but the newer publishing houses have undertaken Ruskin in a very creditable shape and at a low price, and have produced an unusual activity in the works of this author, which had hitherto been handled by one of our best-known and most conservative firms exclusively.

Most of the old publishing houses state as their experience that towns and villages which a generation ago would take ten or a dozen copies of a new work will now order one or two only, and that the actual size of editions, despite the great growth of the country, is smaller on an average than in those days. On the other hand, a reason for this is found in the fact that we are issuing thousands of books where a generation ago American presses produced only hundreds or perhaps tens. The railroads and the mails have also made vast difference in this as in every other business. We believe that a free discussion on the lines we have indicated will be of considerable help. We again, therefore, urge upon the trade, wholesale and retail, to send us the facts, that we may have a general and open talk as to how the book business is to be bettered.

WE remind the trade that our Annual Summary number will be issued for the week ending January 30th, and ask that they will promptly supply us with copy for their advertising favors. This number we believe to be one of the most useful of the year, and not least to the smaller publishers, whose lines are difficult to keep track of in any other way. It is they who lose most their trade during the past year, / by not keeping themselves before the reading and bookselling public, and we therefore urge upon all such—whose books we cheerfully record through the year free of cost to them—to give us their proportionate contributions to the advertising pages of that number.

WE print elsewhere, from the London Publishers' Circular, the interesting comments on the international copyright movement in this country, from the pen of Mr. Edward Marston, of Sampson Low, Marston & Co., who had but recently returned from a journey through this country. Notwithstanding the good advice, the Publishers' Weekly declines to take the "firm stand" represented by the preference "that the reform should be postponed for a generation rather than that a "manufacturing clause" should be embodied in it." It prefers something within this generation.

INTERNATIONAL COPYRIGHT.

THE NEW HAWLEY BILL.

From the N. Y. Evening Post.

THE effort to put a stop to the great copyright scandal is to be renewed at the present session of Congress by the introduction once more of a bill providing

"that the citizens of foreign states and countries of which the laws, treaties, or conventions confer, or shall hereafter confer, upon citizens of the United States rights of copyright equal to those accorded to their own citizens, shall have in the United States rights of copyright equal to those enjoyed by citizens of the United States."

The bill is fathered by the American Copyright League, which has been reorganized with James Russell Lowell as President, and it is to be introduced by Senator Hawley in the Senate, and Mr. Randolph Tucker in the House. Like a great many things which have been long talked of without being acted on, the question of international copyright is but little understood by the general public, and yet it is one of the simplest questions of contemporary politics.

When an American writes a book the law recognizes his property in it, and forbids the reproduction or sale of it by anybody but himself or somebody to whom he has assigned his interest. If a foreign author comes here bringing with him for sale a book composed by himself and at the same time a quantity of furniture, jewelry, and dry-goods, we make him pay duty on the furniture, and jewelry and dry-goods, and then protect him in the enjoyment of them with all the force of the Government. If, however, he seeks to secure the book by paying duty on it, we reject his offer absolutely. But we do not confiscate it to the use of the Government. as a prohibited article. We do worse than that. As soon as he lands, and it is discovered that he has a book for sale, we say to all the unscrupulous persons in the country: "Boys, here is a foreigner with a book. Go for him. Get out as many copies of it as you can and sell them for your own account. See that he does not get a cent of the money. It is very impudent of him to try to own a book here. Show him no mercy."

of his book, any more than of his furniture and dry-goods, the answer is that it is easier and; more profitable to rob him of the book that of the furniture and dry-goods, because it can bereproduced and multiplied in indefinite quantle ties at very small expense. Besides, he is tolk a foreign author ought not to care to make; money out of his books. He ought to be about pecuniary considerations, and ought to be safe isfied with seeing the good his books do by being widely read by an intelligent people. If b. asks why other persons should be allowed to make money by selling them when he is not, he is informed that the persons who make money; by selling them are called "manufacturers," and that it is part of the American system to allow manufacturers to make all the money there can out of foreigners, and especially out of foreign: writers, who are generally unpractical, visionary people, who do not really mind being robbed, Sometimes he is still further crushed by being told that he ought to be glad to be robbed by Americans, seeing how much books are needed in this country in order to instruct the multitudes of his ignorant countrymen who come, over here; but this argument is only used in very bad cases, where the author shows himself. unusually obstreperous and unreasonable.

It must be said, however, that these arguments have for a long time been growing more and more unsatisfactory to the national conscience. A greater and greater number of Americant every year find their moral stomachs sickened. by the practice of robbing authors because there happen to be foreigners. A greater and greater number find some difficulty in seeing how it diff fers morally from the old practice of plundering shipwrecked sailors. And this growth in morality has been stimulated by the increasing number of persons who insist on sharing in the spoil. Formerly, when an author landed with a book, the man who first seized him and got hold of the book was by a sort of common understanding allowed to keep it for himself. But now the whole crowd insists on a square divide. Consequently, the share of each is very small. and there is an increasing disgust with the whole business. A sort of compromise was proposed to the foreigner some time ago, by which he was not to be robbed if he agreed to purchase a suit of clothes, a hat, and a watch, immediately on landing, at an American store; in other words, he was to be allowed to keep and sell his book if he agreed to have it printed and bound by an American printer and binder. But this again put him on a totally different footing from a foreign inventor or manufacturer. If either of these has a new idea, he can either embody it in steel or cloth at home, and bring the finished article here and sell it freely on paying duty on it, or bring the idea here and get it embodied in steel or cloth in this country, just as he pleases. The police protect him in either case from violence. The author, on the contrary, would not be allowed to decide whether he would bring his book here all printed and bound, and pay the ordinary tariff rate on it at the Customhouse, or simply bring the manuscript here and have the printing and binding done in this country. Nothing of the kind. He had to choose, under this plan, between simple robbery and "manufacture," as it was called in this country. This plan, too, has been losing its hold over people's minds. People cling still to the proAmerican industry through taxation, tection through simple plunder, or lunder, loses ground every day. ent bill is the simplest thing imagirecognizes in an author who comes book a civilized man, entitled to all es and immunities on our soil which uthors receive on his. If he brings 1 ith him, printed and ready for sale, to be taxed by the tariff 25 per cent. If he comes with his manuscript, im free to choose his own publisher his own terms just as his American left, and covers his contract with ion of the law. It does nothing, in it literary property on the same footother property, from which it differs ng more readily stolen.

EADERS IN THE COPYRIGHT MATTER.

e, as the Evening Post said yesterday, bject of international copyright is one hings which are much talked about understood; and perhaps the chief r the imperfect understanding that that a certain group of writers on t habitually confuse counsel by makely such incomplete and misleading; of the case as that put forth by our rary in the article referred to. The there made entirely ignores one half tter—and that the more important is mischievously inaccurate as to one nat it recognizes as the substance of on.

ie that one great reason for urging ion of international copyright measat our failure to do so licenses the f foreign authors. Against this the ise of people who think about the volts, and common decency should to repair the wrong. But it should bered also that the foreign author is nly victim of this dishonesty. He is d, the person must deeply wronged lestructively robbed. The American ffers doubly. His books are printed publishers who are not half so conor so liberal in recognizing his moral ompensation as our more reputable 's are in their dealings with foreign nd, worse still, in his own home marubjected to a ruinously unfair compeh reprints that cost nothing. that he is able to live at all. He is his own people, and robbed by the as well, while the worst from which n author suffers is robbery in this Yet the Evening Post, in an article intended to promote a clear underof the subject, neglects, even by so hint, to recognize the wrong and inie to him, and, through him, to the peoilly who are deprived of a fair chance native literature, worthily reflecting life and thought. The injustice done ign author ought to be reason enough sage of a bill establishing international ; but the daily robbery inflicted by law, or want of law, upon the Amerr and the American people, is much tier consideration of the two. It is practicables, whose case the Evening Post sustains, to leave it out of the account altogether.

Our contemporary, neglecting the more important aspect of the matter, unfairly presents the aspect which it recognizes. It insists that to impose manufacturing conditions of any kind upon the grant of copyright to foreign authors would be iniquitous. They should have copyright, it contends, upon the same terms that are given to our own authors. To that we answer very well; but without conditions the terms would not be the same. The American author -rightly or wrongly-is subjected by American law to certain conditions, to which the foreign author would not be subject if a copyright law without equalizing terms were enacted. The American must publish his book here, where the cost of making it is much greater than in England, and greater by reason of our own laws. Permission to publish it abroad and import it would in most cases be inoperative, for reasons which are obvious. Practically, whatever the law may provide, the American author must publish his copyright book in this country, if he publishes at all. Why, then, should we not exact like terms of the foreign author in extending copyright protection to him? Neglecting to do so, we shall place him, by our own law, at a distinct disadvantage in his own country, and justice to foreign authors does not require that, while justice to our own writers clearly forbids it. If we extend to foreign authors the protection of our copyright laws upon condition that they shall register their works as our own authors are required to do, and print and publish them here as our own authors must, we shall do all that justice to them requires and all that justice to our own literary workers permits.

We have many times given our reasons for believing that no copyright bill which neglects to provide such conditions can be passed in Congress; the reasons why no such bill ought to pass seem to us equally clear. It is true that as an offset to the inequality in the cost of manufacture in England and the United States, there is a duty of twenty-five per cent levied upon imported books. But apart from the fact that such a duty is insufficient to equalize the conditions, it is one of the duties most likely to be speedily repealed, and the Evening Post, we think it safe to assume, would earnestly favor its repeal. With that duty removed and unconditional copyright granted to foreign works, the plight of our own literature would be pitiable. Not only would our authors have to compete in the sale of their books with the far less costly book manufactures of England; they would in effect be compelled to submit their works to English publishers, who know them very imperfectly, and who are so far away that they must be dealt with at very long arm's length or through agencies. The profitable employment given to many writers by American publishers in revising and editing would be taken away, and a fruitful source of income to American men of letters would be destroyed by transfer to London. Our literature would be subjected to a London censorship, the literary life would become practically impossible here, and literary activity in America would be confined to the few who have independent means of livelihood.

The truth is that there are conclusive reasons for the adoption of a properly conditioned law, while one without conditions would only increase the wrong and injustice which it should remove

THE UNITED STATES AND COPY-RIGHT.

From the London Publishers' Circular.

SIR: I have just returned from an extensive tour through the United States. During my journey I came into contact with many publishers who received me with the right hand of good-sellowship. I also met many American authors; I even fell into a nest of them, and I felt like Daniel among the lions, but they did not rend me to pieces; I am still alive to tell the tale—indeed, I am bound to say that they vied with the publishers in trying which could receive me with most cordiality. The crimes committed by English publishers upon American authors were abundantly set forth for my entertainment and edification, but, luckily for me, I was not regarded as one of the offenders. As regarded an International Copyright Law, I was glad to find a quite unanimous desire on the part both of authors and publishers for the protection which such a law is expected to afford; among authors generally, the prevailing tone of opinion is that justice can only be met by a pure and simple copyright law from which "manufacturing clauses" and trade interests generally should be wholly excluded, and many publishers advocate the same thing.

The American Publishers' Weekly has been very active lately in keeping the subject prominently before the public. In its issue of November 7th it publishes the remarks of nearly fifty American authors which accompanied the return of their signatures to a memorial prepared by the editor on the question of international copyright; the terms of the memorial are withheld until it has been transmitted to Congressmen—but in the remarks I note that out of forty-eight who have thus recorded their opinions, thirty-four ask for copyright pure and simple, while six only are in favor of a manufacturing clause, and the remainder express no opinion on that point. Some of them complain, perhaps not without cause, of their serious losses in England through cheap and unpaid reprints. Mr. E. P. Roe writes: "While on a recent lecture trip in Canada I found my books as thick as blackberries—on the trains my own books, stolen, were offered for my purchase. I had the feeling that before I got back to the States I might have to buy my own valise and overcoat." Mr. Roe made a similar complaint to me as to his books in England. In fact I find American authors now are uttering the same old cry about piracy in England as used to be the fashion with English authors, but long since found to be vain and useless, as to reprints of their books in America. But in this respect the bitter cry of English authors had, and still has more justice in it than that of American authors, seeing that the latter can by proper management secure themselves in England against all pirates, which an English author cannot by any possibility do in America. A a curious comment on Mr. E. P. Roe's remarks, I may mention that I travelled far and wide in America, and I was not very much surprised to notice that, in every hotel where they kept a bookstall, as is frequently the case, in every railroad car, at every book station from New York to Niagara, Chicago, St. Paul, and thousands of miles further in that great country, the chief books offered for sale were cheap reprints in the great corn, cattle, and mining centres of the West, in such places as Minneapolis, Helenti-Butte, in Cheyeune, Omaha, etc. In Salt Land City the interest, perhaps, was about equally devided between English and Mormon authors: But otherwise American authors seemed almost to be nowhere. How is this? I thought. there no American authors whose works American public care to read? The answer not far to seek. American publishers will not pay American authors while they can take Engel lish authors for nothing. The cry for cheap lite erature on the part of the American public is all very well, but it should not be allowed to stife native literature and crush it out of the markets Here appears to me to lie the strongest argue ment that Americans can have to bring before their Legislature. We want protection for our authors that they may get something out of their works when sold in America, and American and thors want a copyright quite as much for the encouragement of their own native literature. and protection for it against a superabundant foreign supply—as they do for protection of their rights in foreign lands.

I cannot help regretting that the energies 🐗 the American WEEKLY are not directed to the one sole object of a pure and simple copyright.

It suggests, I had almost said erects, a Frank enstein bugbear in the shape of "a manufacturing clause," about which Congressmen know little and care less, and then almost falls down and worships the goblin, protesting all the time that it would far rather be without it. The Publism-ERS' WEEKLY is willing to swallow a half-cake now in the hope of something better turning in years to come. The editor should have taken the firm stand which is represented in the letter which he published of Mr. W. M. Griswold, who says: "I prefer that the reform should be postponed for a generation rather than that a "manufacturing clause" should be embodied in it; or, as Mr. Charles Dudley Warner puts it. "! am decidedly in favor of insisting upon a simple international copyright for authors without any reference to publishers, printers, or importers."

Let American authors and publishers be assured of this one fact, viz., that as a matter of commercial or pecuniary interest English pub lishers have less reason to desire an international law than any other people. It will open up a new field of enterprise for Americal publishers in Great Britain, giving them two markets where before they had but one, while the English publisher is excluded from the American market by a heavy tariff, which tariff even if wholly removed, would still leave the advantages largely on the American side. The manufacturing clause is not per se an object of dread to us, the American public are really for more interested in it, and Congressmen may fairly ask why the American public must page more for their books, simply because two penses of manufacture have been incurred where one is sufficient.

One of the results of an open competition would be that sometimes plates of English edit tions would be made for the English market it America and sometimes plates would be sol from English to American publishers; the would be matters of mutual arrangement be tween authors and publishers on both sides, as would and should have nothing whatever to d with a pure and simple copyright, beyond being I found this to be the case a natural result from it. Every man in making sown bargain would know exactly what he was spaining for without any fear of being handipped by piracy, or by onesided "manufacturiclauses." E. M.

Since the above interesting and practical lethas been received our attention has been atcted by a leaderette which appeared in the BLISHERS' WEEKLY of November 14th. Our pression is that the editor is in the position an unsteady steersman, who is doubtful sich wind to catch in the copyright race. te besitation fully confirms the remarks of M. in the foregoing letter. In the first place WEEKLY draws attention to e Publishers' efact that the Copyright League has decided give its support to Senator Hawley's bill for ternational copyright pure and simple, which ne Senator undertakes to push vigorously in æ Senate. From this, the editor understands, at "the League declines to put itself on rec-Mas willing to accept any kind of comprouse," and he doubts the wisdom of the course hich "depends upon the possibility of getting wough Congress a bill going so far as the Hawy tol." The PUBLISHERS' WEEKLY will "be lad to do everything that it can to promote inmational copyright to the fullest extent," and opes to be, as it already has been, " of service ither to those who desire international copyight and will have no compromise, er to those en denre international copyright only if it is acsufferied a talk a printing clause!" (The italics tre ours.) This assertion of neutrality is in our poion, dangerous to the cause, especially when acked by an editorial declaration regretting "very much what seems to be the temper of be League, because it is likely to prove an ob-striction to real reform." What "obstruction n real reform" can be seen in the support of a ≥■ of copyright pure and simple? The obstrucmoists are those who do not make a steady Mon in one direction until the purpose of the forement has been realized. -Ed. P. C.1

HOW TO SPLIT A SHEET OF PAPER.

From the Paper Trade Journal.

It is one of the most remarkable properties. of that wonderful product, paper, that it can be Witinto two or even three parts, however thin he sheet. We have seen a leaf of the Illusbotal News thus divided in three parts, or three am leaves. One consisted of the surface on which the engravings are printed; another was be side containing the letter press, and a perettly blank piece on each side was the paper. hat lay between. Many people who have not een this done might think it impossible; yet it lost only possible, but extremely easy, as we tall show: Get a piece of plate-glass and place au a sheet of paper; then let the latter be With care and a little wroughly soaked. exterity the sheet can be split by the top surface ang removed. But the best plan is to paste piece of cloth or strong paper to each side of e sheet to be split. When dry, violently and thout hesitation pull the two pieces asunder, ben part of the sheet will be found to have lbered to one and part to the other. Soften e paste in water and the pieces can easily be moved from the cloth. The process is generly demonstrated as a matter of curiosity, yet can be utilized in various ways. If we want printed on both side of the paper, and possess only one copy, it is very convenient to know how to detach the one side from the other. The paper when split, as may be imagined, is more transparent that it was before being subjected to the operation, and the printing-ink somewhat duller, otherwise the two pieces present the appearance of the original if again brought together. Some time ago the information of how to do this splitting was advertised to be sold for a considerable sum. We now impart it to all our readers gratuitously.

JOURNALISTIC NOTES

H. GREGORY, Providence, R. I, has commenced the publication of a little monthly sheet—similar to Mr. Rider's Book Notes - entitled The Book Hunter.

• The Book Buyer, (published by Charles Scribner's Sons,) beginning with the new year will be enlarged. Every number will hereafter be illustrated, and the series of authors' portraits will be continued. The subscription price will be raised to $1 a year.

Title Boston Literary World devoted the last issue of the year to a review of "The World's Literature in 1885," which is a model of painstaking and accurate work. The survey is divided geographically into ten sections, and under each section the classification is arranged according to the relative importance of the works produced in the several departments. Thus, biography heads the list in the United States, while it ranks third in Great Britain, where poetry takes the lead, which in America is briefly summed up under the "Miscellaneous." The few brief descriptive or critical words given to every book mentioned show thorough knowledge of their contents, and on cursory reading seem to be, as claimed, entirely free from " partisanship, obligations, or grudges." The necrology of the literary names for 1585 occupies two columns of nonpareil type. This is an unusually interesting number, which will be of great use for reference.

LITERARY AND BRADE NOTES

The subscription price of the new edition of Rev. D. C. A. Agnew's "Protestant Exples from France in the Reign of Louis XIV." is £5, not $5.

A. C. Armstrong & Son have in press a book entitled "Theism and Evolution," by Rev. Dr. Van Dyke, author of "From Gloom to Gladness."

D. APPLETON & Co. have just issued a Spanish translation of Conway's "Called Back," under the tule of "Misterio." The translation was made specially for them, and has proved so successful that they have determined to follow it up with others.

moved from the cloth. The process is genery demonstrated as a matter of curiosity, yet ration a "Reference Directory of the Booksellers and Stationers, and of the Paper Trade of the paste in a scrap-book a newspaper article United States and Canada." The work, it is claimed, will contain twenty thousand addresses with financial standing.

THE POPE MANUFACTURING Co., Boston, have published a "Columbia Bicycle Calendar." Each of the 365 slips which make up the pad gives, in addition to the date, a cycling quotation, newsy, informing, or otherwise interesting; in fact, it is, in miniature, a virtual encyclopædia upon this universally utilized "steed of steel."

EDWARD BIERSTADT, New York, has issued a collection of seventy-four artotype views of scenes among the Adirondacks, entitled "Among the Mountains and Lakes of the North Woods." There are two editions—one printed on tinted paper, bound in imitation birch-bark covers. The other comprises the same views, with ten additional ones, on India paper with large margins.

HOYT, FOGG & DONHAM, Portland, Me., have, in preparation a volume to be entitled "The Triangular Society." The purpose of this book—or one of its purposes—is the delineation of life in a Maine household, whose occupants, a mother and her two children, a daughter employed in a newspaper office, and a son still in school, relate their adventures at home and abroad, and sometimes cheat the long winter evenings by reading to one another articles in prose and verse, the family forming a Triangular Club.

A CORRESPONDENT of the Nation claims to have discovered that "Les Miserables," as published in three volumes by Ward, Lock & Co., is incomplete and untrustworthy as to translation. He also claims that this house gives the impression that "By the King's Command," as they publish it, is either a part of "Les Miserables," or a sequel to it. We learn that in t absence of Mr. Sandifer, the American representative, the matter has been referred to t English house, and a reply may, therefore, expected at an early day.

D. LOTHROP & Co. promise, for early put cation, "Social Studies in England," by M Sarah K. Bolton. The work will embrace su subjects as woman's higher education, the re tions of labor and capital, and various phila thropic movements, art, and industrial establisments for women, etc. The many admirers Canon Farrar's genius will be glad to knothat a volume has been compiled from his wiings, by Miss Rose Porter, and will soon be pulished by this house under the title of "Treast Thoughts."

T. FISHER UNWIN, London, will publish no week a new volume of American impression entitled "English Home Life." The author Mr. Robert Laird Collier, of Boston, and experiences have been gained during a sev years' residence in this country, in which the has had abundant opportunities of studying domestic life both in town and the provinces.

TRÜBNER & Co. will publish this mor "A Common-Place Book of the Fifteenth Cotury," printed from the original MS. at Brow Hall, Suffolk, by Lady Caroline Kerrison, w notes by Miss Lucy Toulmin Smith. Amo the contents are a poem of "Adrian and Epoty: never before printed in England, a religious pl treating of Abraham and Isaac, and seve minor poems; several sets of local accoun and many entries relating to manorial cour forms of charters, etc.

CHARLES SCRIBNER'S SON!

WILL PUBLISH JANUARY 5th:

Strange Case of Dr. Jekyll and Mr. Hyde.

By Robert Louis Stevenson, author of "The New Arabian Nights," etc. Cloth, $1.4 paper, 25 cents.

Without being a ghost-story, or in fact falling under any of the hitherto recognized catagories of strange and with a genuine thrill, by one of the most singular and original coeptions that ever entered the mind of even this writer of tireless fancy.

My Study, and Other Essays...

By Professor Austin Phelps, D.D., author of "The Theory of Preaching," "Men & Books," etc. 1 vol. 12mo, $1.50.

These essays fall into two classes; one deals with religious and doctrinal themes, and the other discusses hist cal or secular subjects, but always with a distinctively Christian purpose. More than a hundred pages are given to series of eloquent essays on the subject of future retribution. Other essays are deeply spiritual and edifying, and are marked by a vigor of thought and mastery of expression that make them delightful reading as regards the style also They abound in the vivid presentation of great truths in new lights and relations.

This series will consist of Biopolice of Englishmen of influence and distinction, past and present, military, naval, literary, scientific, legal, ecclesition, social, etc. Each Biography will be intrusted to a writer specially acquainted with the historical period in which in here lived, and in special sympathy, as it were, with his subject.

Protection vs. Free Trade.

THE SCIENTIFIC VALIDITY AND ECONOMIC OPERATION OF DEFENSIVE DUTIES IN THE UNITED STATES. By HENRY M. HOYT, 12mo, cloth, 'Price, $2.00.

The author of this work is well known as formerly Governor of Pennsylvania. He appears in this volume as a de finite of protection, discussing the subject in a judicial spirit, with great fullness, quoting copiously from eminent free-finit witers, in order that the reader may have both sides of the question before him. It is probably the fullest state-fine protection organized that has been made

Donovan: A Modern Englishman.

A NOVEL. By EDNA LYALL 12mo, cloth. Price, $1.50.

"Donovan" is a novel that has been attracting a great deal of attention in England, especially among more miss maders. It is a religious novel, the hero of which is a freethinker, and the story consists of a struggle between that faith.

"Thu is a very admirable work. The reader is from the first carried away by the gallant unconventionality of its "box." Donovan' is a very excellent novel; but it is something more and better. It should do as much good as the externon ever written or delivered extempore. The story is told with a grand simplicity, an unconclous poetry of themse which stirs the very depths of the heart."—London Standard.]

The Broken Shaft:

TALES IN MID-OCEAN. Told by F. Marion Crawford, R. Louis Strvenson, F. Anstey, W. H. Pollock, William Archer, and others. 12mg, paper. Price, 25 cents.

"The Broken Shaft" should attract many readers, first, by the great reputation of its contributors, and second, y the startling nature of its contents. The ateries are told abourd a Cunarder which has fortunately had its shaft broken inid-ocean. Mr. F. Marion Crawford tells a glost-story with a murder in it: Mr. Louis Stevenson's contribution has glost and a murder; Mr. Austey has a ghost and a case of manulaughter; W. H. Pollock, the editor of the Satur-7 Review, contributes a dramatic tragedy; and Mr. William Archer a thrilling story of a secret society. Mr. Heavy was, the editor, writes the connecting narrative, and contributes one of the stories.

PUBLISH THIS WEEK:

TEN GREAT RELIGIONS.

Parts I. and II. By James Freeman Clarke, D.D. New Edition. 2 vols. Crown 8vo. Price reduced from $3.00 to $2.00 each.

These two books contain an admirable statement of the distinctive features of the great religions which have held or still hold sway in the reverence of mankind, and a comparison of these with Christianity. Their ample information, candor, and sympathetic treatment render them peculiarly valuable and trustworthy; and in this new and eheaper edition they should have a very wide circulation.

TRUE STORIES FROM NEW ENG-LAND HISTORY.

(GRANDFATHER'S CHAIR.)

By Nathaniel Hawthorne. Riverside Literature Series, Nos. 7, 8, 9, in one volume, boards, 45 cents.

This charming book is primarily intended for use in schools, but—being Hawthorne's—it is delightful reading for the fireside or the railroad.

THEY WILL PUBLISH, SATURDAY, JANUARY 16:

PROGRESSIVE ORTHODOXY.

1 vol. 12mo. $1.00.

This volume contains a series of papers which have appeared, under this general name, in the editorial department of the Andover Review. The essays treat subjects which are regarded as fundamental by all Evangelical Christians,—The Incarnation, The Atonement, Eschatology. The Work of the Holy Spirit, The Christian, The Scriptures; and they treat these in the spirit and with the methods of what is now known as Progressive Orthodoxy. The recognized ability and sincerity of the writers give the work a positive value, and it may well be considered as representing fairly and adequately the views of a large and highly influential part of the clergy of the Congregational churches of America. Indeed, in many important features it undoubtedly speaks for the liberal, progressive thinkers of all denominations within the limits of Orthodoxy and it merits, and quite surely will receive, studious attention.

THE CANTERBURY TALES.

By Harriet and Sophia Lee. New Edition. 3 vols. 12mo. $3.75.

A new and inexpensive edition of a work which formerly enjoyed great popularity. Byron admired the Tales. The London Spectator, on their republication in Bentley's Standard Library, welcomed them with peculiar heartiness, saying: "There is scarcely any educated person of this century who has not, at some time or other, drawn a sincere pleasure from these pages." In this tasteful form they can hardly fail to have a new lease of popular favor.

HUSBAND AND WIFE.

By George Z. Gray, D.D., Dean of the Episcopal Theological School, Cambridge, Mass. New and revised Edition. 1 vol. 16mo, gilt top. $1.00.

This book is a discussion of the Theory of Marriage, with special reference to the "Deceased Wife's Sister" question and other prohibited degrees, and to divorce, from a new standpoint, and contains an introduction by Bishop Huntington.

NOTES IN SEASON.

D. APPLETON & Co. publish to-day, in addition to the books announced last week, an important work, entitled "Protection vs. Free-Trade—the scientific validity and economic operation of defensive duties in the United States," by Henry M. Hoyt. The author was formerly Governor of Pennsylvania, and in this volume appears as a defender of protection.

"The History of the English Constitution," by Dr. Rudolph Gneist, Professor of Law in the University of Berlin, translated by Philip A. Ashworth. They have just issued in the Story of the National series, "The Story of the Jews." by Prof. James K. Hosmer, of St. Louis; and "The Story of Chaldea," by Z. Ragozin. Both of these volumes are fully illustrated, and have one or more good maps. They have also issued "The Life of Henry Fawcett," by Leslie Stephen, and a limited edition of "The Dawn of the Nineteenth Century in England," by John Ashton.

HENRY HOLT & Co. will publish on the 16th inst. a new book by Sir Henry Sumner Maine

(author of "Ancient Law," etc.), entitled "Popular Government," and consisting of four essays; "Outlines of the History of Greek Philosophy," by Dr. Edward Zeller, translated by Sarah Frances Alleyne and Evelyn Abbott; also, "' The Father's Tragedy, "William Rufus," and 'Loyalty or Love,'' three poetic dramas, by Michael Field, author of "Callirhoë" and "Fair Rosamund." Of these new poems the London Speciator says, in the course of a long eulogy: "Will the pseudonym of Michael Field' become greater even than that of 'George Eliot?' It is hard to say. . . . We cannot read twenty lines anywhere without finding traces of a strong genius and a great dramatic imagination."

HOUGHTON, MIFFLIN & Co. publish this week a new and cheaper edition of Dr. Clarke's "Ten Great Religions," a work in two volumes, containing a great amount of information in regard to the religions which have most widely and deeply influenced mankind. Next week they will publish a book entitled "Progressive Orthodoxy," containing articles reprinted from the Andover Review, written by the editors, and discussing from the standpoint of what is known as the New Theology or Progressive Orthodoxy many cardinal doctrines of theology. The book is written with so much vigor and candor that it can hardly fail to secure a wide reading. At the same time will appear a new edition of the "Canterbury Tales," by Harriet and Sophia Lee, which were first published just before the beginning of this century, and were regarded with great favor by the literary authorities of the time. A new edition of Dean Gray's work, " Husband and Wife," is also just ready, with some revisions. It will be remembered that this book is a contribution to the "deceased wife's sister" question, which has been discussed with so much spirit and decency" in England.

CHARLES SCRIBNER'S Sons will publish during this month Lieutenant Greely's narrative of the Lady Franklin Bay expedition, probably the largest and most important work upon exploration in the Arctic ever published in this country. The book will make two large octavo volumes, and will be entitled "Three Years of Arctic Service: An Account of the Lady Franklin Bay Expedition of 1881-84, and the Attainment of the Farthest North." No expedition to the north has become the subject of such interest as this one to Lady Franklin Bay, and none ever endured such hardships and survived. In preparing the book Lieutenant Greely has been permitted to use all the official papers of the expedition and private journals owned by the Government, and to which no one else has had access. The material for illustrating the work is particularly rich; besides the photographs taken by Sergeant Rice, who perished, Lieutenant Greely has been permitted to reproduce Lieutenant Lockwood's original sketches of the farthest northern land ever reached. The photographic negatives of Rice are the only ones ever brought back safely from so northerly a point as the Lady Franklin Bay Station. There are more than one hundred fine engravings, maps, charts, etc. This will be followed by J. A. Froude's new book, "Oceana, or, England and her Colonies," the outcome of his recent visit to Australia and the United States, of which the subject is imperial federation.

SOME PERTINENT QUESTIONS.

WE asked last week, "Is the book business permanently changing?" This is a very general question, and can only be answered by first collecting the facts which answer more specific questions, as:

Is the total number of books sold in this country greater than ten, twenty, thirty years ago?

Is the total return in money greater?

Is the number of bound books sold (exclusive of the "cheap libraries") greater?

If so, is the increase proportionate to the increase of population?

Is the average edition larger or smaller now than of old?

Is the number of retailers buying a given book larger or smaller now?

Does each take a larger or smaller number now?

How is the sale of copyright books affected by the great number of non-copyright books?

Are the average publishing prices lower or higher now than of old?

Is the average discount to the trade higher or lower?

Are there more or fewer retail stores in a city of say 20,000 people now than of old?

Is the expense of a retail store greater or less than of old?

Are the returns greater or less than of old?

Does a store like Wanamaker's develop new trade (in books) or divert trade from many small stores into one large one?

Does such a store obtain chiefly local trade or centre the trade of a considerable section of country?

What is the present proportion of books sent out by publishers on direct mail orders?

What is the proportion of books supplied from stock and those procured from publishers on direct order by retailers?

Some of these questions can be answered only by estimates or expressions of judgment; others are capable of direct and accurate reply. It publishers, jobbers, and retailers would take the trouble to look up these facts, and give us such of the data as they do not consider business crets, we believe that their own interests would be served by the results.

A CORRESPONDENT who asks us to print his lesster and name in full, complains that certain houses, some of whom he names, after selling books to regular booksellers at definite prices. consign to their rivals at lower prices. Such a system is death to fair trading. We do not usdertake to say whether our correspondent speaks by the card; but we have withheld his letter from publication until it was sent to the houses named and time given for reply. There has so far been no reply.

IT is a part of the service of the Publishers' WEEKLY to the book trade that it puts the literary news, notes on the new books, and other literary matter in easy shape for other journals to utilize. We are very glad to have them do so, on the single condition that usual credit shall be given. But there are a number of journals which make up their literary columns large ly from our publications, without so much as a word of acknowledgment. The most flagrant recent case is that of The Newsman for December, which copies a long article on "Copyright in Canada'' from the Publishers' Weekly, a chapter from our "Library Aids," and other matter from the Library Journal, without & single line of credit.

ABUSES OF THE BOOK TRADE.

From the Boston Beacon, Jan. 2.

AGAIN the trade protests against the book sales of the dry-goods shops and other miscellaneous establishments. But it is not certain that such a protest will amount to much. Capitalists who can secure a big pile of books at specially low rates, and know how to work them off on their customers, cannot and should not be prevented from such a venture. Booksellers are at liberty to retaliate by selling some commodity usually found in dry-goods stores. It is extremely uncertain, however, that such a mode of procedure in either case will pay in the long run, because no one not a trained bookseller can possibly understand the difficulties and risks of the business. Indeed, the danger of the dry-goods store is far less than is the ominous fact that so many persons are engaged in the book trade without possessing the necessary mental and business training. For better or worse it happens to be a fact that the selling of books requires a special skill not to be acquired without a very considerable education. In Germany, where the book publishing and selling trades are remarkably well regulated, the trade of the dealer amounts to something like a liberal profession. So does the trade of the apothecaries. To be sure, we canno adopt the German system. But our booksellers will find themselves repaid in the end by treating their vocation as one of some dignity, to which even a salesman or saleswoman is not admitted, unless they have an education superior to that of most other trades. Is it not a strange test that the average American book-store is without a bibliographical library? Is it not true that the average bookseller, especially in the interior, knows very little about the best editions of the principal authors? He studies prices, and the rapidity with which the books he orders may be worked off. Very naturally, he prospers for a season, and is unable to bear the trials and difficulties sure to surround a man not fully prepared for his business. Very likely, many booksellers suffer from the fact that publishers do not treat all their customers alike. But the important fact should not be disguised that too many booksellers are not fully up to all the requirements of their vocation. They treat one another as rivals, not as co-operating friends. As a matter of fact, they should combine, form a booksellers' league, adopt, as far as possible, uniform customs, exclude unbusiness-like members, and, if necessary, dictate terms to the publishers and the community. A union of the good booksellers in this country would command the immediate respect of the publishers, and might rely on the hearty support of the public, which is now bewildered by wonderful bargains, without knowing whether it receives real benefits, or is simply beguiled into the purchase of trash. Book buyers find to their forms that, as now conducted, the selling of books is a sectional business. What do we d Boston see of Chicago, San Francisco and Southern publications? We need a national association of trained booksellers, who, in servng their own interests, will serve the pubishers and the public as well. And we need some central organ in which absolutely all new publications will be duly announced. Short of such a national union the literary and business merests of the country are doomed to pine and i

INTERNATIONAL PETTY LARCENY.

BY E. P. ROE.

From the Christian Union.

Nor very long since I had occasion to visit a city in Ontario, Canada. I was scarcely more than across the Suspension Bridge before an effort to sell me my own books was made by the vender of railroad literature. I soon learned that he had editions in two or three styles of binding, to suit the taste and purse of the purtiaser, and that he was having a brisk trade in the stolen wares. On reaching my destination, I strolled into a bookstore, and again had the pleasure of inspecting several editions of my works, published in Canada and England. The tooks of many other American authors appeared with them, and all had imprints of publishers who probably had never even said, "By your leave.

Not content with stealing my books, a Canadian house stole my name, and tacked it, as author, to a story of which I had not written a line, or even heard until a friend sent it to me. I tried to get redress for this outrage, and the result was a lawyer's fee.

Take General Lewis Wallace's experience, as published in the New York Tribunc. He found that his admirable story, "Ben-Hur," was appreciated in England, that two thousand copies had been sold within a fortnight by Warne & Co.; and he has the privilege of buying his books for two shillings each. This much he could stand, knowing what his rights (?) were in England. The clerk, learning that his customer was the author, conducted him to the publishers, and "his stolen book lay on the table" before them. General Wallace took up his work, and learned that its title had been changed, parts of the story omitted—expurgated, I suppose, so that the moral sensibilities of English readers should not be offended—and that a preface in the Queen's English, certainly not in General Wallace's, had been inserted to give the stolen book a respectable send-off. Thus the General was made responsible before the British public for a work that, in a measure, had ceased to be his. Warne & Co. are much too modest. They should have announced that they were joint authors with General Wallace. The literary firm promised to give the subject of "remuneration due consideration." Probably they have been so busy in selling the book that they have forgotten all about General Wallace, for up to the time that these facts were published- -ten months had elapsed—he had not heard from his partners in authorship.

During the present year I also have enjoyed the consideration of another English publishing house. They declined my book, after having considered so long—I meanwhile receiving the impression that they would take my work—that no time was left to make other arrangements. Dr. Cuyler once told me that a book of his was taken by an English publisher, cut in two, and each part issued under a new title. One of my books found three publishers in England, but I was no more regarded than I would have been had some of my property drifted to the shores of Central Africa.

Scores of American writers have no doubt had similar experiences, and I suppose British authors fare as badly with us. What is all this but international petty larceny?—petty, in these days of bank and railroad wrecking, in the value of the property stolen, but serious and sad enough to the hard-working class that is robbed.

The average politician and law-maker takes no interest in the matter. One of his alk has expressed his opinion of "literary fellers." Other statesmen "point with pride" to cheap literature. The people are provided with books almost without money and without cost - except to the authors; and they are such an insignificant class, and control so few votes, that they are not worth considering. The good of the people is the point to be considered, and the robbing of a few score for the sake of the million is one of the smart bits of political economy in which the average M. C. takes a natural pride. I suppose the same statesmen would like a state of affairs which would permit lumber to be stolen from Canada. The people of their "deestrict" could then build their homes at half their present cost.

After all, our best hope, on both sides of the water, lies in an appeal to the people. When they come to understand the matter fully, they will not wish to save a few pennies by buying stolen goods, and they will make their lawmakers aware of the fact. They will brush aside all half-way measures and talk of compromise between this and that interest, and will demand legislation in conformity with the principles of common honesty. They will no more permit this form than other forms of robbery. It requires no gift of prophecy to foresee that the people, who are supposed to profit most by international thievery, will right this wrong, as they have other wrongs over which their representatives quibbled; and to-day, I believe, they would refuse to be particeps criminis if the truth were generally understood.

INTERNATIONAL COPYRIGHT.

An English Proposition.—Authors are again to the fore, pleading for an International Copyright. My idea of one between the United States and us is this: Every American and British author should be allowed to obtain copyright in both countries by selling his work before publication, with due registry, to a publisher in each country. The plan is simple, and it obviates all dissension respecting protection of paper manufacturers and publishers, the object, and the sole object, being to secure to the authors of both countries payment for the work of their brains.—Correspondent of London Truth.

THE AMERICAN PEOPLE TO BLAME.—It is the American people, not the American Government, that is in fault. If the people are seriously shocked by the state of the law of copyright, if they want Mr. Ruskin "and other high-toned English writers" to deal approvingly with American publishers, let them clamor for a hightoned law. In a Democratic land surely the people, if they choose, can force a high-toned law on their Government. But good books, dirt cheap, are to be bought in America under the present law; and the American people, not unnaturally, are in no hurry to alter the legislation on copyright. It cuts both ways, of course; and when American books are in as much demand in England as English books in America, probably there may be a change. We shall become as piratical as it pays us to be, and American authors will not like that. But they will always have the advantage, as they have at home a far larger buying public for cheap books. We do not, therefore, expect a sudden morality and a new law of copyright. But we decline to begin execrating the American Government.—The Saturday Review.

THE LOCAL POSTAL GUIDE.

THE first number of the Local Official Postal Guide, for New York and Brooklyn, was published under date of January 4th. It is a square quarto (11½ × 9½ inches), and contains tables of foreign and domestic postage, schedules showing hours of arrival and departure of mails, hours at which deliveries and collections are made by carriers, boundaries of the various postal districts in New York and Brooklyn, with accompanying "street directories" of both cities (from which residents will be able to learn the postal district in which they are severally situated, and to facilitate delivery of their correspondence); lists of foreign mail steamers de and arrived, reports of railway and other mail detentions, a complete list of all foreign countries. to which mails may be sent; regulations as to classification of mail matter. instructions as to what articles may and may not be sent by meller full details as to money order and registration; business, and numerous hints and suggestions to the public as to postal matters of all sorts, 🐠 tention to which will save time and trouble to themselves, and greatly expedite the operations, of the Post Office. The guide is issued by A. M. May & Co., 16 Thomas St., New York Citysis and is under the supervision of Postmaster Pearly. son, who will supply all the official information contained in the work. The subscription price. is $5 per year; single copies, 10 cents.

A Boom in American Novels.—"A publisher with whom I was chatting the other day —one who publishes some very successful novels, though he has not very many novelists on his list—remarked rather gleefully that he had five American novels in the press. 'I have heard almost the same story from other publishers,' I observed; 'what is the occasion of this "boom" in American novels?' 'The reason is a simple one,' the publisher replied. 'It doesn't pay to publish foreign novels. We want something that can be copyrighted. Then the American novelist will, of course, make his everlasting fortune?' I suggested. 'Well, hardly that, for the American public are not buying American novels with the avidity that one would like 10 see. We sell 5000 copies of a story now # against 25,000 and 50,000 before these cheap reprints flooded the market.' From these figures I concluded that to be an American novelist is an expensive luxury. A novelist can hardly write more than one book a year—certainly not without having the finger of scorn pointed at If he sells 5000 copies of his book—and this is a good sale--he will make only $500 by his year's work! Breaking stones on the highway is almost as remunerative an occupation." — The Critic's Lounger.

Re-issue of Ruskin's Works.—It is probable, says the Pall Mall Gasette, that another of Mr. Ruskin's early works will before long be reissued—namely, the "Examples of the Architecture of Venice," which were originally published to supplement on a larger scale the illustrations in the "Stones of Venice." Owing to the lack of encouragement at the time only three parts out of twelve were published, and these are now very scarce. Only 50 sets of proofs were printed, and more than once in recent years as much as £30 has been paid for a set of india proofs. The print copies also are very difficult to get. There were 10 steel plates, some in line and some in mezzotint, and all these are still in excellent condition. The six lithographs will be carefully done again, as the stones were destroyed. It is further said that Mr. Ruskin hopes to get the remaining three chapters of "Præterita," which will complete the first volume of his autobiography, finished and out by his birthday on February 8 next, and that the whole of the special edition of the "Stones of Venice," on large hand-made paper announced a few weeks ago, has been taken up and that the publisher has been obliged to close the list.

OBITUARY.

T. B. LIPPINCOTT.

JOSHUA B. LIPPINCOTT, founder and senior member of the Philadelphia publishing house which bears his name, died January 5th at his residence in Rittenhouse Square, in that city. The cause of his death was a tedious and complicated illness which set in two years ago, after a severe attack of pneumonia. Mr. Lippincott's ancestors were prominent members of the Socety of Friends. He was born in Burlington County, N. J., in 1813. Early in life he showed great fondness for books, and when fourteen years old began life as "boy" in a Philadelphia book-store, kept by a Mr. Clarke. At the age of eighteen the business of his employer was sold out by his creditors, who bought the property for themselves, and young Lippincott, at the age of eighteen, was put in charge. This business he conducted until 1336, when he had saved enough money to start in business for himself at Clarke's old stand, under the firm-name of J. B. Lippincont & Co. The first publications bearing the imprint of the new firm appeared in that year— Prayer-books and Bibles were made their specialty — Mr. Lippincott, who possessed exquisite take in the matter of elegant bindings—giving special attention to the manufacturing depart-

The new firm enjoyed remarkable financial seccess, and grew daily. In 1850 Mr. Lippin-cott resolved to place his house at the head of the Philadelphia book-trade, and with a bold ambition that was startling to all his friends, offered to buy out Messrs. Grigg & Elliot, who were then the leading and most prosperous losse in the book-trade.

The firm of Grigg & Elliot, we may here inerpolate, was founded by Mr. Benjamin Johnson, whose book-stand on Market Street, near the present Lippincott establishment, had beome widely known long before the close of the last century. After a few years of success Mr. Johnson associated with him Mr. Benjamin Warner, who presently became sole proprietor. is 1925 Mr. John Grigg, who had learned the besiness with Mr. Warner, in his turn purchased the entire establishment. He was bold and enterprising, and soon became known as the most pushing man in the trade. He formed a partnership with Mr. Hugh Elliot, under the name of Grigg & Elliot. At this time Mr. George Remsen tad been in the employ of Grigg & Elliot since 1525; Mr. Claxton (who had previously been with Stoddart and Atherton) had been with them since 1333.

Mr. Lippincott finally made arrangements to purchase the Grigg & Elliot stock. The firm now became Lippincott, Grambo & Co., the him consisting of J. B. Lippincott, Henry Grambo, Edward Claxton, George Remsen, and Benjamin B. Willis. The stock of the new firm now included books, periodicals, stationery, and miscellaneous articles. The modest store at the corner of Race and Fourth streets was outgrown, and a large six-story building taken at the corner of Fourth and Commerce streets, while a building of similar size was erected in Fifth Street above Cherry, for manufacturing purposes. Five years later, in June, 1855, the original partnership expired by limitation (Mr. Grambo retiring), and the firm reassumed the name of J. B. Lippincott & Co. Mr. C. C. Haf-felfinger and Mr. John A. Remsen were added as partners in 1858. In 1868 Mr. E. Claxton, George Remsen, and C. C. Haffelfinger withdrew, on the expiration of their term of partnership, and formed the firm of Claxton, Remsen & Haffelfinger. For a brief period Mr. G. W. Childs was connected with the Lippincott firm.

Mr. Lippincott now devoted his entire energy to become as successful as a publisher as he had been as a bookseller. Several important Government works were entrusted to him for execution—notably Schoolcraft's "History of the Indian Tribes," in six folio volumes the cost of which, according to Mr. J. C. Derby, (to whose work, "Fifty Years Among Authors," we are indebted to many facts in this sketch), was nearly $100,000.

The failure, in 1857, of Messrs. Phillips, Sampson & Co., of Boston, who up to that time had been the publishers of Prescott's "Historical Works' (in fifteen volumes), threw open to the competition of different houses an opportunity to arrange for the future publication of those By the original contract with Phillips, Sampson & Co. Mr. Prescott received a copyright of fifty cents per volume, and other Boston houses were ready to enter a similar arrangement. Furthermore, a strong local influence favored the retention of the works in Boston; but the bid of a bonus of $5000 and a guaranteed copyright of $6000 per annum secured to Mr. Lippincott the publication of these important works, the entire copyright and plates of which subsequently, by actual purchase from Mr. Prescott's heirs, became his property. Later a new edition, with new stereotype plates, revised by Mr. J. Foster Kirke, Prescott's former secretary, and the author of "Charles the Bold, Duke of Burgundy' (also one of the important publications of the house), was issued by J. B. Lippincott & Co.

It would be interesting had we space to follow in detail the rounding-out process of the catalogue of J. B. Lippincott & Co., as it has gone steadily on, until now the Bibles and Prayerbooks occupy a relatively small though by no means unimportant segment of the whole. It embraces the titles of over twenty-five hundred volumes, and the number is increasing at the rate of over one hundred a year.

Unable to enumerate all the works issued by this house, we must restrict ourselves to speak briefly of those magnificent works of reference, which are the most splendid and enduring achievements of the firm's enterprise. The first of these in order of publication was that marvellous "Dictionary of Authors," prepared by Dr. S. A. Allibone, which, in comprehensiveness and painstaking accuracy, justly takes precedence of every similar work in the world. Dr. Allibone confesses that he entered upon the vast undertaking without realizing to what proportions it would grow or the magnitude of the labor it would involve. He took out copyright on his first volume in 1854, and the first volume was issued in 1858 by the then famous firm of Childs & Peterson. J. B. Lippincott & Co. then became his publishers, and issued the second volume in 1870, and the third in 1871. Lippincott's exhaustive "Pronouncing Gazetteer of the World " is well worthy to rank with the Allibone dictionary. The first edition appeared in 1855, and the cost for editing. plates, etc., amounted to $50,000 before the cost of manufacture was added.

For several years J. B. Lippincett & Co. published excellent editions of Webster's Dictionaries, but for some reason sold out their interest to the Merriams of Springfield, Mass. In 1876 they purchased from Brewer & Tileston, Boston, the entire rights in Worcester's Dictionary.

Feeling that a house of the magnitude of theirs should be represented by a literary journal, J. B. Lippincott & Co. projected Lippincott's Magasine in 1867, and issued the first number in January, 1868. Its first editor was Lloyd P. Smith, the Librarian of the Philadelphia Library. He was succeeded in 1870 by J. Foster Kirke. Beginning with the January issue of this year, it starts out in a changed form under the editorship of William S. Walsh, who was for six years manager of the literary department. In 1856, in connection with its medical department, the firm began the publication of the Chirurgical Review, an exceedingly valuable journal, edited by the distinguished Professor Gross, of Philadelphia. acquired a large circulation; but it was chiefly in the South, and when the war broke out the journal was ruined, to the great loss of its proprietors. A few years since they established the Medical Times, which has become, under the editorship of Dr. H. C. Wood, Jr., a leading authority.

In 1861, having outgrown their Fourth Street store, Mr. Lippincott erected the magnificent marble publication house which they now occupy at 715 and 717 Market Street, between Seventh and Eighth. It covers a ground surface of 200 by 45 feet and is five stories high, and at the time of its erection it seemed to persons unfamiliar with the operations and needs of the house incredible that so much space could be occupied to advantage. But as business developed, the building was found none too large for the requirements, and, in 1872, a yet larger structure was erected immediately north of it to accommodate the manufacturing operations.

While his business was in rapid development, Mr. Lippincott was constantly beset with importunities to remove his interests to New York. But he believed in Philadelphia and the possibility of a great publishing and book-trade there. and could not be persuaded to leave. Before the war the greater portion of the Lippincott trade was with the Southern States, but with the first breath of rebellion it was all swept away, at a loss of hundreds of thousands of dollars. It was to partly retrieve this loss that the manufacture of photograph albums was entered upon, and the experiment succeeded beyond all expectation. Gradually a trade with the West was built up, which became immensely valuable. The luxuries of book-buying and book-reading have not recovered rapidly at the South since the war, and hardly one tenth as many volumes are sent there as to the West. To better provide for the foreign interests of the house, a London agency was established by Mr. Lippincott in 1875, at No. 16 Southampton Street, Covent Garden. At this time the firm included, besides its senior partner, Walter and Craige Lippincott, sons of Mr. J. B. Lippincott; J. B. Mitchell, J. Shoemaker, George Wood, R. P. Morton, and W. S. Washburn.

Recognizing the inevitable approach of the end, Mr. Lippincott, in February last, reorganized his publishing business in the form of a stock company, which was chartered February 27th, under the name of the J. B. Lippincott Publishing Company. The President of the new corporation was J. B. Lippincott himself. His ond son, Craige Lippincott, is Vice-President and it is thought probable that he will suggested to the Presidency. Of the two other some eldest, Walter, is an invalid, and the youn J. Bertram, who recently married a daught Joseph Wharton, is already connected with business. The Secretary and Treasurer of company is Robert P. Morton.

To a wonderful capacity for business Mr. pincott united broad and liberal culture, having travelled extensively he enjoyed the sonal friendship of the most noted autho his day. Early in life he married Miss Joine Craige, an accomplished lady of Phiphia. The three sons, all connected with in business, and a daughter, the wife of J. J. Goodwin, of New York City, conswith their children his descendants.

BOOKS AS DRY GOODS.

TROY, N. Y., Dec. 26, 18

To the Editor of the Publishers' Weckly:

DEAR SIR: Why don't you "tell the ti about the dry-goods book business? So: the item copied from the Stationer and Prin Chicago, is concerned, I would answer the reason the dry-goods dealers do not sell tea, and sugar is because none of the man urers of these goods will, after filling the re trade with a stock, CONSIGN at lower pric same stock to the calico men. such firms as Belford, Clarke & Co. and & Co. are doing with their books every he season; and of course they can sell low they buy lower than the book men, and d have a dollar of their profits remaining or shelves after the "season is over," so the ital and intelligence is entirely unnecessar " modern book-store."

Respectfully yours, W. J. Woo

NOTES ON AUTHORS.

SIR THEODORE MARTIN has finished his translation into English verse of the second part of "Faust." Blackwood is to be the publisher.

MRS. CAMPBELL PRAED and Mr. Justin Mc-Carthy are said to have been joint authors of the new English novel, "The Right Honorable."

Professor Hoffmann, the author of a book on "Modern Magic," and of a story for boys, entitled "Conjurer Dick," is Angelo J. Lewis.

THE author of the anonymous work "How to be Happy though Married," is the Rev. E. J. Hardy, Chaplain of Her Majesty's forces at Gosport.

MR. WALTER HERRIES POLLOCK, editor of the Saturday Keview, who is accepted as the best swordsman in England, will write the volume on "Fencing" in the Badminton Library, published in this country by Little, Brown & Co.

MAURICE LELOIR is engaged on an illustrated edition of "Paul and Virginia," which will be published next fall uniform with Sterne's "Sentimental Journey" and Prévost's "Manon Lescott," just issued by Messrs. Routledge.

WILLIAM A. BUTLER, a well-known lawyer of New York City, and popular with an older generation as the author of "Nothing to Wear," in which the tribulations of Flora McFlimsy are put forth, has written a novel which is shortly to be published. The work is another satire written in genial vein, and deals with certain phases of social and domestic life in this city.

JOURNALISTIC NOTES.

Outing will hereafter be published from 140 Kassau St., N. Y.

Building, edited by William Paul Gerhard, and published by W. T. Comstock, will hereafter be published weekly.

THE Literary World, in its review of "The World's Literature in 1885," singularly omits from "Necrology" the name of Helen Hunt Jackson.

WILLIAM WHITLOCK, publisher of the Art Interchange, begins to-day the issue of a new art paper, entitled Home Decoration. It is a 16-page illustrated journal, the size of the Art Interchange, and will be published every other week.

THE book trade has now got, beside the more generally representative journals, Book News (Wanamaker.) Book Notes, (Rider.) The Book Buyer. (Scribner.) The Book Hunter, (Gregory.) The Book Bulletin, (Lothrop.) Book Chat, (Brentano.) with The Book Scalper, yet to be heard from.

Les Lettres et les Arts is the title of a new monthly illustrated review about to be started by the successors of Goupil in Paris. Each number will contain about one hundred and forty pages and nearly forty illustrations, including engravings, etchings, photogravures, and colcred engravings. Subscription price per year will be $60; single numbers will cost $6.

THE New Princeton Review (A. C. Armstrong & Son) is imposing in form and matter. It aims to "create for America an organ for the publication of high literary work, of original thought in all departments of philosophy and science, and of constructive criticism. It will leave to others the discussions of theology, but will strive as a principal aim to promote high morality and religion." Among its contributors will be found almost every telling name in American letters. Its editorial department will be a new and important feature, and will contain epitomes of the most important intellectual work and discovery throughout the world. The subjects of the January issue are: "Society in the New South," by Charles Dudley Warner; "What an American Philosophy Should be," by James McCosh; "The Christian Conception of Property," by C. H. Parkhurst; "Lunar Problems now under Debate," by C. A. Young; "A Free Press in the Middle Colonies," by John Bach McMaster; "The Political Situation;" the first instalment of "Monsieur Motte," a serial story by an author who withholds his name, and the criticisms, notes, and reviews on the questions of the hour. A very elaborate analytical index will have a peculiar value for reference, as it will be published annually and thrown into one complete index every five years. The New Princeton will be published six times a year.

BUSINESS NOTES.

Boston, Mass.—The firm of S. E. Cassino & Co. has been dissolved by mutual consent. Mr. S. E. Cassino retires, and Mr. Bradlee Whidden assumes the liabilities, and will settle the affairs of the late firm. Mr. Whidden will continue the business under the old firm name for the year just begun.

NEW YORK CITY. -- B. Westermann & Co. have admitted Mr. Oscar Buechner as partner. The firm now consists of Messrs. Bernard Westermann, Ernst Lemcke, and Oscar Buechner.

LITERARY AND TRADE NOTES.

MACMILLAN & Co. will publish Marion Crawford's new novel, "A Scholar's Romance."

E. DARROW & Co., Rochester, N. Y., celebrated their fortieth anniversary as booksellers, on January 1st.

CUPPLES, UPHAM & Co. have in preparation "A Year's Sonnets," by Louise Brooks, translator of "Heidi" etc.; also a second edition of "The Tobacco Problem," by Meta Lander.

HENRY HOLT & Co. will publish in their Leisure Hour Series a romantic and dramatic novel of English rural life, with an American hero, entitled "After His Kind," by John Coventry.

THE FOREST AND STREAM PUBLISHING CO. announce the third and enlarged edition of W. P. Stephens' "Canoe and Boat-Building," with added plans of a sneakbox and new types of canoes.

J. FLETCHER BRENNAN & Co., Cincinnati, will have ready next May the first of the two volumes of the "Autobiography of Cassisus M. Clay, of Kentucky," late Minister to Russia. The work will be sold by subscription only.

W. R. JENKINS has just ready a new edition of Strangeway's "Veterinary Anatomy," revised and edited by I. Vaughan, fully illustrated, and reduced in price; also "Veterinary Pharmacology and Therapeutics," by I. B. Gresswell.

WE congratulate General A. C. McClurg, of Jansen, McClurg & Co., on his escape from the dynamite fiend. It appears that recently a can of dynamite was placed on the front stoop of the General's residence, but there was a hitch in the programme, and the dynamite failed to make connections.

THE first volume of Lawrence Hutton and Brander Matthews's "Actors and Actresses of Great Britain" is ready for the press, with the exception of Mr. Austin Dobson's article on Garrick. Cassell & Co. will publish it as soon as it can be printed. This volume deals entirely with the Garrick age.

CHARLES SCRIBNER'S SONS have in preparation an American edition of "La Psychologie Allemande Contemporaine" (École Experimentale), by Prof. Th. Ribot, with an introductory by President McCosh. They have also in press two additions to their Epoch series, "The Early Hanoverians," by Prof. E. E. Morris, and "The Spartan and Theban Supremacy," by Charles Sankey.

KARL KRON, the author of "Four Years at Yale," after a successful canvass of nearly two years with his "Ten Thousand Miles on a Bicycle," announces from his office in the University Building, N. Y., that the work will probably be ready for subscribers in February next. The edition will consist of 5000 copies, 3000 of which will go to the original subscribers numbered and addressed in the autograph of the author.

THE TRAVELLER'S INSURANCE Co., Hartford, Conn., has added to their series of journalists the "Representative Parisian Journals and Journalists." Prominent among these admirably executed portraits are those of Emile de Girardin, Paul de Cassagnac, John Lemoinne, Henri Rochefort, and Escoffier. These and their confrères of the press are shown, each backed up, literally as well as figuratively, by the paper which is the engine of his personal influence.

We would again call the attention of lovers of good books, and of those who desire to promote whatever may help the literature of our country, to the catalogue of the "Harris Collection of American Poetry," which the Rev. Dr. Stockbridge is preparing. The catalogue will make mention of nearly six thousand volumes, and will give appropriate biographical and bibliographical notes. The price of the proposed volume will be $5. The address of the compiler is Rev. Dr. J. C. Stockbridge, 312 Benefit St., Providence, R. I.

GINN & Co. will publish March I a volume entitled "The Philosophy of Wealth: Economic Principles Newly Formulated," by Professor John B. Clark, of Amherst College. In general this work is "a restatement of economic principles in harmony with the modern spirit, discarding the Ricardian method, free from doctrinaireism and pessimism, and recognizing the operation of higher motives of action than pure self-interest." In particular, the work "aims to secure a more philosophical conception of wealth, labor, and value, and of the economic processes considered as activities of the social organism."

George W. Crane & Co., Topeka, Kan., are rapidly increasing their list of standard local law books, and have already crossed the lines into adjacent territory, adding to former lists the "Compiled Laws of New Mexico." Their Taylor's "Brief Digest of Kansas Decisions" has been received with remarkable favor by the profession, and will no doubt be wanted by lawyers of other States, maintaining general libraries. The poetical works of Eugene F. Ware, recently turned out of their printing house, for another Topeka bookseller, under the name of "Rhymes of Ironquill," is a specimen of typography and mechanical execution that would be creditable to any book manufacturer in the country, East or West.

JANSEN, McClurg & Co. will publish in a few days a volume entitled "Letters to a Daughter," which, though small and unpretentious, they hope may prove unusually acceptable to parents. The letters are brief, and marked by good sense, sympathy, and a thorough understanding of the subject. The author, Mrs. Helen E. Starrett, has had large experience in the training of girls, and this, joined with her facility as a writer, has rendered her peculiarly fitted for her task. Added to the nine letters, covering a range of topics from personal manners to mental and spiritual culture, is a 'Little Sermon to School Girls," which, in a more general style of treatment, admirably summarizes and enforces the lessons previously inculcated.

ELIOT STOCK, London, has in press a volume of essays on books and book collecting, by J. Roger Rees, entitled "Recollections of a Bookworm."

Volumes 25 and 26 of Thackeray's complete works, just published in London, are greeted by the London Athenaum as follows: "There is no doubt that the ghoul who is understood to be the first cause of these two volumes of reprints has deserved, and will receive, the detestation of all true lovers of Thackeray."

A PARAGRAPH running the round of the German papers says that "the English statesman Göschen is writing a biography of his grandfather, the publisher of the works of Goethe, Schiller, and Wieland." It is reported that a considerable number of hitherto unpublished letters of these poets will appear in the volume.

THE publication of the long-expected extracts rom the diary of Reimer, the close friend and confidant of Goethe, has aroused great interest in literary circles in Europe. Although most of Goethe's worshippers knew that treasures of interesting information about their idol lay locked up in this diary, they were jealously kept secret in the Weimar Library, which has only lately allowed their publication.

MR. B. F. STEVENS, it is reported, will shortly address himself to Congress in behalf of an enormous labor which he has undertaken for the preservation and concentration of historical documents scattered among the archives, public and private, of England, France, Holland, and Spain. These (mostly unpublished) manuscripts relate to America, or our portion of it, during the period of 1772-84, and are of inestimable value for the student of the Revolution in its military and diplomatic aspects. Mr. Stevens has, in many years, succeeded in indexing some eighty thousand of them, and his plan "comprises the collection and comparison of all duplicates and variations of these documents wherever they exist, the recording of all points of difference, the cataloguing of all, and the copying of all principal and distinct documents that have not been published, and the variations from those that have.'

WILLIAM WOOD & COMPANY,

MEDICAL PUBLISHERS,

56 and 58 Lafayette Place, New York.

TO THE TRADE.

The General Bookseller is well aware that thousands of Physicians in all parts I the United States buy a great number of books, including very many which are strictly refessional, and get them, to a large extent, direct from the publishers.

Why so large a portion of this trade is permitted to go direct to the publishers, stead of passing through the hands of the local dealer, to whom it rightfully belongs, not difficult to understand.

It would seem as if the judicious distribution (where they would do the most good), of sts, catalogues and circulars which publishers are always glad to supply ad libitum, and an casional purchase of some new book for stock, which a little interviewing of "one who news" would indicate as likely to be popular or of standard value, would very soon gain in the bookseller, the reputation, among medical men in his vicinity, of a dealer who could not would supply them with anything that they might want in his line, and afford him an acceptable profit besides.

Messrs. Wm. Wood & Co., will advertise the issue of their new Medical Publications to the trade by means of special circulars, and through the advertising pages of The Publishers' Weekly.

Catalogues and circulars with imprint, if desired, will be supplied upon application.

Special terms will be made with firms which register standing orders for new books in advance of publication.

Correspondence is solicited with General Booksellers throughout the country.

" WOOD'S POCKET MANUALS,"-A NEW VOLUME READY.

IEMORANDA OF VENERBAL DISEASES. A manual for the student and general practitioner, with a full formulary and special rules of treatment. By P. A. Morrow, A.M., M.D. One volume. 18mo. 332 pages. Muslin binding. Price, $1.00.

The Author has aimed to give in this little volume a concise exposition of the nature and treatment of Venereal biseases. With this object in view, he has endeavored to "boil down," so to speak, the material embodied in more volumes works on that subject, and present the essential facts and principles in the most compact form possible, consistent with clearness; the scope of the work is, therefore, more comprehensive than is usual in books of this class. In further-see of this effort the form of Aphorisms has been adopted, which, it is believed, will make the book as practical as is possible, and, with the full formulary and detailed directions for treatment which are added, meet the wants of the general factitioner in this department.

HANDBOOK OF THERAPEUTICS, with Dietary and Index of Diseases. By Sidney Ringer, M.D., Eleventh edition. One vol., octavo. 680 pages. Price, fine muslin, $5.00; sheep, $6.00.

In preparing this new edition of the Handbook of Therapeutics, the Author has endeavored to make it as practical possible, in view of its usefulness to young practitioners and students. The method adopted in the arrangement is to low out in a certain order, in detail, the physiological and therapeutic action of individual drugs on the body. For the st part he has treated methodically of the action of each drug, first on the skin, next on the mouth, then on the stomach, eintestines, the blood, the nervous system, the lungs, the heart, and finally on the excreting organs, dwelling most of urse on the organ, or organs mainly affected by the drug under consideration. Besides making important additions, the accounted etc., the author has, with the aid of well-known specialists and investigators, revised many of the subcus heretofore included in the work.

A NOVEL OF HIGH CHARACTER.

DONOVAN:

A Modern Englishman.

A NOVEL.

By EDNA LYALL.

"Donovan" is a novel that has been attracting a great deal of attention in England, especially among more string readers. It is a religious novel, the hero of which is a freethinker, and the story consists of a struggle between doubt and faith.

FROM ENGLISH REVIEWS.

- "This is a very admirable work. The story is told with a grand simplicity, an unconscious poetry of eloquence which stirs the very depths of the heart. It should do as much good as the best sermon ever written or delivered expore."—The Standard.
- A novel of sterling merit, being fresh and original in conception, thoroughly healthy in tone, interesting in detail and sincere and capable in execution."— The Academy.
- "A novel with a high aim successfully attained. The character-drawing is vigorous and truthful."—The Pall Mall Gazette.
 - "'Denovan' is told with the power of truth, experience, and moral insight."—The Paily News.
- "There is a great deal of thought in this book. The author has an unusual capacity for seeing both sides of a session."—The Spectator.
- "Denovan' is distinguished by marked ability in the portraiture of exceptional forms of character. The hero inself is a finished study."—The Globe.
 - "'Donovan' 15 a powerful tale, with a high purpose. The conception is altogether fine."—The Guardian.
 - "Donovan himself is a careful and finished study." -- The Graphic.

WILL PUBLISH JANUARY 16:

The History of German Literatur

By Professor William Scherer. Translated under the supervision of Pro Max Müller. 2 vols. 12mo. $3.50.

Professor Scherer's is the first history of German literature worthy to be called at the same time master scholarly sense, and popular. It is already a recognized authority of the highest rank in its own country; and the lation, with the sponsorship of the first of Anglo-German scholars, will occupy a place among our own measuration which there has been nothing else to fill.

"Professor Scherer has written a history of German literature which is as full of entertainment as it is of tion, and comprises within a convenient space all that is important to know of German literature."—Professo Boyesen.

Endless Punishment.

By Professor W. G. T. Shedd, D.D. 1 vol. Svo. $1.50.

Dr. Shedd has performed a valuable service in writing this book, which contains a comprehensive and n defense of the belief of the Church upon this subject. The argument for endless punishment has never be cogently and clearly stated.

Dr. Ross's work enjoys the ion of being an English work printed in a directly from the author's manuscript, e demand for the book in England being I entirely from this side of the Atlantic.

LES SCRIBNER'S SONS publish to-day icherer's important work on "The His-German Literature," already fully noticed in the WEEKLY; a volume on "Endless Punishment," by Prof. W. G. T. Shedd, a comprehensive defence of the belief of the Church upon this subject; "God's Revelations of Himself to Men, as successively made in the Patriarchal, Jewish, and Christian Dispensation, and in the Messianic Kingdom," by S. J. Andrews; also, "How to be Happy Though Married," a volume which attracted considerable attention abroad, and which was called by the Pall Mall Gazette "a complete handbook to an earthly Paradise."

ESTES & LAURIAT will publish on the 20th inst. a limited edition, in three volumes, of "The Complete Poetical Works of Percy Bysshe Shelley." The text of this edition has been carefully revised, and has notes and a memoir by William M. Rossetti. On the same day they will publish a work on "Food Materials and their Adulterations," a short account of the early history and sources of the chief articles of food, with notes on the adulterations to which they are liable, and the means of detecting them, by Ellen H. Richards; a new edition of the same author's "The Chemistry of Cooking and Cleaning;" also "The Early Hanoverians," by Edward E. Morris, in the Epochs of Modern History.

TICKNOR & Co. have just ready "The Story of Margaret Kent," by Henry Hayes, a novel of Bohemian life in New York, "illustrating woman's inhumanity to woman' with masterly The plot and situations are original and natural, sparkling with real life and tender feelings, and the novel is one of the strongest and most absorbing of recent contributions to fiction. The author's name is said to conceal a practised writer, as the capital workmanship of the book They have also just ready a new suggests. and fully-revised and much enlarged edition of "American Whist," by G. W. P., an excellent teacher and wise companion to the most enjoyable game of cards; and an original copyright translation of "Cleopatra," by Henry Gréville.

CASSELL & Co. will publish next week, probably on the 20th, Macaulay's "Warren Hastings," the first of Cassell's National Library, a series of volumes to be issued weekly under the editorship of Professor Henry Morley. These volumes will represent all periods and form of thought—history, biography, religion, and philosophy; discovery and enterprise; plays, poems, and tales; natural science and natural history; art; political economy; with whatever else may be worth lasting remembrance. Professor Morley is not only responsible for the selections in the series, but he will write an introduction to each number. The first volume will be followed by Isaac Walton's "Complete Angler," Lord Byron's "Childe Harold," and the autobiography of Benjamin Franklin. Among the other books to be issued in this series are Gilbert White's "Natural History of Selborne." Martin Luther's "Table Talk," Sheridan's "The School for Scandal" and "The Rivals." Hallam's "History of Europe during the Middle Ages;" indeed, there are few classics that will not find their way into this omnivorous library. The crowning glory of this series is its remarkably low price. The volumes will be small sixteenmos of about one hundred and ninety-two pages, printed in clear, readable type on good paper, and sold for ten cents each, or fifty-two volumes, postpaid, for $5, when subscribed for by the year.

The first volume yet issued of this valuable historical series, which is complete in itself, with preface and index, taking up events from the earliest records and bringing them down to the present day. The publishers are assured that this is a timely volume. There is no part of the United States domain whose climate, resources, and history are so little known as those of Alaska. There is no part more needful of the attention of statesmen and men of progress and philanthropy. It is to be believed that this volume will prove of immediate and lasting benefit in thus throwing new light on this distant region.

Lowe, C: Prince Bismarck: an historical biography. N. Y., Cassell & Co., [1886.]

2 v. 21 + 639; 10 + 633 p. pors. O. cl., $5. "This is the first attempt, by an English writer, to place before his countrymen a complete historical sketch of the career of the great German statesman;... they have hitherto been without a connected and elaborate account of his whole career from a purely English point of view, and these volumes are intended to supply this muchfelt want. Aiming as they do at recording in as complete a manner as possible the personal achievements of the reatest man of the age, they at the same time claim to be regarded as a political history of modern Germany. . . . "-Preface. The first volume brings the history of Bismarck's life down to the close of the Franco-German war. The second covers the period from 1871 to 1885. An appendix gives the text of treaties of Vienna (1864), of Prague (1866), of Frankfort (1871), and the convention of Gastein (1865); also the Prussian and liberal constitutions, with portraits of the prince at 19 and at 73. 6+456 p. D. cl., $1.50.

The hero is introduced at eighteen, in disgrace and expelled from school. His father's kindness touches his better nature, and influences him to improve. The father's sudden death brings about many changes, and Donovan falls into the temptation of gambling, sporting, and idleness, and also becomes a confirmed atheist. The author shows great skill in presenting both sides of a picture. The influence of a happy home and the great power of good women are strongly brought out. The plot is interesting, the style simple and poetic. There is a touch of Dickens in the portraiture of "Dot," Donovan's invalid child-sister.

THE QUESTION OF DISCOUNTS.

THERE are two important improvements which would do much to give to the book trade that basis of business certainty on which other trades are based, and which, sooner or later, are sure to come. One of these is international copyright; the other is a reform in the system of discounts. When the American Book Trade Association held its meeting at Philadelphia in 1876, which adopted the restriction of discounts afterward known as the twenty per cent rule, (though it was intended to maintain retail prices and to restrict the stated discount to certain privileged classes,) it was urged upon the convention that such a movement would be futile unless it were accompanied by a reduction in retail prices, and a shortening of the nominal wholesale discounts to their actual rate. In any movement of this sort, especially if it is spread over a large body of men, one fact must first of all be recognized, that the laws of general business and public opinion are the main arbiters beyond all possibility of control by any smaller interest. If the trade at that time had been willing to take the far-sighted view of putting itself in line with public opinion instead of more or less in opposition to it, we should have seen a far better condition to-day of both the retail and the wholesale book trade, and the public would have been also so much the better off.

We make bold to repeat now, although we shall meet at once the protest that the bookseller cannot live on less margin than he has to-day, that the one move, aside from international copyright, which will do most to put the trade on a good footing, especially in their contest with the "bazaars" and "butchers," is to bring down nominal retail prices by shortening trade discounts from their present nominal accounts to what they really are. This reform was brought about some time since in the law-book trade by the boldness of one house—Messrs. Little,

Brown & Co.—who took the initiative in reducing the nominal price of $7.50 books to $6, leav ing the actual trade rate, which had been $4.50 the same. It seems to be the general opinion of the law-book trade that this has worked the oughly well; it is no longer possible to tell the old story of the judge who was charged $7.50 fo a given book by a certain dealer, and who pres ently found a copy of the same book in the hands of his clerk, who bought fewer.books be bought "sharper," for which he had paid only $6. The same move has been made on ce tain lines of books by two or three house in the regular trade, and they express then selves as fairly satisfied with the result. If on or two of the larger houses would deliberated and fully adopt this policy, keeping wholesa prices practically the same as now, but reducit nominal retail prices to the price at which the great body of the actual edition is actually so at retail, nobody would be the loser, the appe ent increase of cheapness would help the wide sale of the book, and there would be no suc margin as there is now between "the publisher prices" and "our prices" in the advertisement of the bazaars, nor would leading houses in the regular trade be compelled to advertise that the sell books "as low as any dry-goods store."

We say this in the full knowledge that the present margin in bookselling to the retailer not more than enough to enable him to take ti risk and pay the cost of keeping in stock a got line of books such as the frequenter of a tri bookstore needs to see in making his selection What we are saying is not that the real marg should be reduced, but that this fictitious pric which throws so much of the general buying in the hands of "bazaars" and "butchers," show ue got rid of once for all. The policy of restr tion of prices, as we have for many years sai is almost, if not quite, unworkable, because t public at once take it to be against public polic We feel convinced that it is only a question o few more years when this reform must con about, and we believe the sooner it comes t better for the whole trade. We shall be we glad to have the views of publishers and reta ers on this branch of the general question! PUBLISHERS' WEEKLY is now discussing, whetl they agree or do not agree with this opinion.

THE THREE-VOLUME NOVEL DOOMED.—It pretty certain that the three-volume novel doomed. The great popularity of the or volume novel—in which we have followed recomple of America—be it sold for one silling or six—combined with the great mo ment now being made in favor of cheap erature—that is, really standard works, adm ably printed, would appear to point to reventual downfall of the circulating libraries. London Correspondence of the Book-buyer.

TRIBUTE TO I. B. LIPPINCOTT.

On the 7th inst., the day on which the body of the late J. B. Lippincott was borne from his residence, No. 204 W. Rittenhouse Square, to its hat resting-place at Laurel Hill, a meeting of the book trade of Philadelphia was held at the effice of Mr. E. H. Butler, 17 S. 6th Street, to the appropriate action relative to the death of their deceased confrere. The meeting was the lugest the book trade of Philadelphia has held for many years.

There were present: Thomas MacKellar, of MacKellar, Smiths & Jordan, the type founders ; Heary C. Lea, Charles G. Sower, of Sower, Pous & Co.; Mr. Carey, of Carey Bros. & Geremeyer; George H. Eldredge, of Eldredge & Bro., F. W. McDowell, of the Jessup & Moore Paper Company; Edgar H. Butler, of EH Buller & Co.; J. H. Butler; Francis Vells, of the Evening Bulletin, Henry Carey and; A. J. Holman and J. Nathaniel Holman, A. J Holman & Co.; John C Copper; Carles J Cohen; Frank Murphy, of William L' Murphy's Sons; Robert Porter and Henry L' Coates, of Porter & Coates; Mr. Johnston, of the American Sunday-School Union; John A Black, of the Presbyterian Board of Publica-00; Christian C. Febiger, of Henry C. Lea's on & Co.; Mr. Blakiston, of P. Blakiston, on & Co.; Joseph B. Cowperthwait, of Cowerthwait & Co.; William Rutter, of William utter & Co.: Roger Sherman, of Sherman & o, J. L. and Owen Shoemaker, of J. L. Shoe-aker & Co., Harry De Silver, of Charles De bomson; A. G. Elliot, of A. G. Elliot & Co. . B. Peterson, and B. M. Gaskill, of Gaskill Crouse

Mr Henry Carey Lea was called to the chair, IN Mr E H Butler, who called the meeting, tted as secretary. Mr. Lea said that forty one tars ago he knew Mr. Lippincott when he first aned in business on the corner of Fourth and are streets, under the name of Lippincolt & bot. Beginning at that time he knew Mr. poincott, and was a constant and intimate read of his. During the whole intimacy he of pever had an unpleasant word with him ouse Mr. Lea's words. "I remember when bookselling community was so startled by *announcement which he made, stating that thad bought out the firm of Grigg & Elliott, at at time the largest bookselling house in this ly, and it was well calculated to excite considerk commotion, for Mr. Lippincott was not wo to be the possessor of the means to accomish this transaction with. He was most indusous and most energetic. From that time foradeverything that went on in his store had his monal supervision, from the packing and unthing of boxes to the contracts and investments. the firm. In 1861 and 1862 he erected the large ore and warehouse on Market Street, where he ever since carried on his enterprises so sucstelly. I watched from the start his energetic relopment with a feeling of civic pride. The with and magnitude of the concern gained by day and year after year. To watch his one instance. During the panic of 1857 he was most desirous of keeping together his interest and trade in the South and his large jobbing trade in this city. He happened to come across a photograph aibum in New York one day, which he forthwith brought on to this city, and in a short time he was coining money by its reproduction. Then again in 1861, when the Rebellion broke out, if I am not misinformed, the amount of indebtedness of his firm was between $300,000 and $400,000, all of which Mr Lippincott advanced from his own pocket. Many a firm would have failed. He was proud of the great work he had accomplished. In spite of all this indebtedness, he bought at that time the property on which the present store now stands, Not only was it a great improvement to him, but to the city. When this firm changed suddenly a short time ago, Mr. Lippincott obtained new partners, and started immediately to renew his jobbing trade through not only the United In the death of so valuable States, but abroad a man the book trade of the United States will greatly feel a great doss, and I carnestly hope that those whom he leaves behind him will be able to manage and look after the great interests he originated and developed."

Mr. Henry T. Coates then offered the following resolution, or minute, for adoption .

"In the death of Joshua B. Lappin of Ph. adelphia mourns the loss of one of her best-known and mist active citizens, and the book trace) or foremost soil abject tiember, to whose energy, decisi is of character, and forenight is due the building up of the great house which has aided in making Phillidelphia kiowa and respected not only in

After remarks by Messrs A. J. Holman, Henry Carey Baird, and John Copper, who all spoke of the many excellent qualities of the deceased, Mr. Thomas MacKellar addressed the meeting as follows

" Mr. Chairman, all has been web said that can be said concerning the skill enterprise, and remarkable business character of Mr. Lippincott; and as the tenor of the remarks of yourself and of the other gentlemen who have spoken has been largely personal and rem discent, I may properly continue in a similar line in regard to my recollections of the book trade of Philadelphia (though my connection with it is but as a finger of the body), which reach back to 1833; my always friendly relations with Mr. Lippin. cott began too long ago for dat ng And now, as I look along the line of memorial stones that mark the departure of so many of the brotherhood who had a band in the miking and publishing of books, I see far away at the utmost end, yet very distinctly, the monolith of Mathew Carey, the aged man so genial and benevolent with what pluck he would face the sev- ing in his business prime, when, before the era 21 ricissitudes which he met! Unmindful of chronological sequence, I shall now wander at random among memories of the departed in other years; and before me rises one who fell early, Edward L. Carey, who, with Abraham Hart, succeeded Mathew Carey; energetic and impulsive in time of health, his moral and mental character gained in beauty as the physical nature weakened. A lover of the fine arts, and surrounded in his seclusion by things beautiful, he relieved his invalid hours by planning elegant editions; and in this work he was seconded by his partner, who was a man of a bright, honest, friendly eye and a warm heart, and whose exemplary character and good deeds attested the excellent principles that controlled his life. Next I see Henry C. Carey, known world-wide as the philosopher and political, economist; but, like other authors of Philadelphia, more honored abroad than at home; and in this connection I venture to place our present learned chairman, Mr. Henry C. Lea, of the old publishing house of Blanchard & Lea, whose admirable works posterity will take care of. Then I warmly recall the witty, cheerful, and enterprising E. H. Butler, who, with all his sprightliness, had an eye that could see far off. How many a friendly chat was held with him in riding homeward to Germantown after business hours! And there was cheery William Mc-Carty, brimful of hearty good nature; and there was his opposite, Uriah Hunt, the tall, serene, and every way worthy and admirable Quaker publisher of county and other school books and useful works. And with him I recall Thomas Kimber in the same line as his brother. Friend, Uriah Hunt. With him comes the able, bluff, hearty Conger Sherman, whose ringing laugh still reverberates pleasantly in the halls of memory. Very near I behold my old friend and partner, Lawrence Johnson, than whom an abler or more energetic man the annals of our trade cannot furnish, whose business nature had a razor-edge that cut keenly yet honestly, and whose social nature was benevolent and friendly. In close companionship with him is John Fagan, a scholarly, well-read man, gentle and silver-tongued, yet of excellent business capacity. "It is curious to notice the effective way in which Newbery advertised his books; in fact, his notices in that department, although somewhat more learned, have the same flavor as similar announcements of the present day. Here is an example :

"'According to Act of Parliament (neatly bound and gilt), a 'Little Pretty Pocket-Book,' intended for the instruction and amusement of little Master Tommy and pretty Miss Polly; with an agreeable letter to each from 'Jack the Giant-killer;' as also a "Ball and Pincushion," the use of which will infallibly make Tommy a good boy and Polly a good girl. To the whole is prefixed a letter on education humbly addressed to all parents, guardians, governesses, etc., wherein rules are laid down for making their children strong, healthy, virtuous, wise, and happy.

- "'Printed for J. Newbery at the Bible and Crown, near Devereux Court, without Temple Bar.

"'Price of the Book, 6d.; with a Ball and Pincushion, 8d."

It is also curious to notice the phases through which the well-known business in St. Paul's Churchyard has passed. 'On John Newbery's death it was continued by his son, Francis Newbery, his nephew, Francis Newbery, and his stepson, Thomas Carnan. Most of Oliver Goldsmith's writings were published by John Newbery, who also issued the works of Dr. Johnson, Christopher Smart, Dr. Dodd, and many other celebrated writers. The old house was also a renowned medicine and tea warehouse. Dr. James's fever powders, and numerous patent medicines, were for years sold there. Cephalic snuff, Analeptic pills, and tea at thirty shillings a pound, were also among the commodities to be bought at the establishment a hundred years ago. After the Newberys, John Harris succeeded to the business. It subsequently became Grant & Griffith, later on Griffith & Farran, and two years ago the present style [Griffith, Farran, Okeden & Welsh] was adopted."

CHICAGO AS A LITERARY CENTRE.—Chicago has two book-stores which are among the best and largest in the world. It has a publishing house which has issued during the past three years books by the million, [sic.] Its issues of standard authors in cheap but attractive form have been something enormous. And the sale of these speaks well for the literary taste of Western readers. The class of books drawn from the Public Library is constantly improving. The city is full of literary and scientific clubs of one sort and another, whose activities—if reported as other things are in the papers—would be a revelation to many. The Chicago Literary Club, the Fortnightly, and similar organizations include gentlemen and ladies of the highest culture, and whose spoken thoughts, in one form and another, are a power not in the city only, but through the land. Not a few of the papers first read in these circles have been published at the East in the leading magazines and reviews, and commanded uncommon attention.—Inter-Ocean.

REPLIES TO "SOME PERTINENT QUESTIONS."
LOUISVILLE, KY., Jan. 7, 1886.

To the Editor of the Publishers' Weekly.

SIR: The question, "Is the book business changing permanently?" discussed in the WERKLY for January 2, is of vital importance to booksellers throughout the country, and should receive their immediate consideration. That it is changing is a fact which must be conceded by the most conservative members of the trade; that these changes have been and are to the decided disadvantage of the regular bookseller is a fact equally indisputable; and that these changes must necessarily become permanent—unless some decided reform is instituted in the method of doing business both by publishers and booksellers—is another fact evident to every bookseller who has had either "butcher" or "bazaar" to contend with. It is a mistake to suppose that the bookseller is alone responsible for the present demoralized condition of affairs in the book-market. It is our opinion that much of the evil now existing is traceable to the publishers themselves. It is not the inactivity of the bookseller as much as the activity of the publisher that has furthered the interests of the "bazaar." Publishers eager to "work off" their publications place them in the "bazaars" with as little hesitancy as they do in the regular book store. We believe it to be a fact that certain publishers of repute in the East send t representatives on the road with instruction job to the "butcher" and "bazaar" upon same terms as to the regular bookseller. would be the worst kind of injustice to inc all publishers in this category; there are s who refuse to carry on business—under any ditions—with any of the "bazaars," and wh all in their power to protect the interests of legitimate book trade. They are in turn t than doubly repaid by the interest taken in t publications by the bookseller and by the nestness with which he pushes them. Is it p ble that publishers are blind to the fact that are damaging their own interests among regular trade by promoting the interests o "bazaar"? The so-called bazaar caters class of trade who in almost every case cheap books. They are for the most part w to distinguish between a well-made and a po made book, and are as well satisfied with printed in pearl as one in long primer. trade should and could be handled by the rebookseller. One thing only is necessary must be metropolitan in the selection o stock, must buy both good and poor editio the same book, and must bring his trade proper appreciation of the good by compa with the bad. The lady who goes into a goods establishment is not content with shown one piece of cloth only; she must h variety from which to make a selection. same is true in the book business. Purch are not content with seeing only one editi a book that appears in a half dozen, ar bookseller who would control this trade listen to their demands and grade his sto Another cause of much o cordingly. trouble now burdening the book trade is a the booksellers themselves. It is no "butcher" and the "bazaar" alone who d alize the prices of books. The practice counting has become so general that 1 even look for it. Even English book should yield a better profit, suffer the same at the hands of the bookseller. What narrow-minded policy could booksellers 1 than by attempting to undersell one anot. legitimate publications? The practice only to bring distrust upon the trade gen The publishers, while not being the caus be the means of preventing to a great i these evil practices. A union of books who will agree to uphold publishers' price plan desirable, but not possible; but a un publishers who will sell only to bookselle hering to their prices is a plan at once expe and practicable. Let six of the leading pu ers in the East organize such a union, as with what grace publishers all along the lit follow in their wake. Such a plan must 1 sarily meet with opposition on the part of publisher and bookseller; but organized the proper care, we believe we are safe in a that every publisher or bookseller of throughout the country would lend all his e in furthering its interests. In conclusion, i not admit of any doubt that the book bu has changed, is still changing, and will co to change, until both publisher and bool work as one person in establishing the r reforms, thereby at once restoring conf throughout the trade and limiting at the time the career of the "butcher" and "ba

NOTES ON AUTHORS.

W. A. CROFFUT is preparing an illustrated history of the Vanderbilt family, to be ready in May.

MISS A. MARY F. ROBINSON'S new volume of poems, "An Italian Garden," will be ready in March.

ALFRED AYRES, author of the "Ortheopist," etc., has in preparation a handy and practical tale treatise on "The Essentials of Elocution."

MATHILDE BLIND is preparing a volume for the Famous Women series on Madame Roland. It is partly founded on letters by Madame Roland not hitherto published in English, consisting of her correspondence with the Demoiselles Cannet before her marriage, of her copious correspondence with Bancal des Issarts, and of the four letters which, addressed by her from prison to the Girondin Buzot, were first published by M. C. A. Dauban in 1864.

NOTES ON CATALOGUES.

'BIBLIOGRAPHY OF CEYLON.—A carefully-compiled bibliography of writers on Ceylon, pre-pared by Messrs. D. W. and W. Ferguson, will be published in the forthcoming edition of 'Ferguson's Ceylon Handbook.'

WAR LITERATURE. — James Beale, 719 Sansom Street, Philadelphia, calls attention to a "Bibliegraphical List of War Literature—especially regimental histories, and sketches of brigades, divisions, and corps," prepared by Mr. G. M. Abbot, of the Philadelphia Library Company. The edition is limited to one hundred copies. (Price, 35 cents.) — James Anglim & Co., Washmgton, D. C., has issued the first part of a "General Catalogue of Books and Pamphlets on the Civil War, Including Some Consederate Publications, and Embracing the Slavery Question and the Reconstruction Period." The catalogue is arranged alphabetically, under authors reachword, and has a brief index of subjects. (22 p. sq. 5°.)

BARNICOTT & SON, Taunton, England, has issued another of his admirable catalogues. As usual, it is prefixed by a list of new books just published or forthcoming. Then follows a very full list comprising a selection of works in the various departments of literature. An index is added (108 p. 16²).

The catalogue of the maps in the British Museum, compiled and printed for the first time under the superintendence of Professor Douglas, is spoken of by the London Publishers' Circular as a colossal work. It is contained in two large volumes of over two thousand pages, and has more than ninety thousand entries, including, of course, cross-references. It includes not only a vast collection of maps produced in Europe, but also a considerable number of Indian, Chinese, and Japanese maps; and it abounds with priceless treasures."

JOURNALISTIC NOTES.

THE Bookmart for January appends to an article on bookbinding a small list of books on the subject, which may be consulted with advantage by those who may desire to "read up."

THE Novellen Schatz, published by S. Zickel, N. Y., has entered its twenty-seventh year. It brings every other week a selection of the best recent fiction—serial and short stories—a page or so of more substantial reading matter, and the same quantity of poetry, facetice, games, puzzles, etc., making it altogether a most attractive family magazine. It is a large quarto, printed in large type on good paper.

BUSINESS NOTES.

BELTON, TEX.- J. W. Lee & Co., booksellers and stationers, have dissolved partnership.

BOSTON, MASS.—It is announced that Cleaves, Macdonald & Co. have purchased Lockwood, Brooks & Co.'s stock, etc., and in spring will take the store on Tremont St. now occupied by R. H. Stearns & Co.

Boston, Mass.—S. E. Cassino has taken an office at 65 Kingston St., and will have his announcements ready shortly.

MANISTEE, MICH.—W. W. Douville, of the firm of Douville Brothers, booksellers and stationers, is dead.

NEW YORK CITY.—Henry Miller, bookseller and importer, has removed to 79 Nassau Street, between John and Fulton streets, directly opposite his old stand, where he hopes not only to see all his old customers, but also those who recently favored him with their patronage in the Fourteenth Street store.

St. Louis, Mo.—Not a little surprise was occasioned among the trade by the intelligence that the St. Louis Stationery & Book Company had confessed judgment in favor of its President, Hugh R. Hildreth, for $45,000, upon which judgment the sheriff took possesson of the company's property on December 19. liabilities of the concern are $235,000, and the nominal assets are estimated at $205,000. Stationers' Board of Trade has agreed to accept a settlement of the affairs of the company upon a basis of eighty per cent, twenty per cent to be paid in cash and the remainder in six notes of ten per cent each, drawn at three, six, nine, twelve, fifteen, and eighteen months, indorsed by Hugh R. Hildreth. The creditors have already agreed to a settlement on this basis, and it is probable that the business will be continued as before.

PERSONAL NOTES.

MR. A. J. HOLDEN, of Thos. Whittaker, sails for Europe on the Aurania to-day.

MR. E. C. SWAYNE, of the firm of E. P. Dutton & Co., sailed for Europe on the Gallia January 9th, to be gone three months on business for his firm.

Mr. C. J. Mills, who represents Messrs. Longmans & Co. in this country, has just returned from London. He will start next week for Australia via San Francisco, on an extended business trip. During his absence the forthcoming publications of Messrs. Longmans will be offered to the trade in this country by Mr. Dewitt C. Lent.

LITERARY AND TRADE NOTES.

R. W. GILDER'S "Lyrics and Other Poems," will shortly be republished in London.

L M. McKenney & Co., 606 Montgomery Street, San Francisco, Cal., have nearly ready a new edition of their "Pacific Coast Directory."

"CÉSAR BIROTTEAU" is the next novel of Balzac to be brought out in translation by Roberts Brothers. It will appear about the 1st of February.

D. LOTHROP & Co. will publish in this country Professor A. S. Church's forthcoming story for boys, entitled "Two Thousand Years Ago: the Adventures of a Roman Boy."

TICKNOR & Co. will publish shortly a novel by Isaac Henderson, son of the former publisher of the Evening Post, to be entitled "The Prelate." The scene is laid in Rome, and the characters are mostly Catholics.

THOSE persons who "extra-illustrate" books will be glad to know that Houghton, Mifflin & Co. have printed a number of steel portraits of the authors on their list, which they sell apart from the books. The latest addition to this collection is a portrait of Mr. Lowell.

THE book trade are warned to look out for a man who walks into a book store carrying what looks like a paper bundle, but it is a wooden box made to fit a Webster's Unabridged. He watches his chance, puts in the dictionary, and walks out as he came. This man tried it at Dutton's with two boxes on Thursday, got the dictionaries in, but escaped, leaving both boxes and dictionaries behind.

D. C. HEATH & Co., of Boston, have published "The Temperance Teachings of Science," by Professor A. B. Palmer, of the University of Michigan. It expresses no opinions as to the particular methods of what is called "Temperance Work." "The sole object has been to bring all, and especially young people, to the rational conclusion and firm resolve that in whatever form, as an article of 'diet,' of luxury, or as a beverage, alcohol is harmful, is useless."

CARSWELL & Co., Toronto, Canada, have just ready "Lewis's Law of Shipping," a treatise on the law relating to, or in any way connected with, the shipping and mercantile interests of the inland and sea-coast waters of Canada and the United States," by Edward Norman Lewis. This volume also contains the statutes appertaining down to and inclusive of 1885, and an article on "Inland Lloyds" and "Shipbuilding," by William W. Bates, naval architect and marine expert, Chicago, U. S. A.

LEE & SHEPARD will soon publish "Haphazard Personalities of Noted Americans," by Charles Lanman, anthor of "The Dictionary of Congress," etc.; Underwood's "Handbook of English History," based on Professor M. J. Gueit's lectures on English history brought down to 1880; "Young People's England," by George Makepeace Towle, author of "Certain Men of Mark;" and "Hints on Languages," by Superintendent Bent, of the Clinton, Mass., schools.

S. E. CASSINO & Co. have just completed "The Standard Natural History." The work is issued in six handsome imperial octavo volumes, illustrated with 2200 fine wood-cuts and 178 full-page plates, made expressly for this work. The work is a thoroughly representative American work, written by American naturalists, in which careful attention is given to can forms, as well as to all foreign While the aim of the publishers has been duce a popular account of the whole kingdom, scientific accuracy has not b sight of.

French Dishes for American Tables.

By Pierre Caron, formerly chef d'entremets at Delmonico's. Translated by Mrs. Frederic Sherman. Small 12mo, cloth. Price, $1.00.

The receipts in this volume come from a chef of great experience, and are written with singular clearness, so as to kemprehensible to any person of ordinary intelligence. There are many people of moderate income desiring to live well and yet within their means, and to this class this book will prove specially useful. While economy is not its sole edject, the variety of receipts for palatable dishes that may be prepared at small cost is very large.

II.

The Correspondent.

By JAS. WOOD DAVIDSON, A.M. Cloth, small 12mo. Price, 60 cents.

The aim of this book is to give in convenient and immediately accessible form information often needed by the American correspondent in regard to forms of address—salutation, complimentary close, superscriptions, etc.—and other muers connected with correspondence.

Jacob Schuyler's Millions.

A NOVEL. 16mo, paper cover. Price, 50 cents.

"Jacob Schuyler's Millions" is an American novel, the action taking place in New Jersey near New York city and in the metropolis. The story is of strong interest, affording a graphic picture of life a quarter of a century ago. The thracters are well portrayed, the style is fluent and easy, and the mystery surrounding Jacob Schuyler's millions is interiously managed.

THE

Publishers' Trade-List Annu

For 1885 (Thirteenth Year),

A Large 8vo, over 2500 Pages, is now Ready.

The improvements of recent years in the Trade-List Annual have given such general faction that there has been no change in the present issue (thirteenth year) as to the essential ures, which are:

- 1. The latest Catalogues of American Publishers and Manufacturers, contribute themselves and arranged alphabetically by the firm names.
- 2. A complete reprint of the "Publishers' Weekly" full title RECORD OF BOOKS publishe clusive of all the descriptive notes) from July 5, 1884, to June 27, 1885. In order to fact reference, it is accompanied by a full INDEX, by which every book on record can be full whether it is looked for under author, title, or subject.
- 3. The "EDUCATIONAL CATALOGUE" for 1885, which is used by the entire trade and educating interests as the most representative reference-list of School-books.

The above Lists, all bound in one volume, present in their combination so convenien time-saving a working-tool as to make it indispensable to every one who has any interest purchase and sale of books.

PRINCE BISMARCK.

Munroe Smith, of Columbia College, New York. In two large Octavo Volumes, over 1,300 pages, with Portraits, complete Index and Appendix, giving the complete text of the Treaty of Vienna (1864), Convention of Gastin (1865), Treaty of Prague (1866), Treaty of Frankfort (1871), The Prussian Constitution, The Imperial Constitution, etc., etc.

Extra cloth, price, per set, $5.00.

"M. Lowe has written an able account of a great career, and his book is full of information, either personal or political, from the first page to the last."—London Morning Past.

"Mr. Lowe does much towards enabling us to realize Prince Bismarck in his habit as he lives. His portrait of this towering European, this 'Unique One,' is carefully drawn, and as we note the indomitable energy and the unwerving purpose and the iron will of the great unifier of the German Fatherland—qualities perpetually in evidence through the whole of his extraordinary and dazzling career—we no longer wonder at the facility with which he surmounted obstacles, apparently insuperable, and kept steadily on his path until the great dream of his life was realized in a powerful and united Germany."—London Times.

"The first complete historical sketch of the great German statesman, who will occupy so conspicuous a place in the annals of the nineteenth century. . . . Of permanent value to the correct and intelligent apprehension of the political history of Europe."—Liverpool Mercury.

"Mr. Lowe's book is interesting from its subject, and valuable from the materials it contains which, with the clue of a good index, make it serviceable for reference. His two thick volumes contain a collection of anecdotes and descriptive passages culled from various sources which, interspersed with remarks of his own, will enable the English reader to trace the German Chancellor's extraordinary progress from the dawn to the evening of his life."—London Daily News.

They have arly ready a new edition, with many new 1, of Waring's "Manual of Therapeutics."

Cassell & Co. will publish at once, in their Rainbow Series of new and original novels by popular American and foreign authors, the initial volumes—"A Crimson Stain," by Annie Bradshaw, and "Morgan's Horror," by George Manville Fenn. These stories are not of the penny-dreadful order, though they are sensational, if by sensational is meant strong plot, vivid description, and dramatic situation. Mr. Fenn is an old favorite, but Annie Bradshaw is a new writer to the most of us. These volumes are well printed, and bound in rainbow-hued paper—hence the name—and sold for twenty-five cents.

D. Application & Co. publish to-day the third and concluding volume of A. S. Bolles's "Financial History of the United States," covering the period from 1861 to 1885; "French Dishes for American Tables," by Pierre Caron, translated by Mrs. Frederic Sherman; "The Correspondent," by James Wood Davidson, which aims to give in convenient and accessible shape information in regard to forms of address, salutations, and other matters connected with correspondence; "Jacob Schuyler's Millions," the action of which takes place in New Jersey, near New York City, and in the metropolis; and a new edition of "Geier-Wally," from the German of Wilhelmine von Hillern.

Roberts Brothers will publish on the 25th inst. "Zeph," a bright and interesting story of frontier life in Colorado, by Mrs. Helen Jackson, and the last work by that lamented author; "Madame Mohl, her Salon and her Friends," a very lively and charming book, the memoirs of a gracious, odd little figure, conspicuous both in Parls and London, and who had many friends among travelled Americans, in the Famous Women Series a life of the celebrated French tragedienne, "Mademoiselle Rachel Félix," by Mrs. Nina Kennard; and "A Short History of Napoleon the First," by Professor Seeley, author of "Ecce Homo," which contains a likeness of Napoleon of unusual interest, from a portrait painted by Boilly, and two views of his head, from the cast taken after death.

NOTES ON AUTHORS.

M. TAINE is in poor health, and his doctors forbid mental labor. The concluding volume of "The French Revolution" is completed.

MARION CRAWFORD has finished two new novels "A Lonely Parish," in which the scene is laid in an English village, and "Prince Sarresca," the history of a princely Roman family.

Ma. Henry George is now revising and extending his study of "Free Trade or Protection," originally published as a series of papers in an important syndicate of journals, and will have the book ready some time in February. He treats the subject in a very fresh and striking way, and will be sure to find thousands of readers who have hitherto avoided this subject as hopelessly dry.

Adams, Oscar Fay, ed. January. Bost., D. Lothrop & Co., [1886.] 23+136 p. S. cl.,

Midwinter and kindred themes form the contents of this number of "Through the year with the poets." Over a hundred poems from the best English writers represent the poetry of January. Several of the poems are now printed for the first time, while the majority of them are not contained in other anthologies, and will, therefore, be new to many readers. The index to authors, containing biographical data, has been prepared with much care.

Ames, C: Gordon. George Eliot's two marriages: an essay. 4th ed. rev. Phil., G: H. Buchanan & Co., 1886. 34 p. D. pap., 20 c. Mr. Ames's essay is now published in a handsome pamphlet, of which the young firm have every reason to feel proud as a specimen of neat and tasteful printing. Mr. Ames gives a kindly, tender, and logical survey of the first "marriage," but rather fails in his explanation of the second, leaving the vexed question, "How could George Eliot marry again?" as unanswered as before. Loneliness and lack of self-dependence are the motives Mr. Ames pleads.

Andrews, S: J. God's revelations of himself to men as successively made in the patriarchal, Jewish, and Christian dispensations and in the Messianic kingdom. N. Y., C: Scribner Sons, 1886. 14+391 p. O. cl., $2.50.

This book is addressed to believers in the divinity of Jesus Christ, and therefore is not critical after the modern fashion. "It discusses no textual questions, and enters into no special historical or archæological investigations; and it assumes the substantial truth of the Scriptures as we possess them. It deals only with the outlines of the Divine purpose, not with the details. Its scope is simple—to set forth the manner in which God is pleased to reveal Himself to men, past, present, and future, as He has made it known." Author of "The life of our Lord upon earth."

Dr. Brinton, in his preface, gives a most interesting account of the Cakchiquels, a nation of somewhat advanced culture who occupied a portion of the area of the present state of Guatemala. The annals were written about 1562 by a native, who had grown to adult years before the whites penetrated his country, and his work displays the language in its pure original form, and also preserves the tribal history and a part of the mythology as they were current before they were in the least affected by European influences. This may be considered one of the most important historical documents relating to the pre-Columbian period.

Hays, H:, (pseud.) The story of Margaret Kent. Bost., Ticknor & Co., 1886. 444 p. D. cl., 31.50.

The story is that of a woman, beautiful and accomplished, lest by an easy-going husband, absent in South America, to earn her own living and that of their child by literary work in New York. She is a "social success," without money to back it up, backbitten by inhuman women, loyally admired by men; the contrasts of her life are drawn with great dramatic power; social and literary life in New York is acutely studied, and the book is one of the most remarkable of recent novels.

Hosmer, Ja. K. The story of the Jews. N. Y., G: P. Putnam's Sons, 1886. 19+381 p. il. D. (The story of the nations ser.) cl., $1.50.

The story of the Hebrew nation, as found in the Scriptures and related by Josephus and other writers, is here condensed for readers in the last stage of youth rather than in the first. The author was wise not to confine the story within the dimensions of a "juvenile" proper, as it is a picturesque and thrilling tale, full of dramatic features, any details of which it would have been a regret to sacrifice. Prof. Hosmer is not only impartial, but at times quite enthusiastic over the character whose best points he aims to illustrate. He has sought through history, fiction, and tradition in the concluding chapters of his work for well-known names, to give force to his conclusions relative to the Hebrew character. The many famous Hebrew financiers, musicians, statesmen, poets, and authors quoted show that the glory of the nation has not yet departed.

How to be happy though married; being a hand-book to marriage; by a graduate in the university of matrimony. N. Y., C: Scribner's Sons, 1886. 10+285 p. D. cl., $1.25.

From chapter to chapter it grows more difficult to determine whether the writer is man or woman. Marriage is judged from all standpoints, and the advice and counsel given would seem to fit almost every combination of circumstances. The writer shows much ingenuity in teaching by quotation from authors of every age and country. The foundation of all happy marriages must be unselfishess is the key-note of the book. A look at the excellent index shews the wide range of the material put to a decidedly happy use.

Ironquill, (pseud.) Rhymes of Ironquill. Topeka, Kansas, T. J. Kellam. [G: W. Crane & Co.,] 1885. 3-156 p. O. cl., $1.50.

Jackson, Mrs. Helen Hunt, ["H. H."] Zeph: a posthumous story. Bost., Roberts Bros.,

1885. 253 p. D. cl., $1.25.

The scene is laid in Colorado. Zeph is a carpenter. He is married to "Rushy," a vain, passionate, discontented woman, who at intervals leaves his house and stays away for days, sometimes taking her children, sometimes not. Zeph's tender love for this woman, his patience and consideration, and the many plans and thoughts he has to make her home more attractive to her, are themes that Mrs. Jackson handles in her exquisite way. The story was broken off suddenly by her death. The rough outline of the plot as noted down in her papers has been added by the publishers.

These tales were first published at the end of the last century. They were in fashion among the contemporaries of Lord Byron in his youth, and received most favorable notice from the critics for their attractiveness and originality. Byron made use of one for the plot of "Werner," the only drama he wrote that ever had a stage success.

Lotze, Hermann. Outlines of psychology: dictated portions of the lectures of Hermann Lotze; tr. and ed. by G: T. Ladd. Bost., Ginn & Co., 1886. 8+157 p. D. cl., $1.

This is the fourth volume in the series of "Outlines," following the "Metaphysic," "Philosophy of religion," and "Practical philosophy." It treats of simple sensations, the course of representative ideas, of attention and inference, of intuitions of objects as in space, of the apprehension of the external world by the senses, of errors of the senses, of feelings, and of bodily motions. Its second part is "theoretical," and discusses the nature, position, and changeable states of the soul, its relations to time, and the reciprocal action of soul and body. It clean with a chapter on the "Kingdom of souls."

Lyford, Rev. C. P. The Mormon problem: an appeal to the American people. N. Y., Phillips & Hunt. 1886. 323 p. D. cl., $1.

Phillips & Hunt, 1886. 323 p. D. cl., $1. This work is the result of thirteen years of caseful study and research, four of which were spent in Uth. The author claims that polygamy is not by any means the most dangerous feature of Mormonism, but "that Utah is the seat of a vast conspiracy against the United States Government, by the establishment therein of a tressorable "theocracy;" that Mormonism is but another name for a great ecclesiastical empire, and also of a general system of organized crime and outlawry." The numerical political, and ecclesiastical strength of the Mormons, the author thinks, has thus far been but faintly realized.

These essays are connected with studies to which the author has devoted much time and research. He claims that in "Prospects of popular government" he has shown "that, as a matter of fact, popular government, since its reintroduction into the world, has proved itself to be extremely fragile; "that in the essay "Nature of democracy" he has given "some reasons for thinking that, in the extreme form to which it tends, it is, of all kinds of government, by far the most difficult." In the "Age of progress" he has argued "that the perpetual change which, as understood in modern times, it appears to demand, is not in harmony with the normal forces ruling human nature, and is not therefore to lead to cruel disappointment or serious disaster." In the fourth essay he has examined and analyzed the Constitution of the United States, for the purpose of bringing out and emphasizing some of the facts he offen in argument.

Reprinted from the Andover Review and other periodicals. The essays represent the traditional theology of New England Congregationalism. "My study" deals with its interest in missions, journalism, temperance, and homely piety. From 1848 to 1879 the author was Professor of Sacred Rhetoric at Andover Seminary. A large number of the essays are devoted to doctrinal questions, much space being given to the subjects of probation after death and future retribution, on which questions Dr. Phelps's ideas do not at all agree with those of the present editors of the Andover Review.

Progressive orthodoxy: a contribution to the Christian interpretation of Christian doctrines; by the editors of The Andover Review. Bost., Houghton, Misslin & Co., 1886. 4+258 p. S. cl., $1.00.

A series of papers that appeared under this general name, in the editorial department of the Andover Review. The subjects treated are the incarnation, the atonement, eschatology, the work of the Holy Spirit, the Christian and the scriptures; they are treated in the spirit and with the methods of what is now known as "progressive orthodoxy" — the work representing as a whole the views of a large and highly influential part of the clergy of the Congregational churches of America.

An answer to the lecture delivered by Dr. Talmage in the "Star Course" on the "Absurdities of evolution, Dr. Savage is a radical Unitarian, but a devout deist. He is well known as a competent and courageous champion of Spencer and Darwin. He charges the provalence of nominal unbelief upon the real unbelief of the Church, which insists on the infallibility of traditions which the Creator contradicts by the revelations contained in His works. Elequence and wit make the present treatment of the subject very fascinating. A short list of books on evolution is given.

A history of German Interature from the earliest times to the death of Goethe. The first chapter traces the roots of German nationality back to the period preceding the Aryan separation, giving a picture of the intellectual condition of the times; the second treats of the rise and development of the German hero legends; the third of the Medizeval remaissance; the fourth to the seventh embrace the classical period of Middle High German lyric and epic poetry; the eighth and ninth chapters include the next three hundred years, the period of transition from Middle High German to New High German; the tenth to the thirteenth chapters are devoted to the unfinished epoch in which we live. A chronological table at the end of the book will be found of much assistance to the student in mastering the subject, as will also the careful and exhaustive bibliography in the appendix, giving all known authorities for the earlier period, and the editions (separate and collected) of the works of modern authors, together with a list of the critiques and commentaries written upon them. This work is fiready an authority in Germany, and fills here a long-felt want. It is scholarly and at the same time popular in treatment, comprising if a convenient space all that is important to know

"DISCRIMINATE."

THERE is no better advice which booksellers can give to their customers and themselves than the motto quoted above from one of the popular works which they find on their counters. It is not only the great public which allows itself to be more or less fooled by reputed cheap books, but our good friends of the trade as well; and one of the most important reforms in the trade must come from careful discrimination between books that are really cheap, and books that only make believe to be cheap. Every bookseller worthy of the name whose capital and possibilities of trade permit, should be able to show to a book-buver on his shelves both the cheap editions which the dry-goods stores make so much of and the better editions, often at but little increase of price, made for real lovers of books. We have no hesitancy in saying that the bookseller ought to keep the cheap stuff as well as the dearer editions, for in this way, and in this way only, can the dry-goods people be met on their own ground. With the several competing editions before him the book-buyer will often, if not usually, prefer the better edition, and the bookseller will hold his own, as he should. If the regular trade, with its experience of publishing, is not able to stand this competition from cheap publishers (except those who depend on final bankruptcy as a means of selling cheap), the booksellers should speak out to the publishers, and the latter should overhaul their own busi. ness methods accordingly.

The same mistake that the public falls into is patterned by the retail trade themselves in their willingness to buy editions on which the discount is long, no matter what the actual selling price to the customer may be. Probably more money is made on net books than on books at 50 per cent off nominal price. In one case a discount means something; in the other case it means nothing. Until the retail trade are willing to clear their eyes of scales it is easy to see that catering to the dry-goods trade is apt to get more and more hold on the regular publishers.

THE Boston Beacon should get its facts first and criticise afterward, instead of the contrary process. We corrected a recent statement of that journal by advising it to look to the facts regarding the history of the A. B. T. A. and the PUB-LISHERS' WEEKLY; it now skips to the conclusion that the A. B. T. A. (the American Book Trade Association) is a periodical, and smilingly says that "neither the A. B. T. A. nor the Publish-ERS' WEEKLY mentions all new publications," citing as an instance the federal and State issues. The Publishers' Weekly gave up its department of Government publications because Mr. Hickox's monthly catalogue was doing that work so thoroughly well; in regard to the publications of State and municipal governments, it is true that there is no satisfactory general record. Great pains was taken in connection with the American Catalogue to fill out the existing imperfect records, but those efforts were not responded to by the authorities, and it is practically out of the question to follow up the numerous State issues, because there is almost no demand for them. Despite our word of criticism, we have to thank the Beacon for following up this subject, and for its good word for the Publishers' Weekly.

THE hearing on international copyright will take place at Washington before Senator Platt's committee at ten o'clock, Thursday, January 28, and may extend over two days. Mr. Lowell, Mr. Warner, Mr. Clemens, and others will appear for the Authors' Copyright League. We do not hear that New York or Boston publishers are likely to be represented. The opposition to the Hawley bill makes its passage improbable, but a modified bill has some chance of passage. A bill from Philadelphia, supported by Typographical Union No. 2, and drawn, it is understood, by Mr. Henry C. Lea, will be introduced by Senator Chace. We shall be able to print it as soon as the draft, now undergoing modification, is in final shape. The present draft requires registry within fifteen days and deposit of the best American edition (an indirect manufacturing clause) within six months from publication abroad, at a fee of $1, to be used in printing a list of copyright books for customs use; the prohibition of importations; and the voiding of copyright when the American manufacturer abandons publication. This is the extreme of restriction; we shall defer discussion of this measure, however, until it is finally in shape.

A VERY well-known publisher, who withholds his name, answers some of our "pertinent questions" in a way to further stimulate discussion. These things being so, what is the reason, and what is the way out?

THE Singleton bill as to the publishing and distribution of Government publications, which we give elsewhere nearly in full, is worth attention from booksellers. It proposes, among other things, to allow them ten per cent on sales of Government issues, but these must be ordered in advance; it would seem better if the English system of printing a reasonable extra supply, at a slight advance on cost, could be adopted.

WE were in error in saying that Poore's Descriptive Catalogue of Government Publications could be had from the Public Printer only by those subscribing in advance. A number of copies are still unsold, and can be had at $1.90, postpaid, and the work is also stereotyped.

We are pleased to note that Thomas Nelson & Sons have decided to lead in the early-closing movement. Throughout the year their store will be closed at one o'clock. Who will be the next, now that the beginning is made?

HOSPITAL SATURDAY AND SUNDAY ASSOCIATION.

WE regret to note that the collections for the Book-trade Auxiliary of this association in 1885 have not come up to the average of former years. This should not be, and we hope that those who have failed to contribute, through oversight or for some other reason, will make good the deficit by sending their mite to the treasurer, Mr. Henry B. Barnes. It should be borne in mind that the direct benefit to our trade in supporting this movement lies in the fact that for every dollar contributed the hospitals offer a bed a day to a suffering member of the book trade.

U. S. PUBLIC DOCUMENTS.

THE publication and distribution of U.S. Government publications were shown by the papers and reports presented at the Conference of the American Library Association at Lake George (now reprinted separately from the Proceedings in a ten-page pamphlet), to be very extravagantly, wastefully managed, since they are inaccessible where they should be, and scattered as waste paper where they should not be. An important attempt to cure this state of things is shown in Mr. Singleton's bill (H. R. No. 1298), presented in the House Jan. 5, 1886, and referred to the Committee on Printing. Its provisions are of much importance to librarians, booksellers, and publicists. They are as follows:

down pay, but by cutting down "copy" and reducing the number of issues of each document printed, thus lessening the cost of printing, binding, and paper, the three great sources of expense. The various Bureau reports he proposes to have given out for publication in a greatly condensed form, and he would also place some further limitations on the rule as to what properly constitutes a public document. Instead of 1000 or more copies of the bills and other regular documents, he would limit the number to 1516 at the outside, and for all matters of a private and comparatively unimportant nature, to 1000 or less. This bill of Mr. Singleton's has been drawn with great care, and evidently in the proper spirit of statesmanship, and it would seem as if it ought Whether it will or not remains to be to pass. seen.

THE TYPOTHETÆ DINNER.

TYPOTHETÆ, an association of New Yorkers having more or less to do with types, commemorated the birthday of Benjamin Franklin by a dinner at Delmonico's on Monday night, Jan. uary 18, which was enjoyed by over two hundred guests. On the wall back of the President's seat hung a portrait of Franklin, painted while he was American Ambassador at Paris. On each menu was a portrait of Franklin, and in front of President W. C. Martin was a confectionery model of an old Franklin press. At the right of the chairman sat the Rev. Dr. John R. Paxton. Ex-Governor A. H. Rice, of Massachusetts, sat at his left. The other guests at the table of honor were John M. Francis, F. Satterthwaite, S. L. Clemens, Isaac H. Bailey, Will Carleton, and E. C. Stedman. At the ends of the table sat the vice-presidents of the association, John F. Trow and Theodore L. DeVinne-Among the members present were: Howard Lockwood, Charles L. Webster, Arthur B. Turnure, J. Thorne Harper, James Harper, William M. Laffan, James R. Osgood, J. Bishop Putnam, L. H. Bigelow, John F. Baldwin, John Polhemus, R. W. Gilder, Frank D. Harmon, E. Wells Sackett, C. C. Buel, Douglas Taylor, E. T. Lanphear, William C. Rogers, the Rev. Dr. I. K. Funk, Thomas H. Crossley, James A. Rogers, Dr. George Fowler, D. Willis James, Martin B. Brown, P. A. Fitzpatrick, and George Tremlett.

Among the letters of regret received was the following from Oliver Wendell Holmes:

"I regret that I cannot have the pleasure of accepting the polite invitation which you have sent me on behalf of the Typothetæ to be with them at the dinner in celebration of Franklin's birthday, on the 18th of January. I feel sure that the meeting of this association of artists must prove a most enjoyable occasion. I call them artists, for are they not workers in Mosaic—the Mosaic which pictures thought—and is not the printed page of more worth than the most precious stone-picture that ever came from the studios of Rome or Florence? All honor to your noble art, and to the memory of the illustrious typesetter who wielded two of the mightiest agencies known to mortal hands—that which chains the lightning of heaven, and that which unchains the spirit of the sons of the earth."

There were also communications from W. D. Howells, Robert C. Winthrop, Murat Halstead, Rev. H. W. Beecher, Daniel Manning, George W. Childs, James Russell Lowell, Charles A. Dana, George William Curtis, Henry Carey Baird, Senator Hawley, President Cleveland, Thomas Bailey Aldrich, Roswell Smith, Thomas Hewson Bache, Carl Schurz, and others.

After the cloth was removed President Martin. one of New York's oldest printers, led off with reminiscences of the historic marvels of typography, and Isaac H. Bailey, once a printer's devil, spoke for Ben Franklin. Mark Twain, in response to the toast "The Compositor," gave the following description of the life of a cub printer of forty years ago:

"The chairman's historical reminiscences of Gutenberg have caused me to fall into reminiscences, for I myself am something of an antiquity. [Laughter.] All things change in the procession of years, and it may be that I am among strangers. It may be that the printer of to-day is not the printer of thirty-five years ago. I was no stranger to him. I knew him well. built his fire for him in the winter mornings; I brought his water from the village pump; I swept out his office; I picked up his type from under his stand; and, if he was there to see, I put the good type in his case and the broken ones among the 'hell matter;' and if he wasn't there to see, I dumped it all with the 'pi' on the imposing-stone—for that was the furtive fashion of the cub, and I was a cub. I wetted down the paper Saturdays, I turned it Sundays—for this was a country weekly; I rolled, I washed the rollers, I washed the forms, I folded the papers, I carried them around at dawn Thursday mornings. The carrier was then an object of interest to all the dogs in town. If I had saved up all the bites I ever received, I could keep M. Pasteur busy for a year. I enveloped the papers that were for the mail—we had a hundred town subscribers and three hundred and fifty country ones; the town subscribers paid in groceries rand the country ones in cabbages and cordwood -when they paid at all, which was merely sometimes, and then we always stated the fact in the paper, and gave them a puff; and if we forgot it they stopped the paper. Every man on the town list helped edit the thing -- that is, he gave orders as to how it was to be edited; dictated its opinions, marked out its course for it, and every time the boss failed to connect, he stopped his paper. We were just infested with critics, and we tried to satisfy them all over. We had one subscriber who paid cash, and he was more trouble to us than all the rest. He bought us, once a year, body and soul, for two dollars. He used to modify our politics every which way, and he made us change our religion four times in five years. If we ever tried to reason with him, he would threaten to stop his paper, and, of course, that meant bankruptcy and destruction. That man used to write articles a column and a half long, leaded long primer, and sign them 'Junius,' or 'Veritas,' or 'Vox Populi,' or some other high-sounding rot; and then, after it was set up, he would come in and say he had changed his mind—which was a gilded figure of speech, because he hadn't any—and order it to be lest out. We couldn't stand such a waste as that; we couldn't afford 'bogus' in that office; so we always took the leads out, altered the signature, credited the article to the rival paper in the next village, and put it in. Well, we did have one or two kinds of 'bogus.' Whenever there was a barbecue, or a circus, or a baptizing, we knocked off for half a day; and then to make up for short matter we would 'turn over ads'—turn over the whole page and duplicate it. The other 'bogus' was deep philosophical stuff, which we judged nobody ever read; so we kept a galley of it standing, and kept on slapping the same old batches of # every now and then, till it got dangerous. A in the early days of the telegraph we use economize on the news. We picked out the it that were pointless and barren of informa and stood them on a galley, and changed dates and localities, and used them over and again till the public interest in them was t to the bone. We marked the ads, but we dom paid any attention to the marks afterw so the life of a 'td' ad and a 'tf' ad was equ eternal. I have seen a 'td' notice of a she sale still booming serenely along two years: the sale was over, the sheriff dead, and whole circumstance become ancient his Most of the yearly ads were patent med stereotypes, and we used to fence with then

"Life was easy with us; if we pied a fon suspended till next week, and we always pended every now and then when the is was good, and explained it by the illness of editor, a paltry excuse, because that kind paper was just as well off with a sick editor well one, and better off with a dead one with either of them. He was full of ble egotism and placid self-importance, but he d know as much as a 3-em quad. He neve any type except in the rush of the last day then he would smouch all the poetry, and the rest to 'jeff' for the solid takes. He was with impressive flatulence and soaring dence upon the vastest subjects; but p alms gifts of wedding cake, salty ice crean normal watermelons, and sweet potatoes th of your leg was his best hold. He was al a poet—a kind of poet of the Carrier's Ad breed—and whenever his intellect supput and he read the result to the printers and a for their opinion, they were very frank straightforward about it. They generally sc their rules on the boxes all the time he reading, and called it 'hog wash' when h through. All this was thirty-five years when the man who could set seven hundr hour could put on just as many airs as he ed to; and if these New York men, who rec on a wager set two thousand an hour solid ion for four hours on a stretch had appear that office, they would have been receive accomplishers of the supremely impossible drenched with hospitable beer till the bre was bankrupt.

"I can see that printing office of prehi times yet, with its horse bills on the wal 'd' boxes clogged with tallow, becaus always stood the candle in the 'k' box n its towel, which was not considered soiled it could stand alone, and other signs and bols that marked the establishment of that in the Mississippi valley; and I can see all tramping 'jour' who flitted by in the su and tarried a day, with his wallet stuffed one shirt and a hatful of handbills; for couldn't get any type to set he would do a perance lecture. His way of life was simple needs not complex; all he wanted was plate bed and money enough to get drunk on, M was satisfied. But it may be, as I have: that I am among strangers, and sing the gl of a forgotten age to unfamiliar ears, so l 'make even 'and stop.''

I commenced this article I intended to confine myself to the principal publishers and jobbers. I believe, however, I have enumerated all; but as I have written entirely from memory, possibly I have omitted some. Those mentioned certainly comprise all that I, as a "pick-up boy," was called upon to visit with my lists in filling orders. The principal publishers were Little & Brown, Monroe & Francis, William D. Ticknor & Co , Jenks & Palmer, Crocker & Brewster, Gould, Kendall & Lincoln, and Phillips & Sampson, although more or less books were published by nearly all the jobbers and retail dealers. Of the jobbers, B. B. Mussey & Co., Phillips & Sampson, William J. Reynolds & Co. Hill & Broadhead, John M. Whittemore and John P. Jewett & Co., each and all of them had orders not only for everything in the book and stationary lines, but for every conceivable article of merchandise.

The theological department of the business was a large one at that period, and Crocker & Brewster, Benjamin Perkins & Co., John M. Whittemore, and John P. Jewett & Co. were looked upon as headquarters for the Orthodox; Gould, Kendall & Lincoln for the Baptists; Waite, Pierce & Co., for the Methodists; Charles Stimpson for the Episcopalians; Crosby & Nichols for the Unitarians, and James M. Usher and Abel Tomkpins for the Universalists, while the American Tract Society's store was filled with members of all Evangelical denominations. Of those named herein, if I am correct, all but eighteen have joined the great majority; and of those eighteen, only five are now connected with the book trade. Of the young clerks of the days of which I have written, there remain, I think, in the book trade in Boston only William Lee, A. K. Loring, Thomas Niles, George P. Smith, and the writer of this article.

INTERNATIONAL COPYRIGHT.

A PHILADELPHIA VIEW OF THE HAWLEY BILL.

From the Phila. Telegraph, Jan. 7.

THERE is what can fairly be called an irrepressible conflict on the subject of international copy-That justice demands protection for writers of books and makers of works of art which is not accorded them under existing circumstances is admitted on all sides; and there is a growing public sentiment on the subject of securing such protection which will certainly compel a settlement of the controverted points before many years have passed by. There would be no serious difficulty about this matter were the rights of authors the only ones that have to be considered; but in the making of a book there are many persons interested beyond the author, and the country is not at all prepared to accept an international copyright convention which will, while affording protection to the writers of books, sacrifice the interests of the papermakers, the printers, the bookbinders, and others. none of the schemes of international copyright which have been formulated have adequately protected the interests of persons engaged in the manufacture of books, or, if such protection has been afforded, it has been in such a complex and lumbering sort of a way that the general opinion has been that it would be best to leave things as they are. At the opening of the present session of Congress the subject of international copyright was introduced through the medium of a bill fathered by Senator Hawley, of Connecti-This bill has the merit of simplicity, if no other, and it, in effect, offers to citizens of foreign States and countries such copyright protection as is accorded by them to our citizens. The bill fails to be satisfactory just where most essays in the same line have failed, inasmuch as it gives absolutely no consideration whatever to any interests in the manufacture of books which the papermaker, the printer, the bookbinder, and others may have. It is the custom of a good many people—maybe Mr. Hawley is one of them —to talk in a very airy sort of a way about the interests in books of other people than the authors, and to represent them as practically of no moment whatever. But, as the practical effect of the enactment of such a law as that which the Connecticut Senator proposes would be to close four-fifths of the printing offices of the country—to say nothing of the type-foundries, the paper mills, and the book binderies—most people, we fancy, will be apt to agree with us that it would be a very serious matter. It is inevitable that such a measure as this should be strenuously and bitterly antagonized, and under the lead of Typographical Union No. 2, of this city, the printers throughout the Union not only vigorously protest against the enactment of Mr. Hawley's bill, but offer a bill of their own which they contend does abundant justice to all interests. The essential features of this bill are the granting of copyright to a foreign author on condition that his book is manufactured in this country; a prohibition of the importation of the foreign-made editions of the works of a foreign author copyrighted here; and a nullification of the American copyright in case the American manufacturer shall, after publishing and vending the same, abandon the publication. These lastmentioned provisions are the portions of this bill which will be most hotly disputed, and it certainly ought to be seriously considered whether the entirely legitimate objects at which they aim may not be achieved in some other manner. The prohibition of the importation of the foreignmade editions of a book covered by an American copyright is, to say the least of it, a somewhat extreme method of meeting the possible attempts of English bookmakers to evade the law; and it is worth considering whether the ends aimed at cannot be as well or better accomplished through the agency of a stiff duty. A prohibitory clause like this will in some not unimportant cases work grave injustice, while it is certain to create bitter antagonisms where it is desirable that no antagonisms shall exist. The bill as it stands, however, is a better one than Senator Hawley's, which does not at all meet the real requirements of the case.

A COPYRIGHT LAW WANTED TO STIMULATE AMERICAN LITERATURE.

Kinahan Cornwallis, in Chicago Literary Life.

THROUGH the absence of such a law not only are foreign authors treated as if they had no property rights in their own works, but American literature labors under very serious drawbacks. owing to the competition of cheap non-copyrightpaying reprints. The periodical and newspaper press has dealt with this subject freely of late, and it has been asserted with much truth that in proportion to the dearth of authors among us is the abundance of men of brilliant literary talent, capable of writing good books, who are hidden away, if not lost, on the press, and who as authors would starve. As journalists they can earn a just objection to be urged against it, and liters living, and journalism is the bottomless will which swallows up the literary genius and taking of America—'' the mute inglorious Milton who pass from the cradle to the grave of the newspaper career under the impenetrable vell the anonymous, a screen that allows no screen for the gratification of a laudable ambition. is only where the anonymous system does 🗰 exist, as, for instance, in France, where evel writer signs his name or his nom de plume to articles, that journalism offers a fair field to erary men who are not content to forever their light under a bushel—to be in a certain sense buried alive instead of being acknowled ed leaders of thought and opinion.

Undoubtedly the main cause of the desertif of the ranks of authorship for those of journalis is this want of an international copyright lat which works a grievous wrong to both native a foreign authors, and prevents use from building up a literature at all corresponding with our w material progress and national greatness. II this want which makes it unprofitable to wri books, and as what it does not "pay" to p duce will be produced very sparingly, learn and brilliant writers who would be glad to es their bread by authorship are forced into of and less congenial pursuits. Journalism, u only absorbs a part of these, for even its vo cious maw is unequal to all. The rest are ! as writers altogether, or, as to a few, appear i casionally in the magazines. Thus Americ literature is dwarfed and left to languish; the wonder is, considering the discouragement which environ him, that the American author not in danger of becoming as extinct as the do His existence at all is mainly due to the may zines and the great fact that pecuniary retur are a subordinate consideration with all t literary laborers.

The American authors best known to tax have made their reputation, and the money sulting from their writings, mainly by publish. these first in the American magazines. The ter have a wealth of literary material to sel from proportioned to the difficulties in the of book authorship—the cream, it may be sa of American literature—and hence they are best in the world, and superior in every rest to those of England.

What inducement has an American publis to publish original native works, and pay co right on them, when he has to compete with t fifteen and twenty-cent reprint editions of best books in both current and standard Engl literature, on which no copyright is paid; & when he can himself reprint any of these pleases with entire freedom and utter disrega of the foreign authors' rights?

The general sentiment of the American peop favors justice to foreign authors, and the pa ment of a copyright royalty, but publisher paper-makers, printers, and other trade interes engaged in the manufacture of books are, would be, except for the too keen competition has created, opposed to any interference with t present system of piracy—a system which only robs the foreign author, but destroys American author's home market, besides subjet ing him, if he gets into print, to the same tree ment abroad that the foreign author receiv here.

An international copyright bill should passed by Congress next session, for there is by its own excesses reached a point it must in a measure tend to cure all publishers of cheap editions have neach other to an extent so nearly the some of them are beginning to court on which an international copyright give themselves as well as the hitherto dauthors. But a publisher's would athor's copyright bill, and no author's that has not the ment of being both fair to all, with no restrict one on the of books. If such a bill is ted it will be by the publishing innoesty will prove the best policy in a for the most piratical of the pub-

The number of retailers buying a given book is smaller, under conditions as above, and each takes a smaller number.

Copyright books are two thirds killed,

Average publishing prices are lower than of old.

There are fewer book stores where anything like a stock is kept.

Mail orders are much larger than before reductions in rates of postage a few years ago. There is a great increase in orders from dealers, inclosing dealer's label to mail direct to readers; also great increase in little orders to mail direct to dealers who, in old times, would have had the book in stock.

The value of these questions would be increased if you had put a question. "How does the number of an average book that a publisher can place on publication, compare with the number of a similar book that he could place ten years ago?"

My answer to that question would be: One third. A leading publisher recently gave me the same answer.

Let me quote you, verbatim et literatim, a mentence I wrote just before reading your current number, to a poor American girl of great talent, who has written a book that, ten years ago, would have brought her some money, and now brings her nothing, and who is trying to support a family out of that nothing: "Your worst enemy is the barbarous state of our laws, which won't protect you against the competition of stolen goods."

I hope you will keep stirring the subject up from the bottom, which is the question of international copyright.

THE HALF-HOLIDAY MOVEMENT, NEW YORK, Jan. 13, 1886.

To the Editor of the l'ublishers' Weekly :

DEAR SIR. I beg to call your attention to an otherwise excellent article in the Publishers' Werkly of December 5, 1885, in which you charge the Saturday Half-holiday Committee with having made two mistakes in their conduct of the movement. The first, you claim, is in asking "that the day s work should cease at twelve instead of one o'clock on Saturdays." In answer to this I inclose the circular of the Committee, published in July, stating their principles, on the first page of which you will find the following statement: "We do not ask any employer to lose a dollar; for if each will agree to close his place of business at twelve or one o'clock on Saturday, all will have an equal advantage," etc.

The next is a much graver charge, and ought not to have been made without some show of authority. After speaking of the first mistake, your paper says: "The other has been the threats used against employers not disposed to comply with this movement where it was put as a demand—threats which have taken, in a more or less modified shape, the form of boycotting," etc.

Now, as chairman of the Saturday Half holiday Committee, I ask, Where is your authority for this charge? I enclose the only documents ever issued by the Committee, and I respectfully ask you to point out in any of them one word that savors of "threats" or "boycotting." I will go further, and ask you to give one instance in which the Saturday Half-holiday Committee, one of its members, or any one remotely connected with it, has said or done anything to give ground for such a serious charge.

Of the inclosed circulars we have distributed over one hundred and seventy thousand in the churches. Over one thousand clergymen have received them by mail, and hundreds have spoken of their contents from their pulpits. Every morning and evening daily in New York has strongly supported the movement, and the religious press as a unit has espoused the cause; and from none of these sources have we the faintest reference to either "threat" or "boycotting."

I therefore ask you to look carefully to the sources of the information on which you base your article, and in your next issue to correct the false impression you may have made on the minds of your readers minds of your readers.

Yours very respectfully, EDWARD JOHNSTON, Chairman, Saturday Half-holiday Committee.

[We gladly give place to the above. Our statement was made on the authority of a leading member of the trade, who resented the "threats" which he understood had been made. We are very glad that he and we were mistaken in supposing that the Committee had given countenance to the "boycotting" method of treating this question. Our suggestion that one o'clock is a more practicable hour for closing than twelve still holds good; it referred not simply to stores dependent upon immediate customers, but to offices where a given amount of work must be done to finish up the week. It is almost unnecessary to repeat our often expressed belief that, within reasonable limits, shorter hours make better work. We advocated Saturday early closing long before the formation of this Committee, and have carried it into practice in our own office as far as possible, in view of the issue of our periodicals at the end of the week.—ED. P. W.]

For me sext few months the business of the former will be conducted at the old stand, 17 Frank-Ex Street, where Mr. Lockwood will remain for present. Mr. Cleaves is well known as havbeen connected formerly with the houses of Let & Shepard and of Lockwood, Brooks & Co., and Mr Macdonald as a prominent member of trade. Mr. Lockwood has become connected with a large ranch in southwatem Kansas, and in future he will divide his the between this ranch and the new firm, atinding to the furnishing of large libraries, a denument of the business in which he has had me experience. Mr. Lockwood began in 1858. in Crosby, Nichols & Co., and with the excepmoitwo years when he was in the army, has the remained in Boston. He established the no of Noyes, Holmes & Co, and afterward at of Lockwood, Brooks Co., the latter of hich he has conducted alone since 1878. The of his partial withdrawal from the book miness now is all-health. It is pleasant, howwe, to know that Mr. Lockwood will not sever the been so long identified

CHARLES H. KERR & Co., 175 Dearborn Street, Chicago, have in preparation "Bardo. & Study in George Eliot," by Mary E. Burt.

W. W. MUNSELL & Co., 210 Broadway, N. Y., will publish in May next a "History of New Haven, Conn.," edited by Rev. E. E. Atwater. The work will make a large quarto, and will be profusely illustrated. (Sold only by subscription at $15)

THE NORTH AMERICAN PUBLISHING COMPANY have in preparation "Reminiscences of Abraham Lincoln, by Distinguished Men of his Time," collected and edited by Allen Thorndike Rice, editor of the North American Review. The book will appear in April, and will be sold by subscription.

GINN & Co. have in preparation "Eysenbach's German Grammar," a short practical textbook designed to give the student the power of understanding, speaking, writing, and reading German with the utmost economy of time and labor, revised by William C. Collar, of the Roxbury Latin School, Boston. The book may be expected in June.

The American Publication Society of Hebrew, at Morgan Park, Ill., announces that it has in press a collection of lectures by Rev. Justin A. Smith, D.D., on "The New Age." The resume of the contents shows that the subject is the Reformation of the sixteenth century, a subject to which Dr. Smith has given many years of study, and on which he is peculiarly fitted to write.

JAMES H. EARLE has in preparation for early publication "His Opportunity," by Henry G. Pearson, a novel, being "a study of American social life and the best methods toward its elevation;" "Nineveh and its Repentance," by Dr. Samuel H. Higginson, a valuable book for ministers and Bible students, also, "Songs of Trust," a volume of devotional poems, collected by Eliza S. Goodyear.

Those who were under the impression that chromos were on the decline will be surprised to hear that a large firm in this line of goods recently reported that their trade during 1555 was "immense." To one newspaper alone this firm sold three million cards for advertising and gift purposes. The noticeable change is the demand for cards of better grade. The output of the card publishers for the trade last year is said to be not far from $2,500,000.

J. O. Ausrin, P. O. box 81, Providence, R.I., has in preparation a "Genealogical Dictionary of Rhode Island," which will embrace the record (in the earlier generations) of four hundred and sixty-five distinct families, including births, marriages, deaths, wills, and various items of interest in the lives of the early inhabitants. The volume will be ready this year, the 250th year since the settlement of Rhode Island. It will be issued in a limited edition to subscribers at $10.

A. A. GRANT, 300 Broadway, N. Y., has published a "Standard Indexed At as" of the United States, for business uses. By simple typographical devices and by coloring, one distinguishes readily the counties of any given State; the towns as post-offices or not, and as money-order post-offices or not; the railroads, and the express line which has the privilege of each. The indexes contain much compact information as to population, banking facilities, place on the map, and accessibility by tail.

The Chautauqua Press, 117 Franklin Street, Boston, have in course of publication a new series of books specially designed to give subjects for regular scientific observations that may be made in schools, out of doors, and at home, and to show how to record and study such observations. These books are called "The Chautauqua Talks," and the first is entitled "Talks about the Weather in its Relation to Plants and Ani-The book was prepared at one of the most important private meteorological and experiment stations in this country, and is written by Mr. Charles Barnard, late editor World's Work Department of the Century, and Well known as a contributor to other leading magazines. Its aim is to give a series of subjects for observations in schools, and to show how these observations should be made and recorded, and to explain their relations to the care of plants and animals in agriculture. The sun, the wind, the rain, the temperature, and the climate are examined from a scientific and commercial point of view, with the intention of interesting young people and students in the daily panorama of natural events passing before their eyes in the procession of the seasons. The second volume, entitled "Talks About the Soil," also prepared by Mr. Barnard, will be ready shortly.

FISHER T. UNWIN, London, has issued an English edition of W. W. Astor's novel, "Valentino."

THE English Government will introduce a 🛍 in Parliament to amend the law of copyrights as to enable England to enter the Internation Copyright Union.

RICHARD BENTLEY & SON, London, sonored for publication shortly the continuation of Pa fessor Mommsen's "History of Rome"the Provinces from the time of Casar to that! Diocletian, translated by Dr. W. P. Dickson, two volumes, with maps.

An English bookseller offers for sale a almost complete collection of the works of B foe. The making of it was the work of near half a century. It includes a number of page phiets and pieces not hitherto attributed to D foe. The political and historical tracts ale number one hundred and fifty-three.

A PLEASANT fruit of the recent visit to a country of Mr. Edward Marston, senior parts of the firm of Sampson Low, Marston, Searle Remington, London, will be a little book Western experience, under the title of " Frui Ranch; or, My Holiday in the Rockies." T purpose of Mr. Marston's trip was a visit of son who had settled down as a ranchman Montana, and the little book, embracing a 🕶 ber of letters from the ranchman and a picture the log-house built with his own hands, give detailed and graphic account of that kind of • perience, which will be of much interest American as well as to English readers.

INDEX TO PERIODICALS.

[QUARTERLY.]

With 1885, the Cooperative Index to Periodicals, edited by W. I. Fletcher, Librarian of index College and Associate Editor of Poole's Index, the continuation of that most useful views, becomes a separate periodical, issued quarterly.

The plan is extended to cover all the periodicals indexed in Poole's Index, and such new ones were of sufficient prominence to be included, English as well as American.

The price is $2.00 per year. It is sent as a supplement to all subscribers to the LIBRARY JOURNAL ($5.00), but it is hoped that librarians will do their part in its direct support by taking copies for readers' use. Booksellers, schools, and individual readers will also find it worth money to them, as it gives a continuous index, by subjects, to the articles in all the leading maxines.

HIGHEST EXPERT ENDORSEMENTS.

"I congratulate you upon the result of the printer's art as shown in your recently publish * New National Readers' and 'History of the United States.'

"The fact that irreparable damage is done to the eyes of young children by badly prim primary school books, makes your work in the books alluded to above, a genuine public but faction. I do not see how any damage can possibly result in the proper use of such books, I typographical parts of which are so well adapted to the healthful exercise of the organ of visit

"Trusting that educators may be led to see the value of your books, and to lessen the effects of abuse of the eyes of the young." I am, dear Sir,

C. R. AGNEW, M.D.

Ξ.

New York, Jan. 5, 1886.

"The increase of disease to the eyes of students is one of the most significant phenoment modern civilization; it has influenced the Germans to adopt the Roman type in place of the German, and has aroused the attention of the medical profession. Some improvement in printing of school books is beginning to be noticed, but nothing we have seen can compast general adaptability to the wants of the eyes of scholars with the typography and clearnes illustration of the New National Series of Readers, and the Brief History of the U. published by A. S. BARNES & Co.

"Such praiseworthy endeavors to comply with the demands of science and to preserve eyes of our children deserves the hearty endorsement of every philanthropist."

PRACTICAL BANKING. Third Edition.

By ALBERT S. BOLLES,

Editor of The Banker's Magazine, and Professor of Mercantile Law and Practice in the Wharton School of Finance and Economy, University of Pennsylvania. This work is designed to show how the business of Banking is conducted at the Present time. It is not a history and contains no theory, but is a thoroughly practical work, the duties of all the officials eing fully described. It is divided into four parts, with an appendix.

The Banker's Common-Place Book has long been favorably known and the demand for a new edition has been very general. A portion of this standard treatise, revised to suit the present time, is included in this volume.

SCIENTIFIC THEISM. By Francis Ellingwood Abbott, Ph.D. Second edition, 12mo, cloth, $2.00.

"Since the immortal treatises of Darwin himself, which have been so grievously misunderstood, we have not had a treatise which meets so well the demands of all science and all religion as does Dr. Abbott's Thrism. He does explicitly and positively what Darwin did by implication. The great Darwin gave us the right method of studying visible Nature; Dr. Abbott extends the theory and method to the universe, to the human mind, to God. Such a book should make an epoch in the intellectual history of our country. The book is a very great performance."-The Beacon.

WILL PUBLISH FEBRUARY 10th:

DOMESTICUS. A Tale of the Imperial (

By WILLIAM ALLEN BUTLER. I vol., 12mo, $1.25.

Mr. Butler who made or himself a vast circle of readers when he wrote "Not Wear," has now given them in this book a novel which is not less charming or original thad reason to expect from his pen. Constructed in unwonted lines, it is therefore that acceptable. It is the brightest, most fascinating, and thoroughly enjoyable book in the literature that has been published for a long time.

AN APACHE CAMPAIGN IN T. SIERRA MADRE.

An Account of the Expedition in Pursuit of the Hostile Chiricahua in the Spring (By Captain John G. Bourke, U. S. A., author of "The Moquis Indians." I vol. illustrated, cloth, $1.00; paper, 50 cents.

Captain Bourke's narrative is not only a very important one, but is also a thrilli absorbing story, and affords a glimpse of Indian life at close view.

WHAT DOES HISTORY TEACH?

By JOHN STUART BLACKIE. 1 vol., 16mo, cloth, 75 cents.

A most interesting and suggestive little volume, discussing the influences of his church and state, written with the earnestness and vigor which distinguishes all that com Prof. Blackie's pen.

Conventional Bohemian.

A NOVEL. By Edmund Pendleton. 12mo, cloth. Price, $1.25.

Although a society novel, "A Conventional Bohemian" reaches at times the heights of sion, and reveals a remarkable knowledge of the motives and conflicts of the human heart. Extyle is noticeable for epigrammatic wit and wisdom in the lighter scenes, and for dramatic wer in the serious ones. There are a number of well-drawn characters, the heroine being eculiarly felicitous study, and the hero a virile and striking portrait. It is a novel sure of many nirers among those who delight in intellectual subtlety and artistic execution.

"The problems under discussion in the volume I believe to be the greatest and most gent of any that now demand attention. I have contributed my little toward their solution, and I lask for it is candid 'consideration.'"—From Preface.

IV

for Maimie's Sake:

A STORY OF LOVE AND DYNAMITE. By GRANT ALLEN. 12mo, paper cover. Price, 25 cents.

"For Maimie's Sake" is a remarkable story, very novel in its leading idea, concentrated its action, and has at least two situations as striking and even startling as anything in fiction.

To The Retail Bookseller.

Copies of this work have been presented to the Professors and Demonstrators of Anatomy of the different Colleges throughout the Country, and we already have information that it will adopted at once as a text-book. Inquiries are being received from students as to where the book may be procured.

We would suggest the propriety of a conference with the Professors in your Colleges, or the Physicians among your cutomers, that you may be prepared to meet the probable demand.

"NATURE HAS BEEN THE TEXT-BOOK."

NOW READY .- A Superb Work.

PRACTICAL HUMAN ANATOMY.

A Working-guide for Students of Medicine and a Ready-reference for Surgeons and Physician

By FANEUIL D. WEISSE, M.D.

One volume, royal octavo, 468 pages of text. Illustrated by 222 lettered plates, contains 321 figures. Price, cloth, $6.00; leather, $7.00.

This magnificent work has been prepared with a special view to its use as a text-book and working guide for student and as a ready-reference book for practitioners of surgery and medicine. It is the result of twenty years' experience at lecturer on human anatomy, and of more than fifteen years' practice in the dissecting room. The plates have been need seven years in preparation, special dissections being made by the author himself, from step to step, to insure corrected of details. The work contains in addition to over four hundred pages of descriptive text, two hundred and twenty-to full-page plates superbly executed from the original drawings. It will be readily understood that such a work, involving the very large outlay necessary to its production, would, if priced at a figure commensurate with its cost, be practically withdrawn from the reach of the student of anatomy, except as a work of reference in large libraries. In view of this the author has generously contributed and sunk the whole expense of the plates, and thereby enabled the publishers to detail the book at a price no greater than the average text-book.

The practitioner of surgery and medicine, in the absence of a cadaver to refer to, has been much in need of illustrations of anatomy, that would present him a progressive series of dissections of a region or organ about which he desired information. To meet this want has been one of the aims in the preparation of this work, special attention having best given to those regions and organs which claim frequent surgical and medical care. To this end also the contents and information so elaborated as to facilitate the finding of the plate illustrations and text descriptions of any part.

THE PLAN OF THE WORK EMBRACES THE FOLLOWING POINTS:

- 1st. The division of the body into practical dissections.
- 2d. The giving, in dissection-paragraphs, the progressive steps by which the several parts, involved in a dissection are to be systematically displayed.
- 3d. The guidance, by lines across the parts in the plates—called section-lines—to the points where they are to cut, for their reflection, in order to advance a succeeding stage of the dissection.
 - 4th. The indication, by numbering the parts of the dissections, of the order in which they are exposed.
 - 5th. The description of the parts, in descriptive-anatomy paragraphs, as they are brought into view.
- 6th. The adherence, in expressing the relations of parts, to a well-defined nomenclature of general and seasonical terms.
- 7th. The illustration of the anatomy of the regions and viscera of the body by plates, with the names of the fell printed upon them or at the sides of the figures with indicating lines to them—the dead anatomy is thus presented the student, and the living anatomy to the surgeon and physician.

IPLETON & Co. publish to-day a volume icussions on Climate and Cosmology," by nes Croll, with a chart, and a volume "Class Interests: their relations to each d to government—a study of wrongs and s, to ascertain what the people should do nselves," by the author of "Conflict in and Life," etc. In light literature they dish a novel entitled "A Conventional an," by Edmund Pendleton, which, h a society novel, is said to reach at ne heights of passion, and to reveal a ible knowledge of the motives and conthe human heart. They have also ready lovel by Grant Allen, entitled "For s Sake—a story of love and dynamite." ER & Bros. issue this week an important aph by the historian, George Bancroft,

3. 1884, in the case of Julliard vs. Greenman. They have also just ready a new edition of Cross's "Life of George Eliot," containing new and important information concerning the novelist's change of religious belief in 1841-'42, and recollections of her life at Coventry. They will soon publish an important historical work on the Indians, entitled "The Massacres of the Mountains." The author is Mr. J. P. Dunn, Jr., of Indianapolis, who has given a large amount of time and labor to the study of the subject. The book will be profusely illustrated.

ROBERTS Bros. will publish this month a new novel by Miss Maud Howe, entitled "Atalanta in the South," the outgrowth of the author's pleasant experiences at the New Orleans Exposition. It is said to show such marked improvement in style as will place it far in advance of her former productions. Birotteau," the next volume in the series of translations of Balzac's works, will be ready this month, as will also be "Glimpses of Three Coasts," by Helen Jackson ("Bits of Travel" in California and Oregon, Scotland and England, and Norway, Denmark and Germany, partly new and partly reprinted from the Atlantic and the Century.) They will also commence issuing a new and complete edition of the works of George Meredith in eight handsome twelvemo volumes, the first of which, "The Ordeal of Richard Feveril," is about ready. It will be the first complete edition published in America of this talented novelist.

TICKNOR & Co. will publish on the 10th "The Life and Times of Goethe," a collection of the lectures at the Concord School of Philosophy for 1885, edited by F. B. Sanborn, and prefaced with an account of the newly discovered manuscripts by Professor Hewitt; "Edge Tools of Speech," by Maturin M. Ballou, a collection of apothegms and memorabilia, classified by topics, that will be found exceedingly useful by writers and speakers; "Two College Girls," by Helen Dawes Brown, a capital study of girl students from Boston, New York and Chicago, exemplifying the most piquant characteristics of the respective phases of civilization and the social criteria of the three cities. In their Monographs of American Architecture they will publish the second volume, entitled "The Hartford Capitol," by R. M. Upjohn, architect, a neat portfolio (13x16 inches), containing eighteen gelatine plates illustrating the beautiful marble Gothic building of the Connecticut State Capitol.

The first issue in the series, which justifies its name of "rainbow" by brilliancy and profusion of color. The story is laid in Spain and England during the closing days of the last century. The author has almost given away the plot in the preface, but we refrain from doing so here, as the story is worth reading, giving a truthful description of the national prejudices on which the plot hinges. "The sins of the father shall be visited on the children "sums up the exciting story. There is a vivid description of the plague in Venice.

The fifth volume of the complete commentary on the New Testament that the American Baptist Publication Society has had in preparation for several years. The former volumes are on the Gospels of Mark and Luke, the Acts of the Apostles, and The Revelation. The whole series is under the editorship of Dr. Alvah Hovey. In the present volume we have a commentary that is exceedingly careful in its interpretation of the letter of the Gospel, while it is peculiarly successful in the development of its spirit. Its issue is very timely, as the International Lessons for 1886 begin with the Gospel of John, April 1, and continue with it until November 14.

Though the name of this volume is taken from English history, it is, like others of the series, largely devoted to continental affairs of the period (1713 to 1755), such as the Turkish wars, the Polish succession war, Anson's voyage. It opens with a general survey of the principal European powers after the Peace of Utrecht, and some biographical details of leading men. The third and concluding book gives an excellent summary of the religious and literary features of England and France during the period the volume covers.

A novel which is made of startling incidents. The most prominent is given to the "Pomfret mystery," a crime which baffles the skill of a noted detective, and involves the reputations of several of the characters, until Mrs. Vance makes a confession which implicates her husband, and clears up the mystery which surrounds the robbery of the Pomfret bank.

Walworth, Mrs. J. H. Without blemish: today's problem. N. Y., Cassell & Co., 1886. 3-381 p. D. cl., $1.25.

A contribution to the negro question, viewing chiefly, from several standpoints, the subject of amalgamation. The author's opinion is found in the following sentences put into the hero's mouth: "It is not by battering down the barriers with a reckless hand that the great problem of redemption for a race is to be worked out. Side by side, on platforms of an even elevation in morals and manners and good achievements, let them stand with the highest. Help them to it, sustain them on it, but not by obliterating lines traced by Omniscience itself." The argument is embodied in a very readable story of Mississippi after the war. The pictures are graphic though sad, and the charactersketches quite telling. The ending is tragical and cruelly unfair. Mrs. Walworth is the author of several good nevels, "The Bar-sinister," published lately and anonymously, attracting considerable attention.

The father of three almost grown children marries their governess, who, after being most amiable and docile, develops into the typical, hard stepmother of fiction. She plans to have her husband's fortune left to her own child, and makes home miserable for the others. The son leaves and studies medicine, engages himself to his cousin, and dies suddenly of consumption on the same day as his fiancée. After several years the mother's duplicity is discovered, the father dies, and grief and anxiety render the mother insane. Her plotting was "vergebens"—in vain.

persons interested in French literature glad to know that the first part of a conn of the well-known "Catalogue Général ibrairie Française" (1840-'75) of Otto to extend from January, 1876, to De-1885, may be expected in May next.

DHN LUBBOCK intends to publish soon a le list of what he considers the best hundred books. He will exclude works by living authors, science and history, with a few exceptions, which he will mention rather in their literary aspect. Mr. Ruskin has been asked for his views of the list submitted by Sir John Lubbock. He returns the list with many names crossed off lightly and others crossed with heavy lines. Marcus Aurelius, Aristotle, St. Augustine, Sophocles, Gibbon, Hume, Voltaire, Darwin, Longfellow, Thackeray, George Eliot and Goethe are among those whom he would banish from such a list. Opposite Plato's name he writes "all," meaning that all of Plato should be included. Opposite Carlyle's he writes "everything," and opposite Scott, in heavy lines, "every word."

THE COPYRIGHT OUTLOOK.

THE literature of the copyright discussion is accumulating so rapidly that to attempt to reprint the current week's supply in our columns would require a good-sized magazine. The most noteworthy contribution is the "symposium," in the February Century, of two score or more American authors, duplicating to some extent the opinions already called forth by the Publishers' Weekly, but of much new interest and value. At the head is printed in fac-simile an epigram by Mr. Lowell:

"In vain we call old notions fudge,
And bend our conscience to our dealing:
The ten commandments will not budge,
And stealing will continue stealing."

The series is doubly a symposium, for all the contributors think together. The subject is attracting much attention in the literary and religious weeklies, and most of the daily papers have treated it editorially. Most of the articles printed have been strongly in favor of an international copyright law; one in the New York Times has been taken as raising objections to, rather than promoting the pending measures. A previous contribution to that paper, by an outside writer, (which we do give elsewhere, -since it covers a new suggestion,) proposes a royalty system and the use of stamps for payments. This has aroused interest as a curiosity rather than as a practical suggestion, but it may be asked, in case a paternal government is to take this matter in hand, how it is to divide the stamp tax among the authors interested.

The result of the hearings at Washington seems to be that the Chace bill has the right of way, and is in a fair way, possibly with some modifications, to be reported favorably by the Committee. It would not be correct to state that this very restrictive measure represents the views of the publishing trade in general. The clause prohibiting importation, in especial, is much objected to, and permission to import on the written authority of the holders of the copyright here would meet many views. But, as Mr. Estes says, "any bill is better than no bill," and an approach to justice is better than no justice The adhesion of the Typographical Union to the Chace bill is a decided gain for international copyright, and the position taken by the labor organizations in general gives an element of success no previous measure has enjoyed.

WASHINGTON NOTES: THE SECOND COPYRIGHT HEARING.

WASHINGTON, 30 Jan., 1886.

THE announcement in London, for instance, that James Russell Lowell would be heard on any day on any subject, would have drawn together many more people than gathered in the Senate Committee-room at Washington on the second day of the copyright hearing. There was no throng at the announced hour of meeting, though during the hearing the room filled till a number were standing.

Mr. James Lowndes, Washington counsel for the Copyright League, presented a petition of the Music Teachers' Association of Rhode Island, numbering fifteen hundred persons, many of them authors of music, in favor of the Hawley bill. They were similarly placed, said Mr. Lowndes, with authors, but still more deeply interested, since music is a universal language and all countries compete with them.

Mr. Gardiner G. Hubbard, of Boston, who appeared for Harper & Brothers at the hearing before the Morrill Committee in 1873, but now spoke only as one who had become personally interested as a student of the subject, presented the only argument of the entire hearing against international copyright. Mr. Hubbard urged that when an author gives up possession of manuscript his ideas become the property of the Copyright is a modern thing, first granted for the benefit of publishers; American copyright differs from English copyright in granting the privilege for the benefit of the public. Under the present system any small newsdealer can supply McCarthy's " History of Eagland " and similar works of value. The English authors favored the Hawley bill because it would increase the price of their books, and the public lishers the Chace bill because it would give the the entire control of the market. Mr. Hubband presented a list of prices of English books spaced with American books to show the her prices of the former, but it was evident I he had overlooked the fact that in some of : cases cited cheap editions were also printed England.

Mr. Hubbard's onslaught on literary property ve Mr. Lowell a text, and his connection with e Bell Telephone interests gave opportunity for number of quiet thrusts.

Mr. Lowell referred to Mr. Hubbard's position i" extraordinary," and objected to the feeling at books, like umbrellas, were common prey. le thought that many things said in opposition o international copyright were purely hypothetal. He did not think that such a law would nake books dearer, but cheaper, or that pubishers would be led to prefer high profits on imall editions. The result of an international copyright law would be to transfer the great bulk of the book trade eventually to America, where the popular demand was so great. There is one book better than a cheap book, and that is a book honestly come by. He was not in favor of books poorly printed in order to make them <heap, because we should soon be suffering from it with our eyes as a nation, as the Germans have been suffering from their obstinacy in still using the German type. Some of the cheap books he could not read for an hour. He thought international copyright would raise the standard of literary taste in America. The cheap reprints of foreign works tended to diminish American authorship by lessening its rewards. As to reciprocity, it was not necessary to bargain with : England in advance. Mr. Lowell was listened to with eager attention, and was asked a number of questions by members of the Committee.

Mr. Clemens pointed out that an international copyright law would not interfere with the cheap reprints of standard works already issued, and that new books would only be held back from general re issue for forty-two years.

Union No 2. of Philadelphia, and representative of the International Typographical Union, appeared for the printing interests opposed to the Hawley bill and favoring the Chace bill. He was received with much respect and made a very good presentation of his case, fortifying it with resolutions passed by a number of Unions.

Mr. Dana Estes said that he preferred any bill to no bill. He stated that though his house daining to be "the publisher of the only foreign | law.

book that ever had the protection of American law." Since he secured this protection under trade-mark law he sold 50,000 to 100,000 copies a year, at forty to fifty cents instead of seventy-five cents to $1; used an average of one hundred tons of American paper every year, and furnished a large number of printers and binders with work. He held it a logical position that an authorized book in the hands of an enterprising publisher will be cheaper to the American public, after paying him a good profit and the author a fair return, than in the hands of an indiscriminate lot of pirates.

The fac-simile memorial signed by a hundred or more leading authors was then formally presented to the Committee, also a printed argument from Mr. Henry C. Lea in favor of the Chace bill, and the hour for adjournment arrived.

The evidence before the Committee will be promptly printed in full at the Government Printing Office. The result of the second day's hearing was to give the Chace bill a decided impelus, and to make the passage of such a bill R. R. B. fairly probable.

THE Harper-Gilbert correspondence is an episode now of somewhat regular recurrence. The position of Messrs. Harper is simple enough. The laws of this country do not put it in their power to make a business arrangement with Mr. Gilbert, or in his power to make a business arrangement with any one else. Their refraining from reprinting would have done him no good, for there was not even an "author's edition." They offered him an honorarium, which he tosses contemptuously over to a charity. If Messrs. Harper were the national Legislature, and could at once make an international copyright law, Mr. Gilbert's fling would have some bearing; but they are not. They have, however, more than once endeavored to bring about an Mr. James Welsh, President of Typographical | international copyright, and are co-operating in the present endeavor. A good word from Mr. Gilbert would have been more useful than his little satire.

We refrained from expressing any opinion on the Lovell-Houghton suit during its continuance, since "trial by newspaper" is in every way objectionable. It proves now that there was nothemitted nearly $1,000,000 worth of books a year, ing for the case to rest on—either as to libel or has for the last two years absolutely refused | conspiracy. The "libel" seems to have contonsider American manuscripts. He be-! sisted in telling the truth, and not the slightest level that under international copyright many case of "conspiracy" was made out. The re-Places would be made here and duplicates sold sult of the case will probably be wholesome, in b English publishers. Mr. Estes gave an inter- discouraging vexatious litigation; it has no bearthe history of "Chatterbox," ing, however, on copyright or other trade

THE GILBERT-HARPER CORRESPOND-ENCE.

MR. W. S. GILBERT, the dramatist, prints in the London papers of February 2 a card and a correspondence with Messrs. Harper & Brothers, a summary of which is cabled to the Herald. The card calls attention to an "instance of munificence on the part of the Harpers, the wealthy publishers, exhibiting a sympathy for distressed British authors deserving of recognition."

Messrs. Harper wrote, "We inclose herewith a draft on Sampson & Low, at one day's tight, for £10 in acknowledgment for reprinting your original comic operas in our Franklin Square Library Please advise us of the receipt of the draft. We send you by mail a few copies of our edition of the book."

Mr. Gilbert replies thus: "You have been good enough to forward me a donation of £10, notwithstanding the fact that for many years I have been pillaged right and left by such of your countrymen as are engaged in publishing and in theatrical ventures. I am not yet reduced to truch a state of absolute penury as would justify tny taking advantage of the charitable impulse which prompted your gift, but the Victoria Hospital for children stands sorely in need of funds. I have therefore taken the liberty of banding your check to that institution."

The Commercial Advertiser comments on this as follows . "Should Messes, Harper & Brothers, because they have reprinted one of his books and thown a disposition to pay for it, pay also all the money of which he conceives himself to have been 'pillaged' by ail their countrymen? It is commonly believed that Mr. Gilbert, in spite of his having been the subject of general American 'loot,' has derived considerable sums of money from the American playgoing public, and we have not heard of any American publishers who are rioting in wealth gained by the profits of reprinting Mr. Glibert's literary works. Why should be uncork all the vials of the fine old crusty wrath at American publishers and American managers which has been so many years in bottle upon the one firm which has shown an indisposition to 'pillage' him, and which has shown a disposition to a courteous and liberal treatment of British authors, in the absence of any legal obligation to consider the interests of British authors at all, which many British authors quite as important as Mr. Gilbeit have gladly acknowledged?"

EC. 5.—This act shall go into effect on day of

he following argument was added to the cirur containing the bill, as originally sent out in Philadelphia:

'It will be seen that this project of law places eign and American authors in precisely the ne position, without disturbance to American lustrial interests, and as little hardship to the nerican reading public as is possible.

"The prohibition of importing copyrighted orks is simply rendering effective the regulam universal in all countries where copyright we exist. It involves the manufacture of the ork in this country, and thus encourages our we industries. It ensures the presentation of pokes in a style and at a price suited to the wants i our people.

It works no wrong to American authors, ho will be relieved from the unjust competition foreign works obtained without payment to the author. It gives the benefit of our market to the foreign author who, by taking out an American copyright, can have his books printed and pubsited nere on whatever term he sees fit to accept.

No reciprocity clause is necessary. Amerian authors already enjoy a practical copyright a England, the only country in which the sales at American books are of importance.

"Power to a foreign author or proprietor of copyright to grant a license to import copies into this country, after taking out an American copyright, would enable him to refuse to allow such works to be printed here, and would render our market wholly dependent on foreign supplies. This power is therefore withheld by the above bill and the enforcement of the prohibition is a matter of the first importance."

THE MIKADO AGAIN IN COURT.

R. D'OYLY CARTE has brought suit in equity in the United States Circuit Court against Richand A. Saalfield, the music publisher, because the latter published a musical composition enuled "The Mikado," airs from Gilbert and Sulliran's opera. When "The Mikado" was brought out in London George Lowell Tracy, d Boston, was sent over to prepare the musical Publication for this country. He did this, and den assigned his claim to copyright in this counby to Alexander P. Browne, who made an arangement with the Ponds to publish the music and words. Notwithstanding this, Saalfield pubished and is selling his book, it is charged, which costains the material portions of the opera, interindes, and accompaniments. Therefore an bjunction is asked to restrain Saalfield from Phishing the book and for such other relief as the judge may deem just. - N. Y. Times.

ROYALTY PAYMENT BY MEANS OF STAMPS.

From the N. Y. Times, January 23.

A LAW is proposed giving to works by foreign authors the same copyright as to books by American writers. Under such legislation works by foreign authors would cost the same as those by our own writers. Works now obtained for ten or fifteen cents would cost a dollar or a dollar and a half. If this increase in price all went to the author we might willingly and even gladly be subjected to the heavier burden. But as a matter of fact only about ten per cent would reach the author, while some ninety per cent would be absorbed by the publisher and dealer. In other words, the proposed legislation, while incidentally benefiting the author, would have for its main result—shall we not say object?—to increase the profits of publishers and jobbers.

The ordinary copyright is a monopoly, and a monopoly should never be granted except for the best of reasons. In the case of the publication of a work by an author not yet known to the public such a reason exists. The popularity of the book has not been tested, and the sale may be so small that the publisher will lose heavily. He must take an extraordinary risk, and to offset this unusual hazard it is but just to grant him a monopoly of the sale of the book for a certain number of years. But in the reprinting of a popular work by a well-known foreign author the case is different. A publisher runs no more risk in bringing out in this country a new book of Matthew Arnold or William Black than in publishing a new edition of "Robinson Crusoe." On works first published in this country copyright is properly granted, not only to secure the author a remuneration, but also to induce publishers to bring out new works. Without it few new works would be issued. But no such provision is needed to encourage publishers to reprint the popular works of noted foreign authors. The proposed legislation is asked for, not on the ground that no publishers are willing to reprint these works, but because so many stand ready to do it. The only legislation needed, therefore, is some provision to insure a proper revenue to the foreign author. An act should be passed securing him on each copy of his work sold in this country a royalty of ten cents, twenty cents, or any other proper amount, but leaving the liberty of reprinting open to all, as it is at present. In this way the author would be fairly dealt with, while competition among publishers would keep down the price of books to the present low figures, increased only by the amount actually paid the author. The writer would receive his remuneration, and at the same time the reader would continue to obtain books at low prices, while the publishers would suffer no wrong, for they would be left in their present condition, which is not one that appeals strongly to popular pity. This royalty could be collected without difficulty by the sale of stamps like those of the internal revenue system. Their price could be fixed at the average amounts received under ordinary copyright legislation. If cases can be imagined in which this system would not secure ideal justice, it may be suggested that under existing copyright laws authors sometimes complain that they do not receive from their publishers their full and perfect due. Substantial equity is all we can hope to attain under any system. But, whatever difficulties may be suggested in the settlement of details, it cannot be that Yankee ingenuity has so far failed that it is impossible for us to devise any plan for securing ten cents to a foreign author, except that of giving "the book trade" ninety cents for conveying it to him!

In the discussion of the international copyright question the great principle to be kept in mind is that any law passed by Congress should be solely and exclusively for the benefit of foreign authors, and not at all for the "relief" of the publishing business, which should be left to take the same risks as other branches of trade. The foreign author should be honestly and also liberally dealt with. American readers will not complain at being taxed for the benefit of the transatlantic writers who give them so much pleasure and instruction. But to lay a heavy burden on American readers simply to swell the profits of publishers and dealers would be a "piracy" as gross as that which now flourishes.

NEW YORK, Wednesday, January 20, 1886.

FAMOUS GERMAN BOOKSELLERS.

From the London Bookseller.

IN a little work recently published in Leipzig, ("Das Buch beruehmter Buchhändler," Leipzig, Karl F. Pfau,) an interesting account is given of some of the leading booksellers and printers of Germany. The work is of small dimensions, extending only to one hundred and fifty-two pages, but its author, Herr Pfau, writes with ample knowledge of his subject and a most enthusiastic love of the trade, of which he is himself a member. He might, however, in a future edition, amend his style and correct some misprints. The chapters are too long, and they terminate with monotonous repetition in much superfluous eulogy of his subjects, until we become wearied of the exalted characters and conspicuous virtues of these immortal examples of bookselling integrity. All branches of the trade were at first carried on in conjunction, and although we speak of Gutenburg or Caxton as printers, they were really authors, editors, translators, printers, type-makers, bookbinders, and booksellers all in one. Herr Pfau's biographies therefore begin with Johannes Gutenburg or Johann Geussleisch, of Mainz, who as the inventor of the art of printing, together with his partners, Johann Fust and Peter Schoeffer, are entitled to the place of honor. This historic trio is followed by the undermentioned:

Aldus Manutius, 1449-1515 (also known as Aldus Pius), who founded the famous Aldine Press at Venice.

Anton Koburger, of Nuremberg, 1513, whose publications were admired for correctness, especially his Bibles, and who had bookshops in sixteen towns—viz., Frankfort-on-the-Main, Amsterdam, Venice, Danzig, Hanover, Lueneburg, Luebeck, Prague, Breslau, Augsburg, Ulm, Leipzig, Brunswick, Erfurt, Brussels, and Vienna.

Johann Frobeen, 1460-1527, the learned bookseller of Basel, whose fine editions of the Bible and the classics are even now considered valuable.

Philipp Erasmus Reich, 1717-1787, a prominent bookseller of Leipzig, connected with Wieland, Oeser, Weisse, Zollikofer, and others.

Johann Philipp Palm, of Nuremberg, 1766—1806, who on the 26th of August, 1806, was shot by French soldiers at Braunau, a victim of the tyranny of Napoleon, and rightly ac national hero.

Johann Gottlob Immanuel Breitk 1794, the editor of a standard work of book printing, and the highly-gifted reformer of the still flourishing publi both of books and music, at Leipzig,

ARING HOUSE FOR DUPLICATE PUBLIC DOCUMENTS.

From the Nation.

United States spent in 1884 through the the Public Printer close upon $3,000,d yet it is next to impossible for public to get documents that they want very nough they often get sacks of documents ley do not want. These latter the libraits groaning shelves keep, unless they icates. If they are, it is as hard to get em as it is to get the more desired vol-They cannot be exchanged (the best reor the disposal of duplicates), for other is say to themselves, Why should I ything for this when I can get it for by simply asking my Representative They cannot be sold at auction, bee auctioneer says that they will not pay ataloguing. Did not Senator Anthony's two thousand volumes of Congressional documents sell for eight cents apiece? The librarian's conscience will not let him sell them for old paper, and so they accumulate. But now an outlet has been furnished. The Department of the Interior, having very successfully acted as clearing-house for libraries in the matter of the Congressional Record, receiving duplicates from those libraries that had them, and from the stock thus formed supplying deficiencies wherever they existed, has resolved to apply the same system to all public documents. Mr. J. G. Ames, Superintendent of Documents, Interior Department, if informed that any library has duplicates which it is willing to contribute to the common fund, will furnish wrappers. which will enable the library to dispatch the volumes free of expense, and if the library will send a list of its wants, he will supply them so far as the volumes in his possession allow. Let every library hasten to assist in this good WOIK.

COMMUNICATION.

THE WAY OUT.

NEW YORK, Feb. 1, 1886.

I. Reduce the retail price of all "books which are books," including the same class of juvenile books, and make the trade discount an average, say, of twenty-five per cent, and thus abolish all discounts except to the dealer.

Make the price of all the "standards." "sets," "twelvemos," "poets," and so-called juveniles," in cloth and boards, net, and let each dealer, as he does now, fix his own retail price.

If any interior bookseller is disposed to question this plan, let him contrast his school-book trade as it now is with what it was a few years R. ago,

GRANT'S MEMOIRS.—The sale of the "Personal Memoirs of U.S. Grant" have reached 325,000 sets in this country, and Charles L. Webster & Co., the publishers, are making preparations for a demand of 400,000 sets. Nine thousand canvassers have been employed, 200 of whom have had New York City and Brooklyn for their field. The sets cost from $7 in cloth to $25 in tree calf, and there have been only 100 refusals out of 325,000 subscriptions. The sale in the South is very moderate, but in the West it is enormous. The publishers have imported a large number of copies of the work in German, and they find a ready sale. As to the sale of the work abroad it is impossible to speak at present, for booksellers 'reports, are only made semi-annually. It is now positively announced that the second volume will appear on the 10th of March. The publishers stated yesterday that a check for a sum between $225,000 and $250,000 would be given to Mrs. Grant within the next thirty days.—N. Y. Times, Jan. 28.

Miss Brownson-" I want 'Comin' Thro' the Rye,' Ouidà's 'In a Winter City,' Mr. Astor's novel, 'Green Pastures and Piccadilly,' by William Black, and 'The New King Arthur.'

Bookseller-" Yes, ma'am. Anything else?" Miss Brownson—" Well, I don't know. Could. you recommend anything to follow those?" Bookseller-" Yes, a lunatic asylum."-Puck.

JOURNALISTIC NOTES.

CHARLES SCRIBNER'S SONS have arranged to become the publishers of Les Lettres et les Arts, the new French magazine, of which the first number has just been published.

MR. POULTNEY BIGELOW, it is announced, is the only responsible manager of Outing, Mr. Theodore Roosevelt not having the share in the control of the magazine with which he has been credited.

HARPER & Bros. have in preparation a new edition of the index to their magazine, which will include the last ten volumes. Several improvements have been made in its plan. Mr. C. A. Durfee is the compiler.

D. C. HEATH & Co., of Boston, will begin the publication, this month, of a new monthly periodical, to be entitled the Citizen, and to be edited by the members of the American Institute of Civics, of which the President is Henry Randall Waite.

THE Southern Bivouac for February will print an article on General Lee by the late Alexander H. Stephens. Mr. Stephens, a short time before his death, dictated to his amanuensis an account of Lee, but it afterward proved unsatisfactory to him and he began a second. The latter he was able to finish before his death, but he did not revise it. It is to be printed as he left it.

The Monthly Index is the title of a useful index of fifty-five leading American and European journals edited and published by Q. P. Index (William M. Griswold), Bangor, Me. No. 1., for January, is a broadside (9\frac{1}{2}x1\frac{1}{2}\text{ inches, printed on stout manilla paper)—one half, we are told, of what the February number will be. The subscription price is twenty-five cents a year. A column is devoted to correspondence—a sort of notes-and-queries department. This, however, will not supersede the "Annual Index," which will continue to be published.

PERSONAL NOTES.

MR. C. O. PERRY, of Chicago, is in town for a few days.

MR JOHN HOVENDEN, well known to the trade as traveller for R. Worthington and the Worthington Co., has resigned his position. He has as yet made no new arrangements.

LITERARY AND TRADE NOTES.

E. & J. B. Young & Co. have in preparation a little volume entitled "Vocation; or, the call of the Divine Master to a Sister's Life," by the Rev. C. C. Grafton.

N. TIBBALS & SON will publish immediately a "Tract for the Times" entitled "Romish Teachings in the Protestant Churches," by an anonymous author.

D. C. HEATH & Co. are about to add to their series of Education Classics "The Levana; or, the Doctrine of Education," a translation from Jean Paul Frederich Richter.

By the burning of a bookbindery in New York a few days ago all the sheets of the édition de luxe of "Sport with Gun and Rod," except a few which had been removed, were destroyed. The edition cannot be duplicated.

WILLARD SMALL, Boston, has just ready "On the Action of Examinations Considered as a Means of Selection," by Henry Latham, Fellow and Tutor of Trinity Hall, Cambridge, (Eng.,) a work which is considered by educators as one of the ablest recent essays upon the subject.

George J. Coombes has in preparation a volume of criticisms by William Winter of Miss Mary Anderson as an actress. In both form and substance it will resemble the volume on "Henry Irving in New York," which Mr. Winter wrote and Mr. Coombes published late last spring.

GENERAL LOGAN'S book, "The Great Conspiracy," will be ready for delivery early in March. The prospectus has been out three weeks, and the agents are said to have already sent in over 55,000 orders. It is believed that the sale will reach from 150,000 to 200,000 copies, GINN & Co. will publish on the 15th the first series of "Hans Andersen's Fairy Tales," edited for home and school use by J. H. Stickney. This will be in three series, to supplement the Third, the Fourth and Fifth Readers, and will be illustrated with the original Pedesen pictures. In May they will publish an "Elementary Geometry" by Professor G. A. Wentworth.

E. H. REYNOLDS, St. Augustine, Fla., announces the Coquina edition of "Old St. Augustine," by Charles B. Reynolds. The edition takes its name from the binding, which is an artotype reproduction of the coquina shell-stone of which Fort Marion is built. Among the six added illustrations is a fac-simile of the curious plate in De Bry (edition of 1599), showing Sir Francis Drake's attack upon St. Augustine in 1586.

An incident recorded by the Critic ought to be embalmed among the curiosities of literature. The editor of Harper's Monthly recently received a letter from a woman who wrote that she was dying, that her physician had warned her that she could not possibly live to read the conclusion of Mr. Howells's "Indian Summer," now running in Harper's Monthly, and that she would greatly like to read the advance sheets in order that she might die happy.

L. PRANG & Co. have added this year to their already large line of valentines a number of new ones. It has been their aim, as always, to combine the best attainable designs with verses and sentiments of purity and refinement. Among the well-known artists who have contributed the designs may be mentioned Miss L. B. Comins, Mrs. O. E. Whitney, Walter Satterlee, Mrs. Mary C. Post, W. H. Gibson, Alois Lunzer, F. W. Freer, Mrs. E. T. Fisher and Will H. Low.

HARPER & BROS. have just ready "Upland and Meadow," by Professor C. C. Abbot, of Trenton, N. J., a volume of field talks; and two new volumes in the Students' Series—"History of Modern Europe," by Richard Lodge, and Westcott and Hort's "The Greek Text of the New Testament." They will publish shortly "The Railways of the Republic," by J. F. Hudson, a volume which discusses the rights and privileges of railroad corporations, and their relation to the public; and a "Memoir of Mrs. Edward Livingston."

THE Publication Agency of the Johns Hopkins University will publish, under the editorial supervision of Professor Isaac H. Hall, a reproduction in phototype of seventeen pages solected from a Syriac MS. containing the Epistes unown as "Antilegomena." These embrace he commonly rejected Epistles 2 Peter, 2 and 3 ohn, and Jude. The price has been fixed at 3. The same agency has also nearly ready a photographic map, in seven plates, of the normal solar spectrum, made by Professor H. A. Rowand, which extends to wave-length 5790. 1:t unmounted will be published at $10.

CHARLES SCRIBNER'S SONS have in preparation a very thorough guide to Mexico by T. A. Janvier, the author of "Color Studies," who is known to magazine readers as "Ivory Black." It will have two maps—one of the country and one of the City of Mexico. They will also publish the continuation of Professor Mommsen's "History of Rome," translated by Dr. W. P. Dickson. It will be in two volumes, and will comprise the Border tribes, Spain, Gaul, conquered Germany, free Germany, Britain, the Danubian Provinces, Greece, Asia Minor, Mesopotamia and Parthia, Syria, Judea and the Jews, Egypt and the African Provinces.

ANTON BICKER, Cincinnati, O., has in preparation a series of clinical lectures delivered at the Cincinnati Hospital during the winter session of 1385-'86. This series is undertaken in the hope that it may, to a certain extent, supply the absence of a regular report; that it may furnish the attendant student with a full and carefully-prepared exposition of the views of his clinical teachers on some interesting and important topics, and supply to the profession details of interesting cases commented upon by professional brethren whose attention has been especially engaged in the subjects chosen; together with results of treatment. The present series will embrace lectures upon: "Post-Mortem Examinations," by William A. Rothacker, M.D.; "Chronic Broncho-pneumonia: Its Diagnosis and Treatment," by William Carson, M.D.; "Strangulated Hernia," by P. S. Conner, M.D.; "Injuries of the Eye, with Especial Reference to Penetrating Wounds and Foreign Bodies," by Robert Sattler, M.D., and "Lacerations of the Cervix Uteri and the Operation of Tracheforthaphy," by George M. Allen, M.D. Lecttres are also in course of preparation by C. P. Comegys, M.D.; N. P. Dandridge, M.D.; Joseph Eichberg, M.D.; William H. Taylor, M.D., and other members of the staff. These lectures are all carefully reported, revised by the lecturers, and edited with such additions and annotations as are necessary for a complete clinical illustration. Mr. Bicker has recently the order of their displacements. issued a book entitled "The Comical Cure-All," containing a collection of humorous anecdotes relating to "physicians, patients, quacks, hypochondriacs, druggists, surgeons, barbers, pill-pounders, bleeders, herb doctors, steamers, electricians, and all others connected directly or indirectly with the prescribing, dispensing, or swallowing of medicine."

WILLIAM WOOD & Co. have just issued one of the most important aids that have been given in many years to students of medicine, in Dr. Faneuil D. Weisse's work on "Practical Human! Anatomy." This magnificent work has been ready-reference book for practitioners of surgery and medicine. It is the result of twenty years' experience as a lecturer on human anatomy, and of more than fifteen years' practice in the dissecting room. The practitioner of surgery and medicine, in the absence of a cadaver to refer to, has been much in need of illustrations of anatomy that would present him a progressive series of dissections of a region or organ about which he desired information. To meet this want has been one of the aims in the preparation of this work, special attention having been given to those regions and organs which claim frequent surgical and medical care. To this end also the contents and index have been so elaborated as to facilitate the finding of the plate illustrations and text descriptions of any part. The plates have been nearly seven years in preparation, special dissections being made by the author himself, from step to step, to insure correctness of details. original intention was to illustrate this work by selections from the illustrations of standard authors, simply adapting and lettering the same to fulfil the purpose. After having carried out this scheme to the extent of some three hundred photo-plates, and one hundred and fifty electrotypes, the plan was abandoned because it was found impracticable to accomplish the object of the work therewith, and the cadaver was resorted The work contains, in addition to over four hundred pages of descriptive text, two hundred and twenty-two full-page plates superbly executed from the original drawings. It will be readily understood that such a work, involving the very large outlay necessary to its production, would, if priced at a figure commensurate with its cost, be practically withdrawn from the reach of the student of anatomy, except as a work of reference in large libraries. In view of this the author has generously contributed and sunk the whole expense of the plates, and thereby enabled the publishers to offer the book at a price no greater than the average text-book.

Another volume of Lord Beaconsfield's letters will soon be published in England.

A VOLUME of essays by George Eliot has just been issued in England. It comprises the papers collected and revised by George Eliot herself, edited by Charles Lee Lewes, (son of Mr. George Lewes,) and published with the approval of Mr. Cross.

KEGAN PAUL, TRENCH & Co. have in press a book on "English War Ships in 1886: a Naval Essay," by Sir W. Cusack Smith. An important feature in the volume will be a tabular and analytic study of the subjects chosen for | list of the fighting ships of the British navy in

MESSRS. LONGMANS announce a new series of historical handbooks, to be called Historic Towns, and to be edited by Professor E. A. Freeman and the Rev. W. Hunt. The towns will be selected not so much for their local importance as for their connection with the history of the country at large; and the municipal or ecclesiastical annals of each will be treated chiefly as they throw light upon general history. Maps and plans will be given where necessary. Among the volumes already arranged for are: "Manchester," by Mr. G. Saintsbury; "London," by the Rev. W. J. Lostie; "Exeter," by Professor prepared with a special view to its use as a text- Freeman himself; "St. Andrews," by Mr. A. book and working guide for students, and as a Lang; "The Cinque Ports," by Professor Montagu Burrows; "Oxford," by the Rev. C. W. Boase; "Winchester," by Dean Kitchin; "Carlisle," by Professor Mandell Creighton; and "York," by Canon Raine.

How to become Quick at Figures

WILL HEREAFTER BE PUBLISHED BY

H. B. NIMS & CO., TROY, N.Y.

IT IS NOT

a so-called "Lightning Calculator," made up of improbable examples with figures to fit, but containing, without pretense to authorship, a valuable collection of rules and suggestions giving the shortest, quickest and best methods of every-day business transactions. Just such information as a few accountants possess, but not found in text-books of to-day.

Incredulous as it may seem, our largest sales are to the largest concerns, who inform us that they cannot let a single new idea pass by that helps to shorten office labor.

will find many valuable suggestions how to teach the Quick Methods of addition and multiplication, which are of more importance than all other operations combined.

A Brilliant New American Novel.

CONVENTIONAL BOHEMIAN.

A NOVEL.

By EDMUND PENDLETON.

"A Conventional Bohemian" is a society novel, the greater part of the action taking place unmer cottages on the shores of New England. The plot of the story is simple, the action firect, the movement often dramatic. Although a society novel, it reaches at times the heights passion, and reveals a remarkable knowledge of the motives and conflicts of the human heart. The style is noticeable for epigrammatic wit and wisdom in the lighter scenes, and for dramatic Power in the serious ones. There are a number of well-drawn characters, the heroine being a peculiarly felicitous study, and the hero a virile and striking portrait. It is a novel sure of many Mmirers among those who delight in intellectual subtlety and artistic execution.

Atlas of Venereal Diseases.

By P. H. MACLAREN, M.D., F.R.C.S.E. To be complete in Ten Parts. Containing Thing Colored Plates and over Forty Subjects. Paper, royal 4to, $2.00 per part.

The work will consist of a series of life-size plates. The illustrations without exception, are original. The copied from paintings of cases which have come under the author's observation during the past few years. The come sim of this work is to offer to the medical profession a series of illustrations which may prove useful. To medical states who have not sufficient time nor opportunity afforded them in their curriculum for the systematic study of the substitutions of this class of diseases, it is hoped that this Atlas will be specially serviceable. In the production of the plates neither labor nor expense have been spared to reproduce the original paintings with accuracy and finish. It will be accompanied by a concise and clear description of the conditions portrayed.

NOTES IN SEASON.

HOUGHTON, MIFFLIN & Co. will publish at once, for the trade, a new edition of "The Voyage of the Jeannette." This work has been hitherto sold only by subscription.

THE TRUTH-SEEKER Co. will publish, March 1, a reprint of the recent papers of Hon. W. E. Gladstone, Professor T. H. Huxley, and Professor Max Müller in the Ninetzenth Century, and Mrs. E. Lynn Linton in the Gentleman's Magazine. The title of the volume will be "The Order of Creation: the Conflict between Genesis and Geology."

CHARLES SCRIBNER'S SONS will publish on the 16th Major Greely's "Three Years of Arctic Service." The work comprises two large volumes, and will be sold only by subscription. They will publish on March 1, "The Late Mrs. Null," Mr. Frank R. Stockton's first novel, the scene of which is laid chiefly in Vi.ginia. It is said to be quite as ingenious and happy in its constructions as the best of his short stories.

CUPPLES, UPHAM & Co. will publish shortly a (Mich.) College about the same time by Mrs. Frances Brooks, the translator years ago.—Boston Literary World.

of "Heidi," entitled "A Year's Sonnets," which will be limited to 200 copies. They will also publish immediately a new edition of "Light on the Path," with a number of additional notes. This curious specimen of occult wisdom has received the official indorsement of the Theosophical Society under the leadership of Mr. Gebhard, who commends it highly.

TICKNOR & Co. hope to celebrate the seventy-ninth anniversary of the birth of the poet Long-fellow—February 27—by issuing his biography on that day. They will publish on the 17th W. D. Howells's latest novel, "Indian Summer," an exquisite story of American life in Italy; and a volume by Dr. James Freeman Clarke entitled "Every-Day Religion," an admirable group of terse, strong and practical discourses on the religion of the home, the office, the workshop and the field, intended as a companion to the author's work on "Self-Culture."

P. BLAKISTON, SON & Co. have just issued the first American from the fourth German edition of "The Chemistry of the Carbon Compounds; or, Organic Chemistry," by Professor Victor von Richter, translated by Professor E. F. Smith. In this volume Professor von Richter gives a full description of the carbon derivatives. The treatment of the various classes of bodies is comprehensive, the most recent and interesting results of chemical research being given with special fulness. The arrangement of types allows of the book being used by both beginners and advanced students, the more general facts being printed in large type, to be employed for common class use. The smaller type covers the matter usually given in more advanced lectures.

NOTES ON AUTHORS.

KING KALAKAUA, of the Sandwich Islands, has, it is said, a book of travels in preparation, thus adding himself to the list of royal authors.

DR. WILLIAM B. LAPHAM, Augusta, Me., a well-known Maine historian, has undertaken the work of preparing a comprehensive history of Mount Desert Island and the towns thereon.

ALFRED PAXSON BROTHERHEAD, who was once celebrated all over this country as "the Boy Author," after many vicissitudes is now writing ward letters for the Philadelphia Sunday Item, and running a lumber commission business.

SIR HENRY THOMPSON ("Pen Oliver") announces his new romance under the title of "All But: a Chronicle of Luxenford Life." The text is to be embellished with twenty-one miniature illustrations from Sir Henry's own pen.

JULIUS CHAMBERS, author of "On a Margin," has a new novel in the press. It bears the taking title "Lovers Four and Maidens Five; or, One Too Many," a story of Cresson Springs.

WILL M. CARLETON is, beyond question, the author of the long poem, "Geraldine: a Romance in Verse," which J. R. Osgood & Co. published anonymously. He and Mrs. Ella Farman Pratt, of Wide Awake, and Mrs. E. C. Tompkins, of the Toledo Bee, attended Hillsdale (Mich.) College about the same time, not many years ago.—Boston Literary World.

Abbott, C: C., M.D. Upland and meadow:

a Poaetquissings chronicle. N. Y., Harper,

1886. 9+397 p. D. cl., $1.50.

The unpronounceable Indian name in the title belongs to a little stream that empties into the Delaware river on the New Jersey side. Its banks and neighboring valleys are rich in animal and vegetable life, and its waters full of curious fishes. Indian relics also abound in the fields adjacent, and are rich hunting-grounds for the archæologist. This pleasant volume records the author's daily rambles through "upland and meadow," and affords to those interested in such subjects a great deal of valuable information. Many curious adventures and little personal episodes enliven the narrative-

Although ending with a promise that foresl marriage, this is not a love story. Almost all of t tive occurs within the precincts of a young won lege. Edna Howe is introduced in her dull, circu New England home, with her eager desires for education. The decision is arrived at that she i college, and ways and means devised. Her lif described from the first three days, when she goes her examination, till, her course completed, she the valedictory address. Her roommate, Rosemar a clever, flirty Chicago girl, apparently Edna's in every way. But under a flippant exterior heart and an earnest purpose are discovered. I is an excellent one for young girls—natural, heareal, describing college life just as it is.

"The commentary on the Gospel of John, which is now presented in its third edition to American renders, has been well known to New Testament scholars for twenty years. It was originally published in 1864 65, and immediately commanded attention. Ten or eleven years later an enlarged and greatly improved edition was issued, which was soon afterward translated into hinglish. The first volume of the yll edition, from which this is translated, was given to the public in 1884; the second and third volumes have appeared during the present year (1885). Unlike most of the German commentators of recent days. In let has, with each new edition, not simply revised what he had written at an earlier date, but, in large measure, prepared a new work. This is very strikingly true of the introductory volume of this latest chitton of the original. Among the commentaries on this Gospe, this may be ranked as one of the best a book which every student and minister may well examine both fir the light which it throws upon the most deeply interesting portion of the New Testament and for its suggestiveness to Clinical an thought "-Prof. Proght's Preface."

Lodge, R: A history of modern Europe from the capture of Constantinople by the Turks to the treaty of Berlin, 1878. N. Y., Harper, 1886. 28+772 p. D. (Student's ser.) cl.,

A clear, impartial, and concise narrative of European history during the last four centuries. No attempt has been made to go into the details of the domestic history of each State, a task which would require as many volumes as there are States. The history of England especially has been omitted, as it was treated fully in another volume of the series, except as far as it is directly connected with the history of the continental states. The author has endeavored to avoid the baldness of a chronological summary, and to group the history of the different States around the central current of European affairs. This method has necessitated frequent repetitions, but it appeared the lesser evil of the two. A full chronological table prefaces the work, and a good index completes it.

This first issue of a new Boston publishing firm is creditable both typographically and from a literary standpoint. The author, who for some years has been on the staff of the Boston Daily Globe, has produced a story full of incident, and somewhat on the sensational order. The hero, after a severe illness, awakes in a place unfamiliar to him, in the northern part of New York State, to find his memory gone and his mind haunted by the echoes of a clock striking the hour of two.

This little work is for the use of teachers in preparing their classes for the study of staff-notation. Nearly all the exercises have been tested in the primary grades under the author's direction; and while they are intended as introductory to Mason's national music course, they will be found to be of value as a preparation in connection with other methods, not only for children, but also in teaching adult classes. The exercises have been confined within the limits of the scale proper, for obvious reasons.

POST-OFFICE LEGISLATION.

MR. CHAS. HUTCHINS, of Boston, is again pushing his bill to secure "justice, uniformity and simplicity" in the postal laws, in the matter of the pound-rate at carrier offices. The bill is as follows:

Abili regulating rates of postage on second-class mail matter at letter-carrier offices. Be it enacted by the Senate and House of Representatives of the United States of America in Congress assembled, That from and after the passage of this act, the rate of postage on second-class publications deposited in a letter-carrier office for delivery by the carriers of the office, shall be uniform at one cent a pound.

SEC. 2. That the proviso to section twenty-five of the act of March 3d, 1879, entitled "An act making appropriations for the service of the Post-Office Department," and so forth, is hereby repealed.

This bill has twice been favorably reported from House Committees, and has three times passed the House and failed in the Senate, because of the close of a session. It is intended to omit the senseless distinctions between weeklies, other newspapers and periodicals, especially those published at carrier delivery offices. Under the present law, a New York semiweekly, or bi-weekly, must pay one cent each on New York copies, but only one cent a pound on copies delivered free by carrier in San Francisco.

Another bill pending in Congress is that introduced in the Senate by Senator Wilson, of Iowa.

Whereas, The expenditures of the Post Office Department for the year 1886 will exceed the receipts in the sum of $10,500,000; and

Whereas, The postal revenues should, as far as practicable, equal the postal expenditures, especially for the transportation of matter not conveying personal or general intelligence; therefore,

Be it enacted, etc., That the postage on all matter of the fourth class transported in the mails of the United States shall be at the rate of two cents for each ounce or fractional part thereof.

In fourth-class matter are included merchandise, samples of ores, metals, seeds, etc., photographs, etc. The present rate is one cent an ounce. If Mr. Wilson's bill is passed, the rate will be made thirty-two cents a pound, which is more than express rates. Instead of increasing Government revenue, it would be largely to the benefit of the express companies.

MR. HENRY B. BARNES, treasurer of the Hospital Saturday and Sunday Association, received on the 3d inst., from Mr. Armand Hawkins, bookseller of New Orleans, a contribution for the association. This Mr. Barnes took the liberty of returning, with the request that the donor would hand it to some of the other appropriate charities at home, taking the ground that we ought to be able to look after our own charity here. This seems to us perfectly proper, and we would suggest to the same donor the propriety of starting a Hospital Saturday and Sunday Association in New Orleans, with a book branch. Something of this kind ought to be started in all large cities of the United States.

INTERNATIONAL COPYRIGHT.

From Harper's Weekly, Feb. 13.

THERE has been a very interesting discussion before the Congressional committee upon the question of international copyright, in which, if nothing new was said, some old truths were stated with great vigor and precision. The opposition to such a copyright, so far as it is based upon the theory that there can be no property in ideas, or that all property rights are regulated by society, is futile. Mr. Hubbard evidently attempted something of this kind, and Mr. Lowell answered him conclusively by the remark that property does not attach to the idea, but to the literary form of the idea. An invention is only an idea fashioned in a certain way; but society properly grants patents. So it is true that society appropriates private property to its own use. But it appropriates it only for the common benefit, and with adequate compensa-It does not wantonly confiscate it upon the ground that a certain kind of property is not property at all. The domestic copyright law is a grant to the author for an exclusive control for a limited time and for the common benefit of the disposition of the form in which he fashions his idea. The moral consideration inevitably presents itself in the inquiry whether a nation can rightfully discriminate in such a grant against any body of authors. Or even if all property or claim of the author be denied, and the copyright be regarded as a mere bounty of the state for its own advantage, it is still a question of expediency whether it is not desirable practically to concede, at least in some degree, the right which the author asserts.

The bill introduced by Senator Hawley, which is known as the bill of the Copyright League, gives to the foreign author in this country the same rights that the American author enjoys, provided that the grant is reciprocal in the country of the foreign author. Senator Hawley stated to the committee that more careful reflection had led him to the conclusion that foreign works copyrighted here should be printed and manufactured in this country for the United States, and he would add such a provision to the bill. Mr. Clemens agreed with him that such a provision would be expedient. This is suggested as a concession of policy, because such a provision belongs properly to the tariff rather than to a copyright law. Under the present conditions of the tariff and of contingent expenses, the protection given to books is from thirty to forty per cent. That protection would not be annulled by the reciprocal copyright. The bill introduced by Senator Chace, of Rhode Island, is simply a modification of the tariff regulations in the form of a grant of international copyright. To gain an American copyright, the foreign author must register within fifteen days after publication in the foreign country, and deposit two copies of the best American edition within three months after such register, or the copyright will become void. If the American publisher abandons publication after publishing, the copyright lapses, and after recording the copyright, the importation of foreign copies of the book is prohibited. This is the substance of the bill which is designed to secure the manufacture of the books in this country, and to exclude the foreign editions.

As Senator Hawley also has decided that some such manufacturing provision is expedient, it is probable that this condition will be in some form included in any bill that may be reported. It will undoubtedly restrain the cheapness which springs from the unrecompensed appropriation of foreign works. But under any equitable arrangement, if the larger market be here, and the demand of that market be cheap books, cheap books will be supplied. In that opinion Mr. Lowell is undoubtedly right. But it is a mistake to suppose that the people of this country want cheap books at any cost to honor and honesty. They have had cheap books for many a year, but the cheapness has been in accord with a practical copyright paid to foreign authors by honorable American publishers. And it is the fact that cheapness has been sought by making the further payment of such practical copyright impossible which has re-awakened and stimulated the present interest in the question. So long as the foreign author received from this country a fair reward for his work, a law was desired by him only as a guarantee of continuance. But when a situation arises in which the foreign author is deprived of his reward, and the American author becomes a workman competing with laborers who are paid nothing, then the time has come when, in the language of the Constitution, "the progress of science and useful arts" is to be promoted "by securing by law for limited times to authors and inventors the exclusive right to their respective writings and discoveries.

CHEAP BOOKS AND INTERNATIONAL COPYRIGHT.

MR. O. B. BUNCE has a paper on "International Copyright and the Future of American Literature" in the Home Journal of Feb. 10, in which he says as to the price of books under International Copyright:

"A grave question with American readers is the effect of international copyright on the prices of American books! Would it make books dearer? and if so, to what extent? Many attempts have been made to alarm the public mind on this question, and some of them have been disingenuous if not distinctly dishonest. In the first place, no concessions made to foreign authors would or could affect the price of school-books or text-books in the slightest degree. Cyclopsdias and other books of reference would probably experience no change; and all the great authors of the past, the whole noble host of poets, historians, essayists, and novelists, that gives such brilliant lustre to the English name, would be accessible in cheap editions then as now. We should be able to educate our children and in our book-shelves at no additional cost whaterever. Nor, as we have already indicated, would there be any appreciable increase in the cost of current books of learning; the increase of price would fall solely on new books of a popular, prints of English fiction. We should not be to purchase a new novel by Mr. Black for two | cents, hideously printed with worn-out type.

testable paper, but for a moderate price it puld doubtless be attainable in a convenient rm, and at least decently printed. This of use assumes that by virtue of a 'manufactuig clause' these books would be reprinted re; but if the uncompromising bill proposed the league becomes law, and we must depend the notions of London publishers, it is not fe to predict in what form our English favorites puld reach us. Increase of price falling upon the class of books only, and that class not an aportant one, it is obvious that apprehensions injury to American buyers are not well counded."

He gives also the following schedule of books at likely to be affected in price by an interational copyright law:

"The books that would not be affected in rice by international copyright may be sumlarized as follows:

"School-books and text-books;

"Standard authors, the entire literature of the ast:

"American fiction and popular literature generally;

"American histories, travels, science, books of investigation and learning, cyclopædias, dictionaries, books of reference, manuals for methanics, etc:

"Foreign books of science and learning;

"Magazines, reviews, periodicals of all kinds.
"This list includes almost everything that enters into education or that concerns the student or scholar."

THE COPYRIGHT QUESTION AGAIN.

From the Nation, Feb. 4.

THE copyright question is again before Congress, and various authors and literary men have received a hearing from the Committee of the Senate on a bill which has been introduced by General Hawley at the instance of the American Copyright League. Another bill has, however, ken introduced by Senator Chace, which is suported in a pamphlet by Mr. Henry C. Lea, the rell-known author and publisher of Philadel-Senator Hawley's bill simply offers recirocity to the foreign author, so that he could ome here and secure copyright for his books, n complying with the requisite legal formalies, if his own country did the same thing for e American author. It is, in fact, an author's ill pure and simple.

Mr. Lea objects to this on behalf of the Ameran reader, inasmuch as it would probably in its ractical operation make books dearer; next on ehalf of the paper-makers, printers, and bindrs, who would lose the work they now get in eprinting foreign or rather English books, insmuch as the English author on obtaining opyright here would almost invariably have is book produced at home. On this point dr. Lea makes the usual protectionist argunent on behalf of native industry. Senator Chace's bill, on the other hand, provides for the manufacture in this country of all foreign pooks obtaining an American copyright, and absolutely prohibits the importation of foreign editions of the works so copyrighted. This prohibition. Mr. Lea says, is essential, and that it is "an invariable rule in all countries where copyright exists," but he fails to mention that it is a rule for the benefit of the author, not of the manufacturer. An English author can grant a permit to import foreign editions of his books if he owns the copyright at home. Under Mr. Chace's bill no author could do anything of the kind.

Now, we understand the position of the protectionist opponents of the Hawley bill, or any author's bill, perfectly. We see why they desire to save the home paper-maker, printer, and bookbinder from foreign competition. we do not understand is the exceptional way in which they seek to secure this protection. Against all other products of foreign industry all they ask by way of protection is either high import duties or total prohibition. regards foreign books, they claim the right of seizing the commodity and selling it for their own benefit. That is, they allow of its introduction and then convert it to their own use, unless the foreign producer chooses to accept their terms. When pushed to the wall for a moral defence of this system they fall back on what we have always considered a most dreary bit of metaphysical slipslop. The air of profundity with which the ordinary champion of protectionist copyright produces it has always seemed to us very comic. We are far from putting Mr. Lea in this category, however, and yet we could hardly read in his pamphlet without a smile that old story that "society recognizes no absolute and unlimited ownership in any species of property. All that the individual earns or inherits is held under such limitations as society sees fit to impose, in return for the protection which is afforded by the social compact, and the value which is imparted to ownership by the aggregation of individuals in communities."

This is all true as Gospel, but it is no more true of literary property than of property in houses and lands and railroad shares. Property in these things is also limited by the "social compact" and divers other more tangible agencies. But one of the great differences between civilized and uncivilized communities, between Dahomey and the United States, for instance, is that in the latter the limitation on property is not enforced by "Society," except for the benefit of the whole community and on making due compensation to the owner. Society among civilized men in practice does not take any man's property away from him, or allow it to be taken, except for public use, and after giving the owner its value out of the Treasury. The one solitary exception to this rule is made in the case of literary property, and it is now only made by the United States. It is only here that civilized men get up and defend, on "high priori" grounds, the practice of taking away from a man, as not property, a thing which they themselves sell on the market as property.

The truth is, that whatever any man can sell and make a profit on is, or ought to be, in the eye of the law, property. The dress, called a book, in which a man clothes his ideas is property, because, like cows or horses, it can be traced, identified, and sold on the market, and is therefore entitled to such protection as its peculiar nature calls for, like all other possessions. The ownership in land is not proved or protected in the same way as the ownership in railroad stocks; nor the ownership in railroad stocks in the same way as that in a bill of exchange. The difficulty of protecting property in books is greater than the difficulty in protecting any other property, because the thief can multiply the stolen article indefinitely; but the law is not called on to make all kinds of possessions eqally secure. The law is called on to provide, for everything a man produces, and which anybody else would buy if he could not steal it, that simple, primary form of protection which consists in the prevention of open robbery or a robbery pure and simple in broad daylight. To this foreign authors are entitled from us, whatever may be our views about the tariff, or the need of protecting our native printers and bookbinders. We may protect these as we protect other producers, by any duty, however high; but we have no right to say to the foreign author that he must pay his duty or have the fruits of his industry appropriated by the first comer without any compensation whatever. It is the offer of this alternative, and this only, which brings discredit on the American name in this copyright matter, and it is made worse by being defended on metaphysical grounds. The a priori argument in its favor irresistibly reminds one of the way Dr. Johnson disposed of Boswell's attempts to prove that a certain lady was, in spite of appearances, a virtuous woman. It was short and incisive, but will not bear repetition.

ON College Catalogues.--A Washington correspondent of the Boston Herald, writing under date of February 7, says that "an attempt is to be made to secure the passage of a law modifying the rates of postage to such an extent that all annual catalogues and reports of colleges and other institutions of learning and all annual proceedings and reports of missionary and benevolent associations be placed on the list of matter that may be mailed at pound rates. These documents, as the law now stands, are sent at the rate of one cent for each two ounces or fraction thereof. A missionary society or college issuing 2000 copies of a catalogue or report has to pay, in case each copy of said report weighs 2½ ounces, just $40 postage. In case the pound rate can be extended to cover this matter, the cost would be $6.25. It is urged that colleges and missionary societies are supported entirely by gifts, and it is proper that they should be permitted to disseminate their information as cheaply as newspapers and periodicals are circulated. The matter will be considered by the Committee on Post Offices and Post Roads,"

DRUMMERS' BAGGAGE.—At a meeting of the Commercial Travellers' Association, held at the Morton House, N. Y. City, on the 31st ult., a communication was read from the Traders' and Travellers' Union to the effect that negotiations were being effected with the various transportation companies for increasing the allowance of free sample baggage to 300 pounds, conditioned upon the same being duly registered and released. The Philadelphia & Reading, the Lehigh Valley, and the Philadelphia & Atlantic City Road, it is reported, already carry the increased amount of baggage, and it is expected that the Baltimore & Ohio and Pennsylvania will soon follow.

A BILL TO ABOLISH THE MERCANTILE TAX IN THE U. S.—The Hon. D. R. James introduced last month the following bill in the House of Representatives: "A bill to regulate commercial sales of goods by merchandise and samples, catalogue, card, price-list, description, or other representation, between residents of the several States and Territories.—Be it enacted by the Senate and House of Representatives of the United States of America in Congress assembled: That residents of each State and Territory may, within the other States and Territories and within the District of Columbia, solicit from dealers or merchants orders for goods and merchandise by sample, catalogue, card, price-list, description or other representation, without payment of any license or mercantile tax."

OBITUARY.

EDMUND S. HOYT.

EDMUND S. HOYT, senior member of the firm of Hoyt, Fogg & Donham, booksellers on Middle Street, died January 22, at his late residence on Beckett Street, after an illness of nearly four months. For a long time he had been a sufferer from catarrh, which terminated in consumption. Mr. Hoyt was born in Warner, N. H., November 4, 1834, and was consequently a little past fifty-one years of age at his death. He was graduated from Dartmouth College, and soon after became Principal of Yarmouth Academy, and continued in that position for several years. In 1868 he went to Portland, and with Samuel Fogg bought the Packard bookstore, and formed the firm of Hoyt & Fogg. Later they admitted L.C. Breed, and the firm became Hoyt, Fogg & Breed. Some years later Mr. Breed withdrew, and in 1875 G. M. Donham became a partner, the firm name reading Hoyt, Fogg & Donham, as it has since remained.

Mr. Hoyt in 1870 started the Maine Register, which has been published annually ever since by this firm. He was twice married, and leaves a widow and three daughters. He was a member of the Maine Press Association, and prominent in all movements calculated to forward the best interests of the community of which he was an honored member. In business he was unusually active and successful.

The Baby's Journal.

Designed and compiled by S. Alice Bray. New edition, enlarged. Beautifully primary in color by L. Prang & Co. Oblong 12mo, bound in cloth, red edges, $2.00.

A dainty little oblong book, consisting of eight or ten short lyrics, of which babyhood and its belongings is the thi and as many full-page drawings in keeping therewith, the specialty of the text being that it is printed in a light ple ink, with titles and initial letters in gold, and of the illustrations that they combine the effects of both, and a background of purple. The drawings are exceedingly graceful and the text tender and winsome.

The book is certainly one of the most dainty of its kind, and will admirably serve to preserve a record of the line people, whose career it illustrates with so many touches of fancy.

TENTH THOUSAND.

"Nothing Mr. Stevenson has written yet has so strongly impressed us with the versatility of his very original genius."—London Times.

Strange Case of Dr. Jekyll and Mr. Hyde.

By Robert Louis Stevenson, author of "The New Arabian Nights," etc.

Cloth, fine library edition, gilt top, $1; paper, 25 cents.

The cloth edition of "Dr. Jekyll" is printed on fine heavy paper, beautifully bound, gilt top, and should be kept always in stock.

"It is a work of incontestable genius. Nothing, in my judgment, by Edgar Allan Poe, to be generous, is to be compared to it; it has all his weird and eerie power, but combined with a graphic realism that immensely heightens the effect. I read it in a four-wheeled cab the other night, by the help of a reading lamp, as I travelled through miles of snowbound streets, quite unconscious of the external circumstances of that melancholyjourney. What is worth mentioning, because otherwise a good many people will miss it, is that a noble moral underlies the marvelous tale."—James Payn in The Independent.

Domesticus: A Tale of the Imperial City.

By WILLIAM ALLEN BUTLER, author of "Nothing to Wear," etc. 1 vol., 12mo, $1.25.

"It is quaintly and delicately conceived, and agreeably written. His satire is never harsh or biting; on the contrary it is light, ingenious, often graceful, and invariably just. In fact, he does in prose here what he so felicitously accomplished in rhyme thirty years ago in 'Nothing to Wear.'"—New York Sun.

An Apache Campaign in the Sierra Madre.

An account of the Expedition in Pursuit of the Hostile Chiricahua Apaches in the Spring of 1883. By Captain John G. Bourke, U.S.A., author of "The Moquis Indians." 1 vol., 12mo, illustrated. Cloth, $1.00; paper, 50 cents.

"The publication of this book is of timely interest, following so soon upon the lamented death of Capt. Emmet Crawford, who was conspicuous in the campaigns described. . . . The subject is one of importance, and Capt. Bourke speaks as one who is familiar with its practical branches."—New York Times.

DUTTON & Co. publish to-day Arch-Farrar's "Sermons and Addresses in i," which contains besides the sermons re on "Danta" and "Farewell Thoughts on America." The volume has a well-executed and life-like portrait of the author. They will shortly publish a volume entitled "History of Interpretation," also by Mr. Farrar, being the Bampton Lecture for 1885.

ROBERTS BROS. will publish early in March "Colonel Cheswick's Campaign," the first novel of Flora Shaw, the English author of several popular stories, "Castle Blair," "Phyllis Brown," and others; in the Famous Women Series "Madame Roland," by Mathilde Blind, who also wrote "George Eliot" for the same series; and in the Balzac series "Eugenie Grandet," which many of Balzac's admirers regard as his masterpiece.

HENRY HOLT & Co. will shortly add to their Leisure Hour and Leisure Moment series a new novel by Mrs. L. B. Walford, author of "The Baby's Grandmother," etc., entitled "The History of a Week." It will have six full-page illustrations. They have also nearly ready a new and careful translation in verse of the Poems of Goethe, consisting of his ballads, songs, and miscellaneous selections, by Commander William Gibson, U. S. Navy.

D. APPLETON & Co. will publish at once "The Aliens," by H. F. Keenan, author of "Trajan;" "We Two," by the author of "Donovan;" "Discussions on Climate and Chmatology," by James Cross; "Class Interests," by the author of "Conflict in Nature and Life;" and "Mammalia and their Relation to Primeval Times," by Oscar Schmidt. They have also in preparation "Creation, or, Evolution," by George Ticknor Curtis; "The Development of the Roman Constitution," by Ambrose Tigher, and "A History of Education," by Prof. E. V. N. Painter.

A. C. McClurg & Co., Chic., have in press for immediate issue an entirely new edition of "Woman in Music," by Mr George P. Upton, author of "The Standard Operas." The great part of the original edition, together with the plates, was destroyed very shortly after publication, so that the work was but little known. The present edition is largely rewritten, and contains a considerable amount of entirely new matter. It is issued in response to a growing demand for the book in musical circles, and also because of the fact that it has recently been placed upon the list of books prescribed for the Chautauqua Musical Reading Clubs. It will be made in very pretty and attractive style and sold at one dollar, just half the price of the original edition.

A. C. Armstrong & Son announce for immediate publication a new volume of Alfred Ainger's edition of Lamb's works, comprising Mrs. Leicester's School," and other of his prose and verse writings; "The Last Days of the Consulate," from the French of M. "Maimie is a girl that captivates and is captivated everywhere; kisses and is kissed innocently whenever she makes a new friendship, and marries one man who adores her, while she adores another, though she also loves her husband! She commits many follies, among them that of shooting the man she has wedded; then she marries another who had a wretched married life with a woman who became a drunkard, and whom he supplied with brandy to hasten her death. After this the entanglements of the story get very thick, and the improbabilities grow stupendous. 'Love and dynamite' is the second title of this book, and there is a gang of Russian nihilists, women and men, with whom one of Maimie's husbands gets involved."—Phila. Evening Bulletin.

uate;" she has just received her diploma, and is full of the duties imposed upon all, to do whatever good comes to hand. She finds her work in her own village. A miserable family, the "Barneys," that has been given up as utterly and incorrigibly shiftless, are the objects of her missionary labors. By small degrees she not only transforms them all into decent members of society, but the work begun so unostentatiously has its effect and influence in many unexpected directions. Marian's own life is teld to the end, a happy marriage being its crowning event.

The locality covered is all of the U.S. east of the western boundaries of Minnesota, Iowa, Missouri, Arkansas, and Louisiana. The work was prepared to meet an urgent want, and embraces a brief description of the several stages of butterflies, methods of capture and preservation, an analytical key, and a complete description of all the species that have been found in the region mentioned. In the last part the preparatory stages are given so far as they are known. These preparatory stages are often essential to a proper understanding of the relation that species bear to one another, besides adding much to the interest of the study of butterflies. In the arrangement of species and nomenclature, Edwards's "New catalogue of the butterflies of North America" has been followed.

Mrs. Frère, a young widow of twenty-eight, is the most charming but not the most conspicuous heroine of this slightly involved story. She shares the interest with Angèle Wentworth, a fine piece of character drawing on the author's part, but a very unlovable woman. The title is impossible to define within our limits. The many characters are of the non-working class, with plenty of means. They run to and fre from Europe, with little side trips to Mexico, seaside and mountain resorts, with total disregard to money or home duties. The conversation is often very good.

Seeley, J. Rob. A short history of Napoleon the First. Bost., Roberts Bros., 1886.

5+315 p. D. cl., $1.50.

The author of "The life and times of Stein" makes a point of the fact that he had not studied Napoleon's life in order to write this little book, but that he wrote the book because he had for years studied the Napoleonic age from many points of view, and in many countries. The "life" is an expansion of an article originally written for the Encyclopædia Britannica; this is supplemented by an admirable essay on "Napoleon's place in history," in which Professor Seeley aims to judge how far Napoleon's career was favored and shaped by circumstances, and what Napoleon was in himself. His judgment is not a favorable one in any respect. The history is an excellent example of condensed writing, in which facts are clearly outlined, and details necessarily overlooked. The portrait is from an engraving after a picture by Boilly, taken when Napoleon was First Consul.

1886. 8+271 p. il. O. cl., $2.

An exposition of the philosophy and system of dramatic expression founded by François Delsarte. By a happy, judicious mingling of philosophy and drill-exercises the author has avoided making the book either too metaphysical or too mechanical. Miss Stebbins has supplemented the writings and teachings of Dalaumosne, Arnaud, and Mackage (pupils of I)elsarte) with her own many years experience in studying elocution at the Paris Conservatoire, and under various masters in foreign cities, and has drawn besides from additional sources, ancient and modern. There are sixteen charts, nineteen sets of æsthetic gymnastics, divisions and lessons, with headings, sub-headings, numbered paragraphs, etc., all arranged and classified with type of various sizes and differently displayed; an order of exercises for systematic practice, and blank pages for explanations and remarks, and an exhaustive index, so that teachers will find it excellently suited for class work.

THE RETAILERS ON DISCOUNTS.

It will be a surprise, we fancy, to most pubishers, to see how strong is the feeling in favor of closer discounts manifested in the letters which have already come to hand in response to our questions to retailers last week. It was ertainly a surprise to us, for we had still suposed that most retailers clung to what seems to s the superstition of large discounts. If the feelng at Philadelphia in 1876, when the question I lower nominal prices was under discussion, ad been what it seems to be now, we believe that the story of the American book-trade for the last ten years would have been very differnt. Shall we repeat our follies for the next ten ears, or try a new departure now?

During the present week a New York dryoods house has been making a "drive" in poks by advertising Miss Alcott's $1.50 books loberts) at 65 cents, and Wallace's "Ben-hur" farper's,) also $1.50, at 75 cents, among a ng list of contrasted "publishers' prices" and our prices." These books we have particurized because they are on strong lists; the ice named is in one case below 50 and 10, in e other 50 off, and we think it is below the tual cost price to the house offering the books, iless a few copies were picked up in some unlown way at bankrupt sales. Another New ork dry-goods house makes a similar "drive" leading monthlies, selling a cent or so below tual cost, on a limited number of copies, for e sake of the advertisement. The result in the se of "Ben-hur" is to make every reader of e Herald advertisement feel that he is swindled hen a bookseller asks $1.50 or even $1.20 for book, and ultimately to diminish the sales of at of the best-selling books in the market.

The "drive," it should be noted, depends on se great contrast between the publishers' price and "our price." If this book were reduced in nominal price by the adoption of a 20 per centtrade discount, there could be no such discrepancy, and the temptation to the dry-goods advertisers to put the book at or below cost wouldbe gone.

A great many publishers are thinking about this thing, and we hope retailers will continue to speak out their views.

At the second copyright hearing, last week, Mr. Roger Sherman, flying "the black flag," as he put it, appeared in behalf of "the pirates" "and the people" with the brief which we reprint elsewhere as a curiosity. His twelve "becauses' are based on the supposition that neither the people nor Congressmen consider facts, and that both can be hoodwinked by any factitious "reasons." Most of them answer themselves. Others are answered by the willingness of the promoters of international copyright to accept a manufacturing clause. We may here call attention to one fact which has been overlooked, that the whole amount of type-setting on current English reprints scarcely comes to as much as the Tribune, Times, and World set up day by day. Mr. Dana Estes did excellent service at the second hearing in pricking some of Mr. Sherman's bubbles.

THE REDUCTION OF DISCOUNTS. OPINIONS OF SOME RETAILERS.

New York, Feb. 15, 1886.

To the Editor of the Publishers' Weekly.

SIR: We fully indorse R.'s plan: I, to reduce the retail price of books, and make the tradediscount twenty to twenty-five per cent, and would suggest adopting the German fashion of prefixing an n = net to prices in catalogues, both trade and general, where twenty-five, and nn where twenty per cent are allowed, the omission of either indicating a higher rate of discount. No discount should be under twenty per cent, as it now is on school hooks. Notwithstanding the sensible notice at the head of your Educational Catalogue, "that private buyers should bear in mind that a percentage must be added to prices quoted as wholesale to cover freight," etc., every retailer will have had ample experience to corroborate the statement that it is one of the most unpleasant things to convince a private buyer that Ginn & Co.'s books, for instance, cannot be sold at the prices of their wholesale list, from which private buyers order.

2. We do not see any advantage in "net" prices for "standards." They may just as well come under the general rule of twenty or twenty-five per cent books. These "net" prices once appearing in general catalogues would led to no end of misstatements in making estimates in busy times or through inexperienced hands. A retailer should at all times feel certain that he may quote catalogue prices in answering inquiries, and would be able. on the strength of such estimate, to furnish any book at catalogue prices.

Let some general movement be started to inform book-buyers that books hereafter will cost the advertised price, and with the exception of the confirmed growler everybody will be satisfied. Respectfully,

B. WESTERMANN & Co.

WATERTOWN, N. Y., Feb. 12, 1886. To the Editor of the Publishers' Weekly.

Str. When are we to see a new departure in regard to published retail prices of books? What Targe or small firm is to inaugurate it? What one will have the independence to first make the venture? We long to see that boldness displayed, and we do not doubt that the first large house that leads in such a departure will soon And other houses falling into line. Something thust be done. The retail trade is becoming dis-What with Alden's publications, now greatly improved in style, and his catalogues flooding the county; with Estes & Lautlat's regular special sales, and their widely-circulated catalogues, reducing the retail to whole-sale prices; with certain New York houses sending tons of their publications to various towns throughout the country to be sold at auction; with Macy and others in New York City, and Wannamaker in Philadelphia-with these and other things to contend with, what is to become of the legitimate retail bookseller? can think of nothing that will help him more than a greatly reduced retail price of books. Let publishers fix the prices so that the highest discount shall be twenty or twenty-five per cent, and we believe that a decided advance will be made. It would certainly greatly relieve the retailer. His position now is uncomfortable. He feels the need of obtaining the full price of a book—a book that he buys at a venture, and may never sell. If he knew books would sell like tea or coffee or flour he would have no hesitancy in putting the price at a moderate advance from the cost But he is assured of nothing of Nearly every book is a venture, and the kind the risk requires a larger profit. Books are a luxury. People can get along without them, and the mass of the people will do so, so long especially as they feel that the price is exorbitant. Especially might this change in retail prices be made, since a discount of twenty per cent has almost become the rule. So many expect it and exact it—clergymen, teachers, etc.- that a bookseller is now almost ashamed to ask of any purchaser the full retail price. We have wondered sometimes why publishers had a sort of stereotyped price for their publications, apparently fixed without reference to cost. A book is advertised at $1, $1 50, $2, and so on We speak without knowledge, but we suppose there is often a great difference in the cost of books which are advertised at a $1. Why not affix a price according to the cost? In this event the prices would be, say, 55, or 68, or 72 cents, as the case might be. We think some houses do adopt this plan, judging from the advertised prices Instead of publishing a book at $1, and discounting one third to the trade, why not put the price at 80 cents, and discount one quarter or one fifth? The retailer would be better paid, and the purchaser better satisfied. The price, then, would be uniform to all,

This is a day of agitation, we hope of reform.

Let that department of industry whose special mission it is to enlighten the world set the eximple.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 15, 1886.

To the Editor of the Publishers' Weekly.

SIR. In answer to your question "What do the retailers say?" to the suggestion of "R." in a former issue of the Warkly, I most emphatically approve the suggestions. The practical objection to the first proposition, it seems to me, is the great difference in freight between the Eastern and Central, and the Western and Pacific States, amounting in some cases to test per cent, which would eat into a twenty-five per cent profit; but for the Eastern and Central States a thousand times rather have twenty-five per cent profit than the present mode of large discounts and very uncertain profits, which tempts the dry goods stores to keep books, and so to cut into prices and into the regular trade,

As to the second proposition, I cannot see any objection to it. Its adoption will take from the bazaar stores the whip-bandle which they now use unmercifully against the bookseller by " regular prices and our prices." I will most heartily support any publisher who will adopt this plan in preference to those who will not. Let us try "boycotting" if necessary. What good reason is there to publish the present nominal prices? Something must be done to save the legitimate trade from utter extinction. One of my young men, who has been nine years with me, has just left to enter another profession, for the simple reason that the prospect was not such as to eacourage his continuing in the business; hence the book-trade loses in the quality and character of its salemen to the disadvantage of both author and publisher. Very respectfully,

WILLIAM BALLANTYNE.

WILMINGTON, DEL., Feb. 15, 1886.

To the Editor of the Publisers' Weekly.

Six: In your issue of the 13th inst. you call upon the retail trade to respond promptly and freely to "the way out," suggested by "R." is the previous issue.

You say that you consider "copyright and prices vital questions for the book-trade." So do we; and as the copyright question is having its share of attention, with a good prospect, we hope, of becoming a law, we will respond to the subject of prices, etc

Our house dates back to 1793, being one of the oldest in the business, we personally having been connected with it for over thirty years, naturally, therefore, we claim to have seen much of the ups and downs, the prosperity and the adversity of the book-trade.

During the early days of the demoralization, which has so completely enveloped the business, the retailers (with the aid of some publishers) attempted to stem the current which was carrying us down. They organized throughout the land, held several conventions in the interest of reform and to protect honest legitimate trade, the last convention being held, we believe, in Educational Hall, at the Centennial Exposition in 1876.

During those years we took an active interest in the cause; as the files of your Weekly will show; but the retailers went to the wall in that fight, and we, with many others, became thoroughly disgusted, and lost all interest.

If the ten years since the death of the A. B. T. A. have been full of such lessons as have the eyes (while they have depleted the of the trade, publishers especially, bringa to face the fact that a "way out" must be found, then, perhaps, the experience worth all it has cost, and we, with all the, will do our share again to aid the good laimed then, as we do now, that the only d permanent "way out" must be inauby the publishers, working in hearty accord ood faith; they thought differently then—ilers opened the war, and their cause iter a noble and worthy effort.

if the publishers will espouse the cause d the fight, the dealers will follow, and can be won; but it must be a battle with word and nailed hand, not a kid glove, rted attempt, or things may as well drift ow.

laimed then, as we do now, that the pubcan if they will bring back the bookito booksellers' hands, and that it will n to do so; this, in our opinion, is the most important line of battle.

we would go further than "R.," and books published without retail prices, d net to the legitimate trade, allowing ng price to be made by the dealer, as it other lines of business. Of course if l price was maintained, as was the cusrs ago, it would be much more satisfachave it, and it would be well to make it and reduce discounts; but we believe 7 published price, however close, would ly some people for the sake of making consequently it would be better to do th it; then the cry of "publishers' price ce" would be a thing of the past, the lealer would be benefited, and the pirate cher disarmed.

and let the public go to the legitimate res and find the price as they do to arkets for dry goods, provisions, cloth-

This plan was tried years ago by the book interests, and has succeeded; let riment be tested with all books.

MARIETTA, O., Feb. 15, 1886.

litor of the Publishers' Weekly.

Sir: In the Publishers' Weekly of y 13 l notice you ask booksellers to two questions under the head, "What Retailers Say?" In reply to first ques-I say, The effect will not be good un-! ilishers and jobbers will agree to not y discounts except to the trade. I don't in keeping books up to the present and adopting close discounts. elp the matter at all. I believe in rethe prices of books, and giving the rey, twenty-five per cent, and refusing abto allow any discount except to the Most $1.50 books should be listed at $1. ould rather pay seventy-five cents for a ook, and be assured that publishers and would not retail the book at less than the d price, than to have it listed at $1.50, forced to retail it at $1, because some r publisher will sell it for ninety cents.

When I became a bookseller in 1856 books were cheap, discount twenty to twenty-five per cent, and I had no trouble in getting the full advertised price. Until books advanced in price (and the advance was legitimate then) I made money, and was proud of my calling; was not ashamed to give the prices of books I had to sell. Now the necessity for such high prices does not seem to exist, and I dare not name the full price of most books, for fear of being cussed.

Second question, the effect of net catalogues is always bad, and especially so when they are sent broadcast to the public. It is almost impossible for booksellers—at least retailers—to become so familiar with titles and prices that they will not have to expose catalogues to customers. If catalogues should be issued, giving net prices, they should be sent only to the trade.

None but good books should be issued. It used to be that a title-page bearing certain publishers' names was a sufficient recommendation for the quality of the book; but not so now, for a great deal of trash is published, and at awfully high prices. So I sigh for the good old times to return, when books were good and cheap and profits sure. I am growing old. Will I ever see the day? Respectfully yours,

C. E. GLINES, Manager Marietta Book Store.

PITTSBURGH, Feb. 16, 1886.

To the Editor of the Publishers' Weekly.

SIR: Responding to your request, I would say: I. A reduction in retail prices will be a benefit to the retailer by increasing his sales without, as a rule, shortening his profits. Many persons are like the unsophisticated judge who found his clerk could buy cheaper than himself, he not being "up to snuff." These innocents believe the catalogues mean what they say. The long price certainly deters some. Another class, having a finer grain in their composition, will not "Jew," and while they may know that the system of discounts prevails, will not ask for an abatement. If the price is more than they think can be afforded, the sale is not made. matter of discounts, however, is so universal the dealer will lose nothing by the establishment of close net prices. He gets the excessive discount only to give it away. Then may arise this difficulty, perhaps, in the change. After being reduced to a minimum profit, may he not be tempted by this feeling on the part of the public, that nothing is cheap unless it is discounted, to yield to the craze, or perhaps be forced to do so by the action of some one else who does and is willing to sell at half a mini-

2. No matter what the effect of the making the retail prices on non-copyright stock close and net may be, as a matter of good morals it ought to be done. To catalogue a book at $5 and wholesale it at $1.25 is a fraud on the public, and only benefits the bazaar, whose foundation for business rests upon the impression in the mind of the public that $5 is what the regular dealer will ask them, while they (the bazaars), being the only protectors an outraged public have against the avaricious bookseller, sell it for $1.75 or $1.50.

Let us have reform here if only for the sake of honest appearance. My opinion is that the result would be to greatly strengthen the regular dealer.

THE THIRD COPYRIGHT HEARING.

THE Senate Committee on Patents continued its hearing upon the International Copyright bill on the morning of the 12th inst. Roger Sherman, of Philadelphia, laid before the committee his objections to the passage of any international copyright bill. In the course of his remarks he avowed himself one of the American pirates, and said that he had the black flag flying. He charged that the "Epcyclopædia Britannica, a reprint of which he was the publisher, was imported at less than its lawful duty, and this was done under a false ruling of the Treasury, which had been obtained for a consideration. If he dared he would mention names. He suggested reference to a report of Special Agents Dutton and Williams, which, he said, was suppressed because it implicated every importer of books in the United States in irregular practices. They were all trembling in their boots because of the disclosures he was to make. Cheap literature was a large factor in cheap education. An international copyright bill would yield the American market to English manufacturers—a market they took no part in creating, and whose creation they would have prevented if they could. It was a mere pretence that native authors could not live in competition with free literature. The American market was ready and willing to take more good literature than native talent could offer, and was compelled to seek foreign produc-The works of foreign authors stimulated native authors to greater efforts. It would be wrong to force the people to pay for what they can now have free. The following are Mr. Sherman's reasons why an International Copyright Bill should not be passed by the Congress of the United States:

I. Because it is the clamor of two hundred authors against the interests of fifty-five million of people.

2. Because cheap literature is a large factor in cheap education, and the unparalleled intellectual development in the United States is due to cheap education.

3. Because it is but another step toward yielding our market to the English manufacturers—a market which they took no part in creating, and whose creation they would have prevented if they could.

4. Because it would grant to foreigners a privilege which the founders of our government intended should only be granted to its citizens for the purpose of encouraging a national literature, and not for the pecuniary benefit of individuals.

5. Because it would be the foreign publisher and not the author who would benefit.

6. Because of the difficulty of carrying out the law in accordance with its spirit, and of its opening a wide door for frauds against the interests of our working-classes.

7. Because it is against the spirit of our Constitution that the minority shall dictate to the majority, and that "rings" shall be formed for raising the price of a useful commodity.

8. Because it is a pretence that native authors cannot live in competition with free literature. The American market is ready and willing to take more good literature than native talent can offer, and is compelled to seek foreign productions.

9. Because if a sufficiency of good American be expected to prove very satisfactory to English literature was offered it would drive out the publishers or to the trades engaged in the proworst of the foreign, which would never become duction of books. Even the reciprocal advanacclimatized, and create a healthy demand for better books.

10. Because the works of the best foreign authors stimulate our own to greater efforts, and afford that healthful competition so necessary to ultimate success.

11. Because the experience of the past foreshadows the future, and owing to the cheapness of the educational advantages offered by our government to the masses we can show more intellectual development in the United States than can be shown in any other country of the world.

12. Because it would be wrong to force the people to pay for what they can now have free, and create difficulties where none now exist.

Dana Estes, of Boston, replied briefly to Mr. Sherman. He was glad the Committee had heard from one who avowed himself a pirate. Mr. Sherman's objections answered themselves. He would protect the laborer by a tariff, but would stimulate authorship by active competition. The proposition was absurd. Mr. Sherman was the publisher of a reprint of the "Encyclopædia Britannica." He represented himself alone in his argument, and wished to delay the passage of an international copyright law until he could bring out the remaining volumes of that work. He was the only successful pirate of foreign works. Mr. Sherman had not told the committee that the man who first conceived the idea of reprinting that work was now bank-

J. R. Sypher, of Philadelphia, an attorney who makes copyright law a specialty, addressed the committee upon the legal features of the pending questions. He took up the Hawley and Chace bills, and pointed out in detail his objections to them. He said that an author might receive ten cents a copy upon a book, the publication of which should cost but thirty cents and which would be sold for two dollars or two dollars and a half a volume. If such a work were not protected it would be sold at a profit for seventy-five cents. Why, he asked, not pay the author his ten cents royalty, and then sell it for eighty-five cents a volume? The reason why this was not done was that the protection given by the copyright law left the producer a choice between making a large profit on a small edition or a small profit on a large edition. He suggested that Congress provide for the granting of a royalty to authors of foreign books. He would have publishers who would comply with certain restrictious licensed by the copyright office in Washington, and would permit all such to publish the book, requiring of them quarterly returns of the number of volumes published, and would provide by law proper means of securing to the author his royalty and of preventing unlicensed publication. This would, he believed, give the author his rights without creating a monopoly and materially increasing the price of books.

AN ENGLISH VIEW OF THE MANU-FACTURING CLAUSE.

THE London Bookseller (for February 3), in discussing the Chace and Hawley bills, comments on the manufacturing clause as follows: "International copyright, saddled with the condition of manufacture in America, can hardly be expected to prove very satisfactory to English publishers or to the trades engaged in the production of books. Even the reciprocal advance eriodicals out of this market are not erable. The exportation of books to build gradually diminish until it was such as were in existence prior to the of a treaty based on the proposed is and proprietors of copyright would, receive the full market value for what be sell to American publishers, and in relations with America might settle a mutually profitable condition."

Foreign Office, January 9, 1886. F. R. Daldy, Esq., Aldine House, Belvidere, Kent.

SIR: I am directed by the Marquis of Salisbury to acknowledge the receipt of your letter of the 26th ultimo inclosing a memorial praying that such steps may be taken by Her Majesty's Government as may seem desirable to insure an amelioration of the Law of Copyright; and I am to acquaint you in reply that Her Majesty's Government have decided to propose to Parliament legislation with the view to amend the existing law, and to enable Great Britain to become a party to the proposed International Copyright Union.

I am to add that papers on this subject will be laid before Parliament at the commencement of the Session.

J. PAUNCEFOTE.

In connection with the foregoing, we reprint the following from a subsequent issue of the Publishers' Circular, (February 1:)

"It is to be hoped that one of the results of the fall of Lord Salisbury's Government will not be the shelving of the proposed new charter on the Copyright laws. All who have an interest in the welfare of the book world were glad to see the announcement in the Queen's Speech to the effect that the subject was to receive legislative attention—at no distant date, it was presumed. The reason for immediate action is that before any part can be taken by this country in giving adherence to the draft convention which is proposed to be signed at Berne next September, it is imperative that a new Act be passed removing the intricacies attaching to existing British law. France, Germany, Italy, Spain, and—let us sincerely hope- the United States are expected to become parties to the new international scheme,

" Lord Salisbury's Government took up this mubject with a wise conception of lits importance, the intention of dealing with the question being to give effect, if possible, to the recommendations of the Royal Commission of 1578 at the same time. What effect the change of administration may have, it is impossible to say. Present appearances seem to indicate that the Government will be so long over its difficulty in dealing with new men and old acres that there may neither be time nor opportunity for the consideration of such trivialities as the complicated affairs home or international —of authors, publishers, and the reading public.

"Fortunately, we have Mr. Gladstone's declared assurance of his interest in the subject. As an author as well as a statesman, he has on more than one occasion given vent to his views upon questions relating to the legislation of copyright. Only the other day, in the debate on the Queen's speech, he said .

" One word only I wish to say on the subject of the treaty of International Copyright. I was in my youth a zealous follower of Mr. Sergeant Talfourd in his attempts to extend the range of copyright privilege. I must own that reflection and experience have led me to entertain in some degree doubts as to the particular form in which an author is to be secured that to which he has the best possible claim—namely, a reamonable share of the fruits of his intellectual labors. All I have to say at present is that the question is of enormous importance, especially in consequence of the almost immeasurable tnarket which America offers for the sale of English books, and the rapid extension of that market through the growth of population, and of the importance of having our copyright law on such a basis as to make it possible for the American Government to give us the benefit of something like a community of market in that vast country for our literary productions. My only reason for referring to this subject at the present moment is to express the hope that when the international copyright treaty is concluded it may not be in any manner bound down to one particular form of copyright law now existing in this country, but that it may be left free as far as possible for Parliament to consider, when the proper time and opportunity arrive, the basis of that copyright law, and whether the nature of the protection and benefit given to the author can with advantage be modified.'

"The 'proper time and opportunity has arrived.' Are we prepared to take advantage of it? There may never be an occasion more favorable than the present for coming to a proper understanding, at least with regard to our relations with our great customer on the other side of the Atlantic. The progress that is being made in America seems to be so spirited and well directed, as well as earnest, that advantage should at once be taken of the chance of working together so as to come to an amicable arrangement. In a little time the prevailing demand for reform in Copyright may not be so i vigorous in the States as it is at present, nor so \ influentially supported. Negotiations will there- a story once about a traveller who, just at the fore become far more difficult and complex." close of the Revolutionary war, was crossing the fore become far more difficult and complex."

THE STATIONERS' BOARD OF TRAD DINNER.

On the 12th inst, the members of the Station ers' Board of Trade and their friends met i Delmonico's, to enjoy the eleventh dinner give by this association since its organization. Thei were present about one hundred persons, an the arrangements of the reception and dinne committees were such as to make the event success in every respect. Among the invite guesta were the Rev. George F. Pentecost, Hor S. L. Woodford, W. C. Martin, A. D. F. Rat dolph, Hon. W. Whiting, and Ambrose Snow.

After the cloth had been removed, th President, Mr. W. I. Martin, delivered an ac dress, in which he gave a history of the Board ft the past year, and pointed to a most gratifyin progress over previous years. He then inter duced the Hon. William Whiting, who re sponded to the toast "Paper Makers of Americ -Equalicd by Few and Excelled by None. The Hon. S. L. Woodford spoke on the subject of "A New Bankrupt Law," and made, as usual a masterly speech. Mr. H. B. Barnes, of A. S. Barnes & Co., in response to the toast " Book seller and Publisher," became involved in the copyright question. Among other things he favored the English plan of filing five copies o each book copyrighted instead of two. His idea would be to present one copy each to the Library of Congress and Smithsonian Institution, one copy each to Yale and Harvard Colleges, and one copy to the Stationers' Board of Trade. Among the other speakers were Ambrose Snow, President of the Board of Trade and Transports tion, who gave a most interesting sketch of the association he represented; Rev. George F. Pentecost, who dwelt on "The Influence of the Paper-Maker and Book-Maker on Christian Cirilization;" W. C. Martin, President of the Typothetæ, who gave an account of the rise, fall, and resurrection of that society; George L. Pease, ex-President -the only ex-President we believe-of the Stationers' Board of Trade, who complained of being called upon without warning, and made a neat impromptu il at needed 00 apology, Howard Lockwood, who handled the subject of "Trade Journalism" with great "credit" to himself; and last, but by no means least, Mr. A. D. F. Randolph, who, though wholly unprepared, made a capital speech 👊 the advantages and drawbacks of " The Ancient and the Modern Bookseller," of which we print a report below :

"I am only a poor bookseller; not being a member of the bar, not being a paper-maker, I have no hope of ever becoming Lieutenant-Gov ernor of the State. It never has been known, it never will be known when a bookseller could even rise to the office of Alderman. He is shall out from the honors of such an office and from all 'boodle'-even that of our friend who built the Broadway railroad—the man whose memory is so defective with regard to all other men. there had been a bookseller in that company the secret would have leaked out.

"I was very much interested in this talk of Mr. Whiting in regard to paper and the various uses of paper, but there was one kind that both he and General Woodford failed to allude tothe kind which is most prized by the booksellerand that is greenback paper. A friend told me I Mountains at the time when it took a hatful of Continental money to buy a st. He had no money, but he had a a famous little book, one of the earliest books in this country, called 'The New d Primer,' which contained the shorter sm, the sum of the Presbyterian faith. a little book, but it had pictures with s, such as Randolph: "That brings me to a remark raing the duty which every man owes to ofession. I honor the profession, for it is ession to which I belong. As I have said ore than one occasion, I would rather be a bookseller than follow any other calling in this world. As Lord Bacon has said: 'Every man owes it as a duty to his profession to lift it to a higher plane,' and though there are many things about the matter of the publishing of books and the sale of books which are depressing and discouraging, while we are flooded with a host of stuff which is doing nothing to educate the people up, but rather to pull them down, the time is coming, and coming speedily, when the United States will be the great book market of the And we shall honor that day when we do justice not only to our own authors but to the authors of the world. I have been active in this matter of international copyright for fifteen years. I have helped to discuss it; I have belped to advocate it when we could only get a corporal's guard together to enforce the doctrine that authors should be protected in their rights the world over. I have seen it grow until now the thing is before Congress in such shape as it has never been before. I will take any kind of a copyright bill, but I would rather have a copyright bill without the manufacturing clause for this country, because, if we are to be honest, let us be honest all through. We have no right, I hold—we have no right to handicap the English author by the restrictive clause as to manufacture. If we cannot beat the world with our manufactures, then let somebody else do it. We say to the English author, we will be honest, we will do right, we will give you your due, provided provided we can handicap you in the interest of the American manufacturer. I will take the bill as it now stands, but I would rather, far rather, trust to the ingenuity, to the sagacity, to the enterprise, to the honesty of the American publisher than have that clause in. When we get an international copyright law we shall stop the piracy, and it is piracy. I have stolen books like the rest of you, and I am now beginning to feel like the old fellow who said honesty was the best policy — he knew, for he had tried both kinds. When we get the international copyright law, we shall put a moral fibre into the American publishing trade, into the American booksellers' trades, that will lift us to a higher plane and make us what we are not now, true all around, to ourselves, to the buyers, and to everybody else."

A BOOK THAT SELLS FOR WASTE PAPER.— One of the most gigantic works ever attempted was the speculation of that enterprising Dutch bookseller, Bleau, of Amsterdam. This astounding work was a gigantic atlas of the world in fourteen enormous "elephant folio" volumes. printed on fine thick paper of board-like consistence, and bound so substantially as to require serious struggles to handle. It teems with illustrations, maps, vignettes, statues, views of towns, etc. The bookseller had himself travelled over most of the countries he portrayed and superintended the execution. Alas! now, this stupendous monument is held to be worthiess; and, having purchased eight or ten of the volumes for a pound, a bookseller assured me that as "wrapping paper" he found it was far cheaper and more convenient than the ordinary "crown" he was accustomed to buy. In this he is confirmed by the great bibliographer, De la Bure, who cynically states that the incomplete series of ten or eleven volumes "are usually offered at sales for the price and weight of waste paper."- From Tinsley's Magazine.

"UNCLE TOM'S CABIN" AGAIN "UN-DER FIRE,"

IT is not, perhaps, a matter that ought to cause much surprise, even at this late day, that Mrs. Stowe's "Uncle Tom's Cabin" should still excite some of the same feeling and antagonism In the South that it did before the war. We Bincerely hope, however, that such a case as the following is an isolated one, and becoming less frequent as the years roll by.

It seems that an advertisement of the new onedollar edition of " Uncle Tom's Cabin" appeared in the December issue of the Sunday-school Magasine (Methodist) of Nashville, Tenn. parently somebody called the editor to account for this, and evidently at his instance the business manager of the magazine wrote to the editor the following "Explanation," which appeared in the January number.

Or. W. G. E. Gunnyngham, Editor Sunday-School Periodicals.

DEAR BROTHER: An explanation is due to you as well as to the subscribers of the magazine for the appearance of "Uncle Tom's Cabin" on the advertising pages of the Decomber issue. It came to the house in the form of a storeo-type block, and escaped notice, owing to my absence attending conferences, while passing through the press. I need not say why I do not approve such advertisements. When discovered it was promptly discontinued, and none such will appear again.

Very respectfully and truly yours,

L. D. Palmer, Manager.

Our own experience and observation has been that this same book is having a larger sale from year to year in Southern homes, and that many who, twenty years ago, would not tolerate the mention of its name in their presence now not only read it, but openly praise it to a degree that borders on the extravagant, as witness the article, "Thomas a Kempis in Ebony," by Thomas J. Girardeau, in the Chicago Current of October 17, 1886.

PROCRUSTES MUDIE.

WHATEVER else has befallen the American trade, the publishers here are not yet compelled to fit themselves to such a Procrustes bed as their English brothers have to lie upon, as shown by the following letter. The book, we may say, which cannot be circulated in England because it does not "fit" Mr. Mudie's boxes and straps is Mr. Percival Sewell's work on Korea — "Choson." The letter was addressed to Mr. Sewell's London publisher.

MUDIE'S SELECT LIBRARY. 30 to 34 New Oxford Street, (Copy)
LONDON, January 19, 1836.

GENTLEMEN, I regret that the book of which you write is too large to go into our book boxes and too large to strap up with other books without serious damage. We are therefore sorry that we are unable to take copies for circulation. ARTHUR O. MUDIE. Yours truly,

"BUCKLE" ON STRAPS.—A New York bookseller on a recent trip went into a Boston book store and asked one of the heads of the retail branch (where he was not known) if they had Buckle's Works, and being answered in the affirmative asked for "Buckle on Straps." The young man could not find it, but volunteered to get it, took a mem., put on his hat, and started to get it. It has not been called for yet.

HUMAN SKIN BINDINGS.

FOLLOWING the example of Mr. Oseph Zaehnsdorf, who lately bound two Elsevir editions in human skin, another London binder has executed an order to encase a copy of Hans Holbein's "Dance of Death" in the same ghastly integument, certainly a very appropriate covering for this work. These are not the only instances, however, in which the casing of the "human form divine" has been utilized. In the library at Mexborough . House, near Methley, Yorkshire, there were formally two books, Sir John Cheek's "Hurt of Sedition" and Branthwait's "Arcadian Princess," both bound in the prepared skin of Mary Bateman, "the Yorkshire witch," who was executed early in the beginning of this cestury for murder; but these were among those which disappeared during the cataloguing of the library for sale, when one of the former carls of Mexborough was in difficulties. Yet another instance: When the writer was last in Paris be was shown a small book by a dealer, who solemnly avowed it was bound in a portion of the skin of the notorious Louvet de Couvray, and which he valued at 2000f., and for autherileation of which he produced a long pedigree.— British and Colonial Printer.

OBITUARY NOTES.

RANDOLPH CALDECOTT. — Randolph Caldecott, the English artist, whose original and spirited illustrations of children's books have made him widely known in this country, died in St. Augustine, Fla., on Friday, February 12.

Mrs. Fletcher Harper.—Margaret Cook Harper, wife of Mr. Fletcher Harper, died on the 16th inst. of acute pneumonia. Mrs. Harper was the daughter of the Rev. Dr. lobs P. Durbin, a distinguished Methodist clergyman of New York City, and was married to Mr. Hatper thirty-five years ago. For the last fifteen years she had devoted her time to philanthropic enterprises to better the condition of working people. Fifteen years ago she founded the Harper Industrial School in Ludlow Street, and three years ago she bought a cottage at Long Branch, and established it as the Harper Seashore Cottage for Working Girls. Sixty inmates were boarded there at a nominal rate throughout the summer, each spending two weeks' vacation at the seaside. Mrs. Harper was a manager of the Woman's Hospital and the Ladies' Christian Union. She gave very largely but unostentstiously to charitable objects, and was much loved by the great number of friends her life and work had won for her. Mrs. Fletcher Harper, Sr., widow of the late Fletcher Harper, survives her daughter-in-law, and is living at Irvington, N. Y.

WE have no doubt that many are on the qui to read "A Brother to Dragons," by the w genius whom Mr. Aldrich has discovered, d who will make his dibut in the Atlantic for arch.

MR. EDWARD S. JAFFRAY, whose steam yacht, he Stranger, has the reputation of being the stest of its size in existence, is preparing for thing an exhaustive article on American steam uchts.

AMONG the contributions to the March Wide wake will be an Alpine paper which will insert botanists, written by Rose G. Kingsley, aughter of Canon Kingsley, and entitled Stoned by a Mountain;" "Royal Girls," by Irs. Sherwood, giving an account of the romantic first meeting of the beautiful Empress of Austria with Franz Joseph; and an illustrated allad, "The Tenement House Fire," by Elizaeth Stuart Phelps.

Science for February 12 contains an article on he "Extension of Copyright," by H. E. Scudler, in which he reiterates the proposition made before the Senate Committee on Patents, that the "present law now applicable to citizens of the United States only be extended to any alien who will accept the conditions under which an American author lives." Gardiner G. Hubbard, in an article on Copyright in the same issue, brings the reader to the conclusion arrived at by the late Mr. Macaulay, that "the question of copyright, like most questions of civil prudence, is neither black nor white, but gray."

BUSINESS NOTES.

ASTORIA, ORE.—Carl Adler, bookseller, has transferred his stock to his creditors.

Boston, Mass.—The Thorp Manufacturing Company has consolidated its business with that of Koch Sons & Co., New York, and will hereafter be carried on under the firm name of Koch Sons & Co.

Brandon, VT.—C. C. Slason, bookseller, is advertising to close out his business.

CHICAGO. ILL.—The firm of Jansen, McClurg & Co. was dissolved on the 1st inst., Mr E. L. Jansen retiring on account of ill-health. The remaining partners, Messrs. A. C. McClurg & F. B. Smith, will continue the business under the firm name of A. C. McClurg & Co. The change is really little more than a change of name. In all particulars, aside from the personal retirement of Mr. Jansen, the affairs of the firm will go on just as of old—the capital and the management will be essentially the same.

COLUMBUS. MISS. — Howard M. Teasdale, bookseller and stationer, has been burned out.

Dallas, Tex.—Paul F. Erl, bookseller and stationer, has had his stock damaged by fire and water.

NEW YORK CITY.—W. T. Pratt & Co. have sold the general stationery branch of their business to Anderson & Krum, located at No. 7 Bond Street (adjoining Messrs. Baker & Taylor). Mr. John R. Anderson is well known to the trade by reason of his connection with the school book business, and Mr. A. H. Krum has been for many years manager of the stationary department of Baker, Pratt & Co., and W. T. Pratt & Co. The relinquishing of this department will enable W. T. Pratt & Co. to confine their efforts entirely to the importation and manufacture of fine fancy goods. It is their intention to conduct the business on a much larger scale than heretofore.

ST. Louis, Mo.—An Associated Press despatch, dated the 15th inst., reports that all the suits of creditors against the St. Louis Stationery and Book Company were dismised to-day, a compromise on a basis of forty-five cents on the dollar having been effected.

LITERARY AND TRADE NOTES.

THE personal estate of the late J. B. Lippin-cott has been inventoried at $3,599,113.

C. F. LIBBIE & Co., book auctioneers, will soon occupy new quarters at 27 Franklin Street, Boston.

MR. JOHN HOVENDEN, formerly with the Worthington Co., has made arrangements with the Judd Company to take charge of their book department.

JAMES LEWIS was sentenced to six months in the Penitentiary on the 16th inst. for stealing a copy of Dante's "Inferno," printed in 1512, from the counter of Dodd, Mead & Co.'s store, at No. 755 Broadway. The book was valued at $90, but it was sold by Lewis for $4.75 to August Miller, a clerk of Bonaventure.

Funk & Wagnalls issue to-day a new edition of Laura C. Holloway's biography of "Adelaide Neilson." There has been an unexpectedly large demand for this work, and its appearance has attracted attention in England, particularly in the Yorkshire district, where Miss Neilson was born. The author has enlarged the book in deference to the advice to this effect, received from the press and by personal letters.

MME. DURAND (Henri Gréville), in her lecture on "French Homes and French Authors," in defining pure literature, said: "A good book does not need to be what we call unobjectionable. A goody-goody book was like a sheepfold, very nice, but very quiet. A sheepfold was not very interesting unless there was a wolf in it, and she thought just a small little wolf introduced into sheepfold literature was not a bad thing."

CHARLES SCRIBNER'S SONS will publish shortly a most interesting volume on the late war, entitled "The Fight for Missouri," by Colonel Snead, a member of the Confederate Congress, and at one time commander of Southern troops; "Letters to Dead Authors," by Andrew Lang, a series of essays similar to "Obiter Dicta;" three new volumes of their Wonder Series; Stockton's novel, "The Late Mrs. Null;" Janvier's "Guide to Mexico;" and a work on "Persia: the Land of the Imams," by Rev. James Bassett.

Wk are requested to say that the copy of the Second Folio Shakespeare, on the inside cover of which is pasted what purports and is claimed to be a veritable autograph signature of William Shakespeare (discovered in Utah several months since, and now the property of C. F. Gunther, Esq., of Chicago), will be on exhibition at the meeting of the Shakespeare Society of New York, at Hamilton Hall, Columbia College, on the evening of Thursday, Feburary 25th, 1886, 8 P. M. when all persons interested are cordially invited to inspect it.

THE J. B. LIPPINCOTT Co. have in press a treatise on "Builders' Work and the Building Trades," by Colonel H. C. Seddon, Superintend ing Engineer H. M. Dockyard, Portsmouth; "A Dictionary of Practical Surgery," by various British hospital surgeons, edited by Christopher Heath; a new novel by George Thomas Dowling, entitled "The Wreckers;" "Don Miff, a Symphony of Life in four Movements;" "Lyrical Poems — Songs, Pastorals, Roundelays, Madrigals," by Emily Thornton Charles, (Emily Hawthorne;) and Othello, the fifth and sixth volumes of Furness's Variorum edition of Shakepeare's works.

Burrows Bros. & Co., Cleveland, have published a handy "Progressive Euchre Score Marker," which consists of a number of strips of cardboard, one for each player, printed with numbers showing progressions and tables, and perforated to make detachable coupons, all the strips for one set or evening's entertainment being neatly tied together by a ribbon. A set of rules accompanies each set, and all that is necessary for the hostess to decide upon before purchasing is the exact number of tables she will have. The retail prices range from fifty cents for the "Marker" for four tables, to $1.25 for afteen tables, with a fair discount to the trade.

Ticknor & Co. will issue in a few weeks a volume whose contents have already received high commendation from Mr. E. C. Stedman. It is entitled "The Saunterer," and is by Mr. Charles G. Whiting, the literary reviewer of the Springfield (Mass.) Republican. "Mr. Whiting," says the Boston correspondent of the New York Evening Post, "is a hard-working journalist, conscientious, and of remarkable capacity for doing much without breaking down. He has always, in some unaccountable way, preserved a fund of freshness and zest, an i once in a while the Republican readers will find an editorial on nature, something fit to the season, which is as cheery as sunshine would be in this drenching rain that is flooding everything to-day. This volume will include the best of these editorials and some of his poems. Mr. Whiting is fond of pedestrianism. On foot he has traversed most of Berkshire County and climbed her high hills. With this 'saunterer' for a companion, the reader may expect to see nature with new eyes."

MR. A. P. SINNETT has on the point of publication a pamphlet in reply to the report prepared by Mr. Hodgson for the Society of Psychical Research upon the Coulomb-Blavatsky corréspondence, which brought such scandal upon the Theosophical Society. It will be entitled "The Occult World Phenomena, as Criticised by the Society for Psychical Research," and will also be accompanied by a protest by Mme. Blavatsky. George Redway, London, is to be the publisher.

WILL PUBLISH MARCH 3d:

Letters to Dead Authors.

By Andrew Lang. 1 vol., Elzevir 16mo. Gilt top, $1.00.

It is a happy fancy of Mr. Lang's to unbosom himself of some of the brightest, wittiest, and most thoughtful criticisms of recent years by writing it directly to the great dead themselves—always with thorough reverence and appreciation, and the most charming regard for their ways of thought, but with perfect frankness. The public thus gains at second hand one of the brightest collections of literary estimates which any contemporary writer—not even excepting the author of "Obiter Dicta"—could have given them. The little Elzevir volume, with its page and print, would of itself have appealed to many of the dead authors, as it will to modern readers.

The Fight for Missouri in 1861.

From the Inauguration of Jackson to the death of Lyon. By Col. THOMAS L. SNEAD. 1 vol., 12mo. Cloth, $1.50.

The struggle which determined the position of Missouri in the Civil War was in reality an epitome of the Civil War itself. From the fact that the State was almost the only one actually divided against itself, with every individual citizen straining every nerve to carry it his way, makes his episode one of the most absorbing in the war history. Col. Snead, himself a very prominent actor, and with original sources of information as to every phase of the struggle, has done in this book a work long expected from him, and has made one of the most interesting contribution yet given to this literature.

NOTES IN SEASON.

CASSELL & Co. will publish shortly an interusing Oriental story, by Evan Stanton, entitled "Ruhainah: a Story of Eastern Life," the scenes of which are chiefly those of harem life in Central Asia.

D. C. HEATH & Co. will publish shortly in their series of Educational Classics a translation of Dr. Paul Radestock's "Habit and Its Importance in Education," with an introduction by Dr. G. Stanley Hall, of Johns Hopkins University.

P. BLAKISTON, SON & Co., Philadelphia, will have ready in a few days No. XI. of their Quiz-Compend Series. It is a work on "Pharmacy," by Dr. F. E Stewart, based by special permission on Remington's "Practice of Pharmacy," one of the acknowledged authorities.

A. C. Armstrong & Son publish this week Dr. McCosh's paper on "Religion in a College—What Place it Should Have;" also a new volume of Alfred Ainger's edition of Lamb's works, comprising "Mrs. Leicester's School," and other of his prose and verse writings.

GEORGE R. LOCKWOOD & Son have prepared for the Easter season a series of Parchment Dainties, similar to those they issued for Christmas and New Year. This series comprises "Poems for Easter," by Frances Ridley Havergal; "Easter Bells," and "Spring Flowers for Easter."

GEORGE J. COOMBES will publish at once the promised volume on "Books and Bookmen," by Andrew Lang, comprising chapters on literary forgeries, parish registers, bibliomania in France, Elzevirs, some Japanese bogie-books, etc. It will also contain a "Ballade of the Real and the Ideal," and a "Ballade of the Unattainable." The volume will have original head and tail-pieces and initial letters by G. R. Halm.

G. P. PUTNAM'S SONS publish this week Professor G. L. Raymond's work on "Poetry as a Representative Art," which, the author states, is only one of a series of essays intended to present art in all its aspects; a work on "The Adirondacks as a Health Resort," showing the benefit to be derived by a sojourn in the Wilderness in cases of pulmonary phthisis, acute and chronic bronchitis, etc., edited and compiled by Dr. Joseph W. Stickler; and a popular edition of Anna Katherine Green's "Hand and Ring."

Roberts Bros. have nearly ready a noteworthy book entitled "Hours with German Authors," by Rev. Dr. Hedge. Dr. Hedge isone of the few living Americans who met and conversed with Goethe, and he is considered to be one of the most eminent German scholars of the century. "They were a brilliant galaxy of German enthusiasts here a half century ago," says the Boston Traveller—" Dr. Hedge, Margaret Fuller, James Freeman Clarke, at the time when Margaret was a girl of nineteen, and German thought was a fashion and an enthusiasm. Dr. Hedge, then a young man in his early twenties, went abroad to study at a German University, and took letters to Goethe, who received him with great cordiality."

NOTES ON AUTHORS. • ·

MR. Anstey, the author of "Vice Versa," is writing a tale in which an Indian idol plays a leading part.

Louis Kossuth, now in his eighty-fourth year, is at work upon the fourth volume of his Memoirs.

A MEMOIR of the late Mrs. Anne Gilchrist is being prepared by her family and friends. The volume will contain some reprinted essays, as well as a large amount of sprightly correspondence exchanged with a varied circle, including, among others, George Eliot, Mr. and Mrs. Carlyle, George Henry Lewes, and Walt Whitman. Fisher Unwin will publish the book.

Louise Michel's new forthcoming book is tobe a novel, entitled "Les Microbes." There are to be, says the Pall Mall Gazette, "types of the leaders of all the movements in the modernworld in which Louise Michel is interested—the savant, capable of everything for the sake of science; the revolutionist, capable of everything for his religion, and the capitalist, capable of all for his wealth."

MR. GIFFEN has in preparation a new series of "Essays in Finance." It will contain several papers which have been published anonymously, or have been read before the Statistical Society, besides some which have not been made public before. The latter include a further discussion of the fall of prices and the alleged contraction of the gold supply. Messis. Bell London, will be the publishers.

Archie's chances; [also] A child's victory; by the author of "The Spanish brothers." N.Y., T: Nelson & Sons, 1886. 4-141 p. il. D. cl., 60 C.

The story of Archie Lyndon, who is early left an orphin, dependent upon his uncle's kindness. His uncle is in "trade," and Archie, whose father belonged to a good family, revolts at the prospect of earning a living behind the counter. A brother of his father comes on the scene, a man who has amassed an immense fortune in the Fiji Islands. He gives Archie the chance of becoming heir to his wealth and business, which the young man refuses after deliberation, as he finds out his uncle is an infidel. He then crushes his pride, goes into the shop, does his duty thoroughly, and finally becomes a missionary, in which capacity he stands beside his uncle's death-bed, some twenty years afterward.

rolume will also possess a value and significance peculiarly its own. It is made up for the most part of sermons preached by an Englishman to Americans; that fact cannot fail to be felt by those who read it." The sermons, 14 in number, are those preached in Canada and the U.S. during his recent visit. The addresses are: "Modern education; its sphere and its aims," delivered at Johns Hopkins University; "The Christian doctrine of the atomement and the grounds of Christian unity," read before the Church Congress, New Haven; and the temperance address given in Chickering Hall. Two only of his several lectures are given: "Dante" and "Farewell thoughts on America."

Fradenburgh, Rev. J. N. Witnesses from the dust; or, the Bible illustrated from the monuments. Cin., Cranston & Stowe, 1886. 3-467 p. il. D. cl., $1.60.

The many important discoveries and revelations made in this progressive age by scholars and explorers, bearing upon the anthenticity of the Bible narrative, have been popularized and gathered together for the benefit of the Bible student and general reader. The cities, monuments, and records of Assyria, Babylon. Egypt, and other Bible lands that the spade of the archæologist has uncovered, with their decipherable hieroglyphics, throw unexpected light apon the sacred records, and confirm many important passages. References are made throughout to accessible sources of information, that the reader may prosecute his inquiries farther.

A pair of lovers who have passed the meridian of life, but are still rich in mental and personal charms, are the excuse for Mr. Howells's title. The scene is laid in Florence, the actors all being Americans. The motive is simple and direct, and the story is told with much graceful wit in Mr. Howells's earlier and lighter vein. Has been a feature of Harper's Magazine during the past year.

Two brothers, the last of a long line of Highland chiefs, are the heroes of this most fascinating tale. They are crowded out of their possessions by the new and rich owners of surrounding lands, and finally leave the land they have not money to hold. Oil is afterward discovered on the little estate to which they go, and their fortunes are growing at the close. This plot is used by the author with all his old skill, to teach lessons of love and goodness and purity. The love between the brothers is the key-note of the story.

Marshall, Emma. Under the Mendips: a tale. N.Y., E. P. Dutton & Co., [1886.] 4+420 p., il. D. cl., $1.25.

Life at Fair Acres Manor, an old English homestead nestling under the shelter of the Mendip Hills, is beautifully skatched in the opening chapters. " Joyce," the pretty heroise, just budding into womanhood, her weak and extravagant brother "Melville," just home from Oxford, the little time boy "Piers," Mrs Falconer, the English mother, and the dogs "Nip" and "Pip," all unite to form a charming picture of rustic peace and happiness. The aged Hannah More is a conspicuous character in the tale, and the closing scenes are takes from the Bristol glots of the autumn of 1831. A healthy story for young girls, teaching an excellent lesson.

A continuation of the author's "Outlines of ancient history," although intended for pupils of somewhat maturer minds. Aims to blend to a single narrative accounts of the social, political, literary, intellectual, and religious developments of the peoples of mediaval and modern times — to give in simple outline the story of civilization since the meeting in the fifth century of Latin and Teuton upon the soil of the Western Roman Empire. It deals with the essential, not the accidental features of the life of the race, hence gives prominence to the virtues rather than the vices of man. The style is condensed and suggestive, there is a good index, plenty of maps, and the book in very nicely gotten up

Before he arrives at the house he has broken the dog-cart by letting the horse run away, and has made the groom promise to keep the matter secret a few days, till he can get money from home to have the wagon mended; and, again, he takes his cousin on the ice, on a part of the river they have been forbidden to venture on, and Cecil falls in and injures his spine. Added to this, the groom is sent away in disgrace, and Cecil's accumulated miseries bring him to a speedy repentance and confession. Things end better than might be expected, while the boys' sports and amusements give a bright side to the picture.

THE REFORM OF DISCOUNTS.

THE feeling of the trade, both among leading publishers and among the great body of retailers, seems to be such as to promise more definite and effective results in the way of trade reform than for many years past. The first objection, among publishers, to a combination which should repeat the failure of the movement of the A. B. T. A., in 1876. The present proposal is quite another thing. It would not depend upon a combination, either in the wholesale or in the retail trade, but upon the mere accord of a few leading houses, or very likely on the individual action of one house setting an example which others would follow. If the A. B. T. A. had taken the solid ground of reducing nominal prices and nominal discounts, so as to give the public books at the same price or a lower price than that at which they were already getting them, the result would have been altogether diferent, then and now, in the prosperity of the American book-trade.

A most interesting letter which we give elsewhere suggests, to the contrary, that a contract ombination of the entire trade to keep up prices and contest sales is just what is wanted. The A. B. T. A. was not a combination of this sort. for it attempted only to confine discounts to limited classes; but even it did not succeed. And To such combination could succeed. would not join in it to the necessary extent, and public opinion would not tolerate it. The small combinations of the ten or twenty manufacturers of wall-papers, steel rails, etc., go intermittently to pieces; the druggists' endeavor has provoked a fierce competition; and combination of this sort is opposed to the American spirit of doing business. What we need is not a restrictive but a common-sense basis for business. Many of the questions our correspondent raises A difference of would then settle themselves. price between one, a hundred and a thousand books solves the jobbing question, for instance. A man who "jobs" ten books cannot expect better rates than a man who sells a hundred at retail. If on a better system, a bookseller cannot hold his own against dry-goods stores, no scheme can save him. But there is no system without its disadvantages; the real question is which will work best on the whole.

The proposition in regard to copyright books is practically to leave the wholesale prices where they are now and reduce the nominal discounts to a real discount, which should be held stiff against all comers. This would obviate the great difficulty which usually presents itself in lowering prices. The value of the stock in the hands of retailers would be only nominally lowered, for they would not buy the books cheaper than before. There would doubtless be neces. sarily slight changes of discounts on some books or on some lists, but these would be obviated either directly or by giving some sufficient private notice of the proposed change of base. In other words, the whole scheme is merely to accept the facts of the present situation, instead of attempting to do business on an unreal basis, which gives the bazaar trade a tremendous advantage with the public.

There is one fear which remains, we judge, in the minds of many publishers—namely, that some houses would try a little sharp practice in holding back so as still to offer large discounts to the retail trade and benefit by the old superstition in their favor. Of course, if a bookseller who gets fifty and ten off on a juvenile book can get the retail price for the book, he can make more than he can on a book at twenty or twenty-five off, but the cases would be few in which books could be held at those prices, and at the best this is a view narrow almost to trade suicide. Where a retailer gets the full price and the exorbitant profit on the sale of a single copy of such juveniles, he loses three or four times as many sales and twice as much profit by the trade the bazaars take away from him on the present basis. We are inclined to believe that this difficulty is magnified much beyond its possibilities of danger.

In regard to the second point, of making non-copyright books—that is, those on which there is general competition, net, there is much to be said. Our understanding is that on such books there would be no public sales catalogue issued by the publisher. He would expect to sell them just as a merchant would sell other lines of goods, in quantity rather than by a single piece, and there would necessarily be one price for the books at home and another in California. On this point we should be very glad to have specific suggestions and discussion from the trade at large.

There is vigorous effort going on among the publishers to ascertain the general feeling in this matter, and we are again glad to note the spirit in which the retail trade receive the plan. We hope that this time something will be done which may really relieve the retail trade from its present embarrassments and make the book-trade again what it should be.

Puck "lends a hand" in international copyright this week, in a cartoon of international dimensions. The pirate publisher (of all nations) occupies the centre foreground of the Gilbert-Sullivan operatic stage, while about him is a chorus of British authors, French authors, German authors, and humble American authors chanting their wrongs. The plethoric pirate (of all nations) takes his stand firmly on the book of the law, and retorts unanimously: "The Lawthat's me!" We fear even the pirate in these days is not as plethoric as in this rose-colored picture, but the moral is good. Even the ghost of the "Hugh-Conway-posthumous-producer" pops up as a Jack-in-the-box to take part in the chorus—a side-hit that a good many readers will relish. The cartoon is accompanied by a vigorous editorial protest against the communistic notion that authors ought to work for nothing, so as to give cheap books.

THE final word has now been said in the copyright controversy, "G. W. S." having sent to the Tribune his Anglo-American editorial pronunciamento on the subject. His confusion of the Copyright League and the "free-traders" in common abuse is amusing to those who know the personnel of the movement. If only Mr. Smalley, the Infallibility of the Tribune, and Mr. Sedgwick, the former Infallibility of the Evening Post, could be locked in a room together until their two Infallibilities fought it out, some practical measure of copyright might be had in their absence by connivance of the wicked publishers and the misguided protectionists. Mr. Smalley is, however, surprisingly moderate this time, and even has a word of condescension for certain wicked publishers in this country. There must be something the matter.

The Saturday Half-Holiday Committee have enlisted the sympathy and co-operation of a number of prominent ladies of New York City, at whose suggestion a circular has been issued, soliciting the signatures of all who are willing to pledge themselves, so far as possible, to abstain from making purchases in New York City after one o'clock in the afternoon of each and every Saturday. The same circular also requests the proprietors of stores to close the same at one o'clock in the afternoon of each Saturday, and to grant their employés the remainder of each Saturday, after one o'clock of the afternoon, as a half holiday, and to make their pay-day as early during each week as possible.

THE REDUCTION OF DISCOUNTS.

MORE OPINIONS OF RETAILERS.

BOSTON, Feb. 16, 1886.

To the Editor of the Publishers' Weekly.

SIR: As retailers it is our opinion that it would stimulate trade and help the booksellers against the "bazaars" for publishers in general to reduce their nominal retail price to a price corresponding to that at which their books are commonly sold, without necessarily reducing their net price.

H. L. HASTINGS.

Toledo, Feb. 16, 1886.

To the Editor of the Publishers' Weekly.

DEAR SIR: We heartily agree with your article on the question of discounts in a late number of the WEEKLY.

To our mind there has been nothing which has so tended to the demoralization of the booktrade as the fictitious retail prices, which no one pretends to get. The dry-goods stores advertising publishers' prices so and so, our prices so and so—is a humbug and a delusion. We think your article on the right line.

Brown, Eager & Hull

DAVENPORT, IOWA, Feb. 16, 1886.

To the Editor of the Publishers' Weekly.

SIR: In answer to your questions: 1. If the publishers will reduce retail prices and give close discounts to the trade, and no discounts whatever to any one else, I am satisfied that the effect will be good.

2. I think the best way for all concerned is to give net prices on all non-copyright books, and let the retailer fix whatever prices he chooses. This will be one of the best ways to lay out the dry-goods butchers. We are troubled with them quite seriously here. The last holiday season we had three large dry-goods stores selling books at any and all prices. I pay no attention to them, but I am afraid unless something is done soon they cannot be thus ignored.

New York, Feb. 19, 1886.

To the Editor of the Publishers' Weekly.

DEAR SIR: Having taken an interest for a long time in the subject of a readjustment of prices of books, and having been in a position to get the views of retailers and wholesalers of importance throughout the country, I beg to submit the objections raised by others as well as those that suggest themselves to me:

1. Almost all feel kindly disposed toward the movement, but with a strong feeling that publishers will, in time, make such concessions in their net prices as to lead the "cutting" houses to fall back to their old system of giving an allowance to clergymen, teachers, regular customers, friends, etc., etc., ad in finitum.

2. Libraries will insist on, and generally get, trade discounts.

3. Now all publishers have a scale of discounts on important books, varying with quantities sold.

4. Jobbers insist, and justly, that they cannot handle stock on ten-per cent gross profit.

5. If the proper difference between retailers rate and jobbers' rate is given jobbers, will not dry-goods men secure the better net price, and make the publishers' supporters suffer, as in the past?

6. Can you get any, even our most conpublisher, to agree positively not to sell nods trade?

ir: Without stopping to give my reaadvocating, as I have done for several eduction in retail prices and in diswill say that while such a change will tly improve the condition of the bookre are other features which will not be reached by the plan advocated by your correspondent "R." in your issue of February 6th.

To illustrate: Belford's family edition of Dickens, $18.75 list, is sold in this city at $6 retail, by one of our largest regular dealers—the jobbing price being $5.74. A weekly paper, having a circulation of 100,000, offers it under some conditions, merely nominal, for $6.90. Now, these are advertised as from new plates, etc. The question is, How is the regular booktrade going to make its patrons believe that their prices are as low as possible, when these large books of about nine hundred pages each are sold at, say, forty cents per volume?

This is what is the matter with the book-trade, and until the publishers or manufacturers of books can invent some way of cheapening their books or carrying on their business in some less expensive manner, the people will continue to buy what does not perhaps on the whole suit them; but to pay the present prices, even at a reduction, is paying too dear for the whistle.

A Jobbing Retailer.

To the Editor of the Publishers' Weekly.

SIR: The question is often asked—and it is the question with many of us—What is the matter with the book business? The answer is, We don't know. We only know that we don't sell anything like the quantity of books we used to sell. But there must be a reason somewhere for this falling off. Well, we presume there is. But where and what is it? Is it altogether owing to the cheap paper editions crowding out other publications? Or is it because retailers are shy of investing their money in books, owing to the demoralized state of prices?

Undoubtedly the cheap paper editions have much to do with the scant sales of regular miscellaneous stock, but that cannot be the only reason. People certainly would read American productions more than they do now if other conditions were right.

We have carried on the book business for twenty-two years, after clerking for eight years—thirty years' experience. We remember the time when a dollar book was sold for a dollar the whole country over, and no questions asked, because it was known and generally understood that that was the price everywhere; and when it paid dealers to buy books for stock, and when they made bookselling their business; when they did not hesitate to invest their money at a venture, because there was renumeration in selling books.

But these things have all changed. The public have become accustomed to a discount, down even to a five-cent toy book.

At first it was twenty per cent to ministers—then to everybody. Then they demanded twenty-five per cent, and now almost everybody expects thirty-three and one third per cent. Now, whatever may be the experience of other dealers, our experience is that it does no longer pay to put money in books in the present condition of the book trade, and we have lately promised ourselves a much scanter investment in books hereafter than at any time in the past even; and it has been pretty scant for a few years past. For what is the use?

The other day a lady came in the store and asked for a certain book, one of the few American copyright books we have been keeping in stock regularly. But before saying she would take a copy, she asked: "What do you ask for it?" We said $1.20 (being a $1.50 book, one third off, cost $1). "Oh," said she, "I can buy it in Philadelphia, at Wannamaker's, for $1.10. Now, Mr. Editor, is this encouraging? Is there any other class of goods that we can put in our stores that do not pay vastly better profits than this? Blank books, stationery, musical instrucutlery, artists' materials, pictures, frames, art-goods of every kind—and there are innumerable other lines—all pay immensely better profits, with less risk of unsaleable stock. Why, then, shall we handle books? We are not by law compelled to do it, and we propose not to We have had enough of it, and until publishers are able and willing to devise some way to protect retailers against such interference, as by Wannamaker, Macy & Co., and others, we shall keep hands off. Let publishers sell either to Wannamaker, Macy & Co, etc., or to booksellers. They cannot serve two masters.

To our mind, the quickest way to bring matters to the point when it must be decided whether bookstores are of any account in bringing books before the public throughout the country, and whether they are of any account to publishers to help distribute their publications, or whether they shall be so changed as to be anything but bookstores, and whether everybody alike shall receive the same discount on books, or whether only retailers of books shall receive a discount, or whether Wannamaker, Macy & Co., etc., shall be able to continue to sell books as leaders for their other stock, at ruinous rates to the book trade—it is for retailers to absolutely refuse to buy any books at all, except, possibly, the cheap publications, to have on hand as leaders, to bring people in your store to catch them on other goods, as the dry-goods stores are now doing. This, to our mind, is the right course to pursue until the book trade is placed on a business-like basis.

We have long entertained the opinion that the book trade could easily be put upon a paying basis by the simple co-operation of the publishers and retailers, or even only a considerable number of them. And upon this plan, let an association of publishers and booksellers be formed, the gist of the rules to be that publishers do not sell to anybody (except on certain conditions to libraries, etc.) at a discount, except to those retailers who are members of the association; and on the part of the retailers they to agree to retail all books at published retail prices, and not to buy from any publishers, or the books of any publishers, not members of the association, etc., etc. Then let the publishers fix retail prices on a basis from which they can give... alike to large and small dealers, to keep one uniform price—one third discount. This would give the retailers everywhere encouragement to invest their capital in books, and while, no doubt, it would have a tendency to make the book business duller than it is now, for a short time, until the public found out that books could be bought at one store just as cheaply as at any other store, and in one town or city as cheaply as at any other, it would soon bring about such a change in the business that all concerned even the fair-minded consumer -would not want to go back to the present condition of the trade.

But until the book business takes some such shape as this, we shall give books decidedly the cold shoulder, and shall, more and more, give our attention to such other goods from which we \ The case was continued. Evans claims that the can realize fair returns,

When the farmer finds that his field no longer yields a fair crop of the usual kind, he changes to another. So let the retail booksellers do.

BUSINESS.

A PUBLISHER'S CAUTION.

NEW YORK, Feb. 24, 1886,

To the Editor of the Publishers' Weekly.

DEAR SIR: When I read the letters from "the retailers" in your last number, I cannot help having brought to my mind an attempt we once made to establish a retail price upon a certain line of books, and how we failed in doing it, simply on account of the fact that the retailers would not sustain us.

Upon this line of publications we made a retail price from which we would not vary to any person not actually in the trade, and we also refused to sell the books to any person in the trade who did not agree to hold them at our prices, while to the trade we made the regular twentyfive per cent.

At first, after a few battles with the undersellers, everything seemed to be going along nicely, until we noticed that our retail dealers were quietly dropping us and buying another line; and when we asked for an explanation from them, some of them were honest enough to tell us plainly: "We buy that line because we can jockey upon the price, while you tie us up tight."

Now, possibly some of them may have had the lesson taught them that they evidently needed. but also possibly some of the publishers have had the lesson taught them that talk is very. very cheap, and that any firm who goes alone into such a reduction of prices and discounts. as is proposed, will have a hard, long, and quite Publisher. likely a losing battle to fight.

INTERNATIONAL COPYRIGHT.

AMERICAN AUTHORS, PUBLISHERS, AND PRINTERS AGREED.

A Washington dispatch to the Boston Sunday Herald, dated February 20, states that "Senator Platt, Chairman of the Senate Committee on Patents, in conversation with a reporter to-day on the subject of an international copyright law, said: 'I don't think there is any difference of opinion among practical men as to the principal features of such a law. some theoretical people who remind me of the New York mugwumps, in that they want everything their own way, who insist on certain ideas: but the authors, the publishers, the printers, binders, and others generally of interested parties, I think, pretty well agree. There is general assent, so far as I can see, to the printers' proposition that a book copyrighted in this country should be printed here. Mr. Platt said that Senator Hawley intends to appear before the Committee. The Committee will request the Librarian of Congress to appear, and give them information as to what rights or courtesies an American publisher can now procure abroad. and what, if any, are extended in this country to a foreign publisher."

Another "Mikado" Injunction.—Frank H. Evans, of the firm of Evans & Brother. music publishers, was arrested at Boston, on the 16th inst., on complaint of Richard D'Oyly Carte, for contempt of court in selling "Vocal Gems from the Mikado," in disregard of an injunction. prosecution is malicious, COPYRIGHT UNLIKE PATENTS.

From the London Athenaum, Jun. 23.

THE reward given to the patentee and the opyright of an author or painter are constantr associated in thought, and even treated of y writers, as if ejusdem generis. A little reflection will, however, reveal a clear distinction nature between the invention of a patentee and the creation of an author or painter.

This distinction consists in the fact that allough in the same field of discovery two or fore men working from the same known data rith a common object in view may, and often o arrive at the same result, it is impossible rat two or more men dealing with the same abject should, independently of each other, rite the same book or paint the same picture. 'atent right is therefore a monopoly in restraint t other original inventions; copyright is not. he exclusive right given to the man who has rst sufficiently completed his scheme to be able ofill in a specification may prevent others, who ere close at his heels on the same path of inention, from reaping any profit from their laors. Nor is this all. Although a patent canof he taken out for an abstract principle, a atent claiming the discovery of a principle, owever general, or of a law of nature, and ointing out a mode in which this principle or iw may be applied to any special purpose so s to effect a practical result, would be valid, and rould operate not only to protect the actual 10de of application, but to prevent any further pplication of the same principle even by a new, riginal, and possibly better process. The first aventor, from want of capital, from having unerestimated the cost of production, or from ome other reason, may be unable profitably to fork his patent. The second inventor, workng on the same lines, may have devised simher and cheaper details, that would render the avention a boon to the public and a source of tofit to himself, and yet he is prevented from tinging his invention into use by reason of the atent granted to the ill-considered scheme of le first inventor.

This is a monopoly of the worst kind. Not niv does the second inventor - who, maybe, is lost the race merely by reason of his havg given more time to the perfection of his stails—lose all reward for his labors, but the ition at large is excluded for years from the e of the best arranged schemes. With copyth it is otherwise. Writing a book on a partular subject, or depicting a scene or incident, events no other author or artist from expressg his thoughts on the same subject, scene, 'incident. Copyright is given to the form of pression, not to the thought itself; hence it is o monopoly. An author can, if he will, withold his work from publication altogether. If, erefore, he chooses to limit his edition to a nall number of copies, printed on vellum, in acy type, the reading public, even during the irm of copyright, is pro lanto the gainer, and hen the term has expired a work exists and in be cheaply reprinted that, but for the ausor's right to limit the form of original publiution, would have remained forever undevelped in his brain. So with an artist. If a great ainter has a horror of cheap and coarsely exeated chromo-lithographs, and therefore will not art with his copyright when he sells his pictre, the nation is still richer in art treasures than it would have been had he not committed his thoughts to canvas; and even in the scarcely conceivable case of his objecting to have his picture reproduced by the graver's art in his lifetime, our grandchildren may yet enjoy engravings from his masterpiece. Patent right, as we have already stated, prevents other and often better means of applying the principle protected from being used by the public. Copyright protects the individual treatment only, and leaves the idea open for treatment in any other form by any other person.

When once pointed out this distinction appears so evident that it may be thought that we are wasting space in dwelling upon it thus at length. We believe, however, that the fallacy that copyright is a monopoly in the sense in which patent right is a monopoly still un lerlies much of the passive and some of the active opposition to any proposal to simplify or improve the conditions under which authors, artists, and musical composers can claim protection for their

PAYMENT OF COPYRIGHT BY ROYALTY STAMPS.

THE Pall Mail Gazette says that an American author, whose books have a large sale not only in England but on the continent, has conceived a plan of protecting authors by a system of stamps such as are used by the revenue department.

"The engraving of a design, carefully executed to prevent forgery," he is reported having said," would be with modern mechanical appliances a very slight expense to the author. The international copyright stamp might bear the joint emblems of England and America, and in the centre the fac-simile of the author's signature or intials. The author might then, for a price agreed upon, issue so many hundred or thousand stanips to any publisher in America who thought it worth This would leave unwhile to reprint his book. touched the present free-trade system. publisher would still take his risk of competition, and with a book known to be popular by its English success there is no other risk. All publishers alike would have to charge a little more than they do at present—say a shilling instead of tenpence (25 cents instead of 20 cents); but this would not touch the vested interests of the trade in reprints, which are now very large, and are no longer confined to the Eastern States. No monopoly would be given to any American publisher. He would undertake his enterprise as he does now, and freely compete with the rest of the trade for both author and public. But the author's profit would be secure, and far from grudging it, the American public would be glad to know he had it. It is quite another thing to ask them to pay six times as much for their books when the greater part of the increase reaches not the author, but the publisher. sell a copy of a copyright book without a stamp would be an infringement of the copyright, for which an action could be brought by author or publisher, and might, in addition, be made an offence punishable by fine and forfeiture of the printed copies. The return of the unsold stamps and the payment of the sum agreed upon per copy sold would complete the transaction between author and publisher. It would be quite easy, if this were not considered sufficient check, to number each stamp consecutively from one to a thousand, and so on,"

THE MORALITY OF AN INTERNA-TIONAL COPYRIGHT LAW.

From the Washington Post, January 14.

"Now Barabbas," as Byron is well remembered to have said, "was a publisher." Unhappily the crime of the modern Barabbas finds not only popular palliation, but actual encouragement. We belp him to criminate himself by delaying to make his offence penal. Barabbas finds in every one of us a willing accessory after the fact.

The conscience of the public and the conscience of the publisher upon this question seem to be wrapped in lethargic conditions that retract with beautiful unanimity. But the cheering fact that that moral attribute has not been wholly eliminated from the public, at least, is cheerfully evident in the feeble stir that has occurred periodically during the past few years, and that promises speedy development into action under the present concerted pressure of the class immediately affected.

The desirability of international copyright has long been conceded. It has been for some time evident, even to the masses who profit most by existent arrangement or lack of arrangement, that the constructor of a poem deserves the same protection for the product of his brain as he does who aids to the material bliss of living by the invention of an automatic baby-jumper. In fact, it has been admitted in some quarters that, on account of the inherent dignity of his calling and its beneficent effect upon all mankind, the poet may be entitled to rather more consideration than falls to the lot of the ingenious individual aforesaid.

Also that we should literally license thlevery is a national course that finds a feeble but growing condemnation. It is useless to state in deprecation that England adopts the same tactics in dealing with American literature. Two national wrongs never made an international right. But these are considerations of barren honor. While the average Congressman regards such considerations with tolerance, it is generally accepted that he declines to legislate upon them. The question, however, has a practical side.

The lack of international copyright law has a distinctly discouraging effect upon American Authorship. In the first place, so vast is the number of standard works at present extant and every day re-issued, that few publishers find demand enough for new books by new people. to enable them to offer proper remuneration for literary labor. This is a difficulty that grows daily in the path of the aspiring litterateur, and can only be surmounted by giving him the chance to seek an English publisher as well as on American one, whose right should be as exclusive as the latter's. In the second place, while reprints of English works may be issued for the cost of material and labor, where is the American publisher's inducement to pay for home talent . If the competition were permitted to exist, and Ameri an genus went to the wall, it might be accepted as humiliation, but justice; but under present conditions the American book-maker is handicapped beyond all equity.

International copyright would confer upon the literary—in its constructive sense—class of America a double boon. Abroad it would create another paying public, at home it would teduce at least to a fair rivalry the works of foreigners.

The deterrent effect of its absence upon the best literary effort of America can be measured, if at all, only by the comparative infrequency of a valuable book in our publishers' catalogues which owes its creation to home talent. It is poor argument to point to the length and variety of such lists under present conditions ination will disclose the extent to which they are composed of publications that the most charitable criticism fails to find worthy of their binding Scribblers are never deterred by small compensation or none. The will-o'-the-wisp demands no conditions to flicker in, but the steady flame declines to glow without carbon. And carbon to any profitable quantity is not to be looked for in literature, as things are. Therefore, to $ remediable extent, the light that is in us is dark-

Every settlement of justice and right should urge Congress to take immediate action in this matter. The Queen's speech indicates that the English feel themselves under the same condemnation and will co-operate; but, since we are the greatest sinners, we may take the initiative with a very good grace. Apart from this consideration the ultimate benefit has been shown to be great. Barabbas will probably object, but let Congress immortalize itself by being for once superior to the arguments of Barabbas.

ALLEGED UNDERVALUATION OF 1M-PORTED BOOKS.

A WASHINGTON dispatch to the New York Evening Post, under date of February 23, asseris that "Mr. Roger Sherman, of Philadelphia, recently, when he announced in the Senate Committee on Patents that he is an American book pirate, made the statement that there was a report of a special customs agent, which, to suit the purposes of somebody, had been suppressed, and that this report would show a great many astounding things. The report was by Special Agent H. L. Williams, and it has not been suppressed. It was transmitted to a former Congress in a very bulky manuscript, and was not considered of sufficient interest to order printed, and is now a part of the permanent files of the House of Representatives, accessible to any responsible person who takes the trouble to apply through the proper channels to see it. If is dated. January 29, 1861, and expressed the opinion that nearly all imported books are undervalued more than fifty per cent, and that all the profit of this goes to the importer and the foreign publishing-house, and none of it to the American buyer. He claims that the American book trade is largely controlled by foreign pablishers through the co-operation of publishing houses in America. One of the devices of the foreign publisher, he says, is to sell unbound sheets of a work to an American house at a rate from fifty to eighty-eight per cent less than the retail price of the bound work, though the binding would not account for any such difference; these sheets are usually printed on paper a little thinner than that used in the regular foreigo Then the undervaluation is excused on the ground that there is no market price for this particular edition abroad."

LORD TENNISON, says the Evening Post, "has sent a dispatch to Senator Hawley, thanking him for the stand he has taken on the subject of international copyright."

THE THREE-VOLUME NOVEL SYSTEM IN ENGLAND.

"THE idea of expending good money in a a book seems revolutionary to a rich man late Rector of Lincoln said bitterly that 'many a man of $500 a year does not lay out $50 on books. Why, many a man of five, fifteen or fifty thousand does not lay out $50 yearly The newspaper suffices for the men of a household; the circulating library, with its endless stream of novelties, for the women. They only demand from a novel one thing-novelty, and that the library can give To purchase as many new romances as filter through a house from the library would be to choke up all the place with books. habits and these reasons insure the permanence of the circulating system, which, again, insures the permanence of the three-volume system. That plan probibits amateur purchase, and makes every one who does not want an old novel get his novels from the library. Again, the threevolumes keep three girls in a house occupied simultaneously—three birds are killed with one Nor is the publisher adverse to the method, for an obvious reason. Advertisement is one of the great expenses of the publisher. Now, three one-volume novels cost exactly thrice as much to advertise as a single three-volume tovel, and for each the publisher only gets, at most, a third of what the three-volume novel brings him. This is probably a strong comnercial objection, from the publisher's point of view, to the one-volume novel. He spends, let m my, £20 in advertising it, and only receives a a copy; while with the same outlay on advertising a three-volume novel he receives, my, 12s, a copy. To be sure, his paper-maker's bill is reduced by the one-volume system, but that does not appear to reconcile him to the outlay on advertisements." -- St. James's Gazette.

[The writer seems to overlook altogether the largely increased sale of the cheaper form as against the almost prohibitive high price of the three-volume form.—Ed. P. W.]

FUNERAL OF MRS. HARPER, -The funeral of Mrs. Margaret Cook Harper, wife of Fletcher Harper, took place at the Madison Avenue Methodist-Episcopal Church, on the morning of the 19th inst. Mrs. Harper's good deeds, of most of which the public knew little, and her wide friendships, brought together a great number of people by whom her loss will be severely felt. On the platform were Bishop Harris, the Rev. Dr. O. H. Tiffany, and the Rev. Albert B. Simpson. Members of the Harper family were scated in the middle aisie, and the remainder of the church was crowded with friends, among whom were Mrs. John Jacob Astor, Mrs. David Dows, Mrs. Robert Hoe, Jr., Mrs. M. K. Jesup, and Mrs. John H. Hall. There were also present Delegations from the Trustees of the Woman's Hospital and from the Ladies' Foreign Missionary and Aid Society of the Methodist-Episcopal Church. Dr. Tiffany paid an elowas at Woodlawn. It is expected that the Seaside Home for Working Girls, which she founded and supported, will become a permanent memstial to her Christian charity and her interest in good works.

COAST SURVEY PUBLICATIONS .- Dr. J. G. Kohl, the well-known German geographer, was employed by the United States Government in 1854 to prepare for the purposes of the Coast Survey a history of the discovery and exploration of the Pacific coast. He later undertook a similar task for the Gulf of Mexico and These two memoirs, owthe Atlantic coast. ing to official negligence or misunderstanding, have ever since remained in manuscript in the Coast Survey office. Doctor Kohl always alleged that the Government did not keep faith with him in regard to their publication. The authorities have now bestirred themselves to the extent of having the historical portions of the memoirs published as an appendix to the Coast Survey report for 1884. In the light of more recent knowledge they are necessarily deficient. The later and better results of Doctor Kohl's researches as regards the Atlantic coast are set forth in his " History of the Discovery of Maine," published by the Maine Historical Society as the first volume of the second series of its collections. A collection of hand copies of early maps relating to America, prepared by Doctor Kohl, is preserved in the State Department at Washington. A descriptive catalogue of these maps by Justin Winsor is in course of publication in the Harvard University Bulletin.—Providence Jour-

A JAPANESE WAY OF ADVERTISING BOOKS,-A bookseller in Tokio, Japan, says the Etening Post, desiring to seil his wares, thus acvertised them in the newspapers: " The advantages of our establishment—1, prices cheap as a lottery : 2, books elegant as a singing girl ; 3, print clear as crystal; 4, paper tough as elephant's hide; 5, customers treated as politely as by the rival steamship companies; 6, articles as plentiful as in a library; 7, goods dispatched as ex' peditiously as a cannon ball; 8, parcels done up with as much care as that bestowed on her husband by a loving wife; 9, all defects, such as dissipation and idleness, will be cured in young people paying us frequent visits, and they will become solid men; 10, the other advantages we offer are too many for language to express."

SECOND-HAND BOOKS AND INFECTIOUS DIS-EASES.—In the Third Biennial Report of the State Board of Health of the State of Iowa for 1885, Mr. H. H. Clark reports, as the result of an inquiry made among about four hundred physicians as to the occurrence of the communication of contaglous disease by second-hand school-books, that no case of such conveyance has been found, the nearest thing to it being a statement from Dr. Christian, of Wyandotte, Mich., of a case of scarlet-fever communicated from one person to another through the medium of a novel.

JOURNALISTIC NOTES.

GINN & Co. will publish in March the first number of a review devoted to history, economics, and jurisprudence, entitled The Political Science Quarterly, which is to be edited by the faculty of Political Science of Columbia College.

The Independent of February 25th contains an article entitled "The Irish National Demand," by Justin McCarthy, M.P. This is the first of a series of articles to be contributed by Mr. McCarthy to the paper of which he was an editor, when, during 1868, '69, and '70, he made his home in this country.

GENERAL SHERMAN intended to reply to General Fry at the recent meeting of the Loyal Legion, at Cincinnati, but the sudden death of General Hancock on the evening before changed the entire programme. General Sherman then sent his carefully prepared address to the North America Review for publication. It will appear in the March number.

"THE Strength and Weakness of Socialism" is the title of a striking and timely article by Dr. Washington Gladden, in the forthcoming March number of the Century. Dr. Gladden attempts to show what the Socialists think and want. Dr. Gladden also gives his own views on this pressing public question—the result of many years of observation and study.

THE March number of Outing is the first one issued under the new editorial management of Poultney Bigelow. It has nearly one hundred illustrations, and realizes what may be truly called "a gentleman's magazine of sport, travel, and physical recreation free from all objectionable features." The new offices are now at 140 Nassau St., New York, the move from Boston having been made in January.

The Forum is to be the title of a new magazine, announced from 97 Fifth Avenue, New York. It will be modelled after the English reviews in the matter of type, margins, and paper, and among the contributors to the first number are James Parton, E. P. Whipple, John Fiske, Dr. Howard Crosby, and Edward Everett Hale. Its editor is Mr. Metcalf, who, for many years, was associated with Mr. Rice in the editorial management of the North American Review. The first number will be issued in March.

NOTES ON CATALOGUES.

THE Cornell University Library Bulletin for December, 1685, just received, contains some very valuable "Reference Notes on Journalism."

THE PHONOGRAPHIC INSTITUTE, Cincinnati, O., has issued a catalogue of the Phonographic works of Benn Pitman and Jerome B. Howard. (49 p., 16°.)

THOMAS WHITTAKER, N. Y., has published a "Lenten List," comprising books suitable for reading in the coming season of Lent, manuals on the communion, books for confirmation candidates, etc. (16 p., 16.)

THE Harvard University Bulletin for January contains a further list of the "Kohl Collection of Early Maps;" also a continuation of the "Index to Maps in the Royal Geographical Society's Publications," two valuable aids to the historical tudent.

W. E. Brajanta is about to publish another catalogue of autograph letters and original manuscripts. It will comprise Mr. James R. Osgood's collection. Among the manuscripts to be offered are those of Emerson's "Representative Men," Holmes's "Autocrat of the Breakfast fable," a story by Hawthorne, and an unpublished poem by Keats.

DICKENS COLLECTION.—A catalogue just issued by Mr. Charles Hutt, Clement's Inn Gateway, contains a complete set of original editions of Charles Dickens's works contained in sixty-eight volumes. Forster's Life, the Letters of Dickens, and Pierce's Dickens's Dictionary, with some other ana, are included. Mr. Hutt informs us that it is the second complete set of Dickens's works which he was able to make up during last year. In other respects the catalogue is interesting, as it contains many rare and curious books.—London Bookselier,

MR. WILLIAM REEVES will immediately issue, with Mr. Ruskin's sanction, a catalogue to the Millais Exhibition at the Grosvenor. Its special feature will consist in numerous critical selections from the writings of Mr. Ruskin bearing on Millais's pictures, chiefly derived from his famous Præ-Raphaelite letters to The Times and other sources. The work will be published with the "Notes" previously issued by Mr. Ruskin, and at the same charge—viz., is. A few copies will also be available on large paper.—London Literary World.

BIBLIOGRAPHY OF EGYPT AND THE SOUDAN. The first portion of the work upon which it was announced many months ago that Prince Ibrahim-Himly was engaged has at length bees issued by Messrs. Trubner & Co. "The magnitude of the task essayed by the compiler," says the London Bookseller, "may be better understood by the statement that the bibliography covers several thousand years. It was designed to include the most ancient fragments of papyri to be found in the museums of Europe, Greek, Coptic, and Arabic manuscripts, down to the most recent works of European authors of every nationality. How well the task has been performed must be left to those who are competent to judge. We, at least, can testify to the many evidences of minute care which are shows in its pages. Although in this instalment the alphabet of names is carried no further than 'Lyt,' the materials fill a quarto volume of the hundred and ninety-eight pages set in double columns. The arrangement is that known as the dictionary plan, with cross-references from titles to authors. The author informs us in the preface that the work of compilation has been his chief employment during five years of enforced exile, passed chiefly in England. His Highness has certainly turned his enforced leisure to good account, and has filled a space in hibiographical literature which might otherwise how remained vacant for an indefinite period."

CATALOGUES OF SECOND-HAND BOOKS.—D. G. Francis, N. Y.: Old English Literature, works rel. to American Indians, American Astiquities, etc. (No. 79, 40 p., 8°.)—Henry Grey, Manchester. JOSEPH BOYD, Dayton, O., has issued the "Ohio Teacher's Blue Book." This is said to contain the name and post-office address of over twenty-one hundred officers and members of school boards (including four hundred township and special clerks), and of more than fifty-five hundred teachers now actually in service. The price has been put at $1.50.

WILLIAM R. JENKINS warns the trade against a young man who gives his name as L. G. Bliss, who pretends to be a Yale College student, makes liberal purchases, and offers checks largely in excess of the amounts purchased by him. These checks are worthless, and, of course, those unsuspecting enough to give "change" will find themselves out of pocket.

TICKNOR & Co. deny the statement recently copied into our columns from the Boston Literary World that "Will Carleton was beyond question" the author of "Geraldine." "Such," they say, "is not the case. The authorship of Geraldine has never been divulged, although that American and evangelistic and Lucile-like rhythmical romance sells by thousands every year."

Houghton, Mifflin & Co. have in preparation Bret Harte's "Snow Bound at Eagle's," a school edition of Richard Grant White's "Words and Their Uses." and a new edition, uniform with the Riverside Aldine Series, of Mrs. Jameson's "Sacred and Legendary Art." They will issue at once a volume by the Rev. Dr. W. H.
Furness, of Philadelphia, consisting of translations of German poems and hymns of his own composition; a new volume of verse by Whittier, containing the poems he has written since the publication of "The Bay of Seven Islands" in 1883; also a new library edition of Macaulay's complete works.

Andrews & Witherby, Ann Arbor, Mich., will publish for the Department of Philosophy of the University of Michigan a collection of monographs relating to various philosophical subjects, or aiming at a philosophical treatment of miscellaneous topics. The first series, to be issued during the present year—probably during the first half of the year—will consist of four numbers, containing the following papers and addresses, delivered before the Philosophical Society of the University: "University Education," by Prof. G. S. Morris; "Goethe and the Conduct of Life," by Prof. Calvin Thomas; "Educational Value of Different Studies," by Prof. W. H. Payne; "Philosophy and Literature," by Prof. B. C. Burt; and "Herbert Spencer as a Biologist," by Prof. H. Sewall. The price of the series of four numbers, (the lectures by Profs. Burt and Sewell being printed as one number,) has been fixed at 75 cents. Single numbers will cost 25 cents.

G. P. PUTNAM'S Sons will shortly publish a work embracing "Documents Illustrative of American History, 1606–1863," edited, with introductions and explanatory notes, by Howard W. Preston; also a volume of sketches of travels in Japan and elsewhere by George Cullen Pearson, entitled "Flights Inside and Outside Paradise," and a volume of poetry by James Herbert Morse, called "Summer Haven Verses." In the series of Questions of the Day they will issue at once a volume entitled "Unwise Laws: A Comprehensive View of the Operation of a Protective Tariff upon Industrial and Commercial Affairs," by Lewis H. Blair. nounce a work which Professor Alexander Johnston, of Princeton, has in preparation, devoted to the "History of the United States from 1840 down to the Close of 1885." The summary of events since the close of the war will, it is believed, be found of no little practical value, as the events of this period have not thus far been recorded in any convenient or accessible form. The history is expected to be completed in one octavo volume.

ELLIOT STOCK, London, has in preparation a critical essay by J. H. Round on "The Early Life of Anne Boleyn."

Sampson Low & Co. will publish next month a novel entitled "Fellow Travellers," written by Mr. Edward Fuller, of the editorial staff of the Boston Advertiser.

Longmans & Co. hope to publish next autumn the first volume of "A History of the Great Civil War," by Mr. S. R. Gardiner.

MIFFLIN & Co. publish on the the Riverside Aldine Series Mr. y Warner's "Back-log Studies;" to 8 of "The Works of Thomas dited by A. H. Bullen; and a new Anna Jameson's Works—"Char-Women," and "Memoirs of the 'oets."

s & Co. have prepared for the three dainty booklets, entitled old," "Fair Thoughts and Happy d"Beyond the Clouds." The se original poems by Mrs. A. N. we printed in a most artistic mane illustrated with original designs e photogravure process on India us tints.

GOTTSBERGER will issue on the Life and Works of Lorenz Alma Tadema," by George Ebers, whose great novels show a quality of descriptive, historical, and artistic writing that must prove telling in biography. The translation from the German has been intrusted to Mary J. Safford, who has already done very good work for this house, which makes a specialty of translations.

ROBERTS BROS. have just ready "César Birotteau," by Honoré de Balzac, uniform with the previous issues; "The Ordeal of Richard Féverel," a history of a father and son, by George Meredith, being the first issue of a new and handsome library edition, in large type, of this consummate word-artist; also "Atlanta in the South," by Maud Howe, a new romance, surpassing any previous work of the author, in strength and imagination.

A. D. F. RANDOLPH & Co. have in press "The Wisdom of the Apocalypse," by the Rev. J. H. McIlvaine, D.D., who aims to interpret the "Revelation of St. John," in a manner interesting and intelligible to average readers and students of the Bible, even more than to scholars. The author has made a life-long study of the interpretation of the symbols of the Christian, Hindu, Greek, Roman, Egyptian, and other religions, and brings to his work much research and originality of treatment.

LEE & SHEPARD have just ready a unique Easter gift in a souvenir prepared by Irene E. Jerome, the author and designer of "One Year's Sketch Book." It is entitled "The Message of the Bluebird, told to me to tell to others," and in its dainty combination of song and illustration exhibits the same charming poetic taste and artistic touch which made this lady's "Sketch Book" at once famous among illustrated art works. It has eight full-page illustrations, wood-cuts, printed on plated paper, which are enclosed in covers of "Imperial Antique," knotted with silk floss, and neatly packed in an attractive box.

TICKNOR & Co. have just ready the "Life of Henry Wadsworth Longfellow," ably edited by Rev. Samuel Longfellow, the brother of the great poet. Domestic, personal, family details, anecdotes, reminiscences, and memorabilia of every variety have been furnished from all sides for this remarkable book, and the interest is strengthened, if possible, by the addition of portraits, wood-cuts, engravings, and fac-similes. The work will be issued in two volumes in various styles of binding, including cloth, half calf, half morocco, etc. A limited édition de luxe, with special portraits, is also promised. Undoubtedly this eagerly-expected "Life of Longtellow" will be one of the most important publications of this country. Among other interesting volumes promised immediately are "Curiosities of the Old Lottery," by Henry M. Brooks, gleaned principally from Boston and Salem treasures of "Ye olden time;" the third edition of "Artistic Homes in City and Country," by Albert W. Fuller, architect, with seventy-six full-page illustrations, several of which are from gelatine plates, and take the place of designs discarded since the earlier editions, with the addition also of a colored plate of oblong folio size; and a peculiar volume, to be entitled "Light on the Hidden Way," a study of immortality, containing an account of personal experiences in relations between the seen and the unseen, which is given distinction by an introduction by James Freeman Clarke.

"A spirited and pathetic sketch of manners, character, and scenery in the Scottish Highlands. The scene is laid in the wilds of Caithness and Sutherland, and the time is the earlier half of the last century.... The story of the Young Pretender is introduced apparently to illustrate the passionate attachment of the Highlander to the house of Stuart, and a sadder or more dramatic chapter was never written than that which describes the slaughter of the Macallisters at Culloden, and the burial of their last laird. We can heartily commend the book for its vivid local coloring, its historical interest, and its simplicity and purity of diction."—New York Sun.

Bayma, Jos. Elements of geometry for the use of beginners. San Francisco, A. Wald-teufel, 1885. 137 p., il. D. cl., $1.25.

Written for the younger students of Santa Clara College, California, in which the author is professor of mathematics. He claims that while the book contains nothing new, it is not a mere compilation. Its concise arrangement and simplicity of method are its chief points. It embraces all the theorems that have, in the author's opinion, real importance, and its whole contents may be learned within six or seven months in the first year of the mathematical curriculum.

Bebel, August. Woman in the past, present and future; from the German by H. B. Adams Walther. N. Y., Julius Bordollo & Co., 1886. 268 p. S. (Labor lib., no. 2.)

pap., 30 c.

An argument aiming to show the necessity of placing men and women on the same footing of equality, socially and politically. The author is a socialist and an atheist, and would extend to woman the same license to ignore moral laws that he claims for man. He reviews woman's position in her relations to man from the beginning of time to the present day, and draws, what he considers, an enticing picture of her future, when freed from the social and moral restraints which he believes now impede her progress, that no intelligent and conscientious woman can desire to see realized.

Carswell, E: Let it alone and it won't hurt you. N. Y., National Temperance Soc. and Pub. House, 1886. 286 p. il. D. cl., $1.

A bright domestic story, illustrating not only that the we of strong drink is wrong, but that it hurts others besides those who use it. The heroine, Mabel, a girl of fifteen, is a orphan, who to earn a living becomes a governess in a family, some of the members of which are ignorant and inclined to intemperence. Many of the incidents are quite painful.

1886. 26+592 p. D. cl., $1.75.

Gabriel Compayré, one of the most distinguished educators in France, was born Jan. s. 1843, at Albi, southern France. He lectured for many years at the universities of Pan and Poitiers, and issued a number of works on philosophical, social, and political questions. The present work is one of his most important, and, according to the translator "represents very nearly the ideal of the treatise that is needed by the teaching profession of this country." It goes back to education in antiquity and among the Greeks and Romans, the early Christians, and the Middle Ages, and thence down through the various epochs, noting prominent teachers, and educators, and philosophers, and giving an account of their methods and theories. Pestalozz and Froebel come in for a good share of attention, while the educational methods of to-day are fully described.

renty-eight essays Prof. Raymond, of the eat Princeton, maintains that poetry "is tes of the nature of the fine arts; and ne essential is a representative form apthrough that which causes him to address and he undertakes to show that there are absolute standards of poetic excellence, which can be ascertained, and that upon them can be founded a system of criticism both simple and scientific. In so far as a poem departs from a truly representative intention or form, it is detective. Prof. Raymond discusses this principle with great elaborateness and with copious illustrations drawn from the works of English poets of all times.

Prof. Schmidt offers this work as a supplement to his "Doctrine of descent and Darwinism." "It will be found," he says in his preface, "to contain proof of the necessity, the truth, and the value of Darwinism as the foundation for the theory of descent, within a limited field, and is brought down to the most recent times." The book is divided into two parts. The first, a general introduction, considers the position of mammals in the animal kingdom; the phenomena of convergence; the distinctive characteristics of mammals; the extension of palsontological science since Cuvier and the strata of the tertiary. The second is devoted to a special comparison of the living mammals and their ancestors.

NOTES ON CATALOGUES.

A Bibliography of Justus Lipsius.—Camille Vyt, publisher in Ghent, Belgium, announces a full bibliography of the works of Justus Lipsius. It is taken from the Bibliotheca Belgica, for years published by this firm, which is edited by the Librarian of the Ghent University in connection with other librarians, of which gigantic undertaking sixty-six parts have already been issued. The "Bibliographie Lipsienne" will be published in three volumes, of which the first is just ready for mailing.

NASH & PIERCE, 80 Nassau St., N. Y., have just published their second catalogue of Miscellaneous Books, including bibliography, Shakespeariana, sporting, etc. (16 p. 12mo.)

THE OBJECTIONS TO INTERNATIONAL COPYRIGHT.

THERE are two great reasons for international copyright—the general principle of justice inciting us to pay foreign authors for the service they do us, and the unwisdom of discouraging home literature by subjecting home authors and home books to competition with absolutely unpaid labor. The plea against the first, that a nation legislates chiefly for its own citizens, is met by the second, as well as by the increasing disposition of civilized nations mutually to recognize and protect property of all kinds and of any owner. The reasons commonly advanced against international copyright are (1) that we have got on well without it, and may best leave things as they are, instead of "forcing the people to pay for what they can now have free;" (2) that it would make books dearer, whereas American civilization depends on cheap education, which in turn depends on cheap books; (3) that the benefit would be, not to the foreign author, but to the foreign publisher, who would foist on us English editions and take work from our mechanics; (4) that the best foreign authors stimulate our own to greater efforts, so that they can supply the American market and drive out poor foreign books; (5) that copyright gives a monopoly to a few authors against the interest of the many readers, and is kindred to patents, depriving new-comers of the benefit of what they might have invented for themselves. These, as we analyze Mr. Roger Sherman's thirteen "becauses," cover the ground of his recent objections, to which wide currency has been given by him.

The answers to these objections may be briefly outlined as follows: (1) "Things as they are" are against the present standard of international honesty, and against the interest of American Moreover, people would not be "forced to pay for what they now have free," for international copyright would not be retroactive, and the cheap reprints from Shakespeare to Tennyson could still be had. (2) It would make the new books of foreign authors dearer, but by affording opportunity for wider sale of American books, it would tend to make them cheaper, distributing the original cost among larger editions.

"the last new novel," now takes an English reprint at 10 or 20 cents instead of an American work at 50 cents or $1. Moreover, even in England, while three-volume novels, etc., are higher priced than here, the many lines of popular new books are often cheaper than here (e.g., two shillings sixpence to our seventy-five cents), so that the question of relative prices has not the bearing alleged by the opponents of international copyright. The French copyright literature, with full copyright, is the cheapest in the world. American cheap education has come from cheap school-books, which are American and are already copyright. Further, "there is one thing better than a cheap book," as Mr. Lowell says, "and that is a book honestly come by;" and, above all, American civilization depends on the honesty and justice of the people. (3) The foreign author would soon learn to bargain for his American market, and American editions would best meet American wants. The increased demand for American books would also operate to give our mechanics more to do. At worst, this objection would be met by the proposed manufacturing clause (which logically, however, has no more to do than the tariff with copyright), confining copyright to books printed here. Such a clause should not, however, prohibit the use of imported stereotype plates and electros of illustrations, since otherwise we should have to pay twice for doing work that can be done once for both countries, and should cut ourselves off from printing many illustrated books. The amount of type-setting involved is exaggerated—it is probably less than that of two or three of our daily papers together, and is largely the cheap work of women or machines. The manufacturing clause is advocated by some publishers for a term of years only, until foreign authors get into the habit of dealing for the American market separately. (4) American authors would still be "stimulated" by the best foreign authors, but they would no longer be disheartened by the underselling rivalry of poor books, from unpaid labor, included by the cheap libraries to keep up their periodical character and thus keep themselves within the low postal "Genius" will doubtless have its say, pay or no pay, but much useful literature comes from men who must earn their own bread and butter and support their families, and who are now underpaid or kept from authorship by the narrow market to which they are reduced. Moreover, although American authors now get British copyright by domestic law, that source of income might be taken away by change in British law, if we deny reciprocal rights to foreign authors. The author needs the widest market he can get, to give him similar return for his The novel-devourer, buying brain-work to that obtained by men in other inellectual or business pursuits. (5) The "few" athors have a right to ask from the "many" eaders (even if it were I against 100,000,000) air pay for the service which the reader is glad o enjoy. Moreover, copyright is not kindred to eatents in the sense alleged. The first inventor of the telephone can prevent any one else patenting a telephone and utilizing the force of nature involved in it; the author cannot do anything of the kind. No other author can be worse off because he has written. Copyright is a "monopoly" only as anything which a man produces and owns is a monopoly; in this sense all property is monopoly, and the opposition to copyright becomes communism.

THE discussion of trade reform goes on vig-Retailers continue to add their testimony in our columns as to the need of a revision of the system of discounts, and, as a rule, in favor of the method of reform proposed. The statements of so many booksellers that they are actually refraining from buying books to keep up their stocks, may well excite attention from publishers. If the change is to be made, it should be started this spring, so that publishers in general might have a chance to fall in by the first of July, when new catalogues are usually prepared. As the contemplated change will not especially affect the wholesale prices of books, there is no reason to fear that "stocking up" will be interfered with by the reform or by the preliminary discussion of it. As we have before said, the proposal is simply to recognize the actual state of things by conforming the nominal system to it.

MEANTIME Mr. Wanamaker expresses solicitude for "the fever of worry" of the Publish-ERS' WEEKLY, wherein the booksellers "air their worries," and suggests that "the people themselves have something to say." That is what the Publishers' Weekly has often observed. What we have urged is a system which shall serve the interests of the people as well as of the trade, by placing books at a fair price, and thus continuing to give the public the benefit of the average discount they now actually get, and depriving the bazaars of the factitious advantage they obtain from the present system. We propose to "worry" about the present systemthat is to say, to continue its discussion—until it is bettered.

ÉDITIONS DE LUXE.—The Pall Mall Gazette says the London publishers have almost relinquished issuing works of the éditions de luxe class, the trade having turned against them. The first issues sold rapidly and rose in value, but the tide turned with the Dickens, Thackeray, Fielding, and Shakespeare issues. They would not sell. Most of the dealers still possess copies of these "cumbrous white elephants."

PETERSBURG, VA., Feb. 23, 1886.
To the Editor of the Publishers' Weekly.

SIR: As retailers and would-be booksellers we thank you for your many "good fights" on "our" side; and indeed, every bookseller and publisher would thank you, were they to look ahead and see the natural results of the present system on the part of publishers in driving out of the trade all real booksellers, and thereby injuring immensely their own interest. Unfortunately, we are not now booksellers.

During the past twenty years we have fought hard to build up a book store in truth, but we are met constantly with the idea, now held by almost every one who wants even a dollar book, that it can be bought at half price—"What discount? I can order from the publishers and save money," or "I can buy at some dry-goods house for half that amount," etc. What encouragement have we to carry a stock of books, what, even, to attempt a line of the standards?

In reply to your question of the 15th, we would say, Reduce prices, and have a uniform discount of twenty-five per cent, this discount given only to regular dealers. Thus "Cheap Johns," bazaars, and special sales—always an injury to the publishers in the long run—would soon disappear. Let some prominent publishers do this, and they would very soon find friends in every live bookseller in the land.

What prospect is there to the retailer or his clerks if the present system is to continue? Reduce prices; regular discounts to the trade, and the trade only. Oh, for hundreds like Mr. A. D. F. Randolph! T. S. BECKWITH & Co.

PHILADELPHIA, PA., Feb. 20, 1886.
To the Editor of the Publishers' Weekly.

DEAR SIR: In answer to your query concerning a short price and close discount, instead of the long price and large discount, as is now the custom, we would say that the ultimate object of the former is the hope that it will remedy the prevailing trouble in the trade, in the demoralization of prices and indiscriminate cutting, caused by an intense competition from those in and out of the trade, and especially from the latter. We doubt if the universal adoption of the short price and discount by the publishers would in the slightest change the present condition of affairs:

1. Because the retailer now sells to the public all regular publications at about what the short price list would be, therefore of no advantage to the public.

2. That the profit would be nearly about the same, therefore of no advantage to the trade.

3. That no bookseller or community of booksellers can maintain a uniform price for books, which would be the only means whereby the short price could be made of advantage.

4. That a cut will be made, be the price list long or short, net, or any condition that is made. The educational list prepared by the WEEKLY office, at great expense and labor, for the purpose of obviating the very trouble in regard to school-books, as is now under discussion concerning general publications, is a case in point. Two columns were prepared—one a just retail price, and the other a wholesale price. For a time, after the publication of the catalogue, the retail column was adhered to by the retail trade.

Shortly afterward a cut was made by some of the more enterprising (?) retailers, the final outcome of which was the general adoption of the wholesale column by the retailers in selling a single book over the counter. The close discounts of five, six, seven and eight per cent from the wholesale list price would have led any one to suppose that any further cutting would be stopped; but instead stopping, it goes still swimmingly on. Schools can buy at the trade discount, and they can sell to their scholars at cost if they choose, which they often do as an advertisement. any retailer, depending on his profits in books alone, can pull through on above discount, he deserves the greatest credit. If this is the result of the school-book question, how will a like condition of affairs—short discount—improve the miscellaneous trade? Would the result be different?

It would prevent "Publishers' price $1.50, price 55 cents," but would it prevent publisher's price $1.10, our price $1.00? Certainly, the difference between the two prices would be vastly less. But the mischief has already been accomplished. The public are educated to doubt the publisher's price, knowing that there is always a discount therefrom, be it large or small. A short price and discount will no more maintain the publisher's price than now, and the public will continue to be favored with five or ten per cent, perhaps, instead of twenty or twenty-five per cent, as heretofore; consequently, they will have no more confidence or respect in the published price than they have at present, and the retailer will be worried to death, as he is now, in keeping pace with the market price; for the lowest price of a book in any community makes the price of that book, be it below cost or Could the short list price, being a fair and equitable profit demanded by the peculiar exigencies of the business, be maintained, peace and happiness would reign. But we seriously doubt if the book-trade can by any possible reform or combination do what no other trade has done or can do—maintain a uniform price for any one article.

It has been proposed to put books on the same plane as dry goods—that is, having no list price at all, but selling at a net price, allowing the trade to make their own retail price. The same trouble would here arise as to uniformity of prices, save that it would finally prevent "publisher's price, our price," etc. An immense advantage is lost, however, in the methods of selling books in comparison with dry goods. book is a book, as, for instance, "The Autocrat at the Breakfast Table' is the same in every city, town, and village of the United States. public on a shopping expedition, asking for this work bound in cloth and the price, would always be shown the same book, of which the buyer could judge for himself, though the prices might vary considerably by the time he had made the tour of the principal thoroughfare. Suppose, for instance, in answer to the inquiry, the retailer informs his customer that his price for the book is $1.60, he is informed that just below him the other enterprising retailer offered it to him at $1.50, and still further down the street $1.45 a not uncommon occurrence, by the way. Now, Such a contingency in the note the difference. dry-goods trade is smilingly met with the assertion, "That the line we offer is a much superior class of goods, worth double the money; that we would not sell our customers such muslin, etc., it being badly made, sized, etc., an imperfect lot from the mills; but our goods are perfect in every way, etc.," an assertion that not one buyer out of thousands would probably be able to gainsay without the closest comparison and inspection and a thorough knowledge of the goods in question. How is it with the bookseller? Will any of these excuses answer? Are there mediums—extra-heavy, super, imperfectly finished, or a special cheap goods, etc., of "The Autocrat at the Breakfast Table"? Is the one quoted at $1.60 so superior to the $1.45? Tell the customer some fairy story about being an old copy, long in stock, secondhand, etc., and if he does not ask you if you think he is a fool, he thinks so, nevertheless. You either sell it to him at that price, or out he goes, knowing full well, and without any extra qualification of critical discrimination as to the art of bookmaking, that the one at $1.45 was identically the same, all of which he could see at a glance. The advantage this gives the drygoods man over the book man is immense; the former can sail before all winds, and come out on top with a fine average of profits, but the book man gets the gale in his teeth all the time, and sees his profits go with it. No wonder he gets mad once in a while, and forms various protective associations, has a high time—nay a joyous time, looking forward to prospective profits, which, in spite of all his care, hard work, and persuasion, works on others, finally comes to grief, and down he goes again, utterly desperate. This trouble is not indigenous to this country alone; it prevails throughout the trade in England and on the continent of Europe. remedy it has been under discussion for some years, without accomplishing any desirable result. Nor is it confined to our own trade alone; nearly every branch of industry is suffering from the same cause. Such being the case, it certainly would seem as if some remedy should have been devised. That it has not would point very conclusively to the fact that it is an impossibility for any trade organization to so control prices within themselves that there shall be no breaking of prices, and its consequent demoralization. A good deal of the trouble has arisen from exorbitant prices in almost every trade in times past, when the exigencies of the times permitted it, and failing to scale them down in keeping with the condition of the market as This has given values constantly decreased. the opportunity to the bazaar systems to score a point against our trade as well as others by a comparison of the great difference between the list price and the selling price. Now, the bazaar system all over the world is having a very deleterious influence on the small dealer; and as these bazaar systems are always carried on in the interest of the consumers, and not the proprietors —as they would have the public believe—it would be reasonable to suppose that the millennium had certainly come. As the bazaars, by the use of large capital, can offer inducements to the public that no single dealer in any one line can possibly offer, and thereby gain the bulk of the trade, they are necessarily content with a very small profit in comparison with what the small dealer must have in order to live. Is not this the point aimed at by the present discussion—that of low prices and small discounts—the attainment of which will remedy the desperate competition

t is now going on? If this be the point, would the bazaar system solve the problem, and ald not cutting of prices, etc., come to an i, especially when they sell at less profit than mokseller must have to live, and with which ry are able to put up with on the theory of seral average on the vast miscellaneous quanles of goods they can sell? We would suppose mpetition ended there, but does it? On the attary, the giants are fighting each other with esperation somewhat appalling. They accuse thother of all methods of quaint dealing, setting their individual selves as the only ones who we more business than they can handle, because they protect the public," they have but "one rice," the same to all, and this they claim in site of the frequent clearance sales of hundreds thousands of dollars of goods below cost lways (?), to make room for new goods coming (?). This reduction of price is either a neessity or it works well—perhaps more often ie former—for large capital have large bills to ay, and how does this clearance sale affect the ayer, who a few weeks previous bought at an dvanced price—of course a merely nominal adance over the cost (?)—when by waiting a few recks he could have got it below cost (?). s called enterprise and fair dealing. Perhaps t is. Does this not prove that trade, under the supposed most enlightened and only correct way of doing business, still suffers from the very roubles that have existed long prior to their inception, and that if goods are sold at cost it will not prevent some from giving goods away, for the sake of monopolizing the pleasure?

Combination of capital in every commercial enterprise is the tendency of the age. We cannot escape it—it is inevitable; we cannot legislate against it, nor can we combine against it. Lowering prices on discount will not stop it, for competition in every possible grade will live so long as humanity exists. It is one of the pleasures we are entitled to as our portion of the world's benefit. There is no use for the retailer to blame the publishers for selling to the bazaars, and that in his hands lies all the remedy for the ills we suffer under. No publisher can maintain a price, however large or small that price may be, when the retailer whom he would like to protect cannot protect himself in his own community. Nor is it likely that the retailer who now complains of the publisher selling to the bazaar would refuse to do the same thing, did he become a publisher. It is pretty hard lines for the retailer to sit by and contemplate the glorious state of affairs. As misery likes company, he can console himself that every other trade is in the same predicament, and that likewise the paragons of excellence—the bazaars -are having a parrot-and-monkey time of it in beir own peculiar way among themselves, to be injury of those directly and indirectly conterned. It would seem, therefore, that the only hing to be done is to go on doing as we have done, the best we can, and wait for a change in the course of events; some of us may live to see it. Then, what next? Co-operative stores? C. E. Butler & Co.

WHEELING, W. VA., Feb. 25, 1886.

To the Editor of the Publishers' Weekly.

Six: We feel called upon to place ourselves on record in this matter of a reduction of retail prices by saying that we are heartily and entirely in favor of it.

We have no cut-and-dried scheme to propose, and would hesitate to propose it if we had, knowing, as we do, only the retailers' side of the case. We have thought from our standpoint that perhaps there should be two lines of discount to the trade, say twenty-five per cent on one to ten copies and thirty or thirty-three and one third on lots of ten or more on new miscellaneous and standard books, and say thirty-three and one third to forty per cent on juveniles in same lots.

Of course these discounts must be based on revised prices, so that the net cost to the dealer may be no more than at present.

As it is, there is constant temptation to dishonest practices with your customers, as dealers usually mark the list price in the volume, whether the discount is fifteen per cent or fifty per cent, with the intention, perhaps, in the latter case to make a corresponding discount to the buyer; but as this discount is not uniform, there is a strong probability that the dealers' "shave" will vary, or that even in the same store clerks and proprietors will give different people different prices at different times (or words to that effect). At any rate, there can be no uniformity of prices, even in one's own place of business, but rather a system of charging each customer what he will "stand."

This is unpleasant, not to say unfair, giving all the best bargains to the worst "Jews." We escape this to some extent by dividing part of our stock of books into different priced sections. "Your choice' here for forty-five cents, there for sixty cents, etc., putting in all books that will pay us say fifty per cent profit or stock that has accumulated and "stuck" at regular rates. This savors of the 'bazaar; but we are forced to it by the ridiculous list prices of the publishers on certain lines of 12mos and other competing lines. The idea of listing and printing on the boxes of certain "Waverley novels" $18, when they may be had on the market for $4.50 net, or seventy-five per cent discount!

We appreciate the remarks of J. C. S., of Watertown, in reference to the competition of certain uncertain publishers who send their trade sales price lists to private buyers and their very amiable agents to the trade. Reputable stationers or blank-book makers do not do this, but are content to leave the distribution of their goods to the trade. We regret that the unorganized state of the retail book trade prevents the wholesome discipline of the boycott. We had a sample of it to-day, when we endeavored to take an order for one of H. C. Lea's publications (medical), but could not meet the offer of twenty per cent which had been made from some Eastern bookseller or publisher.

This shows conclusively that the shortening of discounts, while it will rid us of the bazaar butcher, will still leave us the publisher pirate. But one thing at a time. So here is to low prices and short discounts.

A QUESTION TO PUBLISHERS.

To the Editor of the Publishers' Weekly.

CINCINNATI, March 2, 1886.

How can you expect Reform from publishers?
The Publishers' Weekly for February 27 contains four advertisements of publishers.

Wanamaker's Book News (or March contains the advertisements of twenty-two publishers! What do they care for booksellers! What they are after is the retail trade, through dry-goods cutters. What do they care if Wanamaker does make a third off! They say to his customers, Here are our books and our prices, but just look how very cheap you can get them from 'Wanamaker!

CINCINNATI,

THE " SUPPRESSED" TREASURY REPORT.

PHILADELPHIA, March 1, 1886.

To the Editor of the Publishers' Weekly.

DEAR SIR: Noticing in the February number of the Publishers' Wrekly, page 306, what purports to be a Washington dispatch to the N. Y. Evening Post of February 23, in regard to my remarks about the report made by special agent H. L. Williams, and contradicting that the said report was suppressed. I feel myself obliged to say to you that on my first visit to Washington, February 5, in a conversation with Senator Chace of Rhode Island, touching this report, he told me he had on one occasion sent a messenger to the Treasury Department for this report, but not succeeding in obtaining it after repeated efforts, he had finally gone himself and been referred from one official to another; was finally told by some chief of department that it was against public policy that this report should be made public, and he was refused access to it.

ROGER SHERMAN.

A DIRECT QUASTION TO THE TRADE

23 SOUTH NINTH STREET, | PHILADELPHIA, Feb. 24, 1886, |

To the Editor of the Publishers' Weekly.

DRAR SIR: You have written to me several times regarding a catalogue of my books, and only the question of advertised price has kept me from making one. It is now necessary that it be made, and as the subject is receiving some attention, and you have requested opinions, I would like to know what the trade thinks of such a form as this:

Nominal Net Mailing Price, Price. Price. Price.

Hayes' Open Polar Sea. $1. 500. 650.

Whitman's Leaves of Grass. $2.00 $1,50 $1,65

(A small note of explanation being printed in Catalogue.)

I can readily understand that there will be objections to the three columns; but if the nominal price is not given, people in general would not think that my books were as good as those issued by other houses and advertised at retail price; even the trade (in case of hurried reference) would be apt to make the same mistake. Without the mailing price it would be hard for those at a distance to make their customers understand that they would have to pay an advance on the net price, while I as a retailer must have a net price for my home trade. I can imagine some saying that it makes no difference what McKay does with his fifteen books. It may not to them, but it does to McKay! And as I have given the matter no little thought, I will feel under obligation to any one who will express an opinion on above method. Of course If the representative houses were to drop this mominal price business I would be happy indeed to dispense with it. DAVID MCKAY.

MR. WANAMAKER'S LATEST.

From advertisement in Philadelphia papers of March s.
Such is Book News. And what do you think it costs? Three cents for the month, twenty-five cents for the year.

And while we are selling books by the hundreds—nay, thousands of tons, and scattering information about them, which causes other tons to be sold by booksellers everywhere—we have no patent on bookselling—booksellers worry themselves about our bookselling. Hadn't they better try to do as we do, and see if they can't sell as we sell?

There's the Publishers' Weekly, New York, in a fever of worry. Booksellers air their worries in it. Worry away, both Publishers' Weekly and booksellers! By and by you'll-find that the people themselves have something to say.

OBITUARY. HENRY STEVENS.

HENRY STEVENS, the eminent American bibliographer, died at his residence in London, on February 28, after a long and painful illness. Mr. Stevens was a son of Henry and a descendant of Captain Phineas Stevens, and was born at Barnet, Vt., August 24, 1819. He studied at Middlebury College, 1838-39, and graduated ■ Yale College in 1843, and at Cambridge Law School in 1844. The following year he went to London, where he has since resided as agent for American libraries in the purchase of rare and valuable books. He was instrumental in placing in the British Museum a very complete collection of "Americana," and he also purchased for the Smithsonian Institution, the Library of Congress, and the chief libraries of this country most of the recent valuable acquisitions. He was also a most industrious compiler of bibliographics and catalogues, and it is safe to say that it will be hard to find a successor who will put so much careful and conscientious labor and so much individual character into a bibliographical treatist and a catalogue as did Henry Stevens. There us no mistaking his work, so deep was the press of his genius upon it-taking what he oduced from the mechanical or from the inlectual point of view. Among the more imrtant of his works are the following: "A stalogue Raisonné of English Bibles' (1854); A Catalogue of American Books in the Library the British Museum" (1856); " A Catalogue the Crowninshield Library" (1860), " A atalogue of the Library of Baron Humboldt" 861), which he had purchased, "Historical aggets," two volumes (1858); "Bibliotheca mericana" (1861); and "Bibliotheca Histora" (1870), the latter book being the catalogue I the library of his father, of whom it contains biographical sketch. He also prepared inexes to the "State Papers in London Relating New Jersey" (1858); "Maryland" (ten vol-mes), "Rhode Island" (six volumes), and Virginia" (1858), the latter three being in Ms. esides these he published a work on "The ehuantepec Railway" (1869), two small volmes of "Historical and Geographical Notes" t863), relating to early explorations in America. nd a very characteristic treatise on "Who spoils Our Books." He also began late last ear the second series of his "Historical Nugets." Those who have attended any of the Inglish Library Conferences will recall with deight and sorrow the delightful companionship of Mr. Stevens, always vigorous and enthusiastic it play as well as at work.

PRACTICAL NOTES.

FADED PLUSH GOODS.—The Scientific Americae states that plush goods and all articles dyed with aniline colors, faded from exposure to the ight, will look as bright as ever after being sponged with chloroform. The commercial thloroform will answer the purpose very well, and is less expensive than the purified.

CEMENT.—To make a cement for sticking the edges of writing paper together for making into pads, take a quarter of an ounce crude guttapercha dissolved in carbon disulphide to the tonsistency of mucilage. A simple plan is to se glue with a five per cent addition of glycer-me

GRAND - MEMOIRS - Charles L. Webster & Co., the publishers of Gen. Grant's book, sent Mrs. Grant a check on February 27 for $200,on as her proportion of the proceeds so far denved from the sale of the General's book. This is spoken of as the largest sum ever received before in one lump by an author for a book. Madulay as a first payment received what was conadered at the time a tabulous sum, £20,000 $100,000). Sir Walter Scott made about $500,no by his pen in something like ten years, but 200,000 in one year is altogether unpreceented. The Times, in commenting on the trms made by Messrs. Webster & Co. with ien. Grant, says that though they were liberal, Vehiter & Co. "have nevertheless profited 'argethemselves. They agreed to give him sevenr per cent of the net profits derived from the ale of the home edition, and eighty-five per cent f the profits of the foreign edition. Sampson ow, Marston, Searle & Rivington, of London, ho publish the foreign edition, give Webster & o, ninety per cent of the net profits. This is fewise the largest percentage ever obtained an American book abroad." The second some will be ready some time during April.

NOTES ON AUTHORS.

EDWARD EGGLESTON, it is reported, has written a novel of Western life of about the length of his "Hoosier Schoolmaster."

MR. EDMUND NOBLE, whose little book entitled "The Russian Revolt" will be remembered, has almost ready for press a work entitled "Speech and the Environment."

JOHN COVENTRY, the author of the novel entitled "After Its Kind," is the pseudonym of Dr. J. W. Palmer. Messrs. Holt & Co. have in press another novel by him, which may be looked for shortly.

Miss A. Mary F. Robinson will publish at once, through Mr. T. Fisher Unwin, a new volume of poems, entitled "An Italian Garden." It will include Strambotti, Rispetti, Stornelli, a Foletta, a Rifiorita, and other things that might be sung in "an Italian garden."

THE Boston Trateller has a letter from "Margery Dean" (Mrs. Pitnam, of Newport), in which she alludes to the translator of the Balzac novels, published by Messrs. Roberts Bros., as follows: "How well Balzac is translated in this Roberts' edition! Miss Katherine P. Wormeley, of New York, is the translator. She is the daughter of an English officer who lives here, and is noted for her charitable work. I believe it has never been stated that she does this translating."

Louis Strvenson's new story will be entitled "Kidnapped; being memoirs of the adventures of David Balfour in the year 1751 how he was kidnapped and cast away; his sufferings in a desert isle; his journeys in the wild highlands; his acquaintance with Alan Breck Stewart and the sons of the notorious Rob Roy; with all that he suffered at the hands of his Uncle Ebenezer Balfour, of Shaws, talsely so called; written by himself, and now set forth by Mr. Stevenson"

JOURNALISTIC NOTES.

MRS. FRANCES H. BURNETT, the novelist, has written a serial story for St. Nicholar, called "Little Lord Fauntleroy," the hero of which is a boy-character who is as new as he is delightful. The first instalment is issued in the March number.

THE Decorator and Furnisher for March contains, among other excellent matter, an article of special interest devoted to the recent decorations in the New York Academy of Music, intrusted to the firm which furnishes the four pages of illustrations that explain the elaborate work undertaken. It gives also a long article on the interior of the White House, an article on a prominent Philadelphia studio, and reproductions of several pieces of handsome furniture.

The first number of the Forum, announced in our last issue, is at hand and fully up to the mark of its promises. The editor, Lorettus S. Metcalf, formerly associate editor with Mr. Thorndyke Rice in the North American Kevicae, has prepared a richly varied magazine, appealing to many qualities of cultured taste. The contributors are Professor Alexander Winchell, James Parton, Edwin P. Whipple, Rev. Dr. R. H. Newton, Bishop A. Cleveland Coxe, Dr. William A. Hammond, Rev. M. J. Savage, and Chancellor Howard Crosby, and they are at their best in this issue.

LITERARY AND TRADE NOTES.

Correction.-In our issue for February 20, in the paragraph headed "Procrustes Mudie," the name of the author of "Choson" should be, of course, Lowell, not Sewell.

JOHN MURRAY, London, has in press a book by Mr. H. H. Romilly, Deputy Commissioner for New Guinea, entitled "Recollections of a Sojourn in the Western Islands of the Pacific, with special chapters on cannibalism, poisoned arrows, and the labor trade.

THE FOREST AND STREAM PUBLISHING CO. announce a new edition of C. B. Vaux's "Canoe Handling and Sailing." The author, a member of the New York Canoe Club, is to represent American canocists next season in the international challenge races.

A, & C. BLACK has just published Mr. Find-lay's Reminiscences of De Quincey. This work contains notes made by Mr. J. R. Findlay of conversations held with De Quincey during the neven years 1852-59, the last years of his life. The work will be illustrated by copies of Sir. John Steel's bust and James Archer's chalk drawing of De Quincey, the latter as he appeared in old age.

HARPER & BROS. will issue in the spring Horace W. S. Cleveland's reproduction of his father's "Narrative of Voyages and Commercial Enterprises," with certain comments and additions of his own. It is a work that was highly praised for its simplicitly, directness, and interest forty years ago, and may prove even more attractive now, since it describes many objects and customs that no longer exist.

THE J. B. LIPPINCOTT Co. have in preparation a romance by Virginius Dabney, written with the aim of preserving some of the more picturesque features of the old South. In the earlier portions of the story, we are told, the scene is laid in Richmond and the lower "tide-water" region of Virginia; shifting, afterward, to the valley. The time includes the whole of the late war and some of the months prior to it.

D. LOTHROP & Co. have added to their Wide-Awake Art Prints "The Three Fishers," by Thomas Hovenden, and "Under the Electric Light," by F. H. Lungren, the former being suggested by Charles Kingsley's famous ballad beginning:

"Three fishers went sailing away to the West-Away to the West as the sun went down These plates are carefully printed in various tints, and will make no mean addition to any portolio of prints. They retail at 50 cents.

THE PROGRESS PUBLISHING Co. have in press a work on the "Diseases of the Sexual Organs, Male and Female," by Professor J. A. Jean-con, M.D. This is to be in large folio, illustrated with eighty colored plates, similar in size and style to the same author's handsome work on "Pathological Anatomy," published by them during the past year. This latter work has been highly commended by the profession and the press, all of which, judging from the mechanical execution of the first part, seems fully justified.

Benziger Bros. have in press a book on a subject absorbing the attention of the civilized world-"The Parnell Movement," treated by T. P. O'Connor, M.P., in a direct and honest way, and said to be one of the clearest and most forcible statements yet presented of the Irish National Question. Mr. O'Connor begins with the movement under O'Connell, and describes vividly the tragic scenes of famine, coercion, young Irelandism, Fenianism, etc. He makes clear the views of Isaac Butt, John Mitchell, Justin McCarthy, Sexton, Davitt, Dillou, Biggar, and other leaders who have identified themselves with their country's cause.

Conventional Bohemian.

A NOVEL. By Edmund Pendleton.

The plot of the story is simple, the action direct, the movement often dramatic. Although a society novel, it is at times the heights of passion, and reveals a remarkable knowledge of the motives and conflicts of the human. The style is noticeable for epigrammatic wit and wisdom in the lighter scenes, and for dramatic power in the sones. There are a number of well-drawn characters, the heroine being a peculiarly felicitous study, and the hero e and striking portrait. It is a novel sure of many admirers among those who delight in intellectual subtlety and a execution.

NOTES IN SEASON.

CRANSTON & STOWE, Cincinnati, will publish early in April the papers and discussions of the Inter-denominational Congress in the interest of City Evangelization, held in Cincinnati this year.

CHARLES SCRIBNER'S SONS announce that, owing to the large advance orders, they have postponed the publication of Mr. Frank R. Stockton's "Mrs. Null," and that it will not be published until near the end of the month. An English edition will appear simultaneously.

HENRY GEORGE'S new book, "Protection or Free Trade?" may be expected during April. The retail price will be $1.50, and a wide sale may be expected. Orders may be sent to Henry George & Co., 16 Astor Place, under which style Mr. George will himself publish the book.

S. E. CASSINO & Co. (Bradlee Whidden), Boston, published on the 10th inst. a most valuable book of interest to the thinking people of all sects, entitled "Messianic Expectations," from a course of lectures by Rabbi Solomon Schindler, of Boston, with an introduction by Minot J. Savage, of the Church of the Unity.

D. LOTHROP & Co. will publish this month a novel entitled "Heaven's Gate: A Story of the Forest of Dean." by Lawrence Severn, of which the scenes are laid in and about Chepstow Castle and Tintern Abbey. They have also nearly ready "With Reed and Lyre," a new volume of poems by Clinton Scollard, whose charmingly-tuned verses have already found many admirers.

J. S. OGILVIE & Co. published this week under the title of "Good News" the popular sermons of Jones and Small, the noted evangelists. They have in press a volume entitled "Ten Days with Mr. Moody," comprising some of his choicest sermons, and also the "Proceedings of the Christian Convention," at Mr. Moody's Home in Northfield.

FUNK & WAGNALLS will issue immediately "The Essentials of Elocution," by Alfred Ayres, the author of "The Mentor," described in the preface as "the shortest treatise on the art of reading that has ever been written in the English language; yet, short as it is, it is of more practical value than are all the others—which is not saying much in its praise, for all the others are of no practical value whatever."

FORDS, HOWARD & HULBERT will publish immediately, "Reason and Revelation, Hand in Hand," by Rev. Thomas M. McWhinney, D.D. This is a book dealing directly with the questionings of the time on the line indicated by its title, treating specially of religion, the Bible, God, the devil, man, and Christ. It "claims to be a modern argument on an old question, showing the reasonableness of revealed religion when seen in the light of common-sense."

TICKNOR & Co. will publish March 20, "The Prelate," a story of modern Roman life, by Isaac Henderson, well known on the staff of the Evening Post, at present resident in Rome; "The Sphinx's Children, and Other People's," a volume of short stories by Rose Terry Cooke, reprinted from the Atlantic, Harper's, and the Galaxy, which give excellent pictures of Puritan character, and give the Yankee dialect in the author's masterly way; and "A Stroll with Keats," by Frances Clifford Brown, a choice work of art, consisting of illuminated pages in beautiful design, illustrating some of the finest lines of the English poet.

HARPER & Bros. publish this week an interesting work entitled "Manual Training: The Solution of Social and Industrial Problems," by Charles H. Ham. The author thinks that his propositions "involve an educational revolution, destined to enlighten, and so ultimately to redeem, manual labor from the scorn of the ages of slavery, and, in the end, to render the skilled laborer worthy of high social distinction." They have also just ready "Eventful Nights in Bible History," by Alfred Lee, beginning with the "promise to Abraham," in the Old Testament, and ending with the promise in the New Testament - "There shall be no night there" (Rev. 22:5); the second volume of Cox's "Lives of Greek Statesmen," covering the period from Ephialtes to Hermokrates; a new novel by Edna Lyall, entitled "In the Golden Days," handsomely bound; and last, but by no means least, the Index to Harper's Monthly Magazine, volumes 1 to 70, inclusive (from June, 1850, to June, 1885), compiled by Charles A. Duríce.

They have Longfellow and Whittier evenings, in which recitations are given, and brief essays read on the life and writings of the poets. Other evenings are devoted to Bible characters, a day in London, etc. Suggestive and helpful to young girls desiring to form a similar club. Nine short stories complete the volume.

The writer puts forth a new theory which, if practically tried, he thinks would prove a great boon to ocean commerce. The great point upon which he insists is that screw propellers should act obliquely to the ship's line of motion, thereby economizing the power, and enabling the vessel to attain very high speed.

*Grimshaw, Rob. Steam-engine catechism: a series of thoroughly practical questions and answers arranged so as to give to a young engineer just the information required to fit him for properly running an engine. N. Y., J: Wiley & Sons, 1885. S. cl., $1.

(Economic tracts, no. 18.) pap., 25 c.

After admitting all the evils of war, the author shows that it is in many cases right and inevitable. He further argues that war is an art, founded on scientific principles, but that "this art and these principles have been ebscured and hindered in this nation by mistaken and misapplied conceptions of the teachings of Christianity." Reviewing the many possibilities that may in the future render desirable a well-trained militia, he urges that preparation be made in this direction before it is again forced upon us.

This little book is not intended to be exhaustive. If it be found suggestive, the author's chief purpose will be satisfied. As a history, "it records the subserviency of etching in the hands of our early engraver etchers, and the various influences leading to the late emancipation of etching as an art." Some account is given of the growth of American print collecting, and of the present private and public collections.

Divided into two parts, the first being a traveller's guide, the second descriptive and historical. Mr. Janvier says in his preface: "This book contains the information that I felt the want of when I first went to Mexico. The theory upon which it is constructed is, that what can be easily found and plainly seen need not be laboriously described; that a traveller of ordinary intelligence, after being told what to look for, and where to look for it in a strange country, desires most to know the historic facts and associations connected with what he sees. Consequently, while I have not shrunk from using angular facts wherever clearness made such facts necessary, there are not many lengths, breadths, and thicknesses in this guide-book."

Lang, Andrew. Letters to dead authors. N. Y., C: Scribner's Sons, 1886. 6+234 p. S. cl., $1.00.

Graceful and reverential criticisms, written very much in each author's own style, upon the works of twenty-two famous authors. Thackeray, Dickens, Pierre de Ronsard, Herodotus, Pope, Rabelais, Jane Austen, Isaac Walton, Dumas, Poe, Scott, Byron, Horace, and Theocritus are among the "dead authors" to whom Mr. Lang has addressed letters. In all cases they are charming reading—a little incisive, perhaps, but always entertaining. The little volume is a dainty specimen of book-making, with a narrow page and wide margins, and uncut edges, top gilt.

Letters from a chimney-corner: a plea for pure homes and sincere relations between men and women. Chic., Pergus Printing Co., 1886. 50 p. D. pap., 25 c.

These letters were originally published in the Chicago Inter Ocean, where they attracted considerable attention, from their earnestness and frankness. They are said to have been written by a lady well known in Chicago society, who is not in favor of giving the franchise to woman, asthough she has decided opinions regarding their rights." Her suggestions as to woman's duties, and the influence she should exert in the home, are well worthy of serious attention

She falls in love for the first time with Maurice O'Donovan, a Fenian leader. The author's sympathies are wholly on the Irish side of the question. She writes ariistically, and works up her tragic story with skill. Ceculia's endurance, self-sacrifice, and patriotion are all taxed to the end. The Anglican rector, blarsden, his proud wife, loud daughter, and invalid son, the dissent-ing minister, the rich farmer, the discarded wife, are all excellently executed studies of English character.

NOTES ON CATALOGUES.

H. WELTER, 59 Rue Bonaparte, Paris, has in press a "Bibliographie Italico—Française Universelle," a classified catalogue of all writings in the French language on ancient and modern Italy since the invention of printing in 1475; no matter where printed; not only works originally written in French, but anything concerning Italy, which has been translated into the language.

THE BIBLIOGRAPHY OF ANGLING will shortly receive an addition. Unfortunately for collectors, the addition of the new work will be unique, being represented by a single copy. Mr Wakeman Holberton, who has written so well about fish, and supplemented his literary work by painting fish, is now engaged in the composition of a volume devoted to angling. Disdaming commonplace type-setting and mechanical printing, Mr. Holberton's volume will be entirely engrossed by his pen. Instead of paper, vellum is used. The initial letters follow the designs of the mediæval illuminators, the subjects being derived from fish. For illustrations there are sketches in water-color, supplemented by penand-ink drawings. All the places of note from Maine to North Carolina where trout or black bass are caught find a place in this volume. It is the author's experiences as an angler, beginning with his boyhood. About one half of the volume is now finished, and it represents three years of assiduous toil. Some time in 1889 the author hopes to make with his pen the finis. -M. Y. Times.

The Publishers' Weekly.

FOUNDED BY F. LEYPOLDT.

MARCH 13, 1886.

PUBLISHERS are requested to furnish title-page proofs and advance information of books forthcoming, both for entry in the lists and for descriptive mention. An early copy of each book published should be forwarded, to insure correctness in the final entry.

The trade are invited to send "Communications" to the editor on any topic of interest to the trade, and as to which an interchange of opinion is desirable. Also, matter for "Notes and Queries" thankfully received.

In case of business changes, notification or card should be immediately sent to this office for entry under "Business Notes." New catalogues issued will also be mentioned when forwarded.

A POINT OF DOMESTIC COPYRIGHT.

Two cases having an important bearing on domestic copyright law are reported in our columns this week. They both depend to a considerable extent on the question, What use of the parts of a copyright book damages the property in the copyright? This is always an issue of fact rather than of law, but the application of law to the facts in any particular case ought to be such as fully to protect any copyright owner against the use of his material for purposes of competition, and without credit. The master's report in the Spofford case upholds this principle; Judge Wallace's decision in the Harper-Shoppell case seems to question it.

The last-named decision, however, involved a number of incidental questions, and can scarcely be taken as a test case. The court's view seemed to be that the defendant, in making and selling an electro, did not complete a transaction which interfered with the plaintiff's interests. This seems to imply that the remedy would have lain against the Illustrated Times, which printed and published the cut, and which in turn, if mulcted for damages, might have sustained an action against the seller of the electro for inducing them to purchase what was not his to sell. This view, however, seems to be a highly technical one, and it is scarcely conducive to business morality. It would suggest that a man who steals a cut cannot be punished until another man markets it. It seems to us neither a sound basis for the business of Messrs. Harper, as publishers, nor of Mr. Shoppell, as a dealer in electros which may in turn be copied by others, that the law should remain in this way.

So far as this decision may be taken to indicate that copyright of a whole does not prevent competitive use of a part, it is rather against the drift of the best authorities on copyright. A single engraving is certainly a material part of an illustrated periodical. We are glad to hear, therefore, that a new case is likely to be brought up to determine this point more clearly.

THE retailers still continue to speak their minds. A most curious incident in the discount system is the unusual circular issued by Funk & Wagnalls, in announcing (or not announcing) the key to the secret of "The Buntling Ball." Such an offer, sown broadcast by a house of this standing, shows how demoralized present retail prices really are.

THE "retort courteous"—and a bit satiric—of Messrs. Harper to Mr. W. S. Gilbert, does not leave the American side of that gentleman's great international conflict in the condition which he might desire. After his ungraceful diatribe at an American house for doing a decent thing—in the absence of the basis of law which this very house has more than once tried to obtain—he has a home-thrust which should make him stop to think a bit. For these "little unpleasantnesses," an international copyright law is, however, the only adequate remedy, or preventive.

REDUCTION OF DISCOUNTS.

MORE OPINIONS OF RETAILERS.

CHAMBERSBURG, PA., March 1, 1886.

To the Editor of the Publishers' Weekly.

SIR: I have noticed a letter in the Publish-ERS' WEEKLY of February 6, from R., and have read with interest from time to time the replies to it from your different correspondents. I would beg that you allow another "Interior Bookseller "to express an opinion through your columns. Your Weekly of February 20, contains a very sensible view of and reply to R. on the retail book trade by J. C. S., and your issue February 27, a communication from "Business," both of these expressing so plainly the views of the writer. As I read the expressions from these parties in defence of the retailer of books, I would it were possible to take by the hand each one, and tell of my hearty indorsement of their sentiments, and also of the discouragements the writer has and is suffering to-day in the retail book business. It is well-nigh time for us all to ask, "What is the matter with the book trade?" The writer has not had so long an experience in the work as your correspondent "Business," but long enough to see a great change in this branch of trade. Is there any money in the retail book business as it is to-day? I answer there is not. I am heartily sick of this discount business, and I long ago ceased stocking my shelves with books in the present condition of trade. In my opinion, help must come from the publisher, 1st, in reducing retail prices; 2d, in giving close discounts; 3d, in giving no discount to any one else. Let us have a reform speedily. I believe to-day that such as Wanamaker, Macy, and others have done much to ruin the retail book trade, and injured the prospects of many hard-working book men. 'I hope this subject may be pursued till there is a reform in the book business. The writer has striven to make the retail book business a success in his own immediate neighborhood by placing before his customers the latest and best reading; but it must be confessed that he feels his efforts are in vain, when, as in the case reported by your correspondent "Business" to meet Wanamaker, he must be asked to sell a $1.50 book, costing him in New York $1 (not allowing postage from there) for $1.10, the price adopted by Mr. Wan-In the language of "Business," is this encouraging? Must the book trade go into the hands of bazaars and dry-goods stores and the book merchant seek other occupation? M. A. C.

NORTHAMPTON, MASS., March 4, 1836. To the Editor of the Publishers' Weekly.

SIR: You are doing a good work! We add our voice to those who sing out, "Reduce discounts, and hold prices at retail, as advertised by the publishers.'' Now, all along the line of retail buyers is the question. "What discount?" It is refreshing to answer, as we can in the case of Edersheim's "Christ," issued by our poet publishers. " Not one cent!" We find it easier to get full price, as in this case, than to dicker with a customer who demands a big discount, and who is never satisfied, because he feels as if by a little more squeezing he could secure even better terms.

So with law books. The net price advertise i is easily obtained, and while the discount on these books scarcely pay for paper and twine used, yet there is a sense of self-respect, which comes from knowing that we get advertisers' prices, and at the same time are treating all alike. Our school-book publishers have a net list. Go for them, Mr. P. W.! Why do they peddle out to any one who signs himself or herself "Teacher" a single copy at ten per cent from net? Their sales are not increased thereby, for the same book would be sold by the retail bookseller, and he would not have the sense of wrong burned into his soul by the thought that the publisher ignored the trade. Let the school-book publisheradhere closely to his printed list to all schools, academies, professors, teachers, with postage added when mailed, and whatever discount may be made, let it be only to the legitimate bookseller. Why seek to rob him and to create an antagonism between those who should work together for their mutual interests?

Let the retail bookseller refuse to handle the line of poets, novels, etc., issued by houses who supply scalpers, or who affix fictitious retail prices, which only mislead the public. Who ever dreams of getting $1.25 for a red-line poet? and vet these butchers have the audacity to say, "Sold at book-stores for $1.25, our price 75 rents and $1," and the gullible public cry. "What outrageous profits these booksellers make!—the robbers!" The advertisements of these shysters—i. e., "Dickens's Works, publishers' price $22.50, ours $6.50, is misleading, and comes so near a lie as to make it a lie.

Again, "Ben Hur," for instance is sold, we see. in these shops at less than cost, as a leader.

Let the Harpers refuse to sell to such dealers at less than retail rates, or, if they will sell to drygoods dealers, let the local bookseller get a corps of runners to quickly exhaust the stock advertised at rates so much below wholesale prices. As to discounts, the self-respect of the bookseller is weakened by having different prices for different customers who buy an equal amount yearly. Do our lawyers, doctors, ministers, teachers, ask of their boot and shoe dealer twenty or thirty per cent discount? Why should they demand this of an honest bookseller? We hope that this open discussion of a matter of vital interest to publisher as well as bookseller will result in establishing universal retail prices, which shall be just and fair both to seller and purchaser, and that the honorable profession to which we belong may be lifted out of its present jockey attitude to its original high plain.

A REMARKABLE OFFER.

Funk & Wagnalls, under date of March 1, in sending out the names of those who correctly guessed at the name of the author of "The Buntling Ball," preface the list by the following circular :

Herewith find a list of the names and addresses, as received by us, of those who have correctly named the author of "The Buntling Hall."

Among the conditions given is the 3d, which reads as follows: 'In case more than one person should correctly guess the name of the author, the price of $1000 will be equally divided." On the next page the total number is given, and the amount which each correct "guesser" is to receive. Half dozen or more authors were named as often, or nearly as often, as was the correct author—over two hundred different authors were named.

The author does not wish, at present, his name made public. We would call your attention to your promise, in writing-viz.: "I promise to keep the author's name confidential in case he may not wish to have it made public.*"

Enclosed find a list of some of our more popular and recent publications. We make each person who is entitled to a share of the $1000, the following

SPECIAL OFFER:

We will sell you any of the books on said list at 3314 per cent discount, postage or expressage free, provided you send in your order with your certificate before May 31st next. Should your order be for less than your share of the amount, we will remit the difference when the order is filled.

Most respectfully, Funk & Wagnalls.

HARPER & BROTHERS' REPLY TO MR. GILBERT.

THE following is Messrs. Harper & Brothers' reply to Mr. Gilbert's remarkable letter:

> FRANKLIN SQUARE, NEW YORK, February 15, 1886. §

DEAR SIR: Your letter of the 31st ult. has just arrived. It had already reached us indirectly through the press about a fortnight ago, having been cabled to New York as it appeared in the London Times of the 2d inst., to which you seem to have furnished for publication a copy of it and of our letter to you of the 15th ult.

Your letter makes it necessary to explain that our remittance to you in acknowledgment for reprinting "Original Comic Operas" in our cheap Franklin Square Library was made in pursuance of our custom of paying an honorarium for all books by English authors republished by us; although, unfortunately, in the present anomalous condition of the publishing business in this country such acknowledgments are now necessarily made on a much lower scale than formerly. We will send you a further remittance, should the sales of the book justify our doing so.

We have been interested in your statement of the reasons which prompted your gift to the public institution you mention. Doubtless, since you decided to expend in the cause of charity the ten pounds which you kindly accepted from us, you could not have made a more proper disposition of the money than to the Victoria Hospital for Children. And we venture to express the hope that if your generosity on this occasion indicates a purpose on your part to appropriate systematically to the hospital your revenue from the United States, its funds will not long be in the needy condition which you describe.

You grant us permission "to make any public use of your letter," and we are obliged to you for the implied compliment of your confidence that we would not make any public use of it without your consent. Reciprocal permission from us seems, in the circumstances, to be unnecessary. Your obedient servants,

HARPER & BROTHERS.

FOURTH-CLASS MATTER.

From the N. Y. Sun.

MR. WILSON, of Iowa, has introduced into the Senate a bill increasing the postage on fourthclass mail matter from sixteen to thirty-two cents a pound. It is not clear whose interests Mr. Wilson purposes to benefit by the increase, but it certainly is not the interests of the people To them the sending of fourth-class matter is a considerable convenience, and to double the rates would be a considerable inconvenience, however pleasant it might be for gentlemen who hold stock in express companies. Of course, if the rate of postage on this class of matter were doubled, packages weighing more than ten or twelve ounces would be sent by express, and the number, now very great, of small packages belonging to this class would be strikingly diminished.

Among the articles mailable in the fourth class are articles of merchandise, models, sample cards, samples of metals, minerals, cuttings, bulbs, roots and scions, labels, address tags, patterus, photographs, bill heads and letter heads, printed envelopes and letter envelopes, and paper containing no printing. The variety of articles sent as fourth-class matter is, in fact, almost endless. In New York and all the great cities there are important firms, a large part of whose business is got by sending out samples and patterns to country customers.

Possibly Senator Wilson conceives that this practice is in some way prejudical to the business of country merchants, dressmakers, milliners, and so on. There is luttle reason to suppose that such is the case, for to these persons the sending of samples and patterns by mail at a comparatively cheap rate is a distinct convenience, as it is to other persons all over the country. The bill is a bad one, because it is against the general interest, and not simply because it would hamper a few commercial establishments in the cities, important as their reasons for opposing the change undoubtedly are.

If the Government is going to carry small \ parcels at all for the convenience of the people, \ the business should be done at the present low | right, and that the copied matter is of value and interest to the public. Exceptions to be unput

ANOTHER ENGLISH OPINION ON THE MANUFACTURING CLAUSE.

From the London Publishers' Circular.

Since our last issue appeared much has been said and written upon the subject of copyright, both here and in America. In our reference to the matter on February 1 we indicated briefly the condition of affairs at that time. By stating that the best modes of getting out of present difficulties should include an adherence to the principles of Senator Hawley's scheme in America, we of course meant the scheme as it originally stood. Now, however, the case is altered. Yielding to trade clamor, Mr. Hawley has incorporated the absurd manufacturing clause in the draft of his bill, thus rendering the measure not only objectionable, but absolutely useless. The interested sophistry of the American printers has in this instance turned the scale against the judgment of the most prominent authors and publishers in the States. Labor in the mean time triumphs over intellect, although it is hard to see why business difficulties should not be met by business measures. The prohibitive tariff in the United States would be an ample check upon the importation of printed books. This truth has been admitted by all who have examined the subject fairly. Authors, however, are much to blame with regard to the conducting of negotiations. Their war is a war of words, and not of deeds. Perhaps it is fitting that they should say much and work little; but we think that a more active canvassing, coupled with some preaching to the people upon the doctrines of copyright, would do more good than reciprocating platitudes among themselves, at meetings, and in the columns of newspapers.

COPYRIGHT QUESTIONS.

USE OF COPYRIGHT STATISTICAL TABLES.

ABOUT two years ago J. R. Sypher, as counsel for Ainsworth R. Spofford, the Librarian of Congress at Washington, brought suit in the United States Circuit Court against the Fireside Publishing Company, of Philadelphia, to have the latter enjoined from publishing and selling a volume entitled "American Politics." It was alleged on behalf of the plaintiff that the defeadants, in preparing a portion of their book in 1882, dealing with the history of all political parties, had copied portions of Mr. Spofford's copyrighted yearly edition of the "American Almanac and Treasury of Facts," comprising many tables and statistics giving valuable information gathered by means of great labor and expense from all parts of the United States and foreign countries, the compilations being original with Mr. Spofford, and that the latter's profis were impaired by the alleged infringement. answer of the defence to some of the allegations was that the information in question was obtainable from the published archives of the Government and the reports of the War Office, and that it was accessible to any one who chose to gather it. Judge McKennan appointed a master to take testimony in the suit, and the latter this morning filed his report. The master finds from the testimony presented before bim that some 34 pages of the plaintiff's matter, which the defendants have copied, is protected by his copywere fied on behalf of the plaintiff and defeniants, and the case will probably be put upon he list for hearing the next session of court.

USB OF ENGRAVINGS FROM PERIODICALS *

IN March, 1873, Harper's Weekly published a nt entitled " Getting Married, Keeping House," iesigned by C. S. Reinhart, from whom it was surchased by Messrs. Harpers. Mr. R. W. shoppell purchased a copy of the cut from a third zerson, from which an electrotype plate was nade, and sold by him to the New York Illusrated Times, in which the cut was afterward mated. The Harpers began suit before Judge Wallace in the United States District Court gainst Mr. Shoppell. The question at issue was ebether the unauthorized reproduction and sale If a copy of the electro by the defendant was all Offingement upon the copyright of the plaintiff. ludge Wallace decided that the defendant, albough he copied the cut, did not print or publish w expose for sale any part of the plaintiff's pubication, and that by the sale of the mere electro te did not do material damage to the plaintiff, and he did not, therefore, infringe the copyright. Judgment was ordered for Shoppell.*

PRIORITY CLAIMED IN PUBLISHING LAW RLPORTS.

BANKS BROS., N. Y., who have a contract with the State of Iowa to print the Supreme Court re-MILE, it is reported, have brought suit before the United States Circuit Court to prevent the clerk of State Supreme Court giving the public records lo any one but themselves, as advance publicato injures their trade. We doubt very much, lowever, whether such a contract would prevent by one from obtaining a copy of any decision umediately after it is rendered, FICTION IN BOOK-FORM us. SERIAL PUBLICATION.

I HEARD a lively discussion of this subet in a bookstore the other day, between a ide awake salesman, an author, and an editor. se salesman argued that after the Century, th its million or so of readers, had published novel by Howells or James, there was a very tall audience for it when it appeared as a book, id that it was for that reason that the bound dumes of Howells and James had sales so och smaller than the reputation of the authors ould lead one to expect. "Crawford's sto-" he urged, " sell their fifty thousand-that 'Mr. Isaacs' sold that many and 'Dr. Clauus 'sold thirty thousand. They were only pubhed in book-form. 'The Roman Singer' sold finitely less, because it ran as a serial in the Atmtic first." "Now let us see," answered the ubor. "Fifty thousand of Mr. Isaacs, which as a dollar book, brought Mr. Crawford A magazine would have given him tooo for it, being a first story, and he would tve had the benefit of the sale in book form terward, whatever that might have amounted In Mr. Crawford's case it was perhaps as ell that his story appeared as it did. down," without waiting for a semi annual statement, and there is a very pleasant jingle about $5000 down." So spake the author. The So spake the author. The editor listened—and wished that he were Howells or James, with a good stock of manuscripts on hand to dispose of. The little group agreed upon no decision in the matter, except that it was a good thing to be a successful author and a bad thing to be an author who was not successful.— The Critic.

BOOKS, ETC, IN THE MAILS.

A DESPATCH from Washington, dated March 2, announces that the Postmaster-general having been informed by the Secretary of the Treasury that books are frequently imported into the United States through the mails, without the payment of duties thereon, issued an order directing postmasters at all exchange offices, especially at those offices authorized to exchange mails with Canada, to scrutinize closely all foreign mail matter coming into their hands, to call the attention of the proper customs officer to all books which they may find in such mails, and then to forward them to their destination, charged with the amount of duty to be collected. All postmasters at other than exchange offices receiving such books in the mails are enjoined to make prompt collection of duties, and remit to the customs officer by whom rated up Postal clerks on way post offices exchanging mail with Canada are also directed to carefully examine Canadian mails.

Phili voki pina, March 4, 1886.

DEAR SIR! Wouldn't it be a good idea to print at head of column of "Books Wanted" permanently some such business truism as. "Don't ask all a book is worth—allow your customer to make something on it?"

It seems to me that, most answers to advertisements are sent on the supposition that because a dealer advertises for a book he is crazy to get it, and will pay whatever is demanded, no matter how extravegant the demand.

WOOD WORMS can be destroyed in books and wood work by benzine. Books are locked up in a cupboard with a saucer of benzine. The insects, as well as their larvæ and eggs, soon die off. Furniture and carvings are similarly placed in a room with a dish of benzine, and kept closed up for several weeks, the time required for the complete destruction of the insects varying according to the thickness of the wood. wood work can be protected against their entry by a coating of glue, as, living on vegetable substances, they do not touch animal products.

THE "SAMPLE COPIES" FIEND IS STILL AT WORK, -Two days' mail brings us four cards, readowells and James the case is different. They ling as follows: "Please send me one of your e said to get $5000 each for the right of serial | free illustrated magazines of 1586." They are ablication in the Century. Their books retail, all from Allentown, Pa, and are signed William *$1.50, and they sell certainly not less than H. Kutz, Harry Fahles, John Walter, and Harn thousand each, which adds $1500 to their vey B. Kutz. The street address is different reipts. The $5000 is in the form of 'cash in each instance, but as the handwriting of all is very much alike, we think it well to caution the trade.

OBITUARY NOTES.

BENJAMIN F. JONES, who for sixteen years was manager of the National Publishing Company's Western Branch, died at Philadelphia, of paralysis. Mr. Jones retired January 1 from the management of the Chicago branch, and purchased a farm in Talbot County, Md., expecting to live there in ease. But owing to failing health and nervous trouble he had gone to Philadelphia for treatment, where he died.

GEORGE G. SMALL, a well-known story-writer and humorist, died at the Hotel Hungaria, Union Square, New York City, on the evening of the 10th inst., of consumption. The deceased was known under the nom de plume of "Bricktop," and his books were the foundation of the late publishing house of Collin & Small. He was the founder and editor of the once popular illustrated comic paper, Wild Oats, on which he introduced to the public J. A. Wales, F. Opper, Thomas Worth, L. Hopkins, and other artists who have since become famous through their cartoons and caricatures. A few years ago he became connected with Frank Tousey's publishing house, and was the principal writer of the serial stories and books which Tousey published. Mr. Small was about fifty years of age. leaves a wife and one child.—N. Y. Sun.

NOTES ON AUTHORS.

Ex-GOVERNOR LONG, of Massachusetts, not content with the literary honors won by his translation of Virgil, is said to be writing a novel.

Mr. W. F. Skene is engaged in revising his "History of Celtic Scotland" for a new edition. The first volume, which has long been out of print, will be sent to press very shortly.

AFTER several years of research Mr. Ribton-Turner has at length completed a "History of Vagrants and Vagrancy, and Beggars and Begging." It comprises, says the London Athenaum, "separate histories of England, Wales, Scotland, Ireland, the Channel Islands, and most European countries, together with an account of the mendicant friars, the gypsies, the beggars' secret jargon, and other cognate matters."

MR. JOHN AUGUSTUS O'SHEA, whose book entitled "Leaves from the Life of a Special Correspondent" was much read and liked a year ago, has in press a continuation of the story. The former volume told the story of the last days of the French Empire down to the first days of the Commune. The new one is entitled "An Ironbound City; or, Eight Months of Peril and Privation," and narrates the author's experience of every-day life in Paris during the siege and the reign of the Communists.

It is again asserted that the name of Henry Hayes is merely a pseudonym to hide the real authors of "Magaret Kent," who are confidently reported as the late Katherine McDowell ("Sherwood Bonner") and Sophia Kirk, the former the originator and writer of the story, the latter the reviser and finisher. It is also said that much in the life-history of the late lamented author of "The Suwanee River Tales" has been woven into the story, many facts having been recognized by friends of the late gifted and talented writer.

Mercury, is making preparations to issue those alleged "recollections" in book form. It will be illustrated with wood-cuts reproduced from old magazines, and will be something of a curiosity in its way.

D. C. HEATH & Co. announce "A Short Manual of Chemical Arithmetic with a System of Elementary Qualitative Analysis," by J. Milsor Coit, Ph.D., St. Paul's School, Concord, This book is designed to be a companion bany book in descriptive or general chemistry, and to aid in making the subject more practical.

CORRECTION.—Inadvertently — perhaps brough force of habit in associating the names of the now two separate firms—we placed in the Order List of our last week's issue Compayre's "History of Pedagogy" under Ginn & Co. intead of under D. C. Heath & Co., to whom the work was properly credited in the Weekly Rectal of the title.

MACMILLAN & Co. have just issued Mr. Fredtick Harrison's new volume, "The Choice of boks, and other Literary Pieces," which conwas of essays and lectures written at various lines during the last twenty years, and dealing blely with books, art, and history. Mr. Harriwas views on the choice of books, which occupy bout a fifth part of the volume, will be read with interest, in connection with Sir John Lublock's recent lecture and the discussion which is followed it. Other essays are on Mr. tonde's life of Carlyle, on the life of George Det, on Bernard of Clairvaux, on historic Lones, and on the French Revolution.

THE MILTON BRADLEY Co., Springfield, , timays to the fore where the best interests arbool education are concerned, in order to are the call for a clear, accurate, and simple ale of illustrations of the human body, to aid andy of physiology and hygiene, as deded by public opinion, and by the laws of Sues, have prepared a set of "charts of "manbody" which seem admirably adapted the complicated details which are necessary in more advanced classes, but which confuse younger pupils, and possibly may cause them to ask questions far in advance of their comprehension. The several figures have been selected and drawn, with express reference to this grade of work, in many cases from nature, and whereever copied from standard publications they have been verified or corrected by competent experts, The plates have been very carefully prepared and the printing executed in chromo-lithography with the abundance of impressions necessary to the best effects, whether in natural or conventional colors. There are thirty-nine figures in all, on three charts, each 25 × 38 inches. charts are published at so low a price as to bring them within the means of even the most impecunious '' deestrick skule ''

KEGAN PAUL, TRENCH & Co are reissuing their Parchment Library edition of Shakespeare's works, under the title of the Aven Shakespears.

THE queer stories from Truth, many of which were written by Grenville Murray and Hugh Conway, are about to be published in a series of shilling volumes by Swan, Sonnenschein & Co.

CHAPMAN & HALL are now issuing an edition of Dickens's works at is, 6d, a volume, small foolscap octavo, with marble paper sides and uncut edges. The edition is called The Cabinet edition. The first volume of "Christmas Books" is now ready. "Martin Chuzzlewit," in two volumes, will be published next, to be followed by "David Copperfield," also in two volumes. Each volume will contain eight illustrations, reproduced from the originals.

WARD, LOCK & Co. have in active preparation a new Popular Library of Literary Treasures, which will be under the general editorship of Mr. G. T. Bettany, of Caius College, Cambridge, England, whose recent biographical work on "Eminent Doctors" has met with so favorable a reception. The library will include the most valuable literary treasures to be found in the English language, and will be issued in clothor paper, at almost nominal price. The introductions to the respective subjects will be contributed by recognized authorities. In this shape will be put within reach of all, the poetry of Byron, Shelley, Coleridge, Wordsworth, etc.; the histories of Plutarch, Josephus, Hallam. etc.; the essays of Addison, De Quincey, Macaulay, etc.; the novels of Cervantes, Defoe, Swift, Goldsmith, etc.; and the writings of Jeremy Taylor, Paley, Butler, etc.

ELIOT STOCK, London, has just issued a critical essay on "Anne Boleyn," by J. Horace Round. One of the principal points discussed is the revalu quartie as to the age of the sisters. Mr. Round claims to prove conclusively that Anne was older than her sister Mary. He has also just issued an attractive volume for book-lovers, entitled "The Pleasures of a Book-Worm," by]. Kogers Kees, who has gathered together a series of short essays on subjects which have an interest for collectors, connoisseurs, and for all those who study the history and peculiar characteristics of books. The subjects treated of are. Concerning Books and Lovers of Books; Home and Books; Glimpses of Earthly Paradise; the Romance and Reality of Dedications, An Odd Corner in a Book-Lover's Study; et requirements. The Literary News.

The growing popularity of the LITERARY NEWS is the result of its saithful sulfilment of its pro gramme. This is to present a survey of the new books in a manner that, at an hour's reading, en ables any one to make a discriminate selection of books for himself or his friends, or to converse in telligently on the literary topics of the day. This is done by devoting its space to good books only by wasting none on poor ones; by quoting only from recognized authorities; by selecting with aim not merely to guide by a "praise of books," but by awakening an interest in their contents, it their relation to literature, and last, not least, in their authors. This personal element, indeed makes the LITERARY News so genial and readable. If in its endeavors to promote Good Hom Reading it must confess to an inclination for appreciative commendation rather than disparaging criticism, it springs from the conviction, which is the foundation of the LITERARY NEWS, the home reading cannot be too warmly encouraged, that too much is better than too little, that the time spent on reading, the money spent on the purchase of books, must finally prove a good in vestment, even should one occasionally err in choice and judgment and pay too high a price II a book which happens to be "the fashion."

A remarkable and beautiful New Style of Binding, prepared especially for a number of EASTER VOLUMES.

A fine engraving of perfect finish is printed by a secret process upon IVORINE, a material which closely resembles ivory. This then has a title illuminated on it in metal, and is mounted upon rough white drawing paper.

The whole, with a "ragged edge" and a knot of silk-andsilver cord, forms an exquisite cover, of great novelty and appropriateness, for Easter. In this new binding are:

GOLDEN WORDS OF HOLY MEN, with design of lilies.

SILVER THOUGHTS OF GREAT MINDS, with design of basket of pansies.

A CHILD'S DREAM OF A STAR, with design of apple-blossoms.

EASTER, by Rose Porter, with designs of passion-flowers.

Each, $1.00. With protector, in a neat box.

In the same new style are EASTER BELLS, by H. H. (Mrs. Jackson). With four beautiful colored plates of flowers by Susie Barstow Skelding. $1.50. Also,

EASTER MESSENGERS, a new Easter poem of the flowers, by Lucy Larcom. Illustrated by Susie Bartow Skelding. $1.50.

EASTER, by Rose Porter, can be had in the beautiful sateen binding at the same prices as in the Ivorine, and is "Silver Edges" at lower prices. EASTER FLOW-ERS, SPRING BLOSSOMS, BIRTHDAY FLOW-ERS, and other volumes in the beautiful FLOWER-SONGS SERIES, suited to Easter, etc., can be had in a variety of bindings.

(For particulars send for catalogue.)

NOTES ON AUTHORS.

MR. H. C. BUNNER has written a new novel, which will be published next month. It takes is title of "Midge" from its heroine. The scene is laid in New York, and a great deal of the action passes in the French quarter south of Washington Square.

Mrs. Arlo Bates died on the 14th inst., in Brookline, Mass. Mrs. Bates was a daughter of Professor George L. Vose, of the Institute of Technology. She has made noteworthy contributions to the Atlantic Monthly under the name of Eleanor Putnam, and her repute in literature was fairly carned.

Mrs. Julia Romani Anagnos, wife of Michael Anagnos, and eldest daughter of Dr. Samuel G. and of Mrs. Julia Ward Howe, died in Boston on the 11th inst. She was born in Rome in 1844. In early life she married Michael Anagnos, a Greek philanthropist, who had shared the work of Dr. Howe. A volume of her poems, "Stray Chords," was published in 1883.

Evers tells in this little book the story of Tadema, the famost Dutch artist, who has made England his adopted home. It is a loving and appreciative narrative, written by an admiring friend who goes into all the details of his pictures, the circumstances under which they were conceived, and the events of Tadema's life, Fenn, G: Manville. The vicar's people: a story of a stain. N.Y., Cassell & Co., [1886.] 4+345 p. S. cl., $1.

Scene laid on the Cornult coast. The vicar's "people" are miners and fishermen. The hero, a mining engineer, has almost made the long unworked mine turn out a paying supply of tin and copper, when the mine is flooded by the villain of the story, from motives of jealousy. There are three herotucs, totally different, whose lives meet in well-planned combinations of circumstances. A thoroughly materialing, old-fashioned story of love and adventure, which ends happily.

Ham, C. H. Manual training: the solution of social and industrial problems. N.Y., Harnes, 1886.

per, 1886. 19 + 403 p. II. D. cl., $1.50. In preparing a paper in 1879 to be read before the Chicago Philosophical Society, on the subject of "The inventive genius; or, an epitome of human progress," the author found that in tracing the course of invention and discovery, he was moving "in the line of the progress of civilization," and he finally arrived at the proposition that "it is through the arts alone that all branches of learning find expression, and touch human life." The present work is the outcome of his study of the subject, and may be summarised briefly as consisting of four divisions: 1, A detailed description of the various laboratory class processes from the first lesson to the last, in the course of three years; 2, an exhaustive argument in support of the proposition that tool practice is highly promotive of intellectual growth, and in a still greater degree of the uphuilding of character; and, 3 and 4, a sketch of the historical period, and a brief sketch of the history of manual training as an educational force.

Howe, Maud. Atalanta in the south: a romance. Bost., Roberts Bros., 1886. 345 p. S. cl., $1.25.

The mythological lagend of Atalanta is repeated with a modern setting. Miss Margaret Ruysdale, a Northern girl and a genius, is adored by two men, seither of whom she seems to care very deeply for. The story takes place in New Orleans, where Miss Ruysdale and her father are spending the winter, the former having opened a studio, where she models her great work of "Atalanta." There is a sombre side to the book furnished by the story of Therese, a quadroon girl, whose lover is shot in a duel, and whose death she attempts to avenge. Miss Howe seems to have a great talent for description, and but little invention. The plot is slight, but some of the pictures of New Orleans life and scenes are very graphic, while the character-sketching is full of power.

Hurrish is a well-to-do pessant, who commits a murder under currentsances which almost Justify the deed, and is in turn shot by the brother of the murdered man. There are many strong and admirable points about Hurrish's character, which the writer shows appearal talent in delineating. There is a series of character sketches, in fact, all most graphic and artistic—literish's mother and little sweetheart, and Maurice Brady being drawn with unusual power.

"THE ROYALTY PLAN."

At intervals of a few years, whenever there is prospect of international copyright, the advocates of the so-called "royalty plan" are pretty sure to come to the front with some modification or other of a scheme which would magnify all the present difficulties of the book-trade. This is simply a plan to abolish such present basis of certainty for business as there is, by interfering with freedom of contract between the parties to a business transaction. "The royalty plan," whether for domestic or international copyright, proposes that the law shall permit any person to publish the work of any author, on payment to him of a specified royalty, say of ten or five per cent, or a fixed sum per copy, on each copy sold. In reply to the criticism that the author would thus be put at the mercy of irresponsible persons, unless the Government undertook an elaborate system of accounting and guarantee to the author as its ward, the suggestion has been made that the royalty should be paid by means of stamps affixed to each copy published, sold by the author to the publisher—a system actually in practice in the shoe business, under the royalty scheme of the McKay Sewing-Machine Company.

The answer to both is that the author is now at liberty to make such arrangements, by contract with one publisher or with many, and that a law becompel him to adopt any one plan of marketing is wares would interfere with his freedom of doice and his natural return. The reason that author chooses one publisher instead of many is the simple one that the original cost of making and advertising a book is, in this way, retend to one outlay instead of multiplied in is the practice of any successful publisher to plan for such an edition as will command the widest sale, and so distribute the original cost over as many copies as possible, and when a copyright book proves to be of such general demand that different styles of editions can be sold, such editions are in fact made by the same publisher. "The royalty plan" would only protect the public against the unwisdom of publishers whose mistakes are presently corrected by business failure or by the transfer of his books by the author to more enterprising houses. It would do no good, and it would do unbounded harm within the trade.

many, and that this cost is minimized by being

GERMAN BOOK TRADE METHODS.

LEOPOLD KATCHER, in a recent letter from Berlin to the Boston Literary World, gives the following interesting description of the German book-trade, which, he says, "is divided into three branches: publishing, bookselling (which includes second-hand dealing), and commission business. Publishers are those who furnish the book—i. e., who obtain it from the author and cause it to be printed and circulated. Booksellers are those who sell to the public, and the 'commissioner' is a sort of middleman who connects publishers and booksellers. Let us imagine that fifty books are ordered daily at a bookseller's, all of which are published by different firms. If the bookseller were in direct communication with the publishers, he would daily have to write fifty letters, to pay their postage, to pay for the packet, and to dispatch fifty remittances. This would necessitate labor and costs quite out of proportion to the trifling gain to each order. Now, since the greater portion of the German' publishers reside at Leipzig, the custom has become instituted in the course of time that the intercourse between publisher and booksellers is conducted via Leipzig. The bookseller from whom a book is ordered writes the title and publisher upon a small memorandum and sends this, together with a large number of similar little pieces of paper, to his commissioner in Leipzig. The latter in his turn distributes the memoranda to the commissioners of the respective publishers. The commissioners of the publishers send the memoranda to their respective firms, who then pack the books ordered and send them to their commissioners, who distribute them to the booksellers' commissioners, through whom they are finally sent in bales to the booksellers. If a bookseller wishes to pay a publisher in ordering the book, he requests his commissioner to pay the money to the commissioner of the publisher. As a rule, books are not paid for in cash, but during the fairs that take place at Easter and Michaelmas. At this period books that have not been sold are also returned by the booksellers to the publishers. Both the money and the goods go first to the bookseller's commissioner, and then by the same process as the memoranda find their way to the publishers. Exactly the opposite method is employed when it is a question of books ordered by the bookseller à condition, merely to be bought if suitable. That is, before a book is completely 'made,' the put lishers send circulars to all the booksellers, informing them of the title, price, and trade conditions of the forthcoming work. The bookseller either leaves this circular unregarded, or he orders the book either definitely, so that he must keep it in any case, or a condition—that is to say, with liberty to return. In the first instance, the margin of profits allowed him by the publisher is far larger (30 to 50 per cent of the retail price), while a book ordered à condition and kept is only 25 to 30 per cent. When the advertised book is ready, the publisher despatches it in the abovenamed manner to the various booksellers. the layman this mode of procedure probably seems involved, but in reality it is marvellously simple, and, because of the large number of circulars, book-parcels, etc., that pass through the hands of the commissioners, very cheap. Various arrangements facilitate this yet further; for instance, the offices for delivery that many foreign publishers have on the premises of their Leipzig commissioners, so that the memoranda have not to be sent to these latter. Further, the organ of the 'Booksellers' Association,' the Börsenblatt für den deutschen Buchhandel, which appears daily in Leipzig, and duly notes all novelties, offers, etc., and further, the 'Order Institute,' which facilitates for the Leipzig commissioners the distribution of the memoranda, circulars, etc., that constantly flow in, and which does, by the aid of ten persons, the work which required one hundred before the founding of this institute. Of such commissioners there are in Leipzig 126, who represent 5130 German, Ausdrian, Hungarian, Swiss, Anglo-German, Franco-German, etc., publishers and booksellers. nally, there is the Booksellers' Exchange, a sort of clearing-house, in which the commissioners settle their respective accounts, which are often very high, by paying the differences, often amounting to trifling sums. What extent the Leipzig book commissioners' business has assumed is shown by the fact that at present far more than £1,500,000 annually are paid through them from the booksellers to the publishers."

> REDUCTION OF DISCOUNTS. ANOTHER RETAILER HEARD FROM. MARCH 8, 1886.

To the Editor of the Publishers' Weekly.

SIR: We were in a position where we could not have access to the Weekly for several weeks, and did not know of the contents of these numbers until after we had sent you a communication that had reference rather to our own feeling and position regarding the present condition of the book business; but, believing that every bookseller should give earnest support to any movement promising relief, by giving free expression to the questions at issue, and afterward heartily help to carry out any line of action that may be adopted, we desire to express our views on the question, "What do the retailers say?"

We do not see how a reduction of nominal prices by the adoption of close discounts, without any other provisions, would help matters any at all. It would not prevent underselling any more than it can be prevented under the present system. Wannamaker, Macy, and others would buy, say, a dollar book at the same price we would have to pay—namely, 75 cents. We would have to sell it for $1; they would sell it at 80 or 85 cents, if not for 75 cents in some cases, because they sell books as an article of | adopted, then the dry-goods booksellers, having merchandise as leaders, and are satisfied with very little or no profit. And how would you prevent them from doing so? And where would be our protection?

Besides, we contend that 25 per cent is not sufficient on a promiscuous lot of miscellaneous stock of which we can't know how much we are going to sell and how much we are going to keep on hand as dead stock. In New York, where trade can be drawn from all quarters of the country, it may be different, but not in a country town, where the trade is limited to the town and a few miles around, where we may sell one half we buy, perhaps more, perhaps less; not often all. We never had a case yet where we made such purchases that we sold clean out; we never could. Then, where is our profit at 25 per cent discount? On the shelves, is it not? What good does it do there? It cannot be used to pay clerks, rent, and other running expenses. This is exactly where one of the chief troubles of the business is now insufficient compensation. If this is not so, then why complain, and why make any change at all?

We buy books now at a one third and 40 per cent off. In the one case we make a one sixth profit, and in the other a one fourth. is nearly equal to what "R" thinks retailers ought to be satisfied with; but we maintain that it is not enough to cover expenses, loss of dead stock, and afford such a living as the business should. And we repeat, this is where nearly all the trouble lies.

When we bought books at an average of a one third, and got full retail price and no interference by Wannamaker, Macy, and others, we made money out of books, and we sold a great many more than we have since cutting in prices began; and we were willing to take risks, and could afford to do so; but not so now; and we can't do very much of it under a system of 25 per cent discount. No; give us a Protective Association, and retail prices on a basis—that is to say, fair to the publishers and the public—from which we can have one third discount.

It is not a very extravagant profit to make compared with all other lines of retail business in which there is less risk. Books are not generally bought simply because they are cheap, or because they are sold under the regular or sovertised price. Take the case of any book, say "Ben Hur." People buy the book because they want it, not because they can buy a $1.50 book for $1.20, or $1.10, or even 75 cents. We have sold a good many copies of it a $1.20, and we are free to say, and believe it to be true, that if $1.50 had been the generally accepted and understood price, we would not have sold one single copy less than we did. And so it would be with all other good books, even though much less popular than "Ben-Hur," if there was co-operation between the publishers and retailers. We say, as to miscellaneous and juvenile books of all kinds, make the discount one third and maintain retail prices by selling at a discount only to booksellers.

As to "standards," "sets," "twelvemos," and "poets," we do not see that any change would help unless these books can also be sold only by booksellers. Because, 1: If the retail prices are reduced and short discount allowed. the booksellers will be compelled to cut prices any way, as the dry-goods book dealers, who 🛎 most cases, like Wannamaker, sell books as leaderr without much profit, will compel them to 4. so by cutting the prices. 2. If net prices advertised "publishers' prices and our "before, will then use the old—by the tors discarded—price lists, and will still and dishonestly advertise "publishers' and our prices," and thereby continue to a the same class of people they deceived as to the real prices.

r, here is a dilemma that is hard to get and unless all the publishers of these books one into an organization of some kind to t prices, we do not see how anything can e here, unless, indeed, the publishers of ass of books who are in the movement = retailers will combine and fight this evil the dry-goods stores by underselling Can that be done? Business.

RNATIONAL COPYRIGHT—JUSTICE OR EXPEDIENCY.

NEW YORK, March 9, 1886.

Editor of the Publishers' Weekly.

Is the proposed International Copyright question of justice or a mercenary question?

a question as to the God-given right an in-(and an author is an inventor—a literary ir) has to control his own inventions, or a in of expediency whether bookmakers, sublishers, and booksellers shall make r less out of the making, publishing, and of books?

 BOOKS WANTED" DEPARTMENT

NEW YORK, March 15, 1886.

Editor of the Publishers' Weekly,

: There is another—in fact two other—inag features to your department of "Books bookseiler advertises for some scarce called out Professor Huxley.

book in fair demand, and on reporting the same the owner is met with the humorous statement that the advertisement was simply inserted on general principles to catch some ignorant dealer or amateur not acquainted with market values.

2. The writer was recently instructed, in quite a paternal manner, that it was a good scheme to advertise for a few books already in stock, but slow of sale, and on receiving reports, offer the same items at twenty per cent less, and claim that the list was inserted under "Wants" instead of "For Sale," in error.

As a matter of fact, my last year's subscription turned me in a profit considerably over $200; and this year it has already reached half that sum, so that the good outweighs the bad.

SAXON.

INTERNATIONAL COPYRIGHT IN ENGLAND.-A cable despatch states that Mr. Mundella, president of the Board of Trade, was visited March 15 by a deputation of authors and members of the House of Commons, who called upon him to urge the necessity of action by the Government to improve the laws governing interna-Mr. Mundella assured the tional copyright. deputation that both the Board of Trade and the Foreign Office were engaged at present in a discussion as to the best means of improving the international and colonial copyright laws. He added that in his opinion a codification of the copyright laws was desirable, but he thought it improbable that the Government would be able to find the time necessary to deal with the subject this season properly.

JOURNALISTIC NOTES.

T. W. BICKNELL has retired from the editorship of the New England Journal of Education, and has been succeeded by E. A. Winship.

WATSON GRIFFIN, of Montreal, will publish an article in the Magazine of American History for April, entitled "The Consolidation of Canada," in reply to Dr. Bender's article in the February number, "The Disintegration of Canada," which appears to have created a great commotion in the Dominion.

Two suggestive articles to appear in the Apri Century are, "Strikes, Lockouts, and Arbitrations," by George May Powell, and an editorial on the Grant Memorial—"Who shall make the Monument?" "What kind of a Structure?" "The Question of Style," etc. The issue of the new life of Longfellow adds timeliness to a paper by Mrs. James T. Fields, on "Glimpses of Longfellow in Social Life," which is to appear in the same number, accompanying a new portrait of the poet, engraved from an ambrotype taken in 1848.

The Gladstone-Huxley controversy over the question of the Scientific Significance of the Book of Genesis will be continued in the April Popular Science Monthly. The number will contain Professor Huxley's second article replying to Mr. Gladstone's "Proem to Genesis," which appeared in the March issue; Henry Drummond's Comments on the views thus far presented by the two distinguished disputants; and, in a supplement, Mr. Gladstone's original paper, "The Dawn of Creation and of Worship," which first called out Professor Huxley.

LITERARY AND TRADE NOTES.

JAMES BEALE, 719 Sansom St., Philadelphia, has control of a photographic portrait of General Hancock, which was taken during a visit to the Pacific Coast, and is spoken of highly as a likeness and work of art.

LEOPOLD GEBHARDT, of Leipsic, has just published a work entitled "Bismarck at Versailles," which embraces private documents that passed between the Chancellor, the French, and neutrals during the siege of Paris.

M. W. Ellsworth & Co., Detroit, Mich., will publish early this summer, by subscription, a work entitled "Green Fields and Whispering Shades; or, the Recreations of an American Country Gentleman," by Frank S. Burton.

LEONARD A. MORRISON, Windham, N. H., will publish this year, under the title of "Rambles in Europe," his experiences while abroad, "an account of the more important places visited, with historical matter gleaned on the other side of the sea, and some embellishments."

Longmans & Co. announce a continuation of J. A. Doyle's historical work on "The English in America." The first volume, published toward the end of 1882, treated of Virginia, Maryland, and the Carolinas. The two coming volumes will deal with the Puritan colonies of New England.

IVISON, BLAKEMAN, TAYLOR & Co., on the 13th inst., began closing their establishment at one o'clock. The fact that their specialty is school books, for which Saturday is an important sales day, give particular significance to their considerate action for the benefit of their employés and the advancement of the general movement.

A NEW biography of Heine is to appear soon in Germany. The author is the well-known historian, Robert Proelss, of Dresden. The work will be called "Heinrich Heine: His Life and His Writings, According to the Newest Sources." There will be illustrations, including a hitherto unpublished portrait of Mathilde Heine. Particular attention is paid in this biography to the childhood of Heine, the individuality of his parents, and to the poet's last love.

A Montreal specialdespatch published in Chicago says that the Dominion customs authorities at Ottawa have seized 2500 copies of Beaconsfield's "Endymion," published by Harper & Brothers, of New York, and sent into Canada for sale. It is understood that the reason for the seizure is that a Montreal firm has the copyright of the work. The books, it is stated, will be destroyed. Messrs. Harper & Brothers, by agreement with the English publishers, refuse all orders for this book from Canada, even for single copies, and they know nothing as to the invoice reported seized.

MR. THOMAS HUGHES'S "Life of Peter Cooper," which is now in press in London, is not what should be called an exhaustive biography, being rather in the nature of a memorial monograph. It has been likened to the biography the same gentleman wrote of the late Daniel Macmillan, the publisher. Mr. Hughes derived a large part of his material from Mr. Hewitt, but there remains behind a vast amount of autobiographical and other matter that has been untouched. It is probable that all this will be used finally in the preparation of a complete account of Mr. Cooper's life.

WILL PUBLISH MARCH 23d:

The Late Mrs. Null.

By Frank R. Stockton, author of "Rudder Grange," "The Lady or the Tiger?" etc., etc. 1 vol., 12mo, $1.50.

This is the first long story which Mr. Stockton has written. It is issued without intermediary magazine publication, and readers may be congratulated, therefore, that they may have the author's best and most important book at once in its complete form. Mr. Stockton has not only written the very characteristic novel for which every one has looked from him, but he has written in "Mrs. Null" a great deal more; a remarkably powerful, sustained story, in which all these best traits of his are put at last into a fitting form and into a permanent piece of literature.

"An essay in the highest intellectual morality."

ANNA KARÉNINA

By COUNT LEO TOLSTOI. Translated from the Russian by Nathan Haskell Dole. Royal 12mo, 750 pages, $1.75.

"Anna Karénina" is one of the great novels of the world. It deals with questions which appeal to every man and woman. The young and beautiful wife of an influential official in St. Petersburg suddenly wakes to the fact that she passionately loves a young officer, and that her life with her husband, whom she married as a matter of convenience, has been a long lie. She struggles against the temptation, but at last she yields and goes away with her lover. Not even George Eliot paints with greater power the inexorableness of law. The happiness of the lovers at first is complete, but Anna is jealous and exacting from the very reason of the unstableness of her position, and the downward path is sure and terrible.

The story gives the most vivid picture of Russian life that has ever been painted: high society in Moscow and St. Petersburg; balls, races, garden parties, military fêtes, skating scenes, weddings, and the inner life of the great are shown with photographic detail. The author also dwells with delight on the life in the country; the Russian peasant is seen here in all his fascinating quaintness, with his proverbial philosophy, his songs, his superstitions, and his natural simplicity. The practical illustration of co-operative farming will interest every farmer and working-man in this country, where the labor question is engaging so much attention.

It has gone through several editions in Russia, and the French paraphrase, though scarcely doing justice to the original, has gone through two editions in as many weeks. The present translation very fairly represents the original. It has been made by Mr. Nathan Haskell Dole, editor and translator of Rambaud's History of Russia, and for five years literary editor of the Philadelphia Press.

THE WRECKERS. A SOCIAL STUDY.

A Novel. By George Thomas Dowling. Illustrated. 12mo, extra cloth, $1.25.

Mr. Dowling, who is the son of the late John Dowling, D.D., well known as the author of the "History of Romanism" and several other works, is one of the most popular preachers of the West, and having been brought, by the duties of his profession, much into contact with the poor, and rendered familiar with the joys and sorrows of their lot, he has succeeded in writing a bright, original, and striking story. He is a man of large sympathy, and also possesses a keen sense of the ludicrous, as manifested in the very happy manner in which pathetic and humorous passages are interspersed throughout the narrative, making the work exceedingly entertaining.

NOTES IN SEASON.

D. APPLETON & Co. have just ready "Love's Martyr," a novel by Laurence Alma Tadema, the daughter of the celebrated artist, which is printed from advance sheets, and exhibits no little power.

GEORGE H. BUCHANAN & Co. have just ready Prof. I. F. Hodgett's "Ivan Dobroff," a Russian story full of local color, and giving a most comprehensive account of the manners and customs of the country.

HARPER & BROTHERS have just issued "Lord Vanecourt's Daughter," by Mabel Collins, in their Franklin Square Series; and "Our Sensation Novel," edited by Justin McCarthy, who, in his preface, refuses to say how the matter now put in print first came into his possession.

Frederic Tredwell, New York City, has just issued "A Sketch of Apollonius of Tyana; or, the First Decades of Our Era," by Daniel M. Tredwell, who in this work describes the literature, religion, and philosophy of the Koman empire from Augustus to Domitian. It is exquisitely printed by Theo. L. De Vinne & Co.

A. D. F. RANDOLPH & Co. have now ready some of their exquisitely pretty Easter volumes, which are fully described elsewhere in this issue. We have received "The Blessed Easter-Tide," compiled by the author of "Christmas-Tide in Song and Story;" "An Easter Song," a poem by the Rev. Robert Hall Baynes, illustrated by Gratacap; and "A Characteristic of Modern Life."

TICKNOR & Co. have just issued Rose Terry Cooke's "The Sphinx's Children, and Other People's,'' a collection of stories reprinted from the Atlantic Monthly, Harper's Magazine, the Galaxy, and a few other periodicals; "The Prelate," a story of Rome, by Isaac Henderson, a well-known member of the Evening Post staff: and "A Stroll with Keats," illustrated by Frances Clifford Brown.

CHARLES SCRIBNER'S SONS have just issued Eugene Schuyler's "American Diplomacy and the Furtherance of Commerce," based on two courses of lectures, delivered at Johns Hopkins University and at Cornell University, aiming to set forth the usefulness and need of the consular and diplomatic services of the United States, and to interest the young men, so soon to become citizens, in the great practical influence of our diplomacy upon our commerce and navigation. Frank Stockton's long-expected "Mrs. Null" has also just reached us.

G. P. Putnam's Sons have just ready "A Study of Dante," by Susan E. Blow, with an introduction by William T. Harris, who briefly sums up the peculiarities of Dante's genius, leaving it to Miss Blow to make separate studies of the "Inferno," "Purgatorio," and "Paradiso;" and also "Evolution of To-day," a summary of the theory of evolution as held by scientists at the present time, and an account of the progress made by the discussions and investigations of a quarter of a century, by Dr. H. W. Conn, instructor of biology at Wesleyan University.

PERSONAL MENTION.

MR. FRANCIS P. HARPER, of Barclay Street, New York, sailed last week on the Adriatic lox Liverpool. He will visit London and the Continent in quest of books and engravings.

Ayres, Alfred, [pseud. for T: E. Osmun.] The essentials of elocution. N. Y., Funk & Wagnalls, 1886. Sq p. S. cl., 60 c.

A short treatise on the art of reading, refuting almost all the hitherto published methods. The author says that there can be no good acting without good elocution; that without much study, and in the right direction, there can be no good elocution; and that there is no art which can be taught with more success than elocution. The ideals specially held up to students are Charlotte Cushman and Edwin Forrest. The exterior of the little book is very dainty; the title is a fac-simile of Alfred Ayres's penmanship in gilt letters. One half the book consists of extracts for reading, chosen with good taste.

Lee & Shepard, 1886. 75 p. T. cl., 50 c. In order to suggest a method of graded class-work, which shall include under the head of language whatever is taught in reading, writing, form, color, and number, the author offers these hints to the profession, on the bases of experiments already attempted by teachers, to whose assistance he gratefully acknowledges himself indebted. Gives a list of books of authority on topics suitable for language exercises, and a list of books to form a teachers' consulting library.

George Eliot's many admirers will read this little brockure with interest, even if they dispute its conclusions. The unknown author has a theory of his own regarding her love, life and the feelings she entertained not only for Lewes, but for Herbert Spencer and another person unnamed, who seemed to have cast a blight upon her girlhood.

Jahman, C: Haphazard personalities; chiefly of noted Americans. Bost., Lee & Shepard, 1856, 3-387 p. S. cl., $1.50.

The varied experiences of Charles Lanman in mercantile life and as a journalist, author, and artist, and as a government official in Washington brought him into contact and made him good friends with many noted men of the day. The thirty-eight chapters that he devotes to as many eminent men give most interesting revelations of character, derived from his own experience and personal observation. The names of Irving, Bryant, Henry Clay, Winfield Scott, George B. McClellan, Longfellow, Everett, Horace Greeley, Charles Dickens, and Kane, the Arctic explorer, may be mentioned among many others equally famous. Mr. Lanman is the author of the "Private life of Daniel Webster."

McCarthy, Justin H., ed. Our sensation novel. N. Y., Harper, 1886. 4-152 p. S. (Harper's handy ser., no. 63.) pap., 25 c.

The well-known Irish M. P. In produced a delightful burlesque of the "sensation novel," full of wildly exciting incidents which lead to nothing, and invested with horrible mystery, which he pronounces himself "one of those things no fellow could understand." In an amusing preface, it is claimed that the book was written by the author and his wife, each half quite independent of the other, and then novetailed together chapter by chapter; and it really reads as if it had been so constructed.

McLellan, J: Poems of the rod and gun; or, sports by flood and field, ed., with a memoir of the author, by Will Wildwood. N. Y., H: Thorpe, 1886. 3+271 p. 1 il. D. cl.,

Mr. McLellan, the "poet-sportsman," was born at Portland, Maine, 1806. He counted Longfellow, Hawthorne, N. P. Willis, and other famous writers among his early friends and associates. He is an ardent devotee of field-sports, describing in very charming verse the delights of the chase, the larger game of America and Europe, the haunts of the wild-birds, and the various aspects of nature. These poems found a place in the best sporting journals of his early days, and he is still an occasional contributor to the Turf, Field and Farm, Forest and Stream, American Angler, and other periodicals. His poems, collected at the request of many friends and admirers, form in their present shape a unique volume.

MoWhinney, T: Martin, D.D. Reason and revelation, hand in hand. N. Y., Fords, Howard & Hulbert, 1886. 10+594 p. D. cl., $1.50.

The author divides his book into six parts: Religion, the Bible, Theology, Anthropology, Demonology, and Christology, his object being to demonstrate the harmony of the truths of revealed religion with the clear, unbiassed working of man's reasoning faculties. A well-digested table of contents and a careful index of several hundred references give easy access to the nearly six hundred pages.

Perkins, Mrs. Sarah M. Helen; or, will she save him? N. Y., Funk & Wagnalls, 1886.

3-138 p. D. cl., 75 c.; pap., 15 c.

Helen marries a man who drinks occasionally to excess; but as they love each other warmly, she believes she can reform him. Her experience, however, is most bitter; he goes from bad to worse, till she is forced to leave him and battle alone with the world. After years of degradation the husband is reclaimed through the Christian efforts of a college classmate, and restored to his family. The story claims to illustrate the utter impotency of all human influence and endeavor to save the confirmed drunkard.

Ragozin, Zénaïde A. The story of Chaldea from the earliest times to the rise of Assyria, treated as a general introduction to the study of ancient history. N. Y., G: P. Putnam's Sons, 1886. 15+381 p. il. D. (Story of the nations ser.) cl., $1.50.

"A highly important contribution to historic lore is made by Madame Zénaide Ragozin, who writes intelligently and forcibly on Oriental traditions, customs, civilization, and religion. The basis for her work is found in the treasures dug from the mounds of Mesopotamia, in Assyria and Chaldea, by the famous archæologists Rich, Botta, Layard, and George Smith, the young English enthusiast, who died of the plague in Syria in 1876, after five years' hard work among the hidden chambers of buried cities. In four introductory chapters the author summarizes the work of discovery and excavation since 2842. Numerous engravings of architectural designs, of tiles and friezes, of slabs and statuary, of pottery and scraps of alabaster ornaments, illustrate this portion of the work, and the introduction closes with a résumé of the historic treasures found in the recesses of the "library" of Nineveh. In the second part of the book the story of Chaldea is told. The book is fraught with rich treasures of knowledge; its spirited style and graceful diction lend a charm and a fascination to its pages that overcome any feeling of discouragement that might be suggested by the title or the subject with which it deals." —Boston Gazette.

Robbins, Mrs. S. S. Dick, the captain of the family ship. N. Y., Rob. Carter & Bros., [1886.] 3-199 p. S. (The Gillettes ser., no. 1.)

The first of six volumes, to form a new series. By the author of the "Win and Wear series." The books are all to tell the fortunes of a family named Gillettes. There were six children, and each one is to have his or her little history told to illustrate some virtue within the reach of all boys and girls. Dick's father was lost at sea, and Dick, the eldest, became "captain of the family ship." The books are intended to furnish reading for Sunday afternoons. Integrity is Dick's virtue.

HE BOOK TRADE BE BET-TERED?

end of the trade to the other, from er at the great centres to the small the little villages in the far West, neral agreement that the book trade depressed, but that it is depressed at is necessary if trade methods should be. The difficulty is somehan the mere shifting of trade from res to the bazaars. The sale of not seem, as a matter of fact, to te pace with the growth in populadevelopment of the country, and it al experience that a smaller edition ok is actually sold than would have some years ago. This is to be acin a measure, of course, by the eneral depression through which we assing; but that accounts for it only A great part of the difficulty is ited to the simple fact that the pube has permitted itself to fall behind usiness methods, and so has broken considerable extent the distributing of the trade. It has been well said ok trade is largely a business of and when there are no longer bookeach small centre throughout the ask readers to purchase books, sales y lost.

rrespondence which has been printed nns for some weeks back has been cant, but a large part of its signifis from the division of opinion as to Strangely enough, in many cases publishers or booksellers, or both, to keep up the present system. As a matter of fact, this is the one thing which cannot be done. The present system needs to be changed, but it can be changed only in the direction of public benefit, and not against the interest of the public. This means that the change of price, if a change: is to be made, must be for lower prices, and not for closer ones. The American Book Trade" Association was not a combination to keep up. prices in the ordinary sense. It was a combination, however, to conform actual prices closely to publishers' prices. It broke down for two reas sons: one, that it was not possible to hold to it permanently the entire trade; the other, that dealers were unwilling to take the further step of reducing prices as well as holding discounts, so that the movement was felt to be against the interests of the public. Under these circumstances its failure was inevitable. A combination to keep books up to the nominal publishers' pricer directly or by refusing the public the customary discounts, is not possible—nor is it desirable if it were possible. The book trade, of all trades, must depend upon the good-will of the buying. public, and such a combination would be considered a slap in the face of buyers.

Almost every publisher now in the trade recognizes the desirability of making some change, and there is general agreement that a reduction of prices by the adoption of closer discounts is the one change desirable. But most of the publishers concerned manifest a strong disinclination to take this step, because they believe they would not be supported by the retail trade. What they fear is that the only lists which would benefit are those which are strong in copyright books, on which there is, in a limited sense, no competition (although, in a general sense, they must compete with non-copyright books), and that the non-copyright lists would suffer because dealers would be all the more inclined to buy those lines on which the publishers' price was nominal and extravagant, but on which the discount nominally allowed was proportionatelygreater. Several houses have, in fact, thrown their weight against the proposed change on the ground that the margin under reduced discounts would not be sufficient to do business, and the publishers most willing to take action really do fear that the retail trade would desert their lists for competing lines on which prices are purely artificial. This is an important point for the retail trade to consider, for at this moment it blocks the way to that method of reform.

The further remedy suggested, in line with the idea of combination, is that publishers should refuse to sell to dealers like Wannamaker, Macy, and the bazaars generally. This course is not in ought is for a close combination of | accord with the modern idea of trade, and, even if there were no other objections to it, would not be possible to carry out. In many cases it has been found, indeed, that the stores which offer books at the lowest cut prices have not bought direct from the publishers at all, but through middlemen ; and it is practically impossible to engineer agreements and keep up the surveillance necessary to prevent stock being sold in that way. It seems to us unwise for the trade to waste effort in this direction. What we need is to bring back good business methods within the book trade, and then there will be less reason to fear the competition of the so-called bazaars, some of which, it must be said, are developing into large and well-conducted bookstores. scarcely fair to say that a shop like Wannamaker's is not a bookstore because it deals in quantities of other things besides books.

If a change in the discount system is to be brought about, it should be decided upon at once, that new prices may be promulgated in July. At present, the movement is blocked by the fear, on the part of certain publishers, of the results indicated. The practical question is whether that fear can be removed by the general acquiescence of the distributing trade. If no change is made, we are likely to go from bad to worse.

COMMUNICATIONS.

THE "BUNTLING BALL" PRIZE

March 23, 1886.

To the Editor of the Publishers' Weekly.

WE have seen in several papers criticisms like the following, which we clip from the Brooklyn Union

"Some two or three hundred people guessed the name of the author [of 'The Buntling Ball'], and they were informed by the publishers that their share of the $1000, amounting to about $3 [$3.87] each, would be paid to them in books selected from Fink & Wagnalls' list of publications. The guessers who believed in the $1000 cash prite may now regret the waste of the postage-stamp which carried their guess."

Permit us to say

1. We do not question the right of any one to criticise as severely as he may please the offer by us of one thousand dollars for the correct naming of the author of an anonymous book. We may have been right or we may have been wrong in making this offer; it depends wholly on the standpoint from which it is viewed. It would be of little profit to discuss this now.

ter and spirit of the contract in our offer. We did not compel the persons who guessed correctly to take pay in our books. We gave them the option of taking books at a discount or tash. The fact is, that nine tenths of the amount was paid in cash and the other tenth was not paid in cash only because the "guessers" preferred books. We went beyond the letter of our offer. By our offer the money was to be paid when so,000 copies were sold. Ten thousand topics with severa one of them table of correctly that money now. We would have been perfectly fair had we refused to distribute the money until the ten thousandth copy had been disposed of, which might not have been for twelve months or more, for haps never.

3. There were several authors who were named almost, if not altogether as frequently as was the true author, up to a week before the close of the offer. Gilbert, Robert Grant, Fawcett, Croffut, Bunner, were "guessed" almost an equal number of times. Holmes, Lowell, Hay, Stedman, Carleton, were "guessed" over and over again. In all some 250 different authors were named. Had it not been for an inadvertence, a few days before the closing of the offer, the author had not been named correctly nearly so often. By an oversight a manuscript story by the author of "Bunting Ball" was placed in the hands of a syndicate of papers. The manuscript was in the well-known handwriting of the author-This, of course, gave away the secret. As a result, from a single establishment, as may be seen by the printed list (with P. O. addresses) of those who "guessed" correctly, 25 correct guesses" came in, from another 12, and from many others one, two, three each. Prior to the secret thus leaking out only comparatively for persons had guessed correctly.

Whatever may be said about this experiment, it has made pretty manifest that there are not many people who are able to determine from internal evidence the author of a book.

"Forewarned—Forearmed," by J. Thain Davidson, is to be uniform with his "Talks with Young Men," which proved so great a success, and made quite palatable the straightforward and brotherly advice they gave. They also announce "The Last Days of the Consulate," a translation from the French of Fauriel, Member of the Institute of France, adited with introduction by M. L. Lalanne; "Mo-ments on the Mount," a series of devotional meditations, by Rev. George Matheson, a volume not to be read through at a sitting, but taken little by little and pondered carefully; "The Mosaic Origin of the Pentateuchal Codes," by Geirhardus Vos, with introduction by Rev. Dr. W. H. Green, which carefully and dispassionately examines the arguments of the recent radical school of critics, and refutes them in a terse, clear style; and "Theism and Evolution," by Rev. J. P. Van Dyke, with introduction by Rev. Dr. A. A. Hodge, a scholarly discussion of evolution, dealing with the speculations of Darwin. Hackel, Spencer, Bain, Huxley, and others, and giving an array of facts-to prove their in-ability to explain the origin of matter, force, mentality, conscience, and will-power, without meeting the doctrine of theism, a work which will rouse evolutionists to more upanswerable argument. L. Burritt, Principal of Wellsville Union School and Acad-They will also have ready six volumes of the "Pedagogical Biography," edited by Richard Hebert Quick, vol. I, treating of "The Jesuits," and also of Ascham, Montaigne, Ratch, and Milton; vol. 2, "Amos Comenius;" vol. 3, "John Locke;" vol. 4, "Jean Jacques Rousseau;" vol. 5, "Baudon and the Philanthropists;" and vol. 6, "Joseph Jacotot."

A. S. BARNES & Co. have in press a volume on the Storrs family in England and America, collected by the late Charles Storrs, of Brooklyn, running back to the earliest records. Of value to collectors and libraries, and of interest to all members of the Storrs family.

WILLIAM EVERTS BENJAMIN has in press a book that will prove tempting to collectors of Thackerayana. It is a monograph by James Schönberg, on "Thackeray as an Artist," in which are incorporated four of the great humorist's hitherto unpublished verses, illustrated by seven of his characteristic drawings, made from plates in the publisher's possession. The little work will be gotten up in imitation of Thackeray's Christmas books of a former generation.

Benziger Brothers have in press a centenary edition of "The Complete Ascetical Works of St. Alphonsus de Liguori," founder of the Congregation of the Most Holy Redeemer, translated from the Italian, and edited by the Rev. Eugene Grimm. It will be published in eighteen volumes, each complete in itself, and sold separately. For later publication they announce a two-volume edition of the sermons of the Rev. Father Francis Hunolt, translated from the original German edition, published at Cologne, in 1740, by the Rev. J. Allen, D.D., to be known as "The Christian State of Life." There are seventy six sermons adapted to all the Sundays and holydays of the year, with a full index of all the sermons and an alphabetical index of all the subjects treated, besides full marginal notes. This house has also nearly ready a book on a subject absorbing the attention of the civilized word—"The Parnell Movement," treated by T. P. O'Connor, M.P., in a direct and honest way, and said to be one of the clearest and most forcible statements yet presented of the Irish National Question. Mr. O'Connor begins with the movement under O'Connell, and describes vividly the tragic scenes of famine, coercion, Young Irelandism, Fenianism, etc. He makes clear the views of Isaac Butt, John Mitchell, Justin McCarthy, Sexton, Davitt, Dillon, Biggar, and other leaders who have identified themselves with their country's cause.

ANTON BICKER, Cincinnati, O., has in preparation a series of clinical lectures delivered at the Cincinnati Hospital during the winter session of 1885-86, by the several clinical lecturers of the The present series will embrace lectures upon "Post-Mortem Examinations," by William A. Rothacker, M.D.; "Chronic' Broncho-Pneumonia: Its Diagnosis and Treat- revised and enlarged; "Cooley on Taxation vent," by William Carson, M.D.; "Stran- the second edition, enlarged, improved, gulated Hernia," by P. S. J. Fletcher Brennan & Co., Cincinnett, will have ready next May the first of the two volumes of the "Autobiography of Cassius L Clay, of Kentucky," late Minister to Russia. The work will be sold by subscription only.

GRO. H. BUCHANAN has just issued "Ivas Dobreff," by Prof. F. F. Hodgetts, one more addition to the stirring stories of Russian life; "Manual of Home Economics," by Mrs. S. T. Rorer; and "Bible Heroes," a volume of OM Testament stories for little folks.

CALLAGHAN & Co., Chicago, are preparing for immediate publication, "Wade on the Land of Notice," a treatise on the law of notice of affecting civil rights and remedies, thorough practically rewritten; "High on Receivers," second edition, revised and enlarged; and Greenhood's "Public Policy in the Law of Contracts."

ROBERT CARTER & BROTHERS have nearly ready "Healing and Service," a volume of sermons, by C. H. Spurgeon, preached in 1885; and a new revised and cheaper edition of Dr. Donald Fraser's "Lectures on the Books of the Bible," in two volumes. In juveniles there will be two volumes of a new series by the author of "Win and Wear," to be known as the Gillettes Series, which is to illustrate qualities to be aimed at by boys and girls, such as unselfishness, perseverance, integrity, enterprise, faithfulness, and honesty. The two first books are entitled "Dick" and "Nan." The remaining volumes will follow in the autumn. They have just issued two new volumes by A. L. O. E., called "Pictures of St. Paul" and "The Parables of Christ."

CASPAR & ZAHN, Milwaukee, Wis., have in preparation a work entitled "The City of Milwankee: a guide to the 'Cream City' for visitors and citizens, giving a history of the setttlement, development, and present importance of the city, with a chronology of interesting events.' The book is intended as a souvenir of the twentyfourth sängerfest of the North American Sängerbund, to be held at Milwaukee, July 21 to 25, 1886. It will also include a historical sketch of the North American Sängerbund, and the advancement of the art of singing and music in America; the official programmes, and other valuable information pertaining to the Sängerfest, as well as descriptions of such noted summer resorts of Wisconsin as Pewaukee, Waukesha, Oconomowoc, Lake Side, Gifford's Mineral Spring Park, The Dells, etc. It will be profusely illustrated, and will have bird's-eye views of the city in ten plates, from original perspective drawings, and new and accurate maps of the city and of the county of Milwaukee, both drawn expressly for this "souvenir." The work will also appear in the German.

MESSRS. CASSELL & Co. make some important announcements in almost all departments of literature. The second volume of Henry W. Lucy's successful "Diary of Two Parliaments" is nearly ready, and handles the interesting period of "The Gladstone Parliament-1880-1885. A work of rare value and great research is promised in "Fresh Water Fishes of Europe," by H. G. Seeley, Professor of Geography in King's College, London, and correspondent for many scientific societies throughout the world. He gives an exhaustive history of the genera, species, structure, habits, distribution, and economic importance of fresh water fish, which is magnificently illustrated with engravings. The fourth and final volume of "Cassell's Popular Gardening" will be issued. This is a comprehensive, practical guide to the successful cultivation of flowers, fruit, and vegetables, written by leading authorities, and edited by D. T. Fish, illustrated throughout with practical engravings. "A Short History of Tapestry," by Eugene Muntz; "The Education of the Artist," by Ernest Chesneau; and "A Manual of Greek Archæology." by Maxime Collignon, will be added to the Fine Art Library. "Representative Poems by Living Poets" has been compiled by George Parsons Lathrop of poems selected by the writers themselves, to which he has written a scholarly introduction. "Actors and Actresses of Great Britain and the United States" is edited by Brander Matthews and Laurence Hutton. It will be finished in five volumes, two of which are promised for the present season, the first to be devoted to "Garrick and his Contemporaries," the second to "Kemble and his Contemporaries." The editors are known as specialists in all matters relating to the stage, and they are supplied with their material by actors and writers of note in this country and abroad. In fiction there is promised a new story by Sidney Luska, to be called "Mrs. Peixada, in which he once more tells an ingenious, sensational tale of murder, and works up his readers' imagination from the first to the last page, leaving them thoroughly surprised at the dinouement. Miss Emma Marshall has written a new novel called "No. XIII.; or, the Story of the Lost Vestal," of which the scene is laid in ancient Rome; Evan Stanton tells a tale of Afghan life, to be called "Ruhainah;" and Thomas Archer has written a story of the Huguenots, which he names "By Fire and Sword." The "brilliant" little Rainbow Series will also have two additions -" Old Fulkerson's Clerk," by Mrs. J. H. Walworth, and "Natasqua," by Rebecca Harding Davis.

S. E. CASSINO, 65 Kingston St., Boston, Mass., has in press a work entitled "Mineral Physiology and Physiography; or, Geological and Mineralogical Studies," by Dr. Thomas Sterry Hunt. This work will be incidentally a tribute "to the work of Amos Eaton, who, more than fifty years since, laid on a sound basis the foundations of American geology."

S. E. CASSINO & Co. (Bradlee Whidden), Boston, have just issued a volume entitled "Messianic Expectations and Modern Judaism," by the Rabbi Solomon Schindler, one of the leaders of the liberal school of Judaism. The book is intended to overturn some of the accepted ideas as to the Jewish faith, and is interesting as showing that something akin to what is known as "the new theology" has crept even into this conservative body. It contains an introduction by the Rev. Minot J. Savage.

THE CONGREGATIONAL SUNDAY-SCHOOL AND PUBLISHING SOCIETY, Boston, have nearly ready a volume of sermons by the Rev. Mortimer Blake, to be known as "Soundings;" "The Seven Laws of Teaching," by John M. Gregory, an aid for Sunday-school teachers; "Ten Years at Skokomish," an illustrated description of life on a far-off mission station; and "Culture of Child Piety," by Amos S. Cheeseboro. Among juveniles published especially for Sunday-school libraries of Congregational persuasion will be "Dick and his Song," Four Miles from Tarrytown," Doings of the Patchwork Quilt Club," and "Doings of Beasts, Birds, etc."

GEORGE J. COOMBES has in preparation a volume of criticisms, by William Winter, of Miss Mary Anderson as an actress. In both form and substance it will resemble the volume on "Henry Irving in New York," which Mr. Winter wrote and Mr. Coombes published late last spring. He has also in preparation another handsome book for bibliophiles, entitled "Ballads of Books," edited by Brander Matthews. This volume will contain original poems, written expressly for this work, by Austin Dobson, Edmund Gosse, Cosmo Monkhouse, Andrew Lander Matthews. H. C. Bunner, Frederick Locker, Was Learned, G. P. Lathrop, Walter Herries Pollock, and others, and will be printed uniform with the volume "Books and Bookmen" just published, and which forms the initial volume of a series to be called Books for the Bibliophile.

T. Y. CROWELL & Co. will publish immediately a great work of fiction by Count Leo Tolstoi, to be called "Anna Karénina," translated from the Russian by Nathan Haskell Dole, editor and translator of Rambaud's "History of Russia." The story deals with Russian high life in Moscow and St. Petersburgh, and describes balls, fêtes, garden parties, skating scenes, weddings, and military life with photographic accuracy; then the scene shifts to the country and the Russian peasant, with his philosophy, songs, superstitions, festivals, etc., is latroduced. A scheme of co-operative farming deals philosophically with the present all-engrossing labor question. In a wonderful story the gifted author teaches Russian history, past and present.

CUPPLES, UPHAM & CO. leave nothing to be desired in the way of variety in the list of books announced for spring publication. There will be a brackers by Mrs. Frances Brooks, the taleuted translator of "Heidi" and "Rico and Wisele," entitled "One Year's Sonnets," and limited to two hundred copies; a work on "Small Fruits," by W. H. Hill; a new work on "Electric Lighting," translated from the German : a work by two Bostonian yachtsmen, who thus far object to being mentioned, to be called "The Log of the Ariel," and to show in its numerous illustrations many of the localities best-known to American yachtsmen; a limited edition of Mr. Rideing's "Thackeray's London," to be issued tastefully bound in parch-ment covers; and "What is Theosophy," explained by a well-known Newport lady, and published as a companion volume to " Light on the Path," which has received the indorsement of the Theosophical Society, and has puzzled, amused, and interested not a few very clever people, and of which a new edition is also promseed very soon.

Dond, Mead & Co. have in press for immediate publication "A Daughter of Fife," a novel by Amelia E. Barr, author of "Jan Vedder's Wife;" "The Midnight Cry," a novel by Jane Marsh Porter; "A Ranchman's Stories," comprising "A Lone Star Bo-Peep," "The Mystery of San Saba," "Three Strephons of Concho," "An Episode of Point Rock," "A Stage-coach Enchantress," and "The Tiger Lily of Liano Post," etc., Mr. Howard Seely's most successful magazine story; "The Captain of the Janizaries," a novel by James Ludlow, of which the scene is laid in Albania in the time of Iscanderbeg and the capture of Constantinople by the Moslems; and "The Thorn in the Nest," a novel by Martha Finley. Two new books will be added to their well-chosen series of Tales from Many Sources, making it now number six volumes. The former ones will be reissued with these in paper covers also. There will be ready a new and cheaper edition of E. P. Roe's "Success with Small Fruits," containing all the illustrations of former editions.

E. P. DUTTON & Co. have just issued a timely work in view of the widespread interest shown by the American people in the visit of Archidescon Farrar, in his "Sermons and Addresses a America," containing also the remarkable lect-

America." The series of articles contributed by the Rev. Lyman Abbott to the Christian Union during last year, under the title of "Aids to Faith," have been revised by the author and will now be published in book form and known as "In Aid of Faith." This house has also in preparation choice little volumes for Easter presents, all bound in special bindings suitable to their object. Among the more imporant of these are "Easter Thoughts from George Herbert," with crayon illustrations; "The Daisy Seekers," by W. M. L. Jay; "The Old, Old Story;" "The Gate of Paradise; "Easter Joy," cross-shaped, with illuminated covers; "Song of Hope," by Earnest W. Shurtleff; "Easter Wreaths," bound in white; "Life's Sunny Side," Scripture selections and a poem for each day of the month; "Comfort Crumbs," a book of choice extracts, and "Silver Streams," illuminated texts and hymns for a month, by Frances Ridley Havergal.

JAMES H. EARLE, Boston, will shortly issue "Forty Days; or, Nineveh and its Repentance," a volume by the Rev. Samuel H. Higgins, D.D., on the secret and sources of successful preaching and teaching, a manual for the pulpit as well as for private reading; "Thought Etchings," by the Rev. J. M. Scott, suited to the needs of preachers and writers for the abundance of suggestive illustration; "Bible Teachings from Nature," treating of "the newest science as related to the oldest Book," by the Rev. Dr. J. B. Smith; and "Songs of Trust, compiled by Elizabeth S. Goodyear, specially adapted for the sick room and seasons of devetion. They have just issued the seventh large edition of "Highway Songs," the popular religlous song-book, of which ten thousand copies were ordered when it was first brought out last July; and also a novel by Henry Clemens Pearson dealing with the social and religious life of to-day, as seen by the author, who was for several years, mill superintendent, and made special study of the improvement of the masset, the duties of the rich, and the great fight against the evils of intemperance. The book is recommended by Professor Austin Phelps, who " read it at one sitting."

M. W. Ellsworth & Co., Detroit, Mich., will publish early this summer, by subscription, a work entitled "Green Fields and Whispering Shades; or, the Recreations of an American Country Gentleman," by Frank S. Burton.

ESTES & LAURIAT announce a fine library edition of "George Eliot's Works," limited to hve hundred numbered copies, containing all the author's novels, essays, and poems, and a concise biography by the Rev. George Willis Cooks. It will have proof impressions of original paints: etchings and photo-etchings. Among the artists will be Dielman, F. S. Church, William Unger, Will H. Low, J. Wells Champney, George Puller, H. Sandham, W. St. John Harper, Satterlee, W. L. Taylor, Garrett, F. T. Merrii Henry Hill, and others. LEACH, SHEWELL & SANBORN have just ready "Number Lessons for Supplementary Work in Arithmetic," in nine parts.

LEE & SHEPARD have just ready a beautiful little Easter offering from the pencil of Irene E. Jerome, called "The Message of the Blue-Bird, Told to Me to Tell to Others," containing eight full-page illustrations engraved on wood by Andrews, uniquely bound in covers of "imperial antique," knotted with silk floss. Two descriptive works promising to be of interest will be "Down the West Branch; or, Camps and Tramps around Katahdin," by Captain C. A. J. Farrar, and old guide and pilot; and "A Winter in Cen-tral America," by Helen C. Sanborn, giving a bright description of travel in a country little "The Law of Limited Partnership," by Clement known and almost less read about. An interest- Bates; "Studies in Comparative Jurispresesses ing work on language is also forthcoming, to be called "Forgotten Meanings; or an Hour with a Dictionary," by Alfred Waites. Of educa-tional value will be "Exercises for the Improve-ment of the Senses," by Horace Grant, author of "Arithmetic for Young Children," edited by Willard Small and designed for young children; "The Child's Book of Health," Albert P. Blaisdell, M.D., author of that successful book, "Our Bodies;" and "Young People's History of England," by George Makepeace Towle, author of "Heroes of History." who seems to have solved the difficult problem of making the young acquire information in much-liked stories. There will also be a new edition of the works of George H. Calvert, and one of " Camps in the Caribbees," by Fred A. Ober, illustrated and reduced in price and made uniform with the other well-known works of travel by Bishop, Harriman, Ruggles, etc., published by this house.

N. Ponce de Leon, 40 Broadway, N. Y., has completed the publication of his "Diccionario Tecnologico." It has been so well supported that this English-Spanish portion will be directly followed by the Spanish-English.

THE J. B. LIPPINCOTT CO. have in press . treatise on "Ruilders' Work and the Building Trades," by Colonel H. C. Seddon, Superiotendent Engineer H. M. Dockyard, Portsmouth: "A Dictionary of Practical Surgery," by various British hospital surgeons, edited by Christopher Heath; a new novel by George Thomas Dowling, one of our most popular Western preachers, entitled "The Wreckers," which is full of good sound sense, made palatable with sparkling humor; "Don Miff: a Symphony of Life in Four Movements;" a new novel by "The Duchess"; a new novel by Charles King. author of "The Colonel's Daughter;" a new translation of Mrs. Wister, of Ursula Zöge von Mantenffel, called "Violetta;" "Harcourt," a novel by Mrs. Annie S. Gilchrist; "In a Grass Country," a love story by Mrs. H. Lovett Cam-eron; and "Court Royal," by the author of " John Herring." There will be a new volume in the Philosophical Classics, entitled "Hobbes," by W. G. C. Robertson, of University College. London; "Probation and Punishment of the Wicked," as held by the great body of Christians of all ages, by Rev. S. M. Vernon; "Lyrical Poems—Songs, Pastorals, Rounds-lays, Madrigals," by Emily Thornton Charles (Emily Hawthorne); and Othello, the fifth and sixth volumes of Furness's Varieties edition of Shakspeare's works. They have also in preparation a romance by Virginius Dabney, written with the aim of preserving some of the more picturesque features of the old South. In the earlier portions of the story, we are told, the scene is laid in Richmond and the lower "tidewater" region of Virginia, shifting, afterward, to the valley. The time includes the whole of the late war and some of the mouths prior to it, They have just issued "The Popular Family Atlas of the World," containing twenty-four maps, one of the most accurate and the cheapest work of its kind in the market.

LITTLE, BROWN & Co. announce for early publication, "The Law of Sales of Personal Property, in Massachusetts," by E. P. Usber; and the Conflict of Laws," by George Merrill, of the New York bar; "The Law of Descent, and Incidents of Its Practice," illustrated by an analysis of Massachusetts cases and by reference to other authorities, by Charles E. Grinnell, of the Boston bar, and "Massachusetts Index Digest," an index to the reports of cases decided by the Supreme Judicial Court of Massachu-setts, by William V. Kellar, of the Boston bar. They also announce new and carefully revised editions of Story's "Equity Jurisprudence," Stephens's " Digest of Evidence," with notes and additional illustrations, bringing it down to the present time, taken chiefly from American cases, including those of John Wilder May, late Chief-Justice of the Municipal Court, Boston; and Angell and Durfee's "Treatise on Highways, with notes and references to the later cases, by George F. Choate. An important work just issued is "The Law of Perpetuities," by John Chipman Gray, Royal Professor of Law in Harvard University. The third volume in their beautiful Badminton Library is ready, devoted to "Racing." This library is edited by the Duke of Beaufort, assisted by Alfred T. Watson. Its object and scope are to supply lovers of out-door amusements with a series of volumes written by experts, giving practical information, and also pointing out the pleasures and benefits of rural sports. Each volume gives a complete bibliography of its subject. The mechanical details are exceptionally good, the books are beautifully gotten up, full of attle vignette pictures and exquisite head and tail-pieces, and paper, print, and binding are rich and appropriate.

D. LOTHROP & Co. have nearly ready three new Easter books: "Sunrise; or, an Easter Triumph," by Rose Porter, a little volume of selections, printed in brown ink, bound in creamcolor, and ribbon-tied; "On Easter Day," by Margaret Sidney, a poem with ten illustrations, daintily engraved, printed in toned ink on fine paper, bound in white, with an etched design in mepia on the cover, which is ribbon-tied, and "An Easter Rose," by Sarah Prescott Kellogg, a poem also, with the same embellishment of ten engravings, toned ink, cream paper, white binding, with design in silver and colors, and the pretty ribbons. The fourth volume of "Through the Year with the Poets " is just out, devoted to " March," and shows able editing and good indexes. Clara M. Arthur has written a kind of antobiography called "Etchings from Two Lands," in which she makes very interesting her travels through the countries in which she did valuable mission work. This house never forgets the young people, and, as usual, gives them much benefit of its announcements. Mr. E. S. Brooks, who has certainly solved the problem of making historic knowledge pleasant, has written "In Leisler's Times," a story of Knickerbocker New York, giving the beginning of self-government by the people, and explaining to young minds the mystery of republican representation in his clear account of his hero, the very first governor chosen by the people of New York State. Three excellent stories for girls are promised in Mrs. Ellen C. Goodwin's "How they Learned Housework," a bright tale aiming to make girls see how happy homes can be made by their efforts; Margaret Sidney's "A New Departure for Girls," dedicated to all the has fortunate ones who are forced to face the Jacobo Gibbons, and intended for the use question, "What can I do to support myself?" and Annie H. Rider's " Handsome is that Handsome Does," full of good advice to girls in school and out. Ada M. Trotter has also ready a story of the coal-mining districts of England. to be called "Heaven's Gate," whose hero is a clergyman of the English Church.

A. C. McClurg & Co. will shortly issue a series of studies on the home life and domestic habits of great writers, by Mrs Hattie Tyag Griswold. The articles first appeared in the Chicago Tribune. They also announce a new edition of George P. Upton's "Women in Music."

Macmillan & Co. make several important announcements of new books, which we mention without classification in the order of their promised appearance. "The Letters of Thomas Carlyle" will be edited by Charles Eliot Norton; "The Choice of Books" is compiled by Mr. Frederick Harrison. "The Life of Peter Cooper," which was first unnounced a year or more ago, is now, we learn, actually on the press, and will be issued by the Macmillans during the present month. It will not be, as many people seem to think, an exhaustive biography, but will resemble in its scope and treatment the monograph on "Daniel Mac-millan." The larger part of the material was furnished to the author by Mr. Hewitt, Cooper's son-in-law, but there still remains an enormous amount of autobiographical matter which it is said will be utilized in the writing of a complete biography later on. William the Conqueror will be added to the English Statesmen Series. In religious works there will be " The Growth of the Church in its Organization and Institution," by Dr. John Cunningham; "Man's Knowledge of Man and of God," by Rev. Canon Travers Smith; "Concerning the Being and Attributes of God," by John Gibson Cazenove; "Heroes of Faith," lectures on the eleventh chapter of the Epistle to the Hebrews, by D. C. J. Vaughan; "Haileybury Chapel and Other Sermons," by Rev. G. E. Jeans; and "The Theology of the Hebrew Christians," by Rev. Frederick Rendall. The "Memoir of Henry Bozely," the Oxford evangelist, is well written by E. L. Hicks. Charlotte M. Charles Piccirillo, of Woodstock College, Md., and issued with the approbation of his Papal Highness, and "Acta et Decreta," edited b seminaries. A collection of stories from the German by Karl May, entitled "The Pirates of the Red Sea," will soon be issued; and new editions of Archbishop Gibbons's "Faith of Our Fathers" and of "Heredity," by W. K. Brooks, of Johns Hopkins University, are also forthcoming.

THE NATIONAL TEMPERANCE SOCIETY AND Publishing House announce a new book by Annette Lucille Noble, "Dave Marquand," devoted, as all this author's bright stories are, to helping to better the condition of the poor, whose greatest enemy she has practically decided to be intemperance. It will, no doubt, be welcomed by the many readers, old and young, who already possess "Miss Janet's Old House, "How Billy went Up in the World," "Silas Gower's Daughters," "Under Shelter," etc. They have just published a memorial pamphlet of John B. Gough, the great temperance orator, whose recent death has made his great work of new interest to the English-speaking world. This pamphlet contains three anniversary addresses. of Mr. Gough, a sketch of his life by Dr. Theodore L. Cuyler, his intimate friend, and the prelude to the lecture of Rev. Joseph Cook, delivered February 22, which gives an account of the events and achievements of Mr. Gough's busy There is an excellent wood-cut portrait of Mr. Gough, taken from a recent photograph

JAMES POTT & Co. announce, among other works suitable for a theological library, the "Memoir of James Hervey Otey," first Bishop of Tennessee, a valuable contribution to the Church history of the South, by the Rt. Rev. W. M. Green; "The Sceptic's Creed," by Nevison Loraine, a review of the popular aspects of modern unbelief; "Christ for To-Day," international sermons by eminent preachers of the English and American Church, including such names as Farrar, Phillips Brooks, Scott Holland, Fremantle, Bishop Harris, and several others; "Liturgies and Offices of the Church," by Edward Burbidge, with a catalogue of the remains of the library of Archbishop Cranmer; "The Will Power: Its Range and Action," by Dr. J. Milner Fothergill; "Anglican Hymnology." an account of standard hymns of the Anglican Church, by Rev. James King; "Letters from Waldegrave Cottage," by Rev. George Warner Nichols; "The Ministry of Mercy;" the second series of "Songs of Rest," by Rev. W. R. Nicoll; "A Study of Origins," by Rev. Dr. Edward De Pressers and the third and lest Edward De Pressense; and the third and last volume in that great work, "Dixon's History of the Church of England," from the abolition of the Roman jurisdiction. In literature suitable for the Lenten season they will have "Words from the Cross," by Rev. Francis Harrison; "The Trials of Jesus," by S. Baring-Gould;
"The Seven Last Words," by Rev. Thomas Birkett Dover; "The Revelation of the Seven
Last Words," by Rev. J. H. Lester; "Forty Thoughts for Forty Days," "Our Collects, Epistles, and Gospels," by the late Dean of Chester; and new editions of "Via Crucis," by Rev. Samuel J. Eales, and "Some Quiet Lesten Thoughts," by Dr. Dover. For the clergy proper there will be issued "The Missioner's Manual of Anecdotes," by Rev. Arthur G. Jackson; a new and cheaper edition of "Subjects for Courses of Sermons," and " Hints and Outlines for Children's Services," by Rev. C. A. Goodhart. A new volume of sermons for children is in press, called " Led by a Little Child," by H. J. Wilmot Buxton, as well as a "Young Communicant's Manual," with wise advice about confirmation study.

JOHN E. POTTER & Co., Philadelphia, have just issued Murray's "Language Series," couplete in two volumes, the first entitled " Essential Lessons in English Composition, Analysis, and Grammar;" the second "Advanced Lessons in English Composition, Analysis, and Grammar." Mr. J. E. Murray is Principal of the High School, Oenaville, Texas, and has had practical experience of the wants of teachers, and believes that the grading of the exercises, the arrangement of topics, the selections for asalysis, etc., are calculated to find favor with all

THE PROGRESS PUBLISHING CO., Cin., bave in press a work on the " Diseases of the Sexual Otgans, Male and Female," by Prof. J. A. Jeanson, M.D. This is to be in large folio, illustrated with eighty colored-plates, similar in size and style to the same author's handsome work 60 "Pathological Anatomy," published by these during the past year. This latter work has been press, all of which, judging from the mechanical execution of the first part, seems fully justified.

THE PUBLISHERS' WEEKLY office will issue the volume on "Copyright, its Law and its Literature," by R: R. Bowker and Thorvald Solberg, early in April. Besides containing the summary of copyright history and law, the text of the United States laws and the digest of British law, and the full bibliography, this volume will have a general interest because of the memorial of American authors, with the fac-simile of their signatures, included within its covers.

signatures, included within its covers. G. P. PUTNAM'S SONS announce works in all departments of literature. In general literature they will have "The Life and Letters of Joel Barlow," with extracts from his works and some hitherto unpublished poems, edited by Charles Burr Todd. E. C. Stedman says: "The author of the 'Columbiad' and the 'Hasty Pudding' was a man of weight in his day, and will not pass out of literature or history." He excelled in three departments of human effort—in statesmanship, letters, and philosophy—and to him belonged the first idea of a great national university. He had great practical talents as well, and may be called the "godfather" of the steam-"France under Mazarin," boat and canal. with a sketch of the administration of Richelieu, will be a two-volume work by John Breck Pertins, giving photogravure portraits of Mazarin, Richelieu, Louis XIII., Anne of Austria, and Condé; "The World and the Logos," by the Rt. Rev. Hugh Miller Thompson, Bishop of Missouri, will form the third volume in the series of Bedell Lectures; and "Problems in Philosophy," by John Bascom, President of the University of Wisconsin, will be a valuable contribution to the American philosophy which Dr. McCosh hopes for in the New Princeton Review. There will also be a popular edition of Theodore Roosevelt's "Hunting Trips of a Ranchman." with thirty-five engravings by Frost, Gifford, Beard, and Sandham, a work the New York Tribune calls " one of those distinctively American books which ought to be welcomed as contributing distinctly to raise the literary prestige of the country all over the world." "Humorous Masterpieces from American Literature," edited by Edward T. Mason, will be brought out in three volumes uniform with "Prose Masterpieces from Modern Essayists." In history the most important works promised are: "Documents Illustrative of American History, 1606-1863," edited, with introductions and explanatory notes, by Howard W. Preston; and a work which Professor Alexander Johnston, of Princeton, has in preparation, devoted to the "History of the United States from 1840 Down to the Close of 1885." The history is planned to give in convenient form a narrative of the events of our own times and the record of about one generation. The year 1840 marked the establishment of the railroad system, through which the face of the country was changed, and upon which may have depended the possibility of preserving the national unity across the Continent. The summary of events since the close of the war will, it is believed, be found of no little practical value, as the events of this period have not thus far been recorded in any convenient or accessible form. This history is expected to be completed in one octavo volume. "The History of the English Constitution," by Rudolph Greist translated by Philip F. Ashworth, will also be a most important work. For the American Historical Association they will publish No. 5, "The Appointing Power of the President," by Lucy M. Salmon; and No. 6, "The Political History of Canada," by Prof. Goldwin Smith. For the Society for Political Education they announce Economic Tract No. 18, "Patriotism and National Desence," by the Rev. C. H. Hall, D.D. In the Questions of the Day they have in press No. 32, "Modern Armor for National Defence," by Lieutenant W. H. Jaques, U.S.N. There will be five new volumes added to the Traveller's Series: "Pictures and Legends from Brittany and Normandy," by Katherine S. Macquoid; "Canocing in Kannekin," telling the haps and mishaps of the statesman, editor, artist, and scribbler in the humorous manner of C. L. Norton and John Habberton; "The Greeks of To-Day," by Charles K. Tuckerman, formerly United States Minister at Athens, and "Whims and Oddities" and "Up the Rhine," by Thomas Hood. All the books in this series are profusely illustrated. The newest venture in fiction is the last work of Anna Katherine Green, the clever author of detective stories, called "The Mill Mystery." In poetry they have in press "Summer Haven Songs," by James Herbert Morse; "A Life in Song," by George L. Raymond, and "The Vision in Gold," by Lilian Rozell Messenger. They have just issued Stephen Henry Thayer's "Songs of Sleepy Hollow." In science and education they will have "Evolution of To-Day," by Prof. H. W. Conn, of the Wesleyan University; "Schiller's Correspondence," edited by Mrs. A. C. Buchheim; and "Selections from Lessing's Prose," in the German Classics Series; and "Le Romanticisme Français," a selection from the writers of the French romantic school, edited by Thomas F. Crane, in the French Classics Series. A cheap edition of "Humor in Animals," by William H. Beard, one of the most successful painters of animals, is also nearly ready. The provision made for young readers shows generosity, taste, and discrimination. The volumes in the Story of the Nations Series next to be published are: "The Story of Chaldea," by Z. Ragozin; "The Story of Spain," by E. E. and Susan Hale; "The Story of Germany," by S. Baring-Gould; "The Story of Norway," by Hjalmar H. Boyesen; "The Story of Alexander's Empire," by Professor J. P. Mahaffy, of the University of Dublin; "The Story of the Oriental Nations," by Professor Charles Darmesteter, of the College of France; "The Story of the Hanseatic League," by Helen Zimmern, and "The Story of Turkey," by Stanley Lane-Poole. They have also in preparation a series to be entitled the Boys' and Girls' Library of American Biographies, in which the following volumes are announced: "Robert Fulton and the History of Steam Navigation," by Thomas W. Knox; "Abraham Lincoln," by Noah Brooks; "George Washington," by Edward Everett Hale. A most excellent idea is the work on the "Scriptures for Young People," arranged and edited, with introductions and explanatory supplements, by Rev. Edward T. Bartlett, D.D., Dean of the Protestant Episcopyl Divinity School of Philadelphia, which will be complete in three volumes, two devoted to the Old and one to the New Testament. A full description of this work has already been given in our pages.

A. D. F RANDOLPH & Co. have prepared several entirely new books and booklets for the proaching Easter season, made attractive externally by new and dainty devices, executed with the skill and unished taste the house always gives its religious manuals. "The Blessed Easter-Tide" consists of three parts-Good Friday, Easter Even, and Easter Day; each part contains the Gospel narrative and choice melections of poetry appropriate to the day. The initial letters and running title of the first two parts are printed in purple, those of Easter Day in gold, the title-page in gold and purple, on heavy-plate paper. There are three illustrations, mounted by a new process Easter Morn-ing, by Saut; The First Resurrection, by Thompson, and Correggio's Choir of Angels. The binding is cloth, with elaborate side-stamp in purple and gold, with fly-leaves in a design of brown and gold. The press-work is by the Cambridge University Press. "An Easter Song" is a poem by the Rt. Rev. Robert Hall Baynes, with four full-page illustrations and Bixteen pages of illuminated text, vignettes, tailpieces, etc., drawn by J. H. Gratacap, and reproduced by the Photogravure Co. A small edition of the book has been put in a unique and "Easteresque" binding. The little booklets which proved so successful as substitutes for Easter cards last year are to have some additions: "God Knoweth," " Easter Melody," " The Violet is Here," and " Lilies and Violets for Easter," three poems by May Riley Smith, author of "Sometime." A limited number of all these booklets is brought out with hand-painted decovations on cover. All the old tavorites will be issued once more, some in very elegant new bindings of white vellum, leatherette, and delicate cloth. "The Lady of La Garaye," by the Hon. Mrs. Norton; "The Celestial Country," translated from the rhythm of St. Bernard, by Dr. John Mason Neale; "The Story of Easter as Told in the Book," and "Christus," by H. S. C., have all been put in these new bindings. Two new volumes will be added to the "Pulpit Commentary," one on "Second Corinthians" and one on "Ephesians and Galatians." They also have in press "The Wisdom of the Apocalypse," by the Rev. J. H. Mclivaine, D.D., who aims to interpret the "Revelation of St. John" in a manner interesting and intelligible to average readers and students of the Bible, even more than to scholars. The author has made a life-long study of the Interpretation of the symbols of the Christian, Hindu, Greek, Roman, Egyptian, and other re-Ugions, and brings to his work much research and originality of treatment.

J. A. & R. A. REID, Providence, R. I., will publish during the summer "The Providence Plantations for Two Hundred and Fifty Years," an historical review of the foundation, rise, and progress of the city of Providence, with an acwurate description of the city at the present day, and of its industries, commerce, manufactures, religions, and charitable institutions, scientific and military organizations, etc. It will also give sketches of the city of Newport and Pawtucket. It will be profusely illustrated with many engravings of historic places, people, quaint subjects engravings of ancient and notable documents, etc. The work has been compiled by Welcome A. Greene, assisted by the Rev. William H. Fish, with introduction by the Hon Thomas A Doyle, and special chapters by distinguished local writers.

new editions of all his well-known religious manuals and several additions to his long list of works of this character, which we give in the order in which he will issue them: "Abundant Grace "by W. P. Mackay, with preface and brief Dr. J. H. Brooks; "Home Duties," by Rev. R. T. Cross, practical talks on the duties of bus-bands, wives, and children; "Abraham, the Typical Life of Faith," by Rev. Dr. David, R. Breed; "Many Infallible Proofs," by Rev. Dr. Arthur T. Pierson, a series of chapters on the evidences of Christianity; "The Twofold Life," a defence of Christian doctrine; "Grace and Glory," sermons upon present and future life; and "In Christ," a book full of personal love for Him. Among the more important new editions are "The Ministry of Healing," by Rev. Dr. A. J. Gordon; "Grace and Truth," by W. P. Mackay; "Current Discussions in Theology;" "The Christian's Secret of a Happy Life," "Fifty Years and Beyond," by Rev. S. G. Lathrop; "Notes and Suggestions for Bible Readings." "Park the Machines." G. Lathrop; "Notes and Suggestions Readings;" 'Ruth, the Moabitess, and Bible Readings;" "Ruth, the Moabitess, and pines Readings," by Henry Moorhouse; and "Life, Warfare, and Victory," by Major D. W. Whittle.

ROBERTS BROTHERS have just issued "The Rise and Fall of Cesar Birotteau," the third velume in their beautiful edition of Balzac, and aunounce as nearly ready "Eugénie Grandet," the fourth of these admirably translated books. They also promise a nine-volume edition of "George Meredith's Novels," printed from as entirely new set of electrotype plates, and bound in English cloth with uncut leaves. " Madame Roland" will be the twelfth volume in the Famous Women Serves. On June 26, 1885, the lamented Mrs. Helen Hunt Jackson wrote this house: " By next spring I will have had enough short stories printed to make a nice somework volume; isn't Between Whiles' a lovely title? The book is now ready, and will be issued as christened by its author. There will also be "Glimpaes of Three Coasts," by Mrs. Jackson, " bits of travel " in California and Oregon, party new and partly reprinted from the Atlantic and the Century; and they have in press " Someth and Lyrics," a collection of her poems, including everything of importance written since the publication of her first volume, a book sure to 🙀 eagerly awaited by the many who love this gifted woman. "Mercy Philbrick's Choice," and "Hetty's Strange History" will be brought est in new covers, with Mrs. Jackson's name est the title-page for the first time. This house has shown special taste in the selection of American fiction, and has in press several new novels that promise to be entirely successful Atalanta in the South" is a romance by Mand Howe; " Colonel Cheswick's Campaign is by Flora L. Shaw; and "Constance of Acadia" is to appear anonymously. The have also just issued "Prince Otto," by Rebert Louis Stevenson. For the young these will be three volumes by the authnapes," made uniform with this author's stories already on the catalogue of these publishers— "Melchior's Dream, and Other Tales," " Lab-Lie-By-the Fire," and a "Platiron for a Fee- ? thing," all illustrated by the regretted artist Cab-Ewing's pretty tales. Mary Cowden Clarke be also in their press a child's novel, to be cell "Uncle, Peep and I." Two new works FLEWING II REVELL, Chicago, announces Dante will be ready very toon : one " A Shad

This is undertaken to fill a great and increasing demand for this standard work. The volumes will be issued rapidly and in their proper order.

Scribner & Welford are preparing two very important works which will gladden the hearts of bibliographers and collectors—Goldsmith's "The Vicar of Wakefield" and Dr. Johnson's "Rasselas." Goldsmith's masterpiece will be published in fac-simile of the first edition, brought out in 1766 by Francis Newberry. The preface is by Austin Dobson, and is followed by a bibliography of the work in which it is believed all the English editions are recorded, as well as the chief translations which have been issued abroad, a complete bibliography which will prove invaluable to bibliographers and collectors. The work is in two volumes. Dr. Johnson's "Rasselas" is also traced through all its appearances to the present day, a great work most ably performed. Persons of cultured taste must always pray that they may not break the tenth commandment when they steal a look at the announcements of this house, and musicians especially will be tempted by the words, "A History of Music from the Earliest Times to the Present," by W. S. Rockstro, so well known by his biographies and text-books. In a book written expressly for English readers, it seems indispensable that great prominence should be given to the progress of music in England. Scarcely any notice of this has been taken in any modern works on the subject. Hullah, indeed, touches upon it, in some lectures, printed some years ago, on special epochs; and Ambros, in his famous "History," devotes a chapter to it, but merely repeats at second-hand the statements made by Burney and Hawkins in the eighteenth century. In the present history it is proposed to treat this part of the subject as fully and as fairly as that which concerns the development of music on the continent. The work will be accompanied by a copious index and chronological table. To Bohn's Standard Library will be added the fifth volume of "Oliver Goldsmith's Works," with notes by J. W. N. Gibbs, and a translation by A. L. Alger of Reissmann's "Life and Works of Robert Schumann." Reissmann is one of the most prolific and best informed of modern writers on musical topics. Besides editing a musical dictionary of his own and the last five volumes of Mendel's great work, he has written numerous theoretical works, biographies of Mendelssohn, Schubert, Haydn, Bach, etc. His style is somewhat diffuse, says the New York Evening Post, and his generalizations are occasionally too vague, but his facts are reliable, his inferences usually correct, and his opinions unbiassed. His "Schumann" is perhaps the best of his biographical works. William Hazlitt's "The Spirit of the Age; or, Contemporary Portraits," will also be placed in the Bohn Library. To the Ideal Series they will add "The Sonnets of Shakespeare," edited by Edward Dowden. Of great literary value will be Margaret Lonsdale's "George Eliot: Thoughts upon Her Life, Her Books, and Herself;"" The Letters of George Sand," translated and edited by R. L. de Beaufort, with six portraits; and the second edition of Mrs. S. Orr's "Handbook to Robert Browning." I'wo important works of travel will be Frank Hatton's "North Borneo," explorations and adventures on the equator, with biographical sketch and notes by Joseph Hattor and preface by Sir W. Medburst; and H. H. Johnston's "The Killma-Nijara Expedition," scientific explorations in eastern equatorial Africa, with maps and many illustrations. Two beautiful works of art in subject and treatment will be Racinet's " Polychromatic Ornament," containing one hundred and twenty plates in color, gold and silver, a historical and practical collection in ten parts, with explanatory notes; and Fairholt's "Costume in England," a history of dress to the end of the eighteenth century, revised by H. B. Dillon. "Border Lances" is a fascinating remance by the author of " Belt and Spur." It deals with the reign of Edward III.

THE SOCIETY FOR POLITICAL EUDCATION WILL fall out the arrears of its Economic Tracts for last year by issuing as No. 19 a revision of "The Railroads, the Farmers, and the Public," by Edward Atkinson, and as No. 20, a new and important monograph on "Labor Differences and their Settlement," a plea for arbitration, by the authority on the subject, Mr. Joseph D. Weeks, of Pittsburg. It has in press also, for this year's series, No. 21, "A Primer for Political Education," by R. R. Bowker, and No. 22, on "Civil Service Examinations," giving examples of actual questions and answers in recent competitions.

CHARLES C. SOULE, Boston, bas just issued " Farm Law," giving the law concerning farms, farmers, and farm laborers, together with the game laws of all the States, by Henry Austin, of the Boston bar, who has almed to avoid using technical terms, thus bringing his work within the use of the farmer as well as making it valuable for the attorney whose clients are farmers. They are just going to press with the gigantic work undertaken by F. H. Stimson, to be known as "The American Statute Law," an analytical and compared digest of the private civil statute law of all the States and territories of the United States as it stood January 1, 1886. These laws now fill in their most concise form two hundred and thirty-five volumes, costing nearly one thousand dollars. The aim is to combine in one or two volumes this vast material, giving, however, in all cases references to the page of the volume where the full law can be found. The next volume deals with public, corporation, and remedial law, and will be of immense use to railways, insurance companies, and other corporations.

Ticknon & Co. have just issued the long-expacted "Life of Henry Wadaworth Longfellow," by his brother, the Rev. Samuel Longfellow, which will probably prove one of the most important works of the kind published in the United States. It has been so often referred to in the Publishers' Werkly that there remains no more to say of its great literary interest and mechanical details until we have had a chance to speak from observation. Another interesting volume whose contents have already received high commendation from Mr. E. C. Stedman will be "The Saunterer," by Mr. Charles G. Whiting, the literary reviewer of the Springfield (Mass.) Republican. "Mr. Whiting," says the Boston correspondent of the New York Evening Post, " is a bard-working journalist, conscientious, and of remarkable capacity for doing much without breaking down. He has always, in some unaccountable way, preserved a fund of freshness and zest, and once in a while the Republican readers will find an editorial on nature, some-

D. VAN NOSTRAND will publish in his Science Series Prof. De Volsen Wood's article upon "The Luminiferous Ether," which appeared in the January number of Van Nostrand's Engineering Magazine, reprinted from the Philosophical Magazine (London), which will be amplified and reviewed by the author; and a volume by Wm. Bainbridge-Hoff. Commander in the U. S. N., entitled "The Avoidance of Collisions at Sea," made useful by many diagrams, and bound in leather, hand-book style.

WHITE, STOKES & ALLEN, as usual, are preparing many additions to their large line of handsome souvenirs for special seasons. They have a novelty this year in their ivorine binding, specially prepared for a number of Easter voltimes. A fine engraving is printed by a secret process upon the ivorine, a material closely retembling ivory; this then has the title embossed to the time metal, and is mounted upon rough white drawing paper. The whole, with ragged | tige and a knot of silver and white cord, forms a winty cover appropriate to the Easter season. In this new dress they will bring out "A Child's Dream of a Star," by Charles Dickens; "Easter," by Rose Porter; "Golden Words of Holy Men;" "Silver Thoughts of Great Minds," by Louise S. Houghton, being selections from John Bunyan, Madame Guyon, Jean Nicolas Grou, Thomas à Kempis, and others; "Easter Messengers," by Lucy Larcom, also issued in French sateen, in delicate patterns with floral designs and satin ribbons; and "Easter Bells," a poem by the late Helen Jackson, written especially for the publishers and reproduced in facsimile of the author's manuscript. This will also be published in the sateen binding. All Miss Skelding's popular flower books will also be put in the "ivorine" this spring. A well-prepared and interesting volume will be "Bugle Echoes," edited by Francis F. Brown, a collection of the best poetry of the Civil War, both Federal and Confederate, printed from entirely new electrotype plates on fine laid paper. Owen Meredith's ! Lucile' will be the new volume in the series of Poetical Works in Dainty Bindings. There will be a Golden Thoughts Series of miniature books uniform with the Gem Scries, published as a set in a neat box, or each volume separately. Another novelty for Easter for such as are blessed - In this world's goods are "Ostrich Eggs," decopated by hand in colors, with appropriate designs - of flowers, birds, etc., arranged for hanging up . with knot and loop of satin ribbon at top, and a bow of same (in which is fastened a stamped Easter card) at the bottom.

THOMAS WHITTAKER include in their list of sering books "Homely Talks with Young len," conversations on the young men of the lible, the thus far published first series dealing lith Old Testament characters, written by the lithor of "Joined to an Idol," with a preface the Rev. Canon Westcott; "Authorship of Four Gospels," from external evidences, by ludge William Marvin; the second series of spositions," by Rev. Samuel Cox; the fourth ion of "The Prophecies of Isaiah," by T. Cheyne; and "The Great Question, and

Other Sermons," by Dr. Alexander, Lord Bishop of Derry and Rophol. They will also issue a companion to their popular wall-roll "Heavenly Sunshine," to be called "Words of Comfort and Consolation." The lectures read by Charles F. Johnson before the students of Trinity College, Hartford, have been published under the name of "Three Americans and Three Englishmen," and treat of Wordsworth, Coleridge, and Shelley as Englishmen, and Hawthorne, Emerson, and Longfellow as Americans.

JOHN WILEY & Sons have in preparation for early publication the second part of Anthony and Brackett's "Text-Book of Physics," devoted to electricity and magnetism; Billin's "Cipher Code of Rolled Iron and Steel;" Crehore's " Mechanics of the Girder;" Fuertes and Crandall's "Manual of Practical Astronomy and Geodesy;'' MacCord's "Kinematics; or, Practical Mechanics, Part. II.;" Trautwine's "Civil Engineer's Pocket-Book," newly revised for 1886; "Calculations of Earthwork" and "Circular Curves for Railroads;" "Hemmenway's "Steam Indicator;" Church's "Mechanics of Engineering;" Ruffner's" Improvement of Non-Tidal Rivers;" Butts's "Civil Engineer's Field Book," and a new revised edition of Pencoyd's Iron Co.'s "Pocket-Book."

WILLIAM WOOD & Co. will have ready shortly the sixth and concluding volume of "The International Encyclopædia of Surgery;" five more volumes in "A Reference Handbook of the Medical Sciences; 'the second part of the second volume of "Studies in Pathological Anatomy," by Francis Delafield; Dr. Hermann Eichhorst's four hand-books of practical medicine, Vol. I... treating of the "Diseases of the Circulatory and Respiratory Apparatus;" Vol. II., "Diseases of Digestion, Urinary, and Generative Organs;" Vol. III., "Diseases of the Nerves, Muscles, and Skin;" and Vol. IV., "Diseases of Blood, Nutrition, and Infectious Diseases;" and the fifth, sixth, and seventh volumes of "Ziemssen's Handbooks of General Therapeutics." Dr. J. Collins Warren has written a work on the "Ligation of Arteries:" Dr. Charles F. Stillman a work on "Orthopædic Surgery;" Dr. Henry D. Noyes a work on "Diseases of the Eye;" Dr. J. Milner Fothergill a work on "Dietetics;" J. "General Pharmaceutical Chemistry' is by F. A. Flückinger; "The Principles and Practices of Surgery" is by Dr. Frank Hastings Hamilton; "Electrolysis, its Theoretical Consideration and its Therapeutical and Surgical Application" is by Dr. Robert Amory; and "General Orthopædics, Gymnastics, and Massage" is by Dr. Friedrich Busch. There will be an American edition of "Wood's Medicinal Plants," embracing all the varieties of plant life treated of in the various. pharmacopæias of the world; the third edition: of "Insanity and its Treatment," by G. Fielding Blandford, to which is added "Types of Insanity," by Allen McLane Hamilton; and "The Genuine Works of Hippocrates," translated from the Greek, with annotations, by Francis Adams. The second part of "A Textbook of General Pathological Anatomy and Pathogenesis," by Dr. Ernst Ziegler, will be ready, and also "Hydro Therapeutics," by D

W. Winternitz, translated by Dr. F. Elsner.

LITERARY AND TRADE NOTES.

THE entire edition of Roberts Brothers' translation of "César Birotteau" was sold out within two days of its publication.

D. C. Work, Detroit, Mich., is now closing out his book and stationary stock, owing to failing health. We call attention to his advertisement to that effect which appears in this issue.

JANSEN, McClurg & Co. have ready "Specimens of Prose Style from Malory to Macaulay," selected and annotated with an introductory essay by George Saintsbury, giving specimens of the writings of ninety-five prose writers, including all the celebrated names in the literature of the period; and "Four Centuries of Silence; or, From Malachi to Christ," by Rev. R. A. Redford, Professor of New College, London, whose work first appeared in chapters in the Homiletic Magazine.

CHARLES WAGENFÖHR, 44 West Broadway, New York City, invites the attention of business men in general, and especially the publishers, bookbinders, printers, stationers, and blank-book manufacturers, the lithographic firms and other art trades, to the quality of his work in tools, rolls, stamps, plates, dies, etc., for book covers, Bibles, albums, scrap books, leather, cloth, paper, and plush goods, etc., all of which he is sure will prove satisfactory to his patrons, an opinion we heartily indorse after examining carefully some specimens of his beautifully finjshed work in imitation brorze.

HENRY ALTEMUS, proprietor of the Philadelphia Bible Warehouse, will shortly remove from his present location at Fourth and Cherry streets to the large five-story buildings No. 507-513 Cherry St., which will be entirely devoted constantly increasing business of the firm. already extensive facilities will be great creased by the addition of new machine quiring a large number of new employés. buildings have been specially adapted to the poses of the firm, the precautions against such as iron stairways, brick vaulted ceit and solid brick walls around the elevator. Altemus justly prides himself that he will one of the most complete establishments a kind in the country, and will immediately largely to his innumerable styles of Bible photograph albums, many of which were so ular last fall.

SPRING ANNOUNCEMENTS.

P. PUTNAM'S SONS.

NEW YORK.

Hunting Trips of a Ranchman.

Sketches of Sport in the Northern Cattle Plains, together with Personal Experiences of Life on a Cattle Ranch. By Theodore Roosevelt, author of "The Naval War of 1812." Popular edition. 8vo, cloth, fully illustrated, $3.50.

Mr. Roosevelt has grouped together, in a series of graphic sketches, the results of his experiences as a ranchman and as a sportsman in the wild region forming the basin of the Upper Missouri. His narratives are characterized by a freshness and a realism which render them eminently readable, while they also possess a permanent importance and value as presenting faithful pictures of a manner of life which, under the steady westward march of railroads and settlers. must, before many years, become an experience of the past; together with trustworthy accounts of the habits of the large game of the Northwest, which, under the same influences, are so rapidly disappearing. The volume contains 35 engravings on wood by Frost, Gifford, Beard and Sandham.

The Life and Letters of Joel Barlow,

Poet, Statesman and Philosopher. With extracts from his works and some hitherto unpublished poems. By Charles Burr Todd. 8vo, with portrait in steel and fac-simile of portion of the manuscript of the "Hasty Pudding." Cloth extra, gilt top, $2.50.

Among the great men of the post-Revolutionary age there was one who excelled in at least three departments of human effort—in statesmanship, letters and philosophy—and whose practical talents were, perhaps, greater than those of any one of his contempraories. That man was Joel Barlow, the subject of these pages.

France Under Mazarin.

With a sketch of the administration of RICHELIEU. By John Breck Perkins. 2 vols. 8vo, with photogravure portraits of Mazarin, Richelieu, Louis XIII., Anne of Austria and Condé. $8.00.

The Story of the Nations.

A series of graphic historical studies, intended to present to the young the stories of the different nations that have attained prominence in history. In the story-form the current of each national life will be distinctly indicated, and its picturesque and noteworthy periods and episodes will be presented for the young reader in their philosophical relations to each other as well as to universal history. The subjects of the different volumes will be planned to cover connecting and, as far as possible, consecutive epochs or periods, so that the set when completed will present in a comprehensive narrative the chief events in the great Story of the Nations; but it will, of course, not always prove practicable to issue the several volumes in their chronological order. The "Stories" are printed in good readable type, and in handsome 12mo form. They are adequately illustrated, and furnished with maps and indexes, and are sold separately at $1.50 each.

NOW READY:

- I.—THE STORY OF GREECE. By Prof. James A. Harrison. 12mo, fully illustrated, cloth extra, $1.50.

JUST PUBLISHED:

NEW REVISED EDITION.

The American Fruit Culturist.

Containing Practical Directions for the Propagation and Culture of All Fruits Adapted to the United States. By John T. Thomas, First President of the Fruit-Growers' Society of Western New York; Honorary Member of Massachusetts Horticultural Society; of Pennsylvania Fruit-Growers' Society; of the Horticultural Society of Indiana, etc., and for Thirty Years a Practical Nurseryman.

A VERY HANDSOME VOLUME OF NEARLY 600 PAGES.

Profusely illustrated with over five hundred fine wood-engravings. Bound in rich English muslin, gilt. Price, $9.00.

This is a book which everyone who owns, or has the care of a fruit-tree or a berry, not only needs, but must have, if he would save money and vexation.

In the present (nineteenth) edition of the American Fruit Culturist a general revision of the work is made throughout, and among the added portions are descriptions of the newer Strawberries, Raspberries, Peaches and Grapes; lists of some of these fruits once famous, but now passing out of cultivation; directions for pruning orchards; construction of fruit houses and the best modes for storing fruits; new illustrations of budding and grafting; management of orange groves in Florida; and a thorough revision of the Descriptive List and Index by the addition of all noted new sorts to the former list.

"An essay in the highest intellectual morality."

ANNA KARÉNINA.

By Count Leo Tolstoi. Translated from the Russian by Nathan Haskell Dole. Royal 12mo, 750 pages, $1.75.

"Anna Karénina" is one of the great novels of the world. It deals with questions which speal to every man and woman. The young and beautiful wife of an influential official in St. Petersburg suddenly wakes to the fact that she passionately loves a young officer, and that her life with her husband, whom she married as a matter of convenience, has been a long lie. She stuggles against the temptation, but at last she yields and goes away with her lover. Not even George Eliot paints with greater power the inexorableness of law. The happiness of the lovers strict is complete, but Anna is jealous and exacting, from the very reason of the unstableness of her position, and the downward path is sure and terrible.

For a more complete analysis of this remarkable book see Mr. Howells's notice in Harper's Monthly for April, page 809.

"One of the most brilliant and fascinating romances that has been published in many a day. The story is dramatic, powerful, irresistible in its interest as a love-story alone. Added to this there is vital thought and broad philosophy, a graphic panoramic picturing and a denouement to which the rapid action carries the reader spellbound in its thrilling interest. 'The Prelate' will doubtless be held as the greatest work of the day in imaginative art."—Boston Traveller.

The Sphinx's Children,

AND OTHER PEOPLE'S. By Rose Terry Cooke, author of "Somebody's Neighbors," etc. 12mo, $1.50.

Delightful stories of hill-country life in the quaintest and most singular parts of New England. The sentiments, dialect and locale of the Land of Steady Habits, set forth with the sparkle and the realism of a Parisian feuilletonist.

"In spite of a style which is carefully clear and elegant in spite of a tone that is wonderfully pure and healthy. what one remembers longest in Mrs. Cooke's writings is these dialect passages, forgetting for their sake her delecta-ble descriptions of quaint, old-fashioned gardens, pretty girls, odd old maids, and odder old men, and even forget-ting the bit of a moral usually concealed in each story; and her new book, "Somebody's Neighbors," is full of bits that one reads over and over again, enjoying their flavor anew each time."—Boston Transcript.

JAMES SCHÖNBERG.

Illustrated. Small square 8vo, glazed boards, gilt edges. Vignette on cover. Note in Press.

Price, $2.00.

An interesting monograph, dealing with the subject in a lucid and comprehensive manner, and enriched by FOURIHUMOROUS VERSES in Thackeray's happiest vein, and illustrated by all by the hand of Thackeray himself.

Seven Characteristic Drawings,

To collectors and all who are interested in the great writer the book is especially attractive, because the draw, ings and the verses have never before been published.

The plates are faithful fac-similes from the originals in the possession of the publisher.

In general style and appearance the volume closely resembles the quaint form in which Thackeray's Christes. Books originally appeared.

y F. Marion Crawford, author of "Mr. Isaacs," "Dr. Claudius," etc. 1 vol., 12mo, cloth,

In ceasing to be sensational, eccentric, melodramatic, Disraelish, he has learned to write a very good novel. His new book is a capital piece of work. The story is well conceived and well constructed, the narrative is always animated, and te sketches of character, although they touch only surface indications, are clear and true. . . Mr. Crawford's management this stock personage is highly effective; all the situations in which he figures are dramatic; the difficult scene of the rest meeting with the wife is admirably done, and the closing chapter is one of the strongest and at the same time one of the most natural pieces of writing that any author has given us.—New York Tribune.

Will be devoured by all novel-readers, will be talked about by everybody, and will be the popular book of the season,

"A Tale of a Lonely Parish" is the best story Mr. Crawford ever published, and one of the best told stories in re-ent literature. - Boston Beacon.

THE CHOICE OF BOOKS, And Other Literary Pieces.

by Frederic Harrison. Paper, 50 cents; cloth, $1.25.

"The Choice of Books" contains a great deal of sound exhortation and useful criticism. . . Of the "Choice of Books" e writes with acuteness and knowledge. . . . He has fairly characterized the principal imaginative productions in the Greek, atin, English, French, German, Spanish and Italian literatures, which the world agrees to value among its choicest excessions. His remarks upon nearly all the authors he enumerates are interesting and often they are brilliant.—New ork Tribune.

ABRAHAM:

THE TYPICAL LIFE OF FAITH.

By Rev. David R. Breed, D.D. 12mo, 160 pp., bevelled cloth, $1.00.

"Example is better than precept; and the author of this book has derived from the example of the great patriarch the most distinct and emphatic teaching with regard to the life of the believer. There is no straining of the meaning of the Scripture, nor any fanciful construction of its words. The way of life is shown to have been the same in all ages, and the unity of the indivisible Church of God is beautifully exhibited."

THE SCEPTIC'S CREED:

Can it be Reasonably Held?

Is it Worth the Holding?

By NEVISON LORAINE.

"The only way to avoid credulity and incredulity—the two necessarily going together—is to listen to and yield to the best evidence, and to believe and disbelieve on good grounds."—IVhateley's Annotations of Bacon.

It is frequently observed that the Pulpit does not sufficiently deal with questions of the day to meet this objection. I invited my congregation to suggest topics for a series of Sunday evening discourses. Among the subjects proposed was: "The Sceptic's Creed—an Examination of Popular Aspects of Unbelief." This proposal commanded my instant sympathy and prompt compliance.

A most active Atheist and Secularist propaganda is eagerly striving by popular lectures, extensive and cheap publications diligently circulated, to spread unbelief in its crudest forms.

Both in subject and style this work is intended as a popular treatment of the subject.

To doubter and incurrent

To doubters and inquirers, specially among young men, I offer with fraternal sympathy my little volume.

It contains no harsh words or ungenerous arguments, and has no undertone that can either offend or jar the feelings of the most sensitive sceptic.—From the Preface.

The Literary News.

The growing popularity of the Literary News is the result of its faithful fulfilment of its programme. This is to present a survey of the new books in a manner that, at an hour's reading, estables any one to make a discriminate selection of books for himself or his friends, or to converse intelligently on the literary topics of the day. This is done by devoting its space to good books only; by wasting none on poor ones; by quoting only from recognized authorities; by selecting with as aim not merely to guide by a "praise of books," but by awakening an interest in their contents, in their relation to literature, and last, not least, in their authors. This personal element, indeed, makes the Literary News so genial and readable. If in its endeavors to promote Good Home Reading it must confess to an inclination for appreciative commendation rather than disparaging criticism, it springs from the conviction, which is the foundation of the Literary News, that home reading cannot be too warmly encouraged, that too much is better than too little, that the time spent on reading, the money spent on the purchase of books, must finally prove a good investment, even should one occasionally err in choice and judgment and pay too high a price for a book which happens to be "the fashion."

NOTES IN SEASON.

HENRY HOLT & Co. have just issued "The oems of Goethe," consisting of his ballads, ongs, and miscellaneous selections, translated William Gibson, Commander in the United tates Navy. It is the latest addition to their ibrary of Foreign Poetry. They have in press, addition to the announcements made in the last issue, "Waterloo," par Erckmann-hatrian, with English notes; and "Deutsche Liebe," Von Max Müller, with English notes.

HARPER & BROTHERS have published "The strange Adventures of Captain Dangerous," tho was a soldier, a pirate, a merchant, a spy, slave among the Moors, a bashaw in the serfice of the great Turk, and who died at last in its own house in Hanover Square, written by George Augustus Sala in the language of a man form and bred in the early part of the eighteenth statury, but with modern orthography; also, In Shallow Waters," by Annie Armitt, a well-ted tale of love, shipwreck, and misundering.

Funk & Wagnalls have just issued "Historical Lights," compiled by the Rev. Charles E. Little, the author of "Biblical Lights." The volume contains six thousand quotations taken from standard histories and biographies, arranged alphabetically under classified topics, each complete in itself, and referring the reader to author, book, and chapter quoted. There is an index of personal names and a general index of topics with cross-references, and the volume shows skilled labor in every detail. They have also ready "Ashes of Hopes," a novel by Julia A. Flisch.

CASSELL & Co have just ready "Mrs. Peixada," a new novel by Sidney Luska, dealing with crime, mystery, lawsuits, and medical problems; "No. XIII., or, the story of the lost vestal," by Emma Marshall, in which she works with incidents connected with the persecution and martyrdom of the Early Church in Britain, and afterward in Rome, her tale being suggested by the recent discoveries in the Roman-Forum, which brought to light many interesting relics, among others a statue with the inscription No. XIII.; also, two new volumes in the Rainbow Series—"Old Fulkerson's Clerk" and "Our Sensation Novel," edited by Justin McCarthy.

BUSINESS NOTES.

Astoria, Oregon.—We learn from a San Francisco correspondent that the report that Carl Adler had made an assignment "for the benefit of his creditors" was not in accordance with fact. Our correspondent states that Mr. Adler last November bought large quantities of books, etc., on sixty days' time, and shortly after the holidays gave a bill of sale for his entire assets to a relative for whom he is now acting as clerk, and who refuses to be responsible for his debts. We are also informed that the San Francisco creditors have combined and are prosecuting Adler for "fraud and conspiracy to cheat his creditors."

Boston, Mass.—According to an advertisement in the Boston Advertiser for March 29, the Aldine Publishing Co., of Boston (Joseph Knight, President, Charles E. Brown, Treasurer), the stockholders are advised that a dividend of twenty-five per cent is payable to those who held stock on record January 30, 1886.

FLINT, MICH.—Sperry & Bushnell, book-sellers, have dissolved partnership.

GALESBURG, ILL.—Reed, of the firm of Aiken & Reed, booksellers, etc., has sold out his interest in that firm.

Henderson, Ky.—C. H. Johnson & Brother, booksellers, have dissolved partnership.

NEW YORK CITY.—Leon & Bros. will give up their store under the Fifth Avenue Hotel, on account of the departure of Adam G. Leon for Europe, for an indefinite period. After the 10th inst. all commmunications should be addressed to their old stand, 78 East Washington Square.

PITTSBURG, PA.—The Edgar Company (books and stationery,) is closing up its business.

SALT LAKE CITY.—Dr. J. R. Park, Principal of Descret University, has bought out George Reynolds' interest in the book and stationery business of Joseph Hyrum Parry & Co.

Armitt, Annie. In shallow waters: a novel. N. Y., Harper, 1886. 217 p. S. (Harper's handy ser., no. 64.) pap., 25 c.

To delineate a hero of an unusual type this story seems to have been written. Henry Dilworth belongs to English middle class life, is somewhat rough in exterior, and has few of the lighter graces of a gentleman; but at heart he is a hero, and a man of exquisite refinement and rare unselfishness. Agnes Leake meets him on the steamer going out to Australia, to which country she is accompanying her newly married sister and brother-in-law. There is a storm, the vessel runs on a rock, the newly married pair are drowned, and Agnes is rescued by Dilworth. A brief residence on a desert island ensues; the couple are then found and get back to England, Dilworth in the mean time marrying Agnes. The rest of the story deals with the chief characteristics of the married pair, Agnes' selfishness, which is hid under a most charming exterior, finally wrecking Dilworth's life.

Howells might have based his study of "Silas Lap-ham" upon "César Birotteau." Like the famous American, César is a man of the people, who comes when a lad to Paris, with no worldly wealth but the clothes he stands in. He finds work with the Ragons, who had been perfurmers to Marie Antoinette, and finally through his honesty and industry becomes master of the shop. He is for a time an ardent Royalist, and receives the cross of the Legion of Honor. He then becomes ambitious, and neglecting his pastes and balsams, enters into speculations, and rushes wildly into society. His bankruptcy is the next step, and here the great side of an apparently commonplace character is il-Sustrated with all the powerful realism of which Balzac is master. Poor César is honest to the core; he gives up everything to his creditors, and sacrifices his life in trying to pay his remaining debts. This is, equally with "Père Goriot," counted as one of Balzac's masterpieces. It describes with marvellous fidelity the life, thoughts, and actions of the Paris shop-keeper.

Baynes, Rev. Rob. Hall. Easter song: a poem; il. by J. H. Gratacap. N. Y., A. D. F. Randolph & Co., [1886.] no paging, O. cl.,

The poem is printed in illuminated script, with graceful bordering. Many scripture texts are interwoven. Two or three full-page illustrations of Bible scenery are softly finished by the photogravure process. Light gray cloth binding with large gilt lily with purple leaves.

Blessed Easter-tide (The); comp. by the editor of "Christmas-tide in song and story."

N. Y., A. D. F. Randolph & Co., [1886.] 160

O. cl., $2.50.

Compiled by editor of "Christmas tide in song and story" with excellent taste. The title is in gilt, the subtitle in purple lettering. The Bible history of the last supper, Good Friday, Easter Even, and Easter is given in full. The initial letters of the chapters preceding the account of Easter are purple, then change to gilt in telling of the Resurrection. There are many well-known poems added to illustrate the idea and meaning of the whole Easter-tide, and there are two copies of paintings reproduced in photogravures. The binding is delicate gray cloth, with purple Easter lilies with gilt centres.

Boyd, A. K. H. A characteristic of modern life: five essays. N. Y., A. D. F. Randolph & Co., [1886.] 4-74 p. T. leatherette, $1.40. "The great characteristic of modern life is worry," the author has chosen for the motto of these five little essays reprinted, by arrangement with the English publishers, from a volume called "Our little life," a series of essays domestic and consolatory. It is very neatly gotten up in white leatherette, with red lines. By the author of "Recreations of a country parson."

reson, I: The prelate: a novel. Bost.,

Ticknor & Co., 1886. 5-350 p. D. cl.,

The "Prelate' is Altieri, supposed to be one of the most gifted priests of the Roman Church, who leaves it and joins the "old Catholics," of which body he maintains the present Roman Church is a corrupted part. The heroine is an American girl, who becomes interested in Altieri, and is made use of to warn him of danger. She puts herself into a false position, is deserted by all her women friends, and suffers many trials. Finally she is engaged to marry Altieri, who assures her marriage is not forbidden by the true Catholic Church. The plot surprises at the close. Isaac Henderson was for years on the Evening Post. Hodgetts, I. F. Ivan Dobroff: a Russian story. Phil., G: H. Buchanan & Co., 1886. 5-512 p. il. D. cl., $1.50.

The author was for a long time attached to the University of Moscow, and studied Russian life, customs, and manners as shown in prince and peasant. There is a thread of story that serves to introduce the many social, political, and domestic details of life in this vast country. Men and women of all nations meet on Russian soil, and the differences in the manners and customs of different countries are brought out in bright conversations. The different plots, and intrigues are well invented. Ivan is introduced at twelve years and educated in various schools and colleges. A book sure to interest boys.

The "Bostonians" is more a series of sketches than a story, the plot being a mere thread connecting them together, in which there is neither suspense nor surprises. The characters are taken from a special class of men and women—women chiefly—whom we are led to believe flour-ish in the atmosphere of Boston—mediums, lecturers, woman's rights women, philanthropists, and radicals of all kinds and degrees. Mr. James presented his people with such cruel attention to details, that those satirized were easily pointed out, much wrath and indignation being the natural consequence, in the novel's slow course through the Atlantic. Noble aims and purposes meet with the same vivisection and biting sarcasm that are bestowed upon the "cranks" and "frauds"—the whole tone of the book being pessimistic in the highest degree. Still it is a notable work, and one upon which Mr. James has bestowed more care than anything he has ever written.

Rev. "Sam Jones" was born in Alabama and educated in Georgia. He is now about forty years old. He became a preacher in the Methodist Episcopal Church in 1880, but feeling a call to he an Evangelist he lest his special church, and now travels from state to state. His success is said to be equal to Mr. Moody's. This volume contains some of his most striking addresses.

"This volume is the outgrowth of certain lines of historical readings, originally designed for the author's personal benefit, and to aid in the preparation of sermons and addresses. After nearly twenty-five years of reading and brief indexing of facts and incidents, a mass of quotations has accumulated and under the natural law of selection this volume represents 'the survival of the fittest.' This collection is both religious and secular, and the quotations are especially fitting the needs of preachers, pleaders in court, political speakers, and writers for the press. The topical arrangement of these quotations, the extensive cross-reference index, and index of personal names greatly facilitate their use for rapid reference."—Preface.

Lyte, Eliphalet Oram. Grammar and composition for common schools. N. Y., Appleton, 1886. 6+270 p. D. cl., 76 c.

This book is designed for pupils that have received some elementary instruction in the use and form of language. In preparing it the author has kept constantly in mind the needs of the class-room. He has tried to familiarize the pupil with the ways in which thought is expressed. Prominence is given to letter-writing, as the written composition of most persons is mainly in the form of letters.

Marshall, Emma. No 13; or, the story of the lost vestal. N. Y., Cassell & Co., [1886.] 3

During the recent excavations in the Roman Forum fourteen statues of the vestals Maximæ, or chief priestesses of the Goddess Vesta, have been discovered. One bears only the inscription "Number XIII." The author tells an imaginary story of this lost vestal, and claims her name was not engraved because she became converted to Christianity and was thus punished. The time of the story is the beginning of the fourth century. The fearful persecutions of the early Christians in Britain and Rome are graphically described. An instructive and poetic novel.

With this handsome volume is begun a new uniform edition of Meredith's novels, to be completed in nine volumes; they are neatly bound in smooth cloth, have uncut edges, and are well printed. Of this work the Boston Traveller says: "A novel of a very unusual character, and one which is calculated to arrest attention. There is a story, a plot, an effective development, a strong interest. Beyond this there is more. There is a deep and exhaustive study of character that is almost Shakespearian in its grasp. With this study of the individual character of Richard Feverel and his father, and the persons whose lives touch theirs and who make up the actors in the drama, there is also a study of the social world that is unique, penetrating, and brill-iant."

The chapters of this volume appeared as separate papers in the Homiletic Magazine. The author hopes they will open the way to a deeper study of the state of the Jewish Church during the "four centuries of silence" intervening between the Old and New Testaments. He has brought together a number of facts which show how the world was being prepared for the higher revelations of Christianity.

"The most scholarly book that has been published in this country since the beginning of the present year. It is the most valuable manual that has yet been presented to the students of English prose, in that it contains through its selections the outlines of a complete history thereof, beginning with the 'Morte d'Arthur' of Sir Thomas Malory, which was printed by Caxton in 1485, and ending with Lord Macaulay's History of England, circa 1855-19 other words, the history of English prose for about three and three quarter centuries—and in the writings of one hundred of the most famous authors who flourished during that time. In no other work with which we are acquainted can its progress be traced so clearly from its first rude and inelegant, but forcible, origins in Malory, Latimer, Elych and Ascham, down to its studied and mannered culmina tions of strength and picturesqueness in Carlyle and Macaulay. To read it attentively and thoughtfully is to perceive the structure and growth of the English aind and character, the influences, religious, social, political, and other, which moulded them and clustered around them, and which assisted or retarded them in their literary expression, in what one of their master poets called 'the other harmony of prose.'"—N. lectures by a Jew were delivered to an audience half of which was Christian. After long cenenmity some Christians and some Jews have ve enough to question their traditions. They dare itable to new ideas, and to think that even the vorld may become wiser, and that maturity may be than childhood. So they realize that religious sorn of religious ignorance and conceit, and that owledge of God means a broader love for man. It's theory of an ideal church for Jew and Christiand forcible.

Mr. Schuyler desired to set forthness and the needs of these services to young were shortly to be called upon to perform the citizens. Mr. Schuyler has had an experience en years as United States Consul at Moscow, arg. Stockton, Frank R. The late Mrs. Null. N. Y., C: Scribner's Sons., 1886. 3+437 p. D. cl.,

The famous author of "Rudder Grange" locates his story in Virginia, and introduces several capitally sketched portraits of the Southern negro, and many graphic pictures of life and scenery in the old Dominion. The chief characteristic of the book is its humor; probabilities are entirely ignored, and every effort made to amuse the reader. Stockton's peculiar wit crops up unexpectedly in the most serious situations, making a burlesque of all sentiment. The story has a plot, nevertheless, turning upon love and marriage, and curiosity is most ingeniously kept on the alert till the very last page is reached.

Thompson, Hugh Miller. The world and the logos. N. Y., G: P. Putnam's Sons, 1886. 5+91 p. O. (Bedell lectures.) cl., $1.

The Bedell lectures are delivered every second year on Founders' Day, which has been fixed for November 1, and made a holiday in Gambier, Ohio. Bishop Hugh Miller Thompson makes a strong argument for his belief that consciousness and conscience exist in the human mind, and cannot be accounted for by any theory of evolution, but must be traced to a supernatural power.

Walpole, Horace. The castle of Otranto. N. Y., Cassell & Co., [1886.] 191 p. T. (Cassell's national lib., no. 9.) pap., 10 c.

Walworth, Mrs. J. H. Old Fulkerson's clerk. N. Y., Cassell & Co., [1886.] 171 p. S. (Cassell's rainbow ser.,) pap., 25 c.

Old Fulkerson's clerk cheats him out of a fortune and runs off to Canada. The clerk's wife and her sister are almost starving when an advertisement for a nurse to take charge of "Old Fulkerson" meets their eyes. The wife disguises herself and takes care of the irascible half paralyzed man for half a year. The scene is New York City. The plot is clever. The nephew of "Old Fulkerson," a rich, fashionable physician who lives with him, furnishes the romantic element of the exciting story.

The Publishers' Weekly.

FOUNDED BY F. LEYPOLDT.

APRIL 3, 1886.

PUBLISHERS are requested to furnish title-page proofs and advance information of books forthcoming, both for entry in the lists and for descriptive mention. An early copy of each book published should be forwarded, to insure correctness in the final entry.

The trade are invited to send "Communications" to the editor on any topic of interest to the trade, and as to which an interchange of opinion is desirable. Also, matter for "Notes and Queries" thankfully received.

In case of business changes, notification or card should be immediately sent to this office for entry under "Business Notes." New catalogues issued will also be mentioned when forwarded.

"Every man is a debtor to his profession, from the which, as men do of course seek to receive countenance and profit, so ought they of duty to endeavor themselves by way of amends to be a help thereunto."—LORD BACON.

THE MANIA FOR DISCOUNTS—A CASE IN POINT.

THE craving for discounts has come to be so serious a distemper that there is fear it must be regarded as a sort of dipsomania, or possibly the development of a new variety of bacillus, unnoticed by Koch or Pasteur, of some relation to the bookworm. We commend to the Booksellers' and Stationers' Provident Association the suggestion that its large surplus funds should be devoted presently to the erection of an adequate Hospital (and still larger Home for Incurables) for the victims of this disease, or to a fund for sending over some of the more rabid cases for experiment to the comprehensive M. Pasteur at Paris. Any bookseller who will undertake the individual expense of sending over a good subject for inoculation can probably make more by setting up a Dime Museum with the returned inoculatee as the main attraction, or by letting it out to one of the existing institutions of the kind, than he can out of the present profits of an ordinary book-store.

We have just now a curious case in point, showing how the disease, at first affecting the public, has crept insidiously into the trade, and is now attacking even the large publishing houses. This office has confined itself, in the publication of books, solely to technical works, so to speak, for the trade and libraries. On such books the sale is almost exclusively to booksellers and libraries, and the few private sales cannot be relied upon to furnish any considerable part of the return. It has been the practice of this office, accordingly, to make almost all its permanent issues ("Books for the Young," etc., which have some popular sale, excepted), such as the American Catalogue, Trade List Annual, at absolutely net prices, with no discount to the trade, but with a close commission, of 20 per cent, on the few actual sales to parties outside the trade, to make fair return for the trouble of getting the orders. The volume on "Copyright," recently announced, was accordingly priced at $3 net. To have made a discount, in this line of publications, would have been simply to have made the nominal price of $5, 40 off, or $4, 25 off, and given the "discount" on each copy. As this office tries to practise what it preaches, to the best of its ability, we have regularly taken the course above stated, and we propose to stick to it.

All the same, the first advance orders we received for this book on "Copyright," the returns on which at the best will not in any wise represent the labor put into it, were one from a large publishing house (not retailers) for two copies "if at $2.40," and from a large library for one copy, asking "the benefit of the discount." A considerable proportion of orders since received have been in the same terms.

With these we received the following, from a publisher who does not order a copy of the book, but takes it out in grumbling:

DEAR SIR: As one who has carefully read the WEEKLY'S editorials and the letters of retailers on the vexed subject of prices and discounts, it is refreshing to see how plainly (and yet how simply) you settle the question. You are about to publish a book on "Copyright; its Law and Literature," and one naturally expects you (having had so much light thrown on the subject, and having studied is so carefully) to "speak with authority" in fixing the price so as to please the trade. I am glad to see how the matter should be done-viz., the price of your book is to be "$3 net," and there is to be "no discount;" there is to be "a commission of 20 per cent." Of course, there is a vast difference between "$3 net," with "a commission of 20per cent," and $3 (not "net") with a discount of so per cent. It will probably be difficult for dealers to see the difference, but, in view of the WEEKLY's stand, the difference must exist. Therefore, all that publishers have to do, in order to please jobbers and retailers, is to drop the word "discount" and substitute "commission," and all the difficulties (attempts at whose solution have filled so many pages of the WREKLY) will vanish at once. The simplicity, of your solution of the problem shows how ounce of practice outweighs tons of theory. It enly remains to have your plan adopted by all other publishersviz., put a "net" after their prices, give "no discounts," "allow a commission" (as large as they please!).

We confess that we are in a dilemma. We will only add that the price of "Copyright" is, and will remain, $3, and that there is neither discount nor commission except to booksellers taking the trouble to sell copies for us outside the trade. We have had any number of queries to copyright questions, freely answered at much expense of time, which we have now tried to swer in this volume. If it is not worth $3 to publisher we will hold the edition until—t millennium!

X. Y. Z.

THE personal estate of the late Mr. J. B. Lippincott has been valued at about Lyco,coo. No wonder that some American publishers object to a copyright law.—London Literary World.

The above is characteristic of the random statements generally made by our English contemporaries relating to American affairs. As a matter of fact, what does it amount to? Mr. Lippincott undoubtedly did a large publishing business, but he found railroads and other intestments more profitable by far. The slur concerning copyright is quite without justification.

THE BOOKSELLERS' AND STATIONERS' ASSOCIATION OF ONTARIO.

Condensed from Books and Notions,

The semi-annual meeting of the above association was held at Toronto, on the afternoon of March 10. There were present, besides the Presedent, H. Fred Sharp, of St. Mary's; T. J. Day and J. E. Nelles, Guelph; J. G. Cloke, Hamilton; C. Dickson, Clinton; H. Dobson, Simcoe; W. C. Niblett, Dundas; C. W. Papst, Seaforth; J. P. Rice, Brampton; R. O. Smith, Mitchell; G. Stafford, Whitby; James Bain, S. R. Hart, A. S. Irving, W. D. Taylor, H. L. Thompson, A. G. Watson, J. T. Hornibrook, S. E. Briggs, George R. Warwick, Samuel Wallace, C. W. Small, George Pepper, and J. J. Dyas, Secretary, Toronto.

The report of the Secretary-Treasurer was presented. The financial statement showed a balance in band of $1.30. The present membership is 108. In making verbal report as Secretary, he referred particularly to the twenty-five percent discount given on the Fifth Reader by the Rose Publishing Co., attributing the victory of business principles in a fair and proper discount to the stand taken by the Association, and claiming some share of credit for this journal.

A general debate—or rather talk, for it was a wholly conversational meeting—took place, when Mr. Day moved, seconded by Mr. Dickson, "That the Association adopt a list based on the Toronto Price-List," and recommend it for general use by the trade."

The Secretary brought up the question of the prices of annuals, stating that he understood that an agreement had been made by the wholesale dealers on a certain line of discount which would be strictly adhered to, the reason alleged for fixing such prices being the too low rate at which they had been sold last year.

The question was mooted as to single books coming from the United States through the Post Office, and escaping paying duty. While very probably it seldom occurs in the cities, it does very frequently happen in smaller places through the neglect of the Postmaster to look tharply into the matter. This practice of ordering direct from publishers draws away trade from the dealer, and to compel at least the proper price to be paid was the object of bringing the matter forward. A committee was appointed to prepare a memorial to the Minister of Castoms setting forth the facts above cited.

A motion was made to the effect, "That the rade avoid, if possible, all discounts to teachers who and text-books." A full and thorough thing of the question was made, when it was unanimously considered that there is little of nothing made on that class of trade, and that it should be discountenanced.

At the evening session the committees reported, and in every case the reports were adopted as presented.

The list of prices at which the annuals are to be sold, with also the list of periodicals with price of single number and by the year, is to be printed and sold to the trade. Orders were given by those present for 7000, in lots of 1000 each.

The meeting then adjourned, to meet again in October.

THE UNITED STATES AND THE CONGRESSIONAL RECORD.

• We give below the text of the bill introduced by David B. Henderson in the House to provide for the distribution of the statutes of the United States and the Congressional record, to designated incorporated bodies, institutions, and associations:

Be it enacted by the Senate and House of Representatives of the United States of America in Congress assembled, That the Secretary of the Interior is required to furnish to incorporated bodies, institutions, and associations to be designated to him by Senators of the several States. respectively, and by the Representatives in Congress, and by the Delegate from each Territory, one bound copy of the statutes of the United States enacted by the Forty-eighth Congress and each succeeding Congress, and of the Congressional record for said Congress and each future Congress, in the manner provided in Sections 501 and 502 of the Revised Statutes of the United States for the distribution of other books and public documents therein mentioned.

THE REDUCTION OF DISCOUNTS.

ANOTHER RETAILER SPEAKS.

New York, March 23, 1886.

To the Editor of the Publishers' Weekly,

SIR: It seems that the present depressed state of the book trade, from the sentiment expressed through the Publishers' Weekly, is due chiefly to the publishers.

Now, if a committee of booksellers were to petition the publishers and prevail with them to refrain from selling at retail, and to reduce the exorbitant retail price of their books and give shorter discounts or sell at net wholesale prices to the trade, and also to have announced in their catalogues and circulars that their books are only to be had of booksellers, it would greatly remedy the existing evil in the opinion of one in a bookstore of some seventy years' standing, and which feels the present dull state of trade.

P. N. I.

Books vs. Dry Goods.—A novel step has just been taken by Mercer Goodrich, a Portsmouth (N. H.) bookseller. In order to "get even" with dry-goods houses that sell books, he has just put in a complete assortment of dry goods. We have not heard whether Mr. Goodrich will offer the dry goods on the basis the dry goodsmen sell books—manufacturers' price, 30 cent per yard; our price, 19 cents!

PUBLISHING REFORM IN CHINA.

From the London Academy.

A REFORM in printing is being effected in China which is likely to revolutionize the book trade in that country. As is well known, by far the greater number of books which issue annually from the Chinese press are reprints and new editions of old works. These are reproduced by a system of block printing, which may or may not faithfully represent the original texts. To obviate the possibility of error, and to reduce so far as possible the cost of republication, photo-lithography has been called into requisition with the most excellent results. Two firms at Shanghai, one English and the other Chinese, have established photo-lithographic presses, from which they issue editions of the classics and other works of value in a style and at a price which make even stolid Chinamen enthusiastic. One of the latest achievements of the Chinese firm is the production of a reprint of the palace edition of K'ang-he's celebrated dictionary, and it is even in contemplation to bring Out a reprint of the celebrated encyclopædia, the "T'u shu tseth ch'ing," which fills, in its original form, 502 volumes.

NOTES ON AUTHORS.

Prof. JAMES K. HOSMER is at work upon a bife of "Young Sir Harry Vane."

VERNON LEE'S new book, "The Opinions of Baldwin," will be issued shortly by Unwin.

PROF. VAMBERY has completed his "Story of Hungary." It will be published by Fisher Unwin.

LADY WILDE, Oscar Wilde's mother, has completed a rather important collection of Irish legends.

MISS BEIHAM-EDWARDS'S forthcoming story, an Anglo-French romance, is to be entitled "Half-Way."

MATTHEW ARNOLD has prepared an abridged and annotated school edition of his selection of Johnson's "Lives of the Poets."

MR. JUSTIN HUNTLY McCARTHY, M.P., is just about to publish (through Chatto & Windus) a new volume of verse, entitled "Hafiz in London."

H. TAINE has written a "Study of Napoleon I." which is spoken of as an experiment in psychological description. It is to be published shortly.

Miss Andrietta Anderson, a young lady of Chicago, will soon publish two volumes—" The Wedding of the Old Year" and "A Legend of Indian History."

THE author of the story, "A Brother to Dragons," which was recently published in the Atlantic, is, according to the Kichmond State, Miss Amilie Reeves, of Richmond, Va.

MARTIN F. THEFER has in the press an autobiographical work, which will be published about Easter, under the title of "My Life as an Author." The publishers will be Sampson Low & Co.

LADY DILKE is going to publish, through George Routledge & Sons, a volume of tales, under the title of "The Shrine of Death and Other Stories." Besides the ordinary edition, there will be large paper copies.

COUNT LEON TOLSTOI, the Russian novelist, has, it is reported, abandoned literature to become a shoemaker. As a deeply religious man he has determined to carry out to the letter the precepts of the Sermon on the Mount.

PROF. THOROLD ROCERS, M. P., intends to continue his "History of Prices" in two additional volumes. They will contain much important information on the currency question in connection with the distribution of the precious metals.

SIDNEY LUSKA (Harry Harland) has resigned his position in the [N. Y.] Surrogate's office, and will hereafter devote himself entirely to literature. He wrote his first novel in three weeks, working in the morning between the hours of three and eight.

MISS FLORENCE MARRYAT, who has recently been making a professional tour in the United States, has written a book describing her impressions of men and manners here. It will be published by Messrs. Swan, Sonnenschen & Co. in the course of the present spring.

JOURNALISTIC NOTES.

THE Path is the name selected by the disciples of Blavatsky in this city for their projected theosophical organ.

THE April Harper's contains the opening numbers of three serials—" Springhaven," by Blackmore, "Not a Love Story," by the author of "John Hallfax, Gentleman," and "Their Pilgrimage," by Chas. Dudley Warner.

THE Youth's Companion of April 15 will contain an article by the prima donna, Christine Nilsson, on the best methods of teaching singing. The same number will also contain an article, "Advice to Boys Entering College," by President Noah Porter, of Yale.

The International Record of Charities and Correction, edited by F. H. Wines, will be issued monthly by G. P. Putnam's Sons. It is a quarto paper containing sixteen pages of reading matter, and aims to assist in the unification of measures for the relief of suffering and the repression of crime, and to interest the public in them.

The Brooklyn Magazine for April will be the first number of its enlarged form, and a periodical of over one hundred and twenty-five pages will hereafter be regularly issued instead of fifty pages, as heretofore. The editorial and general business offices of the magazine have also been removed to New York. The subscription prior will be doubled at the same time—all of which apparently means that the magazine has proved successful to its projectors.

The naval duel between the Kearsarge and the Alabama is the text of the war feature of the April Century. There are three papers, profusely illustrated—the first, "Life on the Alabama," written by one of the crew of that to mous cruiser, containing the author's opinion of his officers and shipmates, an account of the two years' cruise, etc.; another paper is by the first officer of the Alabama, Lieutenant Kell; and a third is contributed by the surgeon of the Kearsarge, Dr. Browne.

The Popular Science Monthly for April c tains the first of a series of articles by H David A. Wells, on "An Economic Smite

D. APPLETON & Co. will issue at once, under the title of "Aliette," a translation made for them by J. Henry Hager, of Octave Feuillet's new novel, "La Morte," which has just completed its course in the Revue des Deux Mondes. The interest turns upon religious issues, the strongest, though not the most attractive character, being a young girl devoted to evolution and scientific research.

Ma. Corcoran, of Washington, it is reported has presented to the Virginia Historical Society the stereotype plates of "The Madison State Papers," which for forty years or more have been in his possession. The published work is somewhat scarce. The plates have been offered to Congress for $5000, and if the offer is accepted the money will be devoted by the society to the erection of a fireproof hall.

CLEAVES, MACDONALD & Co, Boston, have just ready the second edition of "The Life of Lives," being the records of the life of Jesus, reviewed by recent biblical scholars, teachers, and thinkers, by Benjamin and Celeste Burnham, containing portraits of many representative religious writers, and an excellent map of Palestine. They have also just issued three exquisite Easter tokens, comprising hand-painted designs of cross and flowers on bevelled cards, put up in neat boxes.

Roberts Bros. issue this week "Colonel Cheswick's Campaign," a novel by Flora L. Shaw, author of "Castle Blair," etc.; "Evan Harrington," by George Meredith, the second volume of a new and complete uniform edition of this author's works; "An Italian Garden," a new volume of poems, by A. Mary F. Robinson, author of "The New Arcadia;" also new editions of "Mercy Philbrick's Choice" and "Hetty's Strange History," by Helen Jackson. These two latter volumes, rendered famous through their connection with the No Name Series, now appear for the first time bearing the author's name, and in new cloth and dies.

S. W. TILTON & Co. have just published "Self-Instructive Lessons in Painting with Oil and Water Colors," by Susan Hale, a practical work by a most successful and practical teacher and artist, giving instruction in painting on silk, satin, velvet, and other fabrics, including lustra painting, Kensington paintings painting of tapestry, and the new style of inlaid painting on plush. They have also issued a work entitled "Three Hundred Decorative and Fancy Articles," by Lucretia P. Hale and Margaret E. White, which gives directions in the preparation of ornamental work of all kinds, how to conduct fairs, weddings, Christmas festivals, dinners, parties, and innumerable other things, making a most useful companion to a lady of taste and society.

THE N. Y. INFORMATION Co., to which we have already called attention in these columns, has removed to 693 Broadway, N. Y. City, and is now fully prepared to furnish information on questions relating to literature, history, science art, politics, etc. It will not, however, "and take to furnish medical or legal advice, or to as a detective or a mercantile agency." tention will be given to the tracing of pedigrees, and to genealogical researches; also to translacions from any language, and to the indexing of books and magazines, the compiling of cyclo-redias and dictionaries, etc. Mr. Charles A. Durfee is the manager of this particular line of work. E. A. Mac, well known to the trade, is manager of the Book Department, which attends Ro purchases of books at auction sales and elsewhere, gives auction sale quotations, compiles bibliographies, and performs a number of things In the book line which most people have not time rto attend to, or cannot command the facilities for doing.

CASSELL & Co. have in preparation, says the London Publishers' Circular, " a sumptuous volume entitled 'Shaksperian Scenes and Characters,' illustrative of thirty plays of Shakespeare. There are thirty steel plate and ten wood-engravings, after drawings by Frank Dicksee, A.R.A., Solomon Hart, R.A., Frederick Barnard, J. McL. Ralston, H. C. Selous, J. D. Watson, Charles Green, W. Ralston, A. Hopkins, Val Bromley, S. Fredericks, and M. E. Edwards. The text, written by Austin Brereton, deals chiefly with the stage history of each play, an account being given of the more celebrated Engdish and foreign actors of the principal parts from the earliest to the present times. This is the first work of the kind that has been attempted, and it should prove unusually interesting to lovers of the drama, especially as the -stage history of Shakespeare in America has been conched upon by Mr. Brereton. The volume is appropriately dedicated to Henry Irving."

L. Pranc & Co.'s Easter cards for 1886 are fully up to the issues of former years as to beauty and variety of designs, and the choice of sentiments. Mrs. O. E. Whitney is represented by several artistic flower pieces; Miss E. Mattack by a very delicate pair of chicken pictures; Miss Fidelia Bridges and H. Giacomelli, both by their inimitable bird studies; Walter Satterlee by a design showing a child in the midst of Easter lilies, and Miss L. B. Humphrey and Mrs. Phebe Jenks, both by some admirable figure groups. These cards come both plain and fringed and also as folders, while all have delicately tinted backs of original designs. Several of these series are also printed on satin, and this part of the extensive line is further enriched by a large Easter dove from the brush of Henry Sandham, which has been printed on satin only. The different fancy mounts are almost entirely new in design, comprising many of a decidedly Easter character, such as an Easter dove wing, crosses, eggs, calla lily leaf, and an Easter Crown.

Ir does not seem so difficult for our transatlantic cousins to recognize enterprise when they see it. The Lancet, in speaking of the "Reference Handbook of Medical Sciences" now being published by Mesara. William Wood & Co., says the work " will undoubtedly mark an era in the literary history of medicine and the allied sciences. America is said to be the land of big things, and its title to the claim will not be belied by the 'Handbook.' " The Medical Times and Gazette, in noticing the first volume, says: "Our American colleagues seem and leads him to discourse on many never tired of startling us with the magnificence of their literary projects," and cite the "Handof their literary projects," and cite the "Handbook" as "testilying to a largeness of conceptinctly Christian purpose.

By[George] P. Upton. 1/18mo. EPrice, $1.00.

"Woman in Music," by George P Upton, the author of "Standard Operas" and other valuable contributions to musical literature, is novel and full of interest. Its facts and illustrations, drawn from unusually wide reading, are very fresh and curious, and the charming little brochure may justly be said to contain the romance of musical biography.

WILL PUBLISH APRIL 10th:

GERMAN PSYCHOLOGY OF TO-DA The Empirical School.

By TH. RIBOT, Director of the Révue Philosophique. Translated from the French by MARK BALDWIN, B.A. With Preface by JAMES McCosh, D.D. 1 vol., 8vo. $2.00.

Extract from President McCosh's Preface.

American and English students will be grateful to have M. Ribot's valuable work in their own tongue by petent translator. It contains the combined results of careful observations, experiments and calculations, which be obtained otherwise except by reading innumerable books and monographs most difficult to collect. His interp and criticisms also are original and profound.

PERSIA: The Land of the Imams.

By JAMES BASSETT, late missionary to Persia. 1 vol., 12mo, $1.50.

Mr. Bassett's very readable and very thorough volume has a timely as well as a permanent interest. Le dence in the country admirably qualified him to give such an account of Persia as would meet the needs of readers who desire to be fully informed by a competent observer.

THE COUNTRY BANKER: His Clie Cares and Work.

From the Experience of Forty Years. By George RAE, author of "Bullion's Letters to a Manager." With an American Preface by Brayton Ives, ex-President of the New Stock Exchange. I vol., 12mo, $1.50.

Since the publication of Mr. Walter Bagehot's work on "Lombard Street" there has appeared no bobanking which has attracted so much attention as this volume by Mr. Rae. It is an admirable companion Bagehot's work, discussing the subject of banking in the country in a wonderfully interesting way, and with vividness as "Lombard Street" pictured the duties and cares of the city banker. Five editions have already became a subject of the city banker. for in England.

CONTENTS.

The Function of Manager. Personal Credit. Testimony of the Balance Sheet. Credit of Limited Companies. Cover for Debt. Overdrawn Accounts. Insolvent Trading. Occasional Overdrafts. Recall of Advances. Bankruptcy. Trade Bills. Routine Duties. Correspondence.

Losn Bills and Notes. Negotiability of Bills. Personal Security. Colleteral Security. Securities which are not Securities. Deposits and Runs. Interest and Discount. Bank Charges. Circulation. The Use of a Banker. Salaries. Office Expenses. Competition in Banking.

A GREAT SUCCESS.

THE LATE MRS. NULL.

By Frank R. Stockton, author of "Rudder Grange," "The Lady, or the Tiger?" etc. 1 12mo, $1.50.

"Mr. Stockton has written a book which you can't discuss without laughing, and that is proof enoug quality."-N. Y. Tribune.

"We congratulate the novel-reader upon the feast there is in 'The Late Mrs. Null.'"—Hartford Post.

"We can assure prospective readers that their only regret after finishing the book will be that never again c hope for the pleasure of reading it again for the first time."—The Critic.

"Original, bright, and full of the author's delicate humor."-New York Journal of Commerce.

"Altogether, Mr. Stockton has added another to the unique creations which have been winning for him a paperciation and a large audience, and has made a contribution to the growing literature of native fiction which command universal attention."—Buffalo Times.

The author claims that "the Tudor changes of the greatest constitutional importance to Englishmen have been long marvellously misrepresented both as to the aim of those who brought them about, and as to the direct social and religious consequences of such changes upon the nation and the empire in general." The work is clear and logical from a Roman Catholic standpoint. There is a list of the existing portraits of Edward the Sixth and other noted personages mentioned; a chronology of the reign and a full general index. Janizaries is derived from a Turkish word meaning "new troops." In 1320 regiments of infantry were organized, made up of Christian captives, who were compelled to embrace Mohammedanism. The greatest success of these foot soldiers was under Scanderbeg, the son of an Albanian Christian prince, whose principality had been taken from him by the Turks. Scanderbeg was given as hostage to the Turkish ruler, who had him educated in Islamism, and for whom Scanderbeg fought valiantly until convinced of his father's wrongs, when he used the trained soldiers to fight against the Turks, and won twenty-two well-contested battles. The story of the fall of Turkish supremacy is instructively told in the form of romance. The historical details are correct.

Two lost and belated travellers seek refuge at a lonely farm, and one is wakened by an unearthly knocking at his door. The family tell him that it is a family omen, presaging trouble to the one most dear to them directly or indirectly through him, and that it is always said to be heard on "the day the end begins." The mystery of the story beginning here, holds the reader's interest throughout, the gloom being somewhat lightened by a couple of love stories.

The author has aimed to show his readers the place beld by tapestry in the annals of high art or painting proper. Beginning with an account of tapestry in applient times with the Egyptians, Assyrians, Hebrews, Chinese, Greeks, Romans, etc., it goes on through the various centuries, describing textile art as found in different countries, and illustrating the account very profusely. The last chapter describes some of the looms now used in weaving tapestries. In the appendix are fuc-similes of the marks and monograms by which the makers are known, and lists of the chief centres of manufacture, of painters who de-signed cartoons for tapestries, and of the chief tapestry

Apollonius was a contemporary of Jesus; It was claimed that he was divinely conceived, and that he came with a revelation as the Saviour of humanity; his written life tells of miracles performed by him in Greece, and of a religion preached by him advocating a morality and virtue far in advance of his age. Mr. Tredwell furnishes a most interesting biography of him based upon the narrative of Philostratus. Its special aim is to show that the main facts in the history of Apollonius are as well attested as the life of Christ, Great care has been taken to describe the people and the countries through which Apollonius travelled as they were in his day; his philosophy, his religion, and his system of ethics are given as they came from his own lips. A prominent feature of the work is the bibliographical references. The work is handsomely printed by De Vinne; has broad margins and uncut edges.

N ENGLISH AUTHOR ON THE AMERI-CAN MARKET.

THE letter of R. L. Stevenson to the London lcademy, which we print elsewhere, gives one iece of good advice which English authors rould do well to keep in mind. A great part if the triangular misunderstanding between English authors, English publishers, and Amerian publishers has come from ignorance or carelessness of English authors in making their ousiness arrangements at home. The English sublisher assumes, as a matter of course, that in mying rights he includes the American market, whereas, 'quite as often as not, the English author has no intention of selling that market or may know nothing about it. It would be better if all English publishers would follow the practice of acquainting authors, in the course of their negotiations, with the possibilities and im. possibilities on this side of the water; but in any event the English author should not put upon American publishers the onus of his lack of forenight. American publishers, who usually obtain dvance sheets at the hands of English publishms, have no means of knowing whether the Raglish author has knowingly or carelessly disposed of his American market, or whether he has intended to keep that in his own hands; nor would it be courteous on the part of an Amerian publisher to assume that the English publither was acting otherwise than in good faith, and take upon himself personally inquiry of the In this way it has often happened that to English author has complained that he has received nothing for his books from America, Missingh American publishers may have paid a gred sum to English publishers whom they supestitled to whatever payment shall be while the English publisher in his turn god that he bought from the author

whatever income there might be from American sales from England. As Mr. Stevenson says, there is a difference between publishers and publishers, as there must be between kinds of men in any business; but this is by no means a question of honesty or dishonesty; it is a difference of interpretation in the lack of a direct understanding. The practice of disposing of advance sheets without accounting for royalty and without a clause for covering such cases in a contract is certainly not to be defended.

We regret to see that an author of the clearness of Mr. Stevenson fails to see the essential objection to the proposed royalty stamp system. The essentials of the proposal are that the present relation between the author and the publisher of his choice should be given up, and that any publisher should have the right to print, on obtaining stamps from the author. If the stamp system does not mean this, but means simply a method of accounting to the author for royalty on copies sold by the one publisher selected by the author, there is no legal reason why an author should not make that arrangement with his publisher now. It does not require government intervention to enable Mr. Stevenson to have a stamp of his own devise printed and for him to arrange with his publisher to put such stamps on copies sold. If he makes that a sine qua non of selling his book, he could under his contract take steps against the publisher if he sold copies without the stamp. This is quite within his hands or the hands of any author who chooses to insist upon this course. It is indeed formulating a suspicion that the author's publisher is not treating him rightly, but it is quite within the right of an author to go to a publisher whom he does not suspect or who will assent to the use of the royalty system.

AMERICAN RIGHTS AND WRONGS.

From the London Academy, March 20.

SKERRYVORE, BOURNEMOUTH, March 15, 1886.

Will you allow me to say a word or two on the questions of American rights and wrongs?

- I. Authors should be careful to understand the bargains into which they enter with English publishers, and either strictly reserve American rights or see that they receive an equivalent. It is a mistake to suppose that, in the worst of cases, America brings nothing. There is always a little money to be got for advance sheets. I have known it to be near a third of what the author could raise (in money down) at home; and this is too great a consideration to be let slip.
- 2. In most cases, the author will do best to sell the advance sheets to some American publisher, and then forget that such a book existed.
- 3. There is, in the States, as at home, a difference in publishers. At a time when so man scalded authors rush into print with their constants.

plaints, I think it no more a pleasure than a duty to name Messrs. Charles Scribner's Sons. I have had but one year's dealings with this firm; but it would be hard to express my sense of their good faith and generosity.

4. A word to English publishers. I have known them to dispose of advance sheets (without accounting) when the book was burdened with a royalty to the author. I am no lawyer, but I make bold to say this practice is indefensible, and if brought before a judge would lead to white faces.

5. The proposal (made by an American) of a system of stamp is one of those radiantly simple things that offend such as live in darkness. It will not be accepted yet awhile; but there is no colorable reason against it. It could not hurt the publisher in any fair business; and if he dislike the proposal, it is either from blind conservatism, or ---

6. In the meanwhile, let us try to get our own copyright law amended, and wait, with such civility as we can muster, for the States to follow in our wake. We lie bare to robbery, and we do well to be annoyed; but our American brethren are but imperfectly protected, and a little generous ardor to improve their case will do ours no harm.

ROBERT LOUIS STEVENSON.

ANSWERS TO MR. ROGER SHERMAN'S ALLEGED "REASONS WHY AN INTERNA TIONAL COPYRIGHT BILL SHOULD NOT BE PASSED BY THE CONGRESS OF THE UNITED STATES."

Submitted in response to his statement that "Criticism", ... is invited."

By HENRY HOLT.

"I. Because it is the clamer of 200 authors against the interests of 55,000,000 people."

If the United States had refused to protect Morse, or Howe, or Edison, or Bell, against pillage, their remonstrances would have been, in each case, "the clamor of" only one "against the interests of" millions. But that is no reason for the Government leaving the ideas of any one of them open to pillage. Yet it leaves our authors doubly open to pillage—from foreign publishers who appropriate their works, and from American publishers who appropriate foreign works and throw them into competition with American works, at the usual prices of goods whose producers have not been paid.

"11. Because cheap literature is a large factor in cheap education, and the unparalleled intellectnal development in the United States is due to cheap education."

Cheap literature is not as essential as cheap food and clothing; therefore, the farmer and dry-goods men should not be protected in the right to be paid for their productions. See also answer to "reason" XI.

"III. Because it is but another step toward yielding our market to the English manufacturers; in market which they took no part in creating, and whose creation they would have prevented of they could."

This has nothing to do with the right and wrong of the case. But it is a fallacy, anybow.

* Printed as Document [No 2] of the American Coffright League.

Probably the aggregate value of books manufactured in this country, and certainly the value of books by American authors, would be greater under an International Copyright Law than it is now.

"IV. Because it would grant to foreigners a provilege which the founders of our Government intended should only be granted to its cutzens for the purpose of encouraging a national literature, and not for the pecuniary benefit of individuals,"

What's the objection to granting foreigners a privilege if it does your own people good? It is absolutely necessary to grant this one "for the purpose of encouraging a national literature." The competition of foreign literature whose authors are not paid is making it impossible for new American authors to get a foothold of for old ones to get proper pay We are losing our national literature.

"V. Because it would be the foreign fublished and not the author who would benefit."

This is flatly untrue. Foreign authors are not getting a third of the revenue from the country that they did under the old system of trade courtesy, or would under an International Copyright Law. What is worse, from one point of view, our own authors are not, either.

"VI. Because of the difficulty of carrying and the law in accordance with its spirit, and of its opening a wide door for frauds against the interests of our working classes."

This is an objection to every copyright law whatever, or any patent law whatever. The objection is fancied; but even if it were sound is it any argument against doing what we can?

"VII. Because it is against the spirit of our Constitution that the minority shall dictate to the majority, and that 'monopolies' shall be created for raising the price of a neccessity."

Is it "against the spirit of our Constitution" that raisers of potatoes, who are a "minority," ahould "dictate to the majority" to keep out of the potato patches? And does the inviolability of a potato patch make it an objectionable "monopoly?" Anybody who pleases can raise potatoes, so anybody who pleases can write books.

"VIII. Because it is a presence that nation authors cannot live in competition with for literature. The American market is ready and willing to take more good literature than nation talent can offer, and is compelled to seek foreign productions."

As I have made this alleged "pretence," and Mr. Sherman probably knows it, I am doubt justified, on the strength of an experience many times larger than his, in pronouncing his first statement above, "a pretence." What he calls a pretence is strictly true.

His second statement does not touch the heat that what the market is getting from abroad is, principally taken without being paid for, and that its stolen-goods price makes impossible, a paying price on the home production.

"IX. Because if a sufficiency of good Ami literature were offered it mould drive at worst of the foreign, which would un vatised, and create a healthy demand ooks."

CE OF BOOKS IN CHINA.

RTY, of the Republique Française, sted a friend at Pekin to forward tive books, received the following

FRIEND. Your request is 'to buy editions of some Chinese or Japanh engravings at a low or moderate ie first place, you must please init you understand by 'moderate,' se value placed by the Chinese on and the small number printed of

Will you ax a figure not to be exaining a certain number of volumes You will perceive from the folis in not at all superfluous. ter of Japan, who is both learned and renowned, has just answered my inquiry touching Japanese books, and states that shall find nothing or next to nothing in China, a country ravaged by successive revolutions, and that should I even find anything, its price would be too high; of this latter feature you will be able to judge immediately; for the present, by not pressing the matter, I may still be able to obtain some works, but it will be impossible to rival the collection of books and pictures which was made by Messrs. E. Saton & Anderson, and has just been purchased for $30,000 by England for the British Museum. He has, however, expressed his willingness to assist me, but, like myself, also wants to know what you understand by ancient, 200, 400, 1000 years or more?

'However, through the services of a small merchant with a ferret's instincts, I have obtained the following offers :

"A book of prayers on black paper, the text with designs representing the deities, being done by hand in gold, date, A.D. 1403. Price, $160.

"A sheet of paper, without date, containing some letters attributed to a sage who lived A.D.

o. $360.
"A work in four volumes; the first page containing the date is missing, the last bears the following inscription: The Year 1137, the Mandarin Wen wrote the annexed preface for the present book, which dates from the dynasty of Thang' (A.D. 600 to 900). The book is evideatly ancient, but is it a first edition ?—nothing proves it to be so-excepting the price, $600.

" I will restrict myself for the present to ascertaining where similar books may be found, if you desire it, although I openly confess that the price does not even enter into the category of the moderates. I have been promised to see a book engraved on sticks of bamboo before the invention of printing; this will most likely be worth some thousands of pounds. In any case I shall be gratified at having so rare a curiosity in my hands for a few minutes. I have even been promised to see a copy of the Grand Encyclopædia, compiled during the reign of the Emperor Kang-shi (1662-1723). The complete work costs, according to the state of preservation, from $5000 to about $20,000.

" In connection with the foregoing, the following facts, gathered from a paper read a few years ago by Mr. E. Saton to the Asiatic Society at Yokohama, may be of interest :

" The invention of printing is traced back to a custom among the Japanese sages of taking copies of antique inscriptions by rubbings. Since A.D. 175 subbings of classic poetry have been in circulation, but the regular impressions from carved blocks do not extend beyond the latter part of the sixth century. During the seventh century Buddhism penetrated into Japan by way of Corea, and introducing there the books of prayer, and consequently the necessity of understanding the meaning of the Chinese characters. In Japan the most ancient example of engraved wood dates from the middle of the eighth century.

''In China printing from movable types which produced in Europe a revolution in religlon, politics, and society—dates from the middle of the sixth century under the dynasty of Sung. The Coreans are credited with the employment of types in copper at the commencement of the ninth century, and it was with these types. which are still to be seen at Pekin, that the before-mentioned Encyclopædia was printed.

POSTAL MATTERS.

CONTINUED STORIES MUST PAY DUTY.—On the 6th inst., according to a Washington despatch to the Associated Press, the Treasury Department has sustained the action of the Collector of Customs at New York in assessing duty on certain German weekly publications forming a continuous story and arranged for binding into book form, which the importer claimed were free of duty under the provisions in the free list for newspapers and periodicals.

Postage on Monthly Publications.— Charles Hutchins, of Boston, publisher of the Missionary Herald, urged the House Committee on Post Offices and Post Roads [April 3] to report legislation that would enable monthly and other periodical literature to be distributed by mail in the city of publication at the same rate as if destined for other places. At present it cost him thirteen times as much to mail his publication to points in Boston—the place of publication—as to mail it to New York.

NOTES ON AUTHORS.

CHARLES F. WINGATE is preparing for the press a volume to comprise his articles on the tenement-house problem, which were published in the New York Herald and Tribune.

SLASON THOMPSON, compiler of the collection of poetry entitled "The Humbler Poets," is said to be engaged in a revision of that work, more especially with a view of supplying the names of the anonymous pieces.

GENERAL J. WATTS DE PEYSTER has made a literal translation of a portion of the fifth canto of Dante's "Inferno." General De Peyster's rendering of the episode of Francesca da Rimini has been published in a pamphlet sheet with LAURENCE ALMA TADEMA, the author of the new novel, "Love's Martyr," is the daughter of 'Alma Tadema, and not the artist himself, as some of the critics have supposed. The name of the artist is Lorens, and as Laurence, its Anglicized form, is commonly a masculine name, the mistake is not surprising.

THE scene of Mr. Crawford's new novel, "Sarracinesca," which is to appear in Blackwood, says the London Athenaum, "is laid in Rome, after the expulsion of the Bourbons from Naples; but though Cardinal Antonelli is an active character, politics occupy merely the background. Love and intrigue, the curiosities of Roman society, the country life of the Roman princes, furnish incidents for a plot which the writer works out by the aid of a decidedly original cast of characters."

NOTES ON CATALOGUES.

W. E. Benjamin, 744 Broadway, N. Y., has now ready his new catalogue [No. 4, March, 1886] of autograph letters, original manuscripts, and historical documents. This one is composed largely of Mr. James R. Osgood's collection. Among the attractions for sale are the original MSS. of Emerson's "Representative Men," Bret Harte's "Two Men of Sandy Bar," and Holmes's "Autocrat of the Breakfast Table" (36 p. 12mo, 10 cents).

PAUL PAREY, 32 Wilhelmstrasse, Berlin, bat published a handsome catalogue of the works published by him relating to agriculture—rural economy in general—floriculture, and furestry.

A most valuable feature of the catalogue is an elaborate index giving not only author, title and general subject, but also a clew to the more important topics treated of in the volumes catlogued. (172 p. 8vo. cloth.) This same arm also publishes an "Inhaltsverzeichniss wissenschaftlich-landwirthschaftlicher Zeitschriften. comprising "Landwirthschaftliche Jahrbücher," edited by Dr. H. Thiel; "Jahresbericht für Agricultur-Chemie," edited by Dr. A. Hilger; "Journal für Landwirthschaft," edited by Drs. Henneberg and December 1 Henneberg and Drechsler; and "Laudwirthschaftliche Verauchs-Stationen," edited by Dr. F. Nobbe. The publications of this house are by the best-known and most widely-recognized authorities upon agricultural subjects. house itself was founded in 1848 by Karl Ferdinand Wiegandt, which successively became Wiegandt & Grieben, in 1850; Karl Wiegandt, in 1853 ; Gustav Bosselmann, in 1856 ; Wiegandt & Hempel, in 1862; Wiegandt, Hempel & Parey, in 1873 (Wiegandt, however, had been dead # that time since 1867); and, after the death of Karl Hempel, in 1877, Paul Parey assumed estire charge of the business, and has continued it since with energy and enterprise.

LITERARY AND TRADE NOTES.

Mr. R. R. Bowker sailed for Europe on the 7th inst., by the steamer Werra, for a three months' stay abroad.

THE following is a list of the houses that now close their stores at one o'clock on Saturdays: Ivison, Blakeman, Taylor & Co., Thomas Nelson & Sons, Macmillan & Co., Potter, Ainsworth & Co., Henry Holt & Co., Charles Scribner's Sons, and Cassell & Co. Charles Scribner's Sons, it is interesting to note, close both their publishing office and retail store, being, we believe, the only retail bookstore which has adopted this course thus far.

Houghton, Mifflin & Co. announce that the biography of Longfellow for the American Men of Letters series will be written by W. D. Howells. The volume on Hawthorne in the same series is still in the hands of Mr. Lowell. The eleventh volume in the Riverside Aldine series will be "Democracy and Other Addresses," by James Russell Lowell. It will comprise seven addresses, all of which except one, "Books and Reading," were delivered in England. The others are "Democracy," "Gartield," "Dean Stanley," "Fielding," "Coleridge," and "Don Quixote."

LEE & SHEPARD have just issued "A Winter in Central America," by Miss Helen J. Sanborn, a bright narrative of a Boston girl's tour in parts of this interesting country; "Exercises for the Improvement of the Senses for Young Children," by Horace Grant, an excellent little manual edited by Willard Small; "Forgotten Meanings, or, an Hour with a Dictionary," by Alfred Waites, an original handbook by one of the best etymologists of the day; "Down the West Branch, or, Camps and Tramps Around Katahdin," by Captain Charles A. J. Farrar, a bright and fresh juvenile, which belongs to The Field and Forest series; also, a new edition of "The Historical Student's Manual."

MR. HENRY STEVENS, according to the London Athenaum, "had in the press at the time of his decease 'Recollections of Mr. James Lenox, of New York, and the 'Foundation of his Library,' a little volume containing much bibliographical gossip and anecdotes about rare books. The work will be printed on hand-made paper at the Chiswick Press, with portraits of Mr. Lenox and Mr. Stevens, and will be published toward the end of April. We may add that the American and antiquarian bookselling business of Mr. Stevens will be carried on by his only son, Mr. H. N. Stevens (who was admitted a partner in January, 1885), under the name of Henry Stevens & Son. Mr. Stevens will publish his father's book."

THE BROTHERHOOD OF COMMERCIAL TRAVEL-LERS held a meeting at the Sinclair House on the evening of the 7th inst. President Plummer was in the chair, and about twenty members The Committee on By-Laws subwere present. mitted a revised Constitution and By-Laws, which was adopted and ordered printed. It was decided to fix the first Wednesday in December as the date of the regular annual meeting, and to limit the membership to one hundred. There were fifty new applicants, but as there were vacancies for only twenty-two, the rest were unavoidably disappointed. After the meeting the "boys" partook of a collation and indulged in song and story. The president and vicepresident, Mr. C. E. Hopkins, contributed their share in making an enjoyable evening for all.

D. Lothrop & Co. have just issued three new and handsome Easter booklets: "Sunrise, or, Easter Triumph," an elegant little volume of selections, compiled by Rose Porter, printed in brown ink, bound in delicate cream-colored covers; "On Easter Day," by Margaret Sid-ney, a graceful poem for Easter time, with ten exquisite engravings, daintily printed in toned ink on fine paper, and bound in white covers with an etched design in sepia; "An Easter Rose," by Sarah Prescott Kellogg, a tender Easter poem with ten engravings printed in richtoned ink on cream-colored paper, and bound in white with a design in silver and color. All of these books are tied with ribbon. They will soon publish a small book, for which is anticipated a great run, inasmuch as it meets a demand from many young women who are forced to support themselves and do not know what to do. It is to be entitled " A New Departure for Girls," and is written by Margaret Sidney.

MUDIE'S LIBRARY advertises that it has now in circulation one thousand copies and upward of the following works. "Lord Beaconsfield's "Donova Letters to His Sister," "Life of Frank Buck-Edna Lydand," "Greville's Journal of the Reign of L. Craik.

Queen Victoria," "Oceana," by J. A. Froude; "Life of George Eliot," "Society in London," by a Foreign Resident; "General Gordon's Journals at Khartoum," "Memoirs of Lord Malmesbury," "King Solomon's Mines," by H. Bidan Hangard. The same account technique. H. Rider Haggard. The same agency took five hundred copies and upward of "From Korti to Khartoum," by Sir Charles W. Wilson; "Nat-ural Law in the Spiritual World," by Prof. Henry Drummond; "Life of Frederick Denison Maurice," " Recollections of Edmund Yates, "Lady Brassey's Voyage in the Tropics," "Life of Thomas Carlyle," by J. A. Froude;

"This is a work of great ability and importance. It is a work to be trusted as a guide, to be accepted for its inspiring conception of what English literature is in itself, and as an interpretation of national life. His style is terse and strong, picturesque and impressive, and his thought clear cut and weighty. His work is not a series of biographical sketches of authors, but a philosophical study of English literature in its main tendencies and characteristics. It is historical rather than biographical, philosophical rather than descriptive, critical rather than anecdotal."—Unitarian Review, Boston.

READY NEXT WEEK:

ALIETE

(LA MORTE).

BY OCTAVE FEUILLET,

Author of "The Romance of a Poor Young Man," etc., etc.

From the London Athenaum.

"Not often has a representative of the past in literature obtained a more decided success his younger rivals than M. Octave Feuillet has obtained with La Morte. Of the popularity book it is enough to say that the fiftieth edition was advertised in Paris within two or weeks of publication. The important thing is not that La Morte has commanded so much beess, but that it deserved it."

From the London Saturday Review.

"Nobody can deny that M. Feuillet has made a very strong hit in La Morte. . . . Altoer the machinery of the novel is excellent and the interest admirably sustained."

12mo, paper cover. Price, 50 cents; boards, 75 cents.

THREE NOTABLE BOOK

A NEW BOOK BY MR. CARNEGIE.

Triumphant Democrac:

OR, FIFTY YEARS' MARCH OF THE REPUBLIC. By Andrew Carl vol., 8vo, $2.00.

"Triumphant Democracy" is one of the most important books on America ever put and will undoubtedly excite a wide-spread interest both in this country and in Europe. I earnest discussion by an earnest man of the relative merits of the monarchical and the rep systems of government, as exemplified in Great Britain and the United States, with remarkable and decisive conclusion in favor of the latter. So vigorous and enthusia indorsement of American institutions by a foreigner has not been heard before.

The ligive a statement of the clinical and sides of modern surgery. It will contree 12mo volumes aggregating 1866 th illustrations, and will be priced at rolume. It will be handled by the legenerally.

Ts Bros. have in press a new novel to be issued in the No Name series. It is entitled "Justins," and is a powerfully written work, upholding the sacredness of the marriage vow. They have also finally placed in the hands of the printers the MS. of the first volume of the long-expected work, "Franklin in France," by Edward Everett Hale. The work will be illustrated with some tare portraits of Franklin, and, as the author says, will be one which will fill a very important gap in American history.

CHARLES SCRIBNER'S SONS have just ready Andrew Lang's novel, "The Mark of Caio," which is said to be of stirring interest, and is of course thoroughly well written; a timely book on "Labor, Land, and Law," by W. A. Phillips, member of Committees on Public Lands and on Banking and Currency during different sessions of Congress, who writes with force upon the general rights of labor, the various forms of land-holding, and the different questions which have left their mark upon our social system; and Andrew Carnegie's "Triumphant Democracy," which has long been looked for and is sure of intelligent readers.

D. LOTHROP & Co. will publish this month "Heaven's Gate," a story of the Forest of Dean, by Lawrence Severn, the scene of which is laid in a coal-mining district of England; "A New Departure for Girls," by Margaret Sidney, a fascinating and suggestive story, as well as practical, the aim of which is to teach girls to be self-supporting; "How They Learned Housework," by Mrs. Ellen C. Goodwin, another practical book, bright and sparkling and full of incident; "In Leisler's Times," by E. S. Brooks, a story of Knickerbocker New York, with twenty-four engravings by W. T. Smedley; "Etchings from Two Lands," by Clara M. Arthur, an interesting volume, with a delightful sort of autobiography mingled with the etchings; "April," in the series of Through the Year with the Poets, edited by Oscar Fay Adams; "The Browning Boys," by Pansy, a fascinating story of the growth of two boys who set out on their birthday to be helpful at home; and the new " Pansy Primary Library" of twenty 16mo vol-

HOUGHTON, MIFFLIN & Co. publish to-day a new volume by John G. Whittier entitled "St. Gregory's Guest, and Recent Poems," comprising the poems written since the publication of "The Bay of Seven Islands, 1883, "Signs and Seasons," a delightful book of out-door and domestic life, by John Burtoughs, who whether he writes of asture or of man is sure to write with originality, the freshness of personal observation, and the cheer of a healthy spirit; " California, from the Conquest in 1846 to the Second Vigilance Committee in San Francisco," by Prof. J. Royce, the eighth volume in the series of American Commonwealths; "Hamlet's Note-Book," a defence of Bacon's alleged authorship of Shakespeare's work and a criticism of Richard Grant White's essay on "Bacon's Promus," by Wm. D. O'Connor; and a new edition of Judge Na-thaniel Holmes's "The Authorship of Shakespeare." They also expect to have ready early next week the handsome memorial volume on George Fuller already described at length in these columns. Though the work is to be sold by subscription, the publishers will allow the trade a commission on orders which they may obtain for the book.

He studies carefully the evils of the system, inquires into the power of legislation to cure them, and describes the remedies which will preserve the usefulness of the railways, and at the same time protect legitimate investors. The author believes that the power of discrimination in rates left with the railway managers is dangerous to the whole social fabric; that in the power of the government to maintain public highways lies a thorough remedy for existing evils; that when railways are made public highways in fact, instead of a legal fiction, then we may look to see the great principle of competition work so freely that discriminations in rates, the restrictions of pools, and the creation of monopolies will become as impossible upon railways as upon navigable rivers and lakes." -N. A CONGRESSIONAL LIBRARY BUILDING AT LAST.

AFTER a struggle of nearly fourteen years, the faithful few who have during that time, in season and out of season, devoted their energies to providing a home for our national library, see their endeavors crowned with success. On the 8th inst. the Senate took up and passed without debate or a dissenting vote the bill which passed the House on the 5th.

The bill passed proceeds practically upon the recommendation made in 1880 by a board of experts consisting of E. Clark, architect of the Capitol; Alex. R. Esty, of Boston; and J. L. Smithmeyer, of Washington. The plan adopted was that of Mr. Smithmeyer, which provides a building of ample dimensions, to hold ultimately four million books, measuring 450 feet by 300, and covering about 2.9 acres of ground.* This has been spoken of as being far in excess of what will be needed; but, when it is taken into consideration that the area covered by the building of the British Museum is 5 acres, the area of the National Library of France, at Paris, 44 acres, and that the area of our own Capitol building is 3½ acres, it must be admitted that the area claimed for the library is modest indeed.

The style of architecture is of the Italian renaissance order, carefully and economically adapted in all its parts to the purposes of a Government Library, and with interior arrangements approved by the Librarian. The building is designed to be of stone in the exterior and of iron and concrete in the interior, entirely fireproof in all its parts. It is a pleasing and sufciently ornate edifice, without extravagance, and will be entirely in harmony with the Capitol. It is proposed to build on a site just beyond the park on the east front of the Capitol. Not more than $550,000 is to be paid for the land, and half a million is appropriated to commence con-It is intended to ask at the next session for $1,000,000 to continue the work, and for $823,000 in the session following to complete it. It is expected that the building will be ready in three years from the time work is begun.

The committee and the friends of the project will no doubt have to struggle with more drawbacks of one kind or another; but having accomplished so much, the rest will easily follow.

THE SPRING TRADE SALE.

THE SPRING TRADE SALE will commence on Tuesday morning, April 20, and continue daily in the order of catalogue. There are forty-seven invoices, eleven of which have been contributed by the larger publishing houses.

The first day, as usual, begins with Lee 3 Shepard's invoice, which is quite full. Then follow the Aldine Book Publishing Co., with a small list; Thomas R. Knox & Co.; the Worthington Company, with a large and fairly representative list; and John E. Potter & Co., with a full list.

The second day opens with Estes & Lauriat, who offer a good list of books. This is followed by Peterson Brothers, Pollard & Moss, Cassell & Co., Hurst & Co., E. H. Pennell, of Boston, and a small invoice numbered "H. H."

THE BERNE INTERNATIONAL-COPY-RIGHT CONFERENCE.

From the Nation, April 1. THE proceedings of the second International Conference at Berne have been published in a iolio volume of eighty-one pages, entitled "Actes de la 2me Conférence internationale pour la protection des œuvres littéraires et artistiques réunie à Berne du 7 au 18 Septembre, 1585." The title of the first year's volume reads 'pour la protection des droits d'auteur,'' but the rench delegates claimed that the expression 'des droits d'auteur'' had, in France, a special nd limited signification—namely, the remuneraon due to a dramatic author for the represenition of his play, and suggested the use of the ords " de la propriété littéraire et artistique " conveying in French the meaning expressed the German "Urheberrecht" and the Enish "copyright." Upon the recommendation the Swiss delegation, the term used in the tle of the volume was adopted, although notice as taken of the fact that it does not exactly exress the intention of the Conserence, which is of to protect the works, but the authors. pject is more distinctly stated in the amended st article of the final draft convention, which ads, "The contracting countries are constituted ito a union for the protection of the rights of ithors over their literary and artistic works." It is of interest to note the progress made towd this union by comparing the representaon at this Conference with that at the preceding In 1884 thirteen countries, counting Ausia-Hungary as one State, were represented by venty delegates, of which those from four States ere not active; but the final protocol, in which ne individual delegates recommend that a union e constituted for the protection of the rights of uthors, was signed by eighteen delegates, repreenting eleven States; the two delegates from 'araguay and San Salvador, only, not feeling uthorized to sign. The countries conspicuous y their absence were Denmark, Russia, Spain, 'otugal. Greece, Roumania, Servia, Turkey, the outh American States, and the United States. it the 1885 Conference we find that two States ave withdrawn, San Salvador and Austria-Hun-The first is an unimportant country, and s regards the latter, there is good reason to beleve that it will ultimately join the proposed nion, such being, at least, the opinion expressed a German publications. This belief may be parially based upon the action of the Austrian Parament, which has shown advanced views upon be subject of authors' rights by enacting, in April, 1884, a liberal copyright law, granting rotection to literary property during the lifetime of the author and fifty years after his death. viace of the two absent States, six additional itates were represented—Spain, Italy, Tunis, londuras, the Argentine Republic, and the Inited States; the delegates from the two latter puntries, however, as well as those from Belium and Paraguay, being only delegates ad mdiendum. Costa Rica, though having agreed o take part in the Conference, sailed to send a lelegate. In addition to the gain of active delerations from four new States, the delegates from nome of the States formerly represented attended a 1885 with enlarged powers. England, instead If one silent representative, as in 1884, sent two lelegates with full authority to act; and their stelligent participation in the proceedings

draft of a convention. The changes induced by the discussions in the Conference of 1885 in the draft convention which it is now proposed to submit as the definitive text of an international treaty during the coming September were largely verbal, resulting, in most cases, in greater simplicity and directness and consequent clearness of statement. But the part taken in the deliberations by the delegates from the Powers for the first time actively represented, led to important alterations in certain of the articles of convention. The first article has been quoted above. To the second article, which declares that authors of one country are to enjoy for their published or unpublished works in the other countries the rights which the respective laws grant to natives—for a term, however, not exceeding that granted, and only after the accomplishment of the formalities prescribed by law in the country of origin—the important addition was made, at the instance of Mr. Adams, the British delegate, declaring that "the country of origin of the work is that in which the work is first published; or, if such publication takes place simultaneously in several countries of the union, that one of them in which the shortest term of protection is granted by law." The author's country is considered the country of origin of unpublished works; and, according to article three, the stipulations apply to publishers of works issued in one of the countries of the union, although the authors belong to a country not a party to the union. Article four defines the expression "literary and artistic works" to comprehend "every production whatsoever in the literary, scientific, or artistic domain which can be published by any mode of impression or reproduction." The two articles, five and six, relating to translations occasioned considerable discussion. The conclusion arrived at in 1884 was that translations should be protected for ten years after publication, provided the translation was issued within three years from first publication of original work. The present articles grant to authors or their legal representatives the exclusive right of making or authorizing translations for a term of ten years from the publication of the original work, always counting from the last day of the year of publication, after which time the translating right falls into the public domain and the translator cannot oppose the translation of the same work by other writers. During this period authorized translations are protected as original works. As regards the reproduction of articles from newspapers and journals, or of extracts from books, the agreement of 1884 was so loosely worded that it afforded a loophole for wholesale appropriation, and it was therefore recast in 1885, to the effect that such reproduction or translation of extracts from periodicals is allowable unless the authors or publishers have expressly forbidden it. A general prohibition at the beginning of each number is sufficient, but this cannot in any case apply to political articles or news articles; and, according to article eight, "as regards the liberty of extracting portions from literary or artistic works for use in publications destined for educational or scientific purposes, or for chrestomathies, the matter is to be decided by the legislation of the different countries of the union," or by special treaties. The stipulations of article two apply to the public representation of dramatic or dramatico-musical works, whether published or not; and to the public performance of musical works unpublished, or, if published, when bearing upon the title-page or at the beginning the author's prohibition of performance; and the authors of such works are, during the existence of their ten years' exclusive right of translation, protected against the unauthorized public representation of translations. According to article ten, adaptations, arrangements of music, etc., are specially included among illicit productions; but it is agreed that in the application of this article "the tribunals of the various countries of the union will, if there is occasion, conform themselves to the provisions of their respective Article eleven provides that for authors of works protected to be considered as such, it will be sufficient that their names be indicated on the work in the accustomed manner; and, as concerns anonymous and pseudonymous works, the publisher is entitled to protect the rights belonging to, and is without other proof reputed to be the legal representative of, the author. The tribunals may, however, require the production of a certificate from the competent authority to the effect that the formalities prescribed by law in the country of origin have been accomplished. Pirated works may be seized upon importation, conformably to the domestic law of each State. The remaining articles, thirteen to twenty-one, relate to the convention of union, and may be briefly summarized as providing that the convention applies to all works in which copyright exists in the country of origin at the moment of its coming into force, which is to be three months after the exchange of ratifications; that it may be submitted to revisions in order to introduce amendments; that it shall not affect the maintenance of existing conventions between the contracting States, provided always that such conventions confer upon authors more extended rights than those granted by the union, or contain stipulations which are not contrary to this convention, and upon the same conditions the countries of the union may enter into special arrangements with each other; that it does not abridge the rights of each country to control or prohibit the circulation of works in regard to which the exercise of such right is found necessary; and that countries which grant by their domestic law the protection of rights secured by this convention, shall be admitted to accede to it on request to that effect, and shall have the right to accede thereto for their colonies or foreign possessions. The final protocol contains some supplementary stipulations in regard to the admission of photographs and choregraphic works to the benefits of the convention; and also an understanding that "the manufacture and sale of instruments for the mechanical reproduction of musical airs which are copyright shall not be considered as constituting an infringement of musical copyright." Finally, the protocol arranges for the establishment of the "Office of the International Union for the protection of Literary and Artistic Works," which is to be placed under the authority of the Swiss Government, the expenses of conducting it to be shared by the contracting States in proper proportion. It will be the duty of this office, the official language of which will be French, to collect all kinds of information relative to the protection of the rights of authors, and arrange and publish it; to study questions of general utility likely to be of interest to the union; and, by the aid of documents placed at its disposal by the different | would be subject to subsequent approval or to administrations, to edit a periodical in the French language treating questions concerning the union. An edition in one or more other languages may be authorized if experience should show this to be requisite.

To the foregoing précis it should be added that the British Parliament has printed as a blue book, under the heading, "Switzerland, No. 1" (1886), the "correspondence respecting the formation of an International Copyright Union." The contents, owing to numerous enclosures, are more varied than the title promises, and possess considerable interest. The correspondence opens with a note from the Consul-General for Switzerland, at London, to Earl Granville, enclosing a circular note from the Swiss Federal Council inviting participation in a diplomatic conference at Berne in 1884, with a view to protecting literary and artistic property. After an exchange of letters between the Foreign Office and the Board of Trade, Mr. Adams, Minister at Berne, was directed to attend the Conference as a British delegate, but in a purely consultative capacity, with no power to vote or to bind his government to accept any views which might be adopted by the Conference. He seems to have given intelligent hearing to the proceedings, and to have become warmly interested in the international union proposed. On September 26th, 1884, he writes:

"The result of this Conference is, in my opinion, that the union will be founded. I cannot, of course, surmise how many Powers will sign the first convention. That France and Germany, Sweden and Switzerland will do so, I can hardly doubt. I am aware that, unfortunately, in the present state of our copyright law, Great Britain is unable as yet to enter into any such union, but I cannot help, with all due deference, urging upon Her Majesty's Government the expediency of taking measures for amending that law. This course, I venture to presume, must ultimately be adopted. Should it not rather be sooner than later?"

On the 9th of May, 1885, in response to a second circular of invitation from the Swiss Government, Mr. Adams was authorized to attend the 1885 Conference, but, as in the preceding year, only in a consultative capacity. In July, however, Mr. F. R. Daldy, on behalf of the Copyright Association, accompanied by Mr. Cotter Morison as a representative of the Incorporated Society of Authors, was allowed an interview with Mr. Bourke (who was one of the Copyright Commissioners in 1875), in order to point out the reasons why great importance was altached to England's being allowed to take part in the discussions, and also in order to submit a memorandum of vital points apparently necessary to secure the efficiency of the convention which, Mr. Daldy thought, would result from these deliberations. The meeting with Messrs. Daldy and Morison evidently produced an effect; and when, August 13th, Mr. West, at Washington, telegraphed, in reply to a question from the Marquis of Salisbury, Earl Granville's successor, that the United States Minister at Berne would be appointed United States delegate to the Conference, Mr. Adams received instructions. August 18th, that he was authorized to attend, with power to take part in the discussions and to vote, but with the understanding that his part in the proceedings would be ad referendum, and that any resolutions arrived at by the Conference tion by his government. In the same letter is instructed to be especially careful to notice d report any views which might be expressed the United States delegate; and, in accordce with these instructions, the report made, ptember 25, by the British delegates says: We have given special attention to the bearing ich the draft convention might have upon any gotiations between Great Britain and the iited States." The report quotes the stateint made by Mr. Winchester as to the position the United States in regard to the question of ernational copyright. This statement, which prefer to give in our own translation, was de by Mr. Winchester in his address before : Conference, September 17. After defining position and functions as the United States egate, he says: "Meanwhile, I believe that I not overstep the limits of my powers in saythat the Government of the United States is 'orably disposed toward the principle that the thor of a literary or artistic work, whatever be nationality and whatever the place of producn, should be everywhere protected upon the ne footing as the citizens or subjects of each tion.''

"In view of this statement," the report conues. " we do not think that there can be any ound for the apprehension which has been exessed in some quarters, that an immediate nendment of English law, with the view to the try of Great Britain into the projected union, ruld have a prejudicial effect in regard to any pyright negotiations with the United States. fact, from the friendly interest in the objects the Conference which has been expressed by e United States delegate, we are justified in iticipating that when once the union has been rmed, and has been acceded to by the more sportant European countries, the United States ill before long feel it difficult to abstain from ecoming a party to it also."

It seems scarcely honest for the Department State to instruct its delegate to say that this overnment believes in the principle that the athor should be protected without regard to his ationality or to the place of production, when Ity years of almost continuous efforts in Conress have failed to result in the first step towrd the practice of such a principle. We might hmost suppose that Mr. Winchester's own sense I right and justice had unconsciously led him to isread his instructions here. And in spite of Ir. Adams's seemingly frank acceptance of the tatement as showing the true position of the Inited States in regard to the question, we could lmost suspect a covert allusion to the truth when e translates the statement to read, "The United tates Government is kindly disposed in principle italics ours toward the proposition that the ethor should be protected," etc.

In concluding their report, the British deleates urge the importance of a complete codifiation and amendment of the copyright law, and wint out that if this were done during the presat session of Parliament it would enable Great dritain to become one of the original signatory flowers of the convention for the creation of an international-Copyright Union, and it is pleasant a note that the last letter contained in the voltime is a communication to the Foreign Office from the Board of Trade, stating that the latter will be prepared to submit to Parliament a bill imbodying the necessary changes in the existing impyright law. In addition to the various letters, this volume contains copies of the original draft conventions of the Berne Conferences of 1884 and 1885, with English translations; copies of the various circular notes from the Swiss Government, with translations; and Mr. Daldy's "Scheme of a bill to consolidate and amend the law relating to copyright." which is set out at length.

LIVING IMITATORS OF DEAD AUTHORS' WORKS.

ACCORDING to a despatch to the Cincinnati Enquirer, "literary scandal has arisen out of the practice, originating with the story papers, of producing novels in the names of authors who have by death or other inability ceased to write. In these cases imitative composers are employed to turn out serials as nearly as possible in the style of the original maker of the name's reputation. Such usage has long been common in the field of 'cheap' fiction, where the putting forth of Harry Hill, Tony Pastor, Paddy Rooney, and various noted scouts and detectives as authors of tales is considered legitimate. But now it transpires that stories are being attributed to the late Hugh Conway, between whose hit with 'Called Back' and sudden death only about a year intervened. A great number of short sketches have been published since, with the explanation that they were his work left in manuscript. It was known that his only labor after Called Back' was on 'Dark Days.' Nevertheless, a long serial, called 'Living or Dead,' has lately appeared with his name as author. The discovery is now made that the real makers are Joseph Williams and his wife, known in London as dramatic writers under the pen names of Comyns Carr and Alice Comyns Carr. They were partners with Conway in turning his novels into dramas. The foundation of 'Living or Dead' is a short sketch by Conway, but the work is otherwise that of the Williamses."

A TRIBUTE TO HENRY STEVENS.

BY G. W. SMALLEY.

From the N. Y. Tribune, April 2.

- "WHAT is your business, Mr. Stevens?"
- "I am a seller of books."
- "Ah! a bookseller."
- "No; a seller of books."

This dialogue, which took place in court between the late Henry Stevens, of Vermont, and a cross-examining counsel, is characteristic enough of the man. He was a seller of books, but he did not choose to be confounded with the generality of booksellers, to whom books are merchandise and nothing more. He was, in his own department, one of the most learned and accurate bibliographers who ever lived. He had no superior. and no equal in London. People who knew him not may easily have been misled as to his real ability by the whimsicalities in which he delighted to indulge. On the title page of the most serious, and certainly the biggest, volume, he ever published—the "Catalogue of the American Books in the Library of the British Museum"—he decribes himself as "Henry Stevens, G.M.B., M.A., F.S.A., etc." The student of the British Museum or elsewhere might puzzle long over these initials before he discovered that G.M.B. stands for Green Mountain Boy. He clung to his birthplace and old home with affectionate tenacity, and habitually signed himself, in print as well as in private, Henry Stevens, of Vermont. That is the name he puts to the delightful little volume, "Who Spoils Our New English Books?"—the last, I think, of his publications; and he adds to it "Bibliographer and Lover of Books." Then follows a list of antiquarian and historical societies in both worlds of which he was member; then, without visible transition or so much as a comma, "Black Balled Athenæum Club of London also Patriarch of Skull and Bones of Yale. . . B. A. and M. A. of Yale College as well as Citizen of Noviomagus et cetera." Noviomagus, after some reflection, I take to be Croydon or some place near Croydon, in England, or perhaps Surbiton, and not one of the many other better known places to which that name was given in earlier days. There is, however, a club of antiquaries called the Noviomagians to which Stevens belonged.

Henry Stevens came to London in 1845 and soon, as he has often said, "drifted" into the British Museum. He retained his connection there as agent for the buying of books till the last; none of his financial misfortunes terminated it. Panizza, who then ruled the Museum in a sense far other than that in which Mr. Bond now does, was his stanch friend. He understood Stevens's value, and he made use of his services in a way for which an American can never quite forgive either of the pair. Bond writes the notice of Stevens in the Athenæum, and says with a touch of pardonable exultation that as the result of Stevens's efforts the British Museum now contains a more extensive library of American books than any single library in the United States. No doubt it does, and the fact is a reproach, not to Stevens, but to Americans in general and to the Congress of the United States in particular.

Henry Stevens, an American to the backbone, would have rejoiced to do for his own country what he did for England. But England employed him to do it and America did not, and it is too late to repair the blunder. No collection of American books equal to that in the British Museum can ever again be got together. time is past. Stevens's Catalogue of this, completed in 1857, is a volume of 600 8vo pages, and includes 20,000 volumes. When he began collecting for the Museum, in 1845, the whole number did not exceed 4000. The other 16,000 are due to him. One of his reasons for printing the catalogue was to show, side by side, as he says, both the richness and the poverty of the collection. He effected his object, and between 1857 and 1862 the number doubled. That is to say, in 1862 the American Department in the British Museum possessed 40,000 volumes; counting only books printed in America, and not counting books, maps, etc., in all languages relating to America, in which the Museum is very rich, nor counting American books reprinted in this country.

And I suppose for much of what we actually have in America concerning our own country we have to thank Henry Stevens. He was the agent of many American collectors, often with authority to buy on his own judgment. His best known general client was perhaps Mr. James Lenox, whose library now one of the chief treasures and ornaments of New York, was formed by Henry Stevens. No man knew so much about early editions of the Bible; no one perhaps so much about early voyages and these essays.

JOURNALISTIC NOTES.

The Voice for April contains an excellent translation of Bürger's familiar poem, "Lenora," by Alfred Ayres, the author of the "Orthoëpist," etc. It strikes us as the best translation ever made of this poem, which is much sought after by public readers.

The Political Science Quarterly, first number, has just appeared with the imprint of Ginn & Co. It contains, among others, essays by Prof. Munroe Smith, on the "Domain of Political Science;" by Prof. Burgess, on "The American Commonwealth;" by F. W. Whitridge, on "Legislative Inquests;" by Prof. R. M. Smith, on "American Labor Statistics."

THE editor of the Forum, Lorettus S. Metcalf, tells a correspondent of the Boston Advertiser that he is already overrun with MSS., although the second number of the periodical has but just appeared. He is of the opinion that before another month has passed he will have articles enough, if they were all accepted, to publish the monthly for two years. Many of them, too, are very good, and not a few by writers of reputation.

LITERARY AND TRADE NOTES.

BLACKIE & Son, Glasgow, have purchased plates of E. S. Brooks's interesting volume, "Historic Boys," and will hereafter supply the English market. This work, we understand, has been unusually successful.

JOHN IRELAND, 1197 Broadway, N. Y., has issued for the Easter season a tasteful folding card. On the outside are printed white lilies on a silver ground; on the inside, on a tinted background, are printed appropriate verses. The verse is by F. T., who is also the designer of the card. A silk cord with tassel is attached to the card, which is protected by a folder and envelope. (Retail price, 60c.)

A GERMAN edition of "Don't" has just been published at Frankfort-on-the-Main. Referring to this edition, the Home Journal says: "It will probably be translated into all the civilized languages, and make the complete circuit of the globe. It is a model of condensed, clear-cut, apt expression, and herein perhaps is the secret of its success, that it compresses the whole code of manners in a practical nutshell."

THE J. B. LIPPINCOTT Co. have in press a work on short-hand by W. H. Barlow, entitled 'Normal Phonography,'' which claims to adapt itself to all styles of reporting; "Marion's Faith," a sequel to "The Colonel's Daughter," by Captain Charles King; a volume of "Consular Reminiscences," prepared by G. H. Horstmann, late United States Consul at Munich, (July, 1869, to December, 1880,) and at Nuremberg, (December, 1880, to April, 1885;) "Daisies of Verse," by Mrs. S. L. Oberholtzer; "An Account of the Transactions and Changes in the Society of Friends and Incidents in the Life and Experience of Joshua Maule," with a sketch of the original doctrine and discipline of Friends, also a brief account of the travels and works in the ministry of Hannah Hall, of Ohio, by Joshua Maule; "Right Life, or, Candid Talks," by Rev. Dr. J. E. Seiss; and a work on the "Diseases of the Mouth, Throat, and Nose," including rhinoscopy and the methods of local treatment, for practitioners and students, by Dr. Philip Schech, translated by R. H. Blaikie, M.D.

NOW READY. VOLUME VI.

OF THE

"VARIORUM EDITION"

SHAKESPEARE'S WORKS.

OTHELLO.

Edited by Horace Howard Furness. Royal 8vo. Superfine Toned Paper. Extra cloth, gilt top. $4.00.

Those acquainted with the previous volumes of the series will know what a fund of information awaits them in the play now just published. The text adopted is that of the First Folio, reprinted with the utmost exactitude, the various readings of all other critical editions being recorded in the notes.

The other volumes of this Edition already published are:

ROMEO AND JULIET.

MACBETH,

HAMLET, 2 Vols.

and KING LEAR.

All Uniform in Binding, Size, and Price.

A New Translation by Mrs. Wister.

A Romance. After the German of Ursula Zöge Von Manteuffel. By the translator of "The Lady with the Rubies," "Vain Forebodings," "Quicksands," etc. 12mo. Extra cloth. $1.25.

It is sufficient for the lover of good novels to know that "Violetta" is translated by Mrs. A. L. Wister. Mrs. Wister selects novels for translation into the English with an educated discrimination, and in the fulness and richness of her English vocabulary has a great advantage over most other American translators of foreign stories; and long familiar city with the taste of average American womanhood enables her now to feel sure of the success of her books. They can always be relied upon for sparkling and witty illustrations of character, agreeable situations, delightful scenery, and dramatic action. The present volume fully maintains her reputation.

The Wreckers. A Social Study.

A Novel. By George Thomas Dowling. 12mo. Extra cloth. $1.25.

"No other similar work, except 'The Breadwinners,' is worthy of being compared with it, but 'The Wrecken' is, in our estimation, far superior to it in thought and moral strength."—Cleveland Leader.
"'The Wreckers: A Social Study, may be put into a class with 'The Breadwinners' and the 'Money-Maken'.
The story is full of dramatic life as well as ingenious, and enchains the attention to the close."—Philadelphia Evening Bulletin.

A Mental Struggle. Authorized Edition.

A Novel. By the "Duchess," author of "Lady Branksmere," "O Tender Dolores," "Phyllis," etc. 16mo. Extra cloth. 75 cents. Paper cover. 25 cents.

Probation and Punishment.

A Rational and Scriptural Exposition of the Doctrine of the Future Punishment of the Wickel as held by the Great Body of Christian Believers of All Ages, with Special Reserence to the Unscriptural Doctrine of a Second Probation. By Rev. S. M. VERNON, D.D., author of "Amusements in the Light of Reason, History, and Revelation," etc. 12mo. Extra cloth.

The subject of this volume has commanded the attention of the thinking world during the last few years as has the other question in theology. The author discusses the matter in all its important phases, proving by very cogent resident that the future proving by very cogent resident that the future proving the future ing that future punishment is not only reconcilable with the love of God, but that it grows out of that love and is a mecessary form of its expression; that it is an essential element in the Divine administration, without which government could not exist; and that it is an indispensable factor in the system of revealed truth. He further argues, in most forcible and convincing manner, that this punishment must be endless in duration, and shows that the doctrine of probation after death, so much discussed of late, is refuted alike by sound reason and by the teachings of revelation.

ST. GREGORY'S GUEST, AND RECENT POEMS.

By John Greenleaf Whittier. 1 vol., 16mo, parchment, $1.00.

Mr. Whittier has here collected the poems he has written since the publication of "The Bay of Seven Islands" in 1353. They are very characteristic poems, and glow with the profound love of freedom, the strong sense of justice, and the tender human sympathies which make Mr. Whittier's poetry at once so noble and so popular.

SIGNS AND SEASONS.

BURROUGHS, author of "Wake Robin," "Fresh Fields," etc., etc. 16mo, gilt top, $1.50. Contents: A Sharp Lookout; A Spray of Pine; Hard Fare; Tragedies of the Nests; A Snow Storm; A Taste of Iaine Birch; Winter Neighbors; A Salt Breeze; Spring Relish; A River View; Bird Enemies; Phases of Farm ife: Roof-Tree.

A delightful book of out-door and domestic life. Whether Mr. Burroughs writes of Nature or of Man, he is sure to rite with originality, the freshness of personal observation, and the cheer of a healthy spirit. His "Signs and Seasons" if therefore be cordially greeted by a host of readers glad to have another book from one who charms so wisely.

CALIFORNIA.

rom the Conquest in 1846 to the Second Vigilance Committee in San Francisco. A Study of American Character. Vol. VII. in series of American Commonwealths. By Josiah Royce, Assistant Professor of Philosophy in Harvard College. With a fine Map. 16mo, gilt top,

This book is a notable addition to the series of American Commonwealths. It contains a full account of the settleent of California, and the organization of its social and political institutions under the peculiar conditions caused by the terregeneous and incongruous character of the people attracted to the country by its gold mines. Dr. Royce is a native ilifornian, acquainted with the State as a citizen, and by the most careful research he has collected in a single volume e curious and remarkably instructive facts which the unique history of California offers.

THE AUTHORSHIP OF SHAKESPEARE.

y NATHANIEL HOLMES. New Edition, greatly enlarged. 2 vols., 12mo, gilt top, $4.00.

Judge Holmes is a firm believer in the theory that Lord Bacon wrote the plays which bear Shakespeare's name. His ork on the subject is unquestionably the fullest and most worthy of attention of all the books ever written to prove this esis.

SEASON OF 1886.

To RETAIL DEALERS:

The Summer Catalogue, issued now for nine years, has been found so useful and profitable by enterprising dealers, that it has become a regular feature of the trade. The tenth issue, in special pamphlet adapted for imprint circulation all through the summer, will be published to connection with The Publishers' Weekly, early in June.

The imprint editions will contain, in addition to a catalogue of guide-books and light literatur for summer reading, an entirely new selection of reading matter both of a practical and entertaining change acter, chiefly intended for the use and amusement of tourists, pleasure-seekers, and visitors of summates resorts.

Booksellers should remember that, while summer is usually a dull time, the sales of light literature, etc., can be pushed to make a successful business even in this season. The classes who travel are of course those who have money to spend, even in dull times, and the summer is the time when very many bookbuyers do the greater part of their reading. The tide of travel this year is likely to set toward home resorts, instead of across sea. Booksellers at or next summer resorts should therefore especially avail themselves of this publication, while city dealers should remember that it will be also useful to tempt stay-at-homes to make investments or the follow up customers otherwise out of reach.

Orders for imprint editions at subscription rates should be sent at once.

Benziger Bros. have just ready "Preparation for Death," being the first volume of the new centenary edition of the works of St. Alphonsus; "Short Papers for the People (Alethaurion)," by Rev. Thomas C. Moore; and Debussi's "Month of May." Their translation of Hunolt's Sermons is being pushed forward and will be ready, as announced, by the 1st of May. "The Way of Salvation and of Perfection," the second volume of St. Alphonsus' works, will be out in a short time, and the third volume is also under way. They have in preparation a translation of the "Life of Ven. Mary Crescentia Höss of the Third Order of St. Francis," and a new (the Fourth) Series of "Golden Sands."

D. APPLETON & Co. will publish on the 28th an entirely new edition of the "Memoirs of General Sherman," which has been thoroughly revised, and contains two new chapters and important appendices. Fifteen maps and several portraits on steel, not given in the first edition, enrich the present issue. The new chapter at the end of the work, entitled "After the War," throws light on recent controversies in regard to President Johnson's purpose in wishing to send General Grant to Mexico. The appendices contain numerous letters from army commanders bearing upon events of the war. On the same day will be issued "Songs and Ballads of the Southern People—1861-'65," collected and edited by Frank Moore; and Octave Feuillet's new novel, "Aliette" (La Morte).

TICKNOR & Co. have just published "Next Door," by Clara Louise Burnham, author of "Dearly Bought," etc., a bright and charming story, the scene of which is laid in the Boston of to-day; "John Bodewin's Testimony," by Mary Hallock Foote, a brilliant piece of work; a new uniform set of the "Life and Works of Mrs. Clemmer," in four handsome volumes, comprising "Poems of Life and Nature," "His Two Wives," "Men, Women, and Things," and a "An American memorial volume entitled Woman's Life and Work," by her husband, Edmund Hudson, containing a portrait. They have also issued a new edition of "A Handbook of Greek and Roman Sculpture," by D. Cady Eaton, which has been revised and enlarged, and issued in a pocketable style, uniform with Ticknor's guide books. It is intended to be of special use to visitors to foreign museums.

BOOKS AND BOOKMEN.—Mr. Andrew Lang writes to The London Athenaum: "I have just received from Mr. Combes, of New York, an example of 'Books and Bookmen,' a little collection of reprinted essays of mine. No proofs reached me, and I see with regret that the provenance of the articles is not stated, by some oversight, probably, of my own. In case any other copies reach this country, it should be said that 'Elzevirs' and 'Japanese Bogy Books' have appeared in Messrs. Cassell's Magazine of Art; 'The Romance of a Bibliophile' in Longman's Magazine; 'Bookmen at Rome' in The Saturday Review; 'Literary Forgeries' in The Contemporary Review; 'Bibliomania in France' in The International Review (since deceased); and 'Parish Registers' in The Guardian."

The rather stereotyped device of a fortune being left a young man on condition of his marrying a wife of his grand-aunt's choosing is the motive. "Major Frank" is the unconventional heroine, bred in barracks, and gaining her nickname from her wild, boyish ways. Holland is the scene of the story, the author deriving a great deal of local color therefrom.

The "mark of Cain" is a small pattern used in tattooing, which is said to correspond with the shart or tribal mark which Jehovah appointed to Cain in the patriarchal story. This mark is seen upon the body of a nobleman's son, who for the sake of inheriting property has sacrificed the life of his friend, and by its means he is most ingeniously brought to justice. Scene laid in London. The inventor of a flying machine figures prominently.

Denmark's Book Production in 1885.—According to the "Aarsberetninger og Meddelelser fra det Store Kgl. Bibliothek," there were published last year in Denmark 1913 volumes, 891 pamphlets, and 243 periodicals and journals. Of the former 178 were translations, 107 of which were issued in the department of belles-lettres—viz., 31 from the German, 31 from the English, 22 from the French, 13 from the Swedish, and 10 from other languages. During 1885 seventeen persons established themselves in Copenhagen and five elsewhere as printers. Altogether there were 220 printing establishments in Denmark.

Not that Kind of a Hen.—The Rev. Dr. Hayden of our city [Cincinnati] published a book on "Lay Effort." This book being called for in one of our large city bookstores, the clerk informed the customer they were out of that book, but could give him something on the same subject, at the same time bringing him a box on "Poultry."—W. AUTHORS AND PUBLISHERS.

THERE is so much confusion as to the real nature of the relations between authors and publishers, that a plain statement of the true basis and of the actual practice in such relations is in order at almost any time. It is a mistake to suppose that these depend upon the terms of a copyright; the Government has no more to do with the relations between author and publisher than between a miller and a baker. lations are in fact simply those between principal and agent, or, where an author sells "outright," between buyer and seller. The "outright" price of a book is purely a matter of bargain, and no general rule applies. The author may reserve the "renewal" for his own benefit, or contract to renew as part of the original bargain. In the case where the publisher acts as agent for the author, the arrangement may be one of several different kinds. Either the author or the publisher may bargain to defray the cost of setting the type or making "plates," in which last case the plates usually remain the property of the party paying for them. An allowance of about ten per cent on the actual manufacturing cost of plates is a fair charge of the publisher for his oversight of them. Either the author or the publisher may bargain to defray the cost of making the edition (paper, press-work, and binding), and of the advertising, usually a large item, and like expenses. The remaining profits may be equally divided, which is the "half profits" system used in England. Or a definite percentage, usually calculated on the retail price (excluding the price of fancy bindings), may be paid the author—usually in America fifteen or twenty per cent when the author pays for the book and takes the risk; ten per cent on general, and five per cent on school and subscription books when the publisher does these. Or the author may arrange to pay the publisher a definite commission of ten or twenty per cent, as selling agent, and take all risk. An author's copyright is reckoned almost invariably not on copies printed, but on copies sold, and accounted for yearly or halfyearly. The "half-profits" system is apt to lead to much misunderstanding as to the actual expenses (e.g., general office expenses of a publisher,) to be deducted before profits are reck- of individual copies at full price.

The does not, as is sometimes naïvely as: the other ninety per cent as profit; t difference between the returns from the public on copies actually sold—averagin two thirds of the "retail price," on author's ten per cent (really thus cent) is reckoned—and the cost of 1 entire edition and of advertising and the book. The author, in any event, turn proportioned to the success of hi its sales are small, the publisher mal if large, the publisher makes a profit proportionately with each extra thou

It is by means of this profit on succes that the publisher is able to take risk books and new authors. It has been : five books, three fail, one covers it fifth must pay a profit to cover the element of risk in the book business very large; if the author complains th cessful book ought not to pay for other cessful books, he can get over the d taking the risk himself, and making co ing terms with a publisher. On a de bound book, it may usually be roughly that the cost is 30 cents, the trade d cents* (covering the bookseller's expe and profit), the author's royalty 10 | of the remaining 30 cents the publis expenses, risk, and profit. On the a nets probably less than the 10 cents thor, and the system is essentially on ble basis. The publisher's larger retu from the fact that he handles more t any one author writes. And it follows that grant to an author of a copyright revenue is in the of a pension for public services, not the recognisf a claim for property." X. Y. Z.

Tribune's answer to Mr. Fox's first commution. The present rejoinder repeats the falus statements and ignores the reply to them. The are certain principles of literary property rmly established by the agreement of jurists the practice of the courts that in any discusof converght we are justified in accepting of copyright we are justified in accepting as beyond dispute. Once more, however, make a categorical answer to Mr. Fox's inies, so far as reply seems worth while.

Does not the statutory limitation of copynt to a term of years imply that the author no absolute property in his published ughts? Answer: No. The absolute property ht in ideas, as a right based upon natural justin ideas, as a right based upon natural justin ideas, as a right based upon natural justin in ideas, as a right based upon natural justin in ideas, as a right based upon natural justin ideas, irrespective of any statute, is recognized by the highest judicial authorities and by the medice of the common-law courts for more than the centuries. The enjoyment of this right, unmitted by the common law, has been limited by the real or supposed interest of the community, the real or supposed interest of the community, the assumed authority to limit the use of other perty—for example, by restricting the power is a testator to dispose of his estate.

Does not the reciprocity clause in Senator ley's bill imply that copyright is not the spition of absolute ownership, but a benevotant? Answer: No; because it is one to recognize a right and another thing to facilities for defending it in a foreign jurisfacilities for defending it in a foreign juri

Does not the very passage of a copyright imply that an author has no absolute property published thoughts such as he has in his nossessions which need no special legislation? Answer: No. The history of copyright legislation proves the contrary. Literary property was protected by the common law for more than two hundred years, without any statute of copyright. The statute was enacted on the petition of the authors themselves as an additional protection, because the remedies against piracy provided by the common law proved ineffectual. But the answers to all these questions were given long ago by authoritative judicial decisions and are not subjects of implication or inference. That the exclusive use and control of his creations belongs to an author by natural right and not by legislative favor is a proposition upon which the authorities are substantially agreed. American declarations are as plain as those of the jurisprudence of England which we have inherited. The State of Massachusetts, which passed a copyright law as early as 1783, placed it on the high ground that " security of the fruits of their study and industry is one of the natural rights of all men, there being no property more peculiarly a man's own than that which is produced by the labor of his mind." Connecticut enacted a copyright law in the same year, declaring it to be "perfectly agreeable to the principles of natural equity and justice that every author should be secured in receiving the profits that may arise from the sale of his works." New York, in framing a statute of copyright in 1786, provided that the act should not affect the common-law right of authors, which, as we have seen, was absolute and unlimited. Henry Clay, in his often-quoted copyright report to the United States Senate, in 1837, said: "We should all be shocked if the law tolerated the least invasion of the rights of property in the case of merchandise; while those which justly belong to the works of authors are exposed to daily violation without the possibility of their invoking the aid of the law."

We wish we could add that Congressmen and other people had always taken this enlightened view of the ethics and history of the question; but some crude ideas of literary property which were really disposed of generations ago seem still to haunt men's minds, and are periodically brought forth as new arguments. Mr. Fox's notion that "the grant to an author of a copyright revenue is in the nature of a pension for public services, not the recognition of a claim for property," is one of them.

SHALL WE CONTINUE TO STEAL.

DR. E. G. HIRSCH, of Chicago, concludes a very vigorous and manly article on International Copyright in the Jewish Reformer as follows:

Justice demands that the Hawley bill do pass. Expediency alone would seem to object to its passage. But is expediency a principle to which a nation should defer, when honor and justice demand an opposite course? The plea is for cheap books. Would the plea for cheap meats, cheap garments, cheap boots, excuse robbing the rightful owners of these things? Literary piracy recoils, however, with dire results upon the nation who commits or tolerates it. The law of divine retribution is visible here as well as elsewhere. The absence of an international copyright precludes the growth of an American national literature. It is no longer a secret that no publishing house will read the manuscript of an unknown American author. It is too gre a venture to compete with the well-known names of Great Britain, to whom no royalty needs be paid.

Demand and supply hold sway over this branch of human work as they rule all other departments. Our national self-consciousness is not awakened in consequence; we think British thoughts: affect British idiosyncrasies; we are interested in British history and society. We remain blind to our own intellectual possibilities; know nothing of the currents which we might sail; fail to perceive the drift of our own social tendings. We become untrue, to our better self, unnatural, and nature will not condone an offence against her holy prerogatives.

It was not always thus. What was called the "courtesy of the trade" did voluntarily supply the protection which the law failed to grant. Under its beneficent working we were given our Bancrofts, our Bryants, our Washington Irvings, and the other representatives of literary America. But "the mouse is not the thief, but the hole is!" The respectable publishing houses were forced to abandon their voluntary system to be just to the foreign author, and the interests of their business by the irrespectable parasites, whom, what the law allowed, no sense of justice and equity forbade doing. And now the Athenaum's sarcastic question, "who reads an American book?" is certainly pertinent in America.

The solicitude of our lawgivers for "cheap" books is mere hypocrisy. It is aptly illustrated by the import duty of twenty-five per cent. ad valorem, levied on books of every kind imported for private use or public sale. Is this less than a tax on education, on scholarship, for the benefit of the same classes who profit by the robbery of foreign authors? The tax on foreign books in foreign languages, and on such books in English as are not likely to be republished here, especially after a just and equitable coyvright law is passed, should go! As things are now, we steal from student and author alike, to enrich a few and rob at the same time America of a literature of its own. Theft is theft! Let us not continue to steal!

ANOTHER CHATTERBOX DECISION.

In the Chatterbox Trade-Mark Case (Dana Estes and Charles E. Lauriat vs. Frank Leslie, the American News Co., and Patrick Farelly) a decision by Judge H. Wheeler, of the U. S. Circuit Court of the Southern District of New York, was filed on the 8th inst. to the effect that " a decree be entered for the orators for an injunction and an account, with costs." The court upholds the plaintiffs in the right to the use of the word "Chatterbox." In referring to the Frank Leslie edition, in which the name Frank Leslie is added and the address of the publishing house is put on, it was the court's opinion that "this appears to be done for the purpose of adding the reputation of Frank Leslie and of and of that publishing house to that of the Chatterbox rather than for that of building up a new reputation under that name. If nothing had been wanted of the popularity which had been acquired under it, and which it stood for, it could have been left and another name taken to build The defendants do not copy the orators' publications, but imitate them and apply the name of the orators' publications to their imitations.'

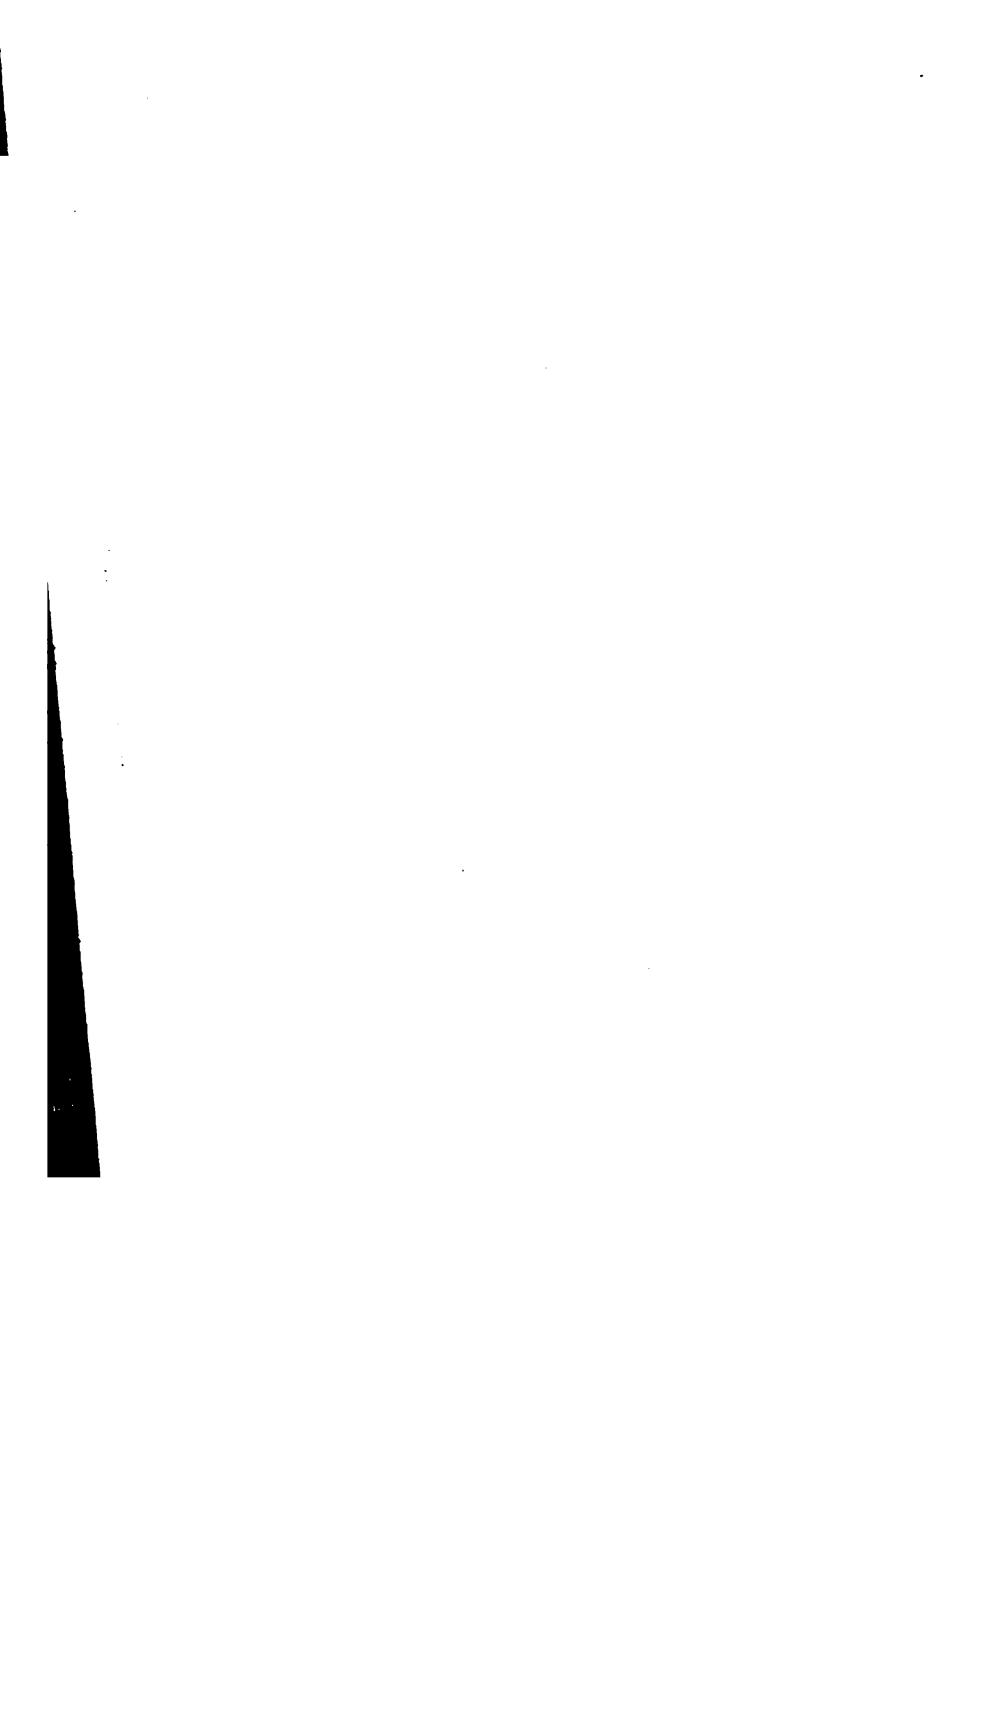

SAMPSON LOW.

By a cable dispatch received by Mr. Matthew Low, of this city, on Friday last, April 16, information was obtained that his father, Mr. Sampson Low, who was the oldest London publisher, had died in that city on the morning of the same day. Mr. Low had long been failing in bealth, and about three years ago had disposed of his business to the present company, who are carrying on the same under the old name, although there is now no one of the family in any way connected with it.

Mr. Sampson Low was born in the neighborhood of Oxford Street, London, on November 18, 1797, and when three years old had the missorium to lose his father, who had been for many years a very successful printer and politisher in Poland Street, Oxford Street, and who had received a patent from King George III. for the printing of Bibles and Prayer-books. Haws also the publisher of the once popular nevels of Mrs. Charlotte Smith. After his father's deal his mother strove to carry on the business, but was unsuccessful, and later married a Mr. William Brough, but after a few years again because widow.

Young Mr. Sampson was thrown on his own resources at ten years of age, and many are 🛍 anecdotes he used to relate about his life as a printer's devil. As a printer's office-bey 🛎 duties called him to deliver proofs at the goat house of Longman, Orme, Rees & Longman His persevering attention to his work attracted the notice of Mr. Thomas Longman, who offerd him an apprenticeship in their house, who Sampson Low faithfully served out his time! seven years and remained some time abstract. In 1819 he left Longman's, and being of a way saving nature, he had acquired quite a little ::: of money, which he invested in a little business at 42 Lamb's Conduit Street, which was size in then the best part of London, near 🛭 Anne's palace. Here, in 1822, he which circulating library, and after a short time a a reading-room, which was always and as with the latest and best newspapers and gi icals. Low's library soon became the res many men of note as well as of the riging a ation, among whom may be massisped if min D'Israeli, Samuel Warren, Charles 200 Lord Macaulay, Bulwer-Lytron, Sir RK Bethell, and many others. In 1890; pointed by the London publishers to enablish a conduct the Publishers' Circules, which after became his own property, and which was associated as owner and editor will sel a period of about forty-six years. time Mr. Low was indefatigable in his graphical work. He himself compiled the many news catalogues of books published in the United Kingdom, out of which grew the larger "English Catalogues," that will be a monument to the memory of Sampson Low for all time. It is said that, as near as can be estimated by way of alphabets, indexes, and cross-references, in the course of his long period of work, not less than a million of titles must have been written out and arranged by his own hand; for, as is the case with all conscientious bibliographers, no one else could be intrusted with the work—not even the smallest detail.

It was while he was at Lamb's Conduit Street, in 1847, that Mr. Low first made the acquaintance of the late Mr. Fletcher Harper, and was appointed English literary agent for Harper & Bros. As the writer of the obituary sketch of Mr. Low in Harper's Weekly says: "From that period until now it is not too much to say that the interests of Messrs. Harper & Bro. in England have been absolutely identified with his own. The annual visits of one or the other of the brothers Harper with their families were always to him occasions of the greatest pleasure. He always worked for them with a degree of earpestness, single-mindedness, activity, and intelligence which has perhaps been rarely seen in a business agent, and which was always pleasantly and warmly recognized by the brothers Harper and their descendants."

But Mr. Low made himself famous and exteemed outside of his profession. With the aid of his oldest son, Mr. Low, in 1838, estabushed the Royal Society for the Protection of like from Fire, which extended its operations apidly, until it employed one hundred men equipped with the necessary life-saving machi-Many, when they were turned over to the Board of Works. Mr. Low took a personal interest in the growth and work of this society, often going about at night to see that the men were attending to their duties properly; and his vigilance resulted in the saving of many lives. He also established a number of day and Sunday-schools for the children of the poor, and his heart was never closed to the appeals of the worthy poor.

When the aristocracy and gentry of the neighborhood of Lamb's Conduit Street moved "westward," Mr. Low sold out his library and established himself with his eldest son in Fleet Street at No. 54 Later they moved their business to No. 169 in the same street, but, owing to the city improvements, afterward (in 1852) removed to 47 Ludgate Street, where it remained until the Dover and Chatham Bridge was built, which caused the demolition of the building. Finally the business was moved to its present palatial structure, 188 Fleet Street. In 1856 Mr. E. Marston, who had entered the Lamb's Conduit house ten years before as assistant, was admitted to partnership.

Mr. Low may well be said to have been the architect of his own fortune. He has left a splendid private library and a large personal property. In 1820 he married a farmer's daughwas his mainstay and helpful partner Sixty-one years, and who died on the May, 1881, having borne him ten chilof whom died in infancy and three ince 1871. There are now three children surin parents—one son and two daughters. Mr. and Mrs. Low celebrated their edding, to which all the literary people dondon were invited.

DEMOCRACY IN ENGLISH PUBLISHING.

G. W. Smalley, in N. Y. Tribune, March 29.

DEMOCRACY is getting a foothold in English literature as well as in English politics. English publisher, most conservative of English human beings, has at last woke to the fact that there is a reading public in this country which will neither pay him eighteen shillings a volume for his wares, nor Mudie a guinea a year for the privilege of being supplied with a greasy book to be selected by Mudie's clerk. An attempt at cheap issues was made some time ago. Messrs. Smith & Elder, Messrs. Macmillan, and other leading houses printed some excellent authors in six-penny broadsides; big double-columned pamphlets, not pleasant to read and about as likely to be preserved as yesterday's newspaper. Very large editions of these were sold. The experiment was said to be profitable, but has been discontinued.

A new departure has now been made. Messrs. Cassell & Co. took the lead with a National Library. Messrs. Routledge & Sons., enlarging their horizon, follow with a World Library. Each series is at the price of threepence (six cents) a volume, or sixpence if you like it bound in cloth. They are fairly well printed, and the cloth volumes can be kept without imminent risk of being used to light the kitchen fire. The vice-chancellor of the University of Oxford goes so far as to say that Messrs. Cassell's books are beautifully printed. Of extraordinary cheapness, as he adds, they certainly are. I have never seen one of your New York ten cent books; most of which, I apprehend, are excluded from circulation in this country. The English copyright law shows a certain jealousy of free literature when it is so free that the author's rights are not taken into account. But I believe the ten cent volumes are in paper covers, so that the English at six cents seem cheaper than the American.

Messrs. Cassell have launched their new venture under what is here called distinguished patronage. A number of most eminent persons have written letters in praise of their threepenny The Queen is one. Sir Henry Ponsonby is commanded by Her Majesty to thank Messrs. Cassell for those they have sent. "The Queen was much pleased with this selection of books published at so small a price." Mr. Gladstone was easily drawn. I think I quoted the contents of his post card in a former letter. A fac-simile of it now appears as an advertisement, and a very good advertisement it is. Mr. Gladstone's victorious antagonist, Prof. Huxley, a man much less prone to rush into print, appears not less strongly: "Your proposal to bring out the gems of English literature in a very cheap and at the same time good form appears to me in every way commendable." And there are half a dozen others, including Mr. Henry Irving.

The editor of Messrs. Cassell's library is Prof. Henry Morley, a man very competent for the work, widely known as a student of English literature, of which he is Professor at University and Queen's Colleges, London; long practised in the business of editing, he has written much and learnedly on his subject, and his name is a guarantee that this series, though cheap, shall not be nasty. The selections are from a wide Macaulay's essay on Warren Hasting was the first. Prof. Morley being undeterred the fact that Lord Wolseley classes it as fic and that Sir James Stephen, whose judgment is a weighty one, does not much differ from Lord Wolseley. National though the library be, it is not limited to English writers. "My Ten Years' Imprisonment," by Silvio Pellico, came next, and soon after the ever-admirable autobiography of Benjamin Franklin, a book singularly little known in England. Plutarch is another foreigner who has been laid under contribution. Bishop Latimer's "Sermons on the Card" in the same list with Lord Byron's "Childe Harold" show how various are the tastes which this collection is meant to suit.

BOOK ADVERTISEMENTS OF THE FIFTEENTH CENTURY.

From the London Publishers' Circular.

Not every one may be disposed to admit the permanent value or interest of advertisements. At the present day advertising is carried on so extensively and persistently in all branches of trade and commerce, and even in the interest of science and art, that one feels at times almost nauseated with it. Nevertheless, a little consideration of the subject will show that contemporary advertisements throw no little light on the tastes, amusements, requirements, and public opinion of the age.

Of all trade advertisements, there are perhaps none more generally and permanently interesting and instructive than those of "The Trade." as it is still proudly called by its members. course we mean the book trade. For instance, if we turn over the advertisement sheets of magazines and other serial publications of half a century ago, we find very many announcements of books by celebrated authors which never saw the light, or else did so under some other title. The earlier numbers of Bentley's Miscellany, for example, contained month after month an announcement of a new work by "Boz." "Gabriel Vardon: a romance, by Charles Dickens. In 3 vols., post 8 vo." Of course every reader of Dickens knows that this romance afterward appeared in "Master Humphrey's Clock," under the title of "Barnaby Rudge." That such advertisements have an interest for literary students may be assumed when we learn that it is proposed to publish an account of all the contemplated, but never completed, works of Thackeray.

Herr Wilhelm Meyer, of Speyer, who has been making researches in the Library at Munich, with a view to elucidating the early history of the art of printing and of the book trade, has published some of the results of his inquiries in a pamphlet: "Bücheranzeigen des 15. Jahrhunderts. Leipzig: Otto Harrassowitz." He has arranged typical specimens of his discoveries in chronological order, so as to reflect as it were the history of the book trade; but in some instances, as Herr Meyer points out, they stand in need of a more exhaustive examination than has as yet been devoted to them.

The necessity for advertising speedily made itself felt by the book-printer, who could not expose his valuable productions in unglazed shopfronts to the weather, or careless or wilful injury by wayfarers; neither did it beseem his grave profession (for such the intelligent selling of books was and should be considered) to shout his wares in the street as other traders did.

Those endless cries of "What d'ye lack?"

and "What'll ye buy?" must have sounded as discordantly on the ears of quiet vendors and purchasers in the orderly bookshops then as the cries of the newsvendors in London town nowadays.

Then, too, the book-printer sent his books to far-off cities. Those tall folios, now so much prized, are weighty, and it did not need many of them to fill a fifteenth-century wagon. Arrived at the town where he hoped to sell his wares, the printer or his trusted agent alighted at an inn or at the house of some friend and unloaded his precious freight. As soon as he was settled in his quarters he circulated through the town the advertisement of his books, which consisted of a list of them, with such notes or remarks as he deemed needful; but printed on one side only, like a handbill, so that it could be pasted against a wall or gate-post, or stuck inside a book, or he could, if so minded, write an invoice on the reverse side. Herr Meyer has found some of these advertisements with the printed sides pasted into books, and writing on the side which was once blank.

In those early days, as now, important works just completed were often announced in separate advertisements. This was perhaps done in order to draw the special attention of the public to the book and its printer, and prevent the sale being forestalled by some quick and cunning pirate who might produce a reprint before the bookbuyers in distant cities had heard of the original edition. But generally the book-printer or his agent carried with him more than one book, and advertised them all in one list as described.

The book-printers congregating in a few large cities, and having to rely for the sale of their wares on their wandering agents, did not find the results sufficiently remunerative when compared with the competition of their fellow-printers in the same town. So many failed in business, and other printers bought their "remains ders" at a cheap price. In this, as in other tradmatters, we see that "There is nothing new under the sun," and thus was, after a while, brought about the beginning of the book trade.

As a specimen of Low German book advertisements of the fifteenth century, the following [translation] is a fair example:

"Herewith all are invited to buy the undermentioned book in Low German. If any have a mind to buy this undermentioned book, or other similar books, may come to the tavern mentioned below, and he shall find a gentle seller. Item. The Bible with the figures of the Old and New Testament."

Renewing Faded Inks. — A valuable discovery has been made, whereby the faded ink on old parchments may be so restored as to reader the writing perfectly legible. The process consists in moistening the paper with water and then passing over the lines in writing a brush, which has been wet in a solution of sulphide of ammonia. The writing will immediately appear quite dark in color, and this color, in the case of parchment, it will preserve. Records which were treated in this way in the Germanic Museum in Nuremburg, ten years ago, are still in the same condition as immediately after the application of the process. On paper, however, the color gradually fades again; but it may be restored at pleasure by the application of the salphide. The explanation of the action of this stance is very simple; the iron which enters into the composition of the ink is transformed by the I reaction into the black sulphide.

A SWEDISH BOOKSELLERS' CLUB.

From the London Publishers' Circular.

THE Nieuwsblad voor den Boekhandel notices a pamphlet of some interest, giving an account of the celebration of the seventy-fifth anniversary of the foundation of "Het Boekverkoopers College at Groningen," in the Netherlands. It is remarkable that, although the sale of manuscript books in the province and town of Groningen had always been very considerable, there is no record of the sale of printed books there before 1536, and the first printing press was set up in the town of Groningen by Gerard Ketell so late as 1601 or 1602. The word college, in the sense in which it is used by the Groningen booksellers, means club or meeting. Already in the year 1724 a sort of club was established for the discussion of matters interesting to the trade and the consideration in common of publishing projects, for in those days most publications were what were called share books, several firms uniting together to share the risk of loss. This club, called "Het Smoor" (The Stew), was held every Saturday evening in a well-known coffeehouse called "Het Hachje" (The Scamp), where the booksellers supped and drank beer, and The "Smoor" smoked and talked business. lasted until 1810, in which year it amalgamated with another similar institution, " Tot Vermaak en Voordeel" (Pleasure and Profit) which had started into existence three years earlier.

"Het Boekverkoopers College binnen Groningen" was founded through the exertions of Heeren W. Wouters, M. van Heyningen Bosch, and R. J. Scheerbeck, the venerable author of the little pamphlet in question. The College seems to have done, and to be likely still to do, good work for the trade, having a sick fund of tooo florins (say $2500), and an invalid and pension fund of 10,000 florins (about $4250), and reflects great credit upon our confrères in the Netherlands.

PIG SKINS FOR BOOKBINDING.

From the London Bookseller.

AT one time, we believe, before morocco came into general use, pig skins were largely employed for bookbinding. One reason why they tell into disuse, probably, was their cost, but this, at least, is no longer an impediment. Pig skins are tanned by an old-fashioned and somewhat tedious process, but it has the advantage of turning them into a leather of extraordinary toughness and durability, which is all but impervious to atmospheric influences. We lately received through Messrs. John Deed & Sons some specimens of pig skins, or, as they are named by the tanners, hog skins, specially manufactared by Messrs. John Muir & Sons, of Beith, for the use of bookbinders. They are in a variety of shades, and are worked up into a very beautiful grain, something like a large grain morocco in appearance. Their cost, we are informed, is a little below that of calf, so that they fall quite within the limits of expense as materials for bookbinding. Appearances are greatly in their favor, and whether for library bindings where strength and durability are the prime considerations or for fine bindings, Messrs. Muir's hog skins seem equally well adapted. also occurs to us that hog skins would be very serviceable for account book bindings, particularly for hot climates. In India and elsewhere, hog skins have long been preferred to other leathers for certain purposes, on account of their lasting qualities, and similar considerations may be expected to operate in their favor for bookbinding. One curiosity of hog skin is its resemblance to human skin; after being tanned the one can scarcely be distinguished from the other.

COMMUNICATIONS.

A STRUGGLE WITH A BUTCHER.

Los Angeles, Cal., April 1, 1886.

To the Editor of the Publishers' Weekly.

SIR: We have been reading with considerable interest the correspondence in the columns of the Weekly concerning discounts, the troubles of the book-trade, etc. While engaged in the peaceful perusal of the above-mentioned items, we have had a book war sprung upon us. Last Saturday a "Publishers' Book Sale," which we have every reason to believe to be a Belford Clarke enterprise, opened its doors, and announced to our angel world that for two weeks only they would sell books at less than New York jobbers' rates. On Monday we replied to the Publishers' Book Sale by advertising in all the city papers "Our Special Book Sale," cutting our prices lower than those of the butcher in every instance. The result is we are having a boom in books, and the backbone of the Chicago enterprise is broken. Our idea of fighting a book butcher is to cut under, and turn butcher also.

STOLL & THAYER.

" REFORM IN BOOKSELLING."

SPRINGFIELD, MASS., April 6, 1886.

To the Editor of the Publishers' Weekly.

To those who are talking about a reduction in the retail price of books and a uniform discount of twenty per cent to the trade, I would say that with the risk upon book stock no man in the trade can afford to carry a stock of miscellaneous books and get but twenty per cent discount, whether he be in New York or Springfield. I have a large stock of books, and give the north side of my store and considerable of the centre to them; stationery to the south side and entire basement; art and artists' materials in a store in the rear, as well as in the galleries. My book department, I am sure, with the least expense in running it, pays me the least upon the amount invested. I shall keep separate accounts with each department from July next. What I would recommend in the sale of books of every kind is that publishers make a uniform discount to jobbers of forty per cent on monthly purchases of less than $500, and forty and five per cent when purchases exceed that amount. Publishers and jobbers one third, and five per cent off to retailers on single purchases of $100 and over, and on all purchases of less than $100 at a time one third off.

Publishers, jobbers, and retailers, twenty-five per cent to libraries, when run by a city or town, and twenty per cent when for circulating libraries of a private or merely club or neighborhood enterprise. To all others—ministers, lawyers, and teachers included—whether for immediate reading of new publications or for the purchase of standard works for their own home libraries, or for presents, under $10 net, $10 and under $25 the retail price less ten per cent, $25 a over twenty per cent. Were it possible to be this about, and to have some forieit in contains.

were not, and have all transportation paid for by the party buying, boxes and packing free, I am sure that there would be more of a disposition to handle books as all publishers and book-loving people would like to see them handled. Publishers should also rebate to those buying from them direct, whether it be the jobber or retailer, on all publications not sold by the jobber or by the retailer, either direct or through the jobber, at a time when for any reason it seemed desirable to so reduce any publication. All orders from parties wanting miscellaneous publications direct should be turned over to the bookseller in the town or city from which the order came. Dennison & Co. rebate on tags; Henry Bainbridge & Co. often send me an order for something in the stationery line, and for some consumer here or near here, who first sent to them direct. Were these things done by publishers, there would be some considerable inducements to carry a stock, push the trade, and make a healthier state of things throughout. Yours truly,

NOTES ON AUTHORS.

James D. Gill.

OUIDA has written a new story of English society entitled "A House Party."

Miss Broughton's new novel, "Peggy and Prue," will not appear until fail. The title selected by the author has been changed, at the request of the publisher, to "Doctor Cupid."

MR. WALTER PATER, says the Athenaum, "is at work upon a new romance of the past. This time the scene will be laid in the sixteenth century and in France; but the work will not be finished for some time."

THE Emperor and Empress of Japan have through His Excellency, R. Kuki, their Minister at Washington, expressed their thanks to Mr. Edward Greey, for his last Japanese book, "A Captive of Love." This work is being translated into German by Prof. A. Hensel, of Königsberg, Prussia.

"GIRLS WHO BECAME FAMOUS," by Sarah K. Bolton, a companion book to "Poor Boys who Became Famous," will be issued by T. Y. Crowell & Co. in early fall. It will contain twenty sketches of leading women of America and Europe, such as Jean Ingelow, Lady Brassey, Baroness Burdett-Coutts, George Eliot, Miss Alcott, Margaret Fuller, and others.

From a letter written to a friend by Mrs. Lew Wallace, it appears that the General was seven years in writing "Ben Hur," and that his most difficult problem was to give details of battle, love-making, social life, and adventure, while keeping the Christ-child in the mind of the reader as the central figure. Translations of it have been made into German and Turkish.

JOURNALISTIC NOTES.

THE May Century will contain the last paper written by General McClellan for publication. It is a description of the critical time from the second battle of Bull Run to the advance from Washington toward South Mountain and Antietam. On the morning after General McClellan's sudden death the manuscript pages of this unfinished article were found on his table. General McClellan's literary executor. Mr. William C. Prime, furnishes an introduction.

NEW YORK CITY.—A. D. F. Randolph & Co. will move, about the 1st of May, to 38 West Twenty-third St., next door to Stern's.

New York City.—J. S. Ogilvie & Co., 31 Rose St., have issued a circular announcing that the business heretofore conducted by George W. Ogilvie, at Chicago, has been removed to New York, and that Mr. George W. Ogilvie will hereafter be associated with them. All of his publications will hereafter be issued by J. S. Ogilvie & Co.

NEW YORK CITY.—It is now officially asnounced that John R. Anderson has sold his interest in the business of the Anderson School Book Co. to his associate, H. T. Clauder, who will continue the business under the old first name in the new and enlarged headquarters at Nos. 66 and 68 Duane St. Mr. Clauder has the best wishes of the whole trade, PETERSBURG, VA.—W. L. Zimmer & Co., booksellers and stationers, have dissolved put nership.

PHILADELPHIA.—We learn from the Stationers' Board of Trade that Mr. W. Ernst, who, on the death of Mr. F. S. Simpson, was appointed auditor of the estate of E. Claxton & Co., 🐸 closed the audits and is now at work on his 🗠 port. It is uncertain when he will be able to finish, but it may be expected before long. The delay in adjusting the matters in this case absolutely unavoidable, owing partly to Mr. Simpson's illness and death, and partly to the lengthy examinations and consideration that 🜬 to be given to a number of cases as well at in other complications. The dividend, it is # pected, will be in the neighborhood of fifteen par cent, but nothing can be said definitely, became the auditor has not yet reached that point.

ROME, GA.-L. V. Brazes, bookseller a spentioner, B. F. Clark & Co., stationers, and

F. Shanklin, printer, have been damaged by the recent floods.

St. Louis, Mo.—The old "Phœnix Book Store," which a year ago was incorporated as the Phœnix Book and Stationery Company of St. Louis, we understand has been prospering, and expects to do, in connection with its retail, a jobbing business.

St. Paul, Minn.—Gustav Hinstorff announces that he is about to establish a German book and stationery store at 377 Wabasha St.

Union City, Tenn.—R. S. Littleton, book-seller, has sold out.

VERMILLION, DAK.—Bridgman & Lotze, book-sellers and stationers, have dissolved partnership.

Worcester, Mass.—John C. Cutter & Co., booksellers and stationers, have dissolved partnership.

LITERARY AND TRADE NOTES.

GINN & Co. will publish in May, in their excellent series of Classics for Children, Johnson's "Rasselas" and Lamb's "Adventures of Ulysses," with notes for schools.

THE NEW CHURCH BOARD OF PUBLICATION, N. Y., announce the first English version of Swedenborg's "De Anima," translated from Dr. Tafel's Latin edition, published at Tubingen in 1849.

J. H. VAIL & Co. have just issued Dr. Samuel Sexton's essay on "Catarrh Considered especially in Reference to its Effects upon the Ear," which was first published in the Medical Record.

ROBERT CARTER & BROS. have in press a new volume, by C. H. Spurgeon, entitled "Storm Signals," a collection of sermons preached on Sunday and Thursday evenings at the Metropolitan Tabernacle, London.

THE Rev. G. T. Dowling's novel, "The Wreckers," met, so says the Cleveland Plain Dealer, with a very flattering reception at his native city, Cleveland. In less than a week's time the booksellers there had to double and treble their originally liberal orders.

HYDE & Co., 48 Broad St., N. Y., are general agents for an "automatic postage-stamp sticker," which will prove a boon to those who have large mails to attend to. The contrivance may be "set for" 300 stamps, and will adjust hem all to the envelope without refilling or handling.

CHARLES SCRIBNER'S SONS accomplished a apid piece of bookmaking in getting out Anirew Lang's new story, "The Mark of Cain." The advance sheets were received from England on Tuesday, April 13; on Thursday the book had been set up, plates made, and a very large edition printed and bound.

MR. JAMES R. OSGOOD will sail for London by the City of Rome on the 28th, to assume the position of English representative of Harper & Bros. Mr. Osgood's friends tendered him a complimentary dinner at Parker's, in Boston, on the 16th. We are sure the whole trade joins us in best wishes for his safe arrival on the other side.

THE JOHN BURNS BOOK COMPANY, St. Louis,

Ma, has purchased the large line of miscellaneand subscription stock of books, albums, and les: also the books, tracts, and plates of the John Burns Publishing Co., which was held as collateral by their bankers. They have just issued a new edition of the Burns' Church Record.

CRAIG & BARLOW, Chicago, the publishers of Father Chiniquy's books, announce new editions of "Fifty Years in the Church of Rome," and "The Priest, the Woman, and the Confessional," to be ready June 1. The plates of the first book have twice been burned, and the total destruction by fire of their establishment consumed a large number of the third edition ready for subscribers.

LITTLE, BROWN & Co. have just ready a work on "The Law Pertaining to the Sale of Personal Property as contained in the Statutes of Massachusetts," in which are given the decisions of the Massachusetts Supreme Judicial Court, and the statutes of the United States, with references on many points to cases decided in other jurisdictions, and a bibliographical note by Edward P. Usher.

"Lovers of light, humorous verse and vers de société will learn with pleasure," says the Philadelphia Evening Bulletin, "that the author of the various poems which have appeared from time to time in Life, Puck, The Judge, and in several of the Philadelphia and New York dailies, over the initials 'C. H. L.,' has collected and will shortly publish a little volume which will contain his best work in this vein. The title of the book, which is unique and attractive, will be withheld until secured by copyright."

THE WRITERS' PUBLISHING Co., 25 University Place, N. Y., have issued a chart of temperance and physiology entitled "The Road to Ruin and How to Avoid it." It is 22x34 in size, and paints the vice of intemperance in such horrible colors that must at once convince the reader that "abstinence is the best policy." Due attention is also given to the economic side of the question, tables being given that show at a glance that intemperance does not pay in any sense of the word. The price, half mounted, is $1; full mounted, $1.50.

THE BOWEN-MERRILL Co., Indianapolis, Ind., are agents for the "Automatic Mucilage Pencil," an ingenious contrivance designed to overcome the more common evils attending the use of mucilage and to combine in one article a practicable fountain and brush of convenient size and simple construction. It consists of a tube for holding the gum; a sponge at one end for applying it; a rubber bulb at the other end, which serves both to confine the mucilage and to force it through the sponge; and finally, a cap to protect the sponge from air.

F. PARKMAN writes to the N. Y. Evening Post that "the National Library of Paris has lately received a curious acquisition in a manuscript work entitled 'Voyage au Canada dans le Nord de l'Amérique Septentrionale fait depuis l'an 1751 à 1761, par T. C. B.' The author, when very young and at his wits' end for a living, took an opportunity which was offered him of going to Canada, and there enlisted in the troupes de la marine, which composed the standing military force of the colony." His account, though of not much historical value, is said to be interesting and curious, and will no doubt be published.

G. P. PUTNAM'S SONS expect to issue this is a new book for young people, by E. S. Brook It will be entitled "Chivalric Days and You ful Deeds," and will contain among others the charming article on the "Cloth of the Field of Gold," and the "Little Lord of the Manor," both of which attracted considerable attention on their appearance in the St. Nicholas Magazine. Mr. Brooks is preparing a number of new chapters for this volume, all of which will be pervaded by the same noble and chivalric spirit as the two already known to the public. It may not be generally known that these sketches call for the most laborious research and study on the part of their author.

D. C. HEATH & Co. have just ready a work entitled "Habit and its Importance in Education," by Dr. Paul Radestock, with an introduction by G. Stanley Hall, of Johns Hopkins University, which illustrates in a fascinating manner the training of the human soul, from the first dawn of the intellect and will to the full glory of manly and womanly hearts and minds; "Systems of Education," by John Gill, Normal College, Cheltenham, England, embodying the history and criticism of the principles, methods, organization, and moral discipline advocated by eminent educationists; also, "A Short Manual of Chemical Arithmetic, with a System of Elementary Qualitative Analysis," by J. Milnor Coit, Ph.D., of St. Paul's School, Concord, N. H., a work designed as a companion for any descriptive or general chemistry.

MR. WALTER SCOTT, London, has in press: new poem of considerable length by Mis-Mathilde Blind. "The writer's aim," says the Academy, "has been to give a realistic account o the tragic incidents which occurred during the eviction of the Highlanders from certain district early in the present century. Some of the fact were made known to her by still surviving witnesses." The book will be published early in May, probably under the title "The Crofters."

"THE late Colonel Burnaby's political novel, which is to be issued next month by Messrs. Bentley," says the Pall Mall Gazette, " is to be called 'Passion and Politics.' The time of the action is cast in the dim and distant futuresay, about ten years hence—and treats fully of the Irish problem, and other social matters. A strong element of interest runs through the love scenes, while another feature—likely to be the most popular—is the very free and merciless manner in which Ministers and other public men-immediately recognizable under their thin disguises—are introduced. The book is written in the colonel's well-known incisive style, and the interest is well sustained. It will be prefaced by a biographical sketch written by his late private secretary, Mr. Percival Hughes, and many interesting letters will be included.''

NOTES IN SEASON.

THE BOSTON SCHOOL SUPPLY Co. announce a upplementary geographical reading book by G. i. Chisholm, entitled "Animal Life on the flobe."

JAMES H. EARLE, Boston, has in press "Bible studies from Nature," by Rev. Dr. J. D. Smith, of Saratoga, N. Y.; also "Thought Etchings," by Rev. James Scott.

THOS. Y. CROWELL & Co. announce for mmediate publication "Tolstor Souvenirs," pmprising "Infancy," "Adolescence," and 'Youth," in one volume, translated from the Russian by Miss Isabel Hapgood.

CHARLES SCRIBNER'S Sons will issue shortly, possibly before the 10th, H. C. Bunner's new story of New York life, which is to be entitled 'The Midge;' Lieutenant Qualtrough's timely sook, "Manual for Boat-sailers," giving explicit strections for every contingency that may happen while sailing a boat; and a new edition, in new soth binding, of Mrs. Frances H. Burnett's sovels, including her "Fair Barbarian."

SCRIBNER & WELFORD have just issued an minently practical treatise on "Whist," giving description of modern whist, with the laws of the game, by Clement Davies, who, according to the London Academy, is "a successful player, and a sound and clear teacher;" also, "The True History of the Life and Work of William Shakespeare," by F. G. Fleay, one of the most important works on the subject recently published.

BAKER & TAYLOR will publish May 19" Socialism and Christianity," by Rev. Dr. A. J. F. Behrends. This claims to be "a work treating from a new point of view the problems raised by the most frequently advanced social theories of the day, their relations to the reciprocal duties of labor and capital, and the position of the Christian Church with reference to the social and industrial movements that are taking place about it."

ROBERTS BROS. are preparing to issue a new series of novels under the general title of The Old Colony Series, which is to comprise romances illustrating early life in the American colonies. The first volume, which will appear in May, is entitled "Constance of Acadia," and is spoken of as vigorous and spirited, full of color, and outlined with rare dramatic skill. The volumes will all be published anonymously. It is expected that this series will reveal a field of romance as yet untrodden by the novelist of our day.

CHARLES C. SOULE, Boston, has now ready a most important work, entitled "American Statute Law: an Analytical and Compared Digest of the Constitutions and Civil Public Statutes of all the States and Territories, Relating to Persons and Property, in Force January 1, 1886," by Frederic J. Stimson, who may be better known to the general reading public as "J. S. of Dale," the author of "Guerndale." Though a book of laws, this is not a "law book" in the general sense, but comes within the scope of a general library, and is as valuable to a merchant or manufacturer as to a lawyer.

LITTLE, BROWN & Co. have just ready a new volume of the Badminton Library, entitled "Racing and Steeplechasing." The chapters on racing are by the Earl of Suffolk and Berkshire and Mr. W. G. Craven, with a contribution by the Hon. F. Lawley. The part on steeplechasing is by Arthur Coventry and Alfred E. T. Watson. The volume is illustrated by fifty-seven wood engravings from designs by J. Sturgess. The New York World, in an advance notice of the work, speaks of it as "by long odds the best book on both subjects that has yet appeared; for while it is thoroughly entertaining, it is so complete with technical instruction that it should not only be read by all racing officials, but also by trainers and jockeys."

BUSINESS NOTES.

MASSILLON O. — The partnership existing under the name of Skinner Brothers—Charles G. Skinner and J. V. R. Skinner—was dissolved Saturday, April 17. The business will be continued under the management and name of J. V. R. Skinner.

New York City.—F. W. Christern has removed to No. 39 W. 23d Street, the store formerly occupied by Messrs. Dutton. This gives Mr. Christern a larger and in some respects a much handsomer store than the one he has occupied a door below for the past five years.

SPRINGFIELD, O.-J. D. Hartney, booksel' and stationer, has sold out.

In this volume we come to the most romantic epoch of California's history prior to the great gold discovery. Continuing the history of California from 1836, the doings of foreigners, American occupation, the Graham affair, the coming of Sutter and the establishment of New Helvetia are all fascinating subjects treated in a new light. Not less important is the record of the successive overland immigrant parties, beginning with the Bartleson, or Bidwell party in 1841, and including the companies of Workman and Rowland in the same year; of Hastings, Chiles, and Walker in 1843; of Fremont, Kelsey, and Stevens or Murphy in 1844; and of McMahon and Clyman, Swasey and Todd, Sublette, Grigsby, and Ide, Fremont and Walker and Hastings and Sample in 1845. Com. Jones's achieveer, and Hastings and Semple in 1845. Com. Jones's achievements in 1842 are given, and an account of the Russians who left California in 1841. The Hudson's Bay Co. branch at San Francisco, from 1841, is fully noted, with a record of the fur-hunters' operations in the interior, and of the trading caravans from New Mexica. The political record is of deep interest. General Vallejo's controversy with Governor Alvarado; the downfall of the latter; the accession of Micheltorena with his army of Cholo ruffians; the revolution by which he was overthrown, with the part, more dramatic than bloody, taken by foreigners in that movement; and finally, the beginnings of Pio Pico's rule, all furnish material for several chapters of interesting complications. Two chapters are devoted to local annals of the north and south in 1841-45; and finally, we have an alphabetical continuation of the Pioneer Register and Index from J to Q, with a veritable mine of biographic detail. This volume, like those preceding, is founded very largely |

Burnham, Clara Louise. Next door. Bost., Ticknor & Co., 1886. 371 p. D. cl., $1.50.

"No gentleman" and "A sane lunatic" achieved more than ordinary success. That their author has written a new novel, and one just as bright and clever, may be discovered in reading "Next door." By an odd chain of circumstances, the characters in the story find themselves living in adjoining houses in a modest street of Boston. In one house is a party of bachelors, whose comfort is looked after by "Aunt Ann" from the country. Next door are her two nieces, two charming young girls, who have been left by their father's death dependent on their own exertions for a living—Kate, the elder, being the leading soprano in a prominent church. The intimacy between the two families results in a couple of love affairs, which, in spite of many obstacles and unexpected incidents, end happily.

Botany is the present subject, offered in the attractive form of conversations between Miss Harson, the governess, and her little charges, Malcolm, Edith, and Clara. In long walks through the woods and fields, and in quiet talks in the school-room, no end of information is evolved concerning the flowers and trees of the various months of the year.

A very nice sense of obligation deters John Bodewin from giving testimony in the case of the fraudulent changing of the boundaries of the "Eagle Bird" mining claim. Falling in love with the daughter of Mr. Newbold, the owner of the mine, who implores him to give his evidence, he is much divided in mind, and very uncomfortable almost through the story. Scene is laid in the western part of Arkansas, and the natural beauties of the place, the peculiar elements of society drifted there from East and West, the details of mining interests, and civil engineering, make an excellent story. Has just been concluded in the Century.

Made up from lecture-notes that Prof. Peirce, of Harvard, wrote out during the past four years for the use of students, who had begun to study with him what he says, "I have ventured to call, after Neumann, the Newtonian potential function." The notes were intended for readers somewhat familiar with the principles of the differential and integral calculus, but unacquainted with many of the methods commonly used in applying mathematics to the study of physical problems. A list of books are given for the reader or student who wishes to get a thorough knowledge of the properties of the Newtonian potential function and of its application to problems in electricity.

But little attention is paid to the early settlers and colonists of the Pacific slope in this work, the author confining himself almost wholly to the transition period from 1846 to 1856, during which the United States obtained control of the territory and undertook to make it an integral part of the republic. The "Bear Flag" revolution and the operations of Captain Fremont are treated quite fully, owing to their important bearing on the subsequent acquisition of the province; and a clear insight is afforded into the diplomacy of Polk's administration. The breaking out of the gold craze in 1848-49 and the enormous inflow of immigrants, speculators, prospectors, roughs, and adventurers of all sorts and grades marked the next stage in the history of the State. Prof. Royce's descriptions of these people, and of the struggles made by the thinking men of the mining communities for public order, give evidence of very wide and careful reading and study of written history and manuscript reports. The book which he gives us will be found as interesting and instructive as any in the series, so far issued. It is well and care fully written, and based upon the most thorough research." -Boston Saturday Evening Gasette.

though a book of laws, is not a "law-book" in ical sense, but comes clearly within the scope of library. It is a statement, in concise but clear, and in logical order, of the laws of all the States subject pertaining to the persons and property of citizens. It embodies a synopsis of the two hundred and fifty bulky volumes which contain the "written law" of our forty-seven States and organized territories. Its accuracy can be replied upon. The author having proved his ability for condensed and lucid statements of law in his well-known "Law Glossary" (published in 1881), has devoted five years to the preparation of this work. In addition to reading, comparing, and condensing the immense mass of printed laws, he has twice carefully verified every statement and citation in his volume.

The characters of the first part of this romance, "Before Tilsit," reappear. Pierre, the freemason and liberal, is again a prominent figure, re-united to his frivolous wife, and going a downward pace in spite of his ideal theories. The scenes are taken entirely from Russian high life, and deal with love and intrigue, and the threatened war between Russia and France. Napoleon and Alexander both appear upon the scene, the descriptions of the French Emperor not being at all flattering. France has invaded Russia and is marching upon Mossow when the story ends. As the fates of the various characters are left in doubt, there are probably more volumes to come.

Vernon, S. M., D.D. Probation and punishment: a rational and scriptural exposition of the doctrine of future punishment of the wicked, as held by the great body of Chris tian believers of all ages, with special reference to the unscriptural doctrine of a second probation. Phil., J. B. Lippincott Co., 1886. 300 p. D. cl., $1.25.

From the author's standpoint future punishment is not only reconcilable with the love of God, but it grows out of that love and is a necessary form of its expression; it is an essential element in the divine administration, without which government could not exist; and it is an indispensable factor in the system of revealed truth. He further argues that this punishment must be endless in duration, and aims to show that the doctrine of probation after death, so much discussed of late, is refuted alike by sound reason and by the teachings of revelation.

Shepard, 1886. 73 p. T. cl., 50 c. An alphabetical list of words, whose meanings have either undergone a complete change in the course of time, or whose origin is almost entirely obscured, being now used in so different a sense. The derivation and original usage, as given in each case, are full of interest.

Contains all the poems written by Mr. Whittier since the publication of "The bay of Seven Islands" in 1883. "Revelation," "Adjustment," "The wood giant," "The homestead," "Birchbrook Mill," "How the robin came," "Sweet fern," and "The light that is felt" are among the most important. The little book is quite dainty and elegant.

ese really are bad times everybody few deny. Yet they may be made -useful and productive times—if we y them aright, learn the lesson they then resolutely and honestly act ere is very little trade stirring there tendency to sit down and wait to see turn up." This is a mistake. We el bound to turn up every available | what chances lie under it. Especially is this necessary in soliciting orders. Many people get disheartened, say that there is no use in going out, and that it is quite as well to stop at home. Such a policy "makes bad worse, and enervates a man for action when the opportunity for it arises.

Indeed it is more than ever necessary now to take every chance, and avail one's self of every opportunity, likely or unlikely. Especially is it important to keep on advertising. As an American writer forcibly puts it: Dropping advertising in dull times is like breaking down a dam because the water is low. Either plan will prevent good times coming. Enterprising people know the value of advertising all the year round. The persistency of those who are not intimidated by the cry of "dull times," but keep their names ever before the public, will assuredly place them on the right side in the end.

Another point worthy of being remembered about the present time is that it is most unwise and detrimental to take the advice of those who are always finding fault with everybody and everything. These people are generally, when put on their mettle, the "duffers" of business. They ascribe everything that they do not like to circumstances over which they have no control. It is never their fault that they lose a customer —whereas it was probably their unpunctuality, their inferiority, or their too high prices that sent the business away from them. Our misfortunes more often are caused by ourselves than many people will acknowledge, and a time of slackness is just the appropriate season for "looking into things "and endeavoring to ascertain how it is that business is not more plentiful and more profitable.

Many people, too, would do well to remember that it is no use finding fault with a trade while they are obliged to stick to it to make their living. The best philosophy, and that which will make us most happy and contented, and will be most likely to lead to better things, is, while we are at it, to strive to make the best of it. Let us leave it as soon as we can get a better, but let us be sure that it is really a better one. Many people have been ruined altogether by not "letting well alone," by not sticking to their trade, and by rushing into others which have been as illusory as the mirage.

It is not right, either, to give our trade or occupation a bad name, while we are living on what it brings us. This is a fault especially common with the grumbling class. They say that printing is the worst of all businesses; they wish they had never heard of machines, or presses, or types. It is the high-road to the workhouse, etc., etc. Then there are stationers who say that the trade is done for now; the drapers get everything worth having; all the old profits are things of the past; it would be as profitable to stand in the street selling matches, and so on. Such grumblers are seldom or never business men in the proper sense of the word, and they usually deserve the ill-success that they suffer

In these times there are undoubtedly many difficulties to be encountered, but they must not be confounded with impossibilities. It may be extremely difficult to keep the wolf from the door, but by patience, perseverance, and energy, it may not be impossible. Many people think a great difficulty an absolute impossibility, and then sit down in despair. In life there are really very sew impossibilities. "No such word & fail " is a good old maxim, even if it be not always strictly correct. There must be failures, but a large proportion of them might be averted with courage and resolution.

A business man, too, should endeavor to make as many friends as possible. It is unwise to restrict the circle of those whom he caters for. all trades changes are constantly occurring. Some firms break, a good patron dies, or retires. These contingencies are always happening. more customers a tradesman has the more independent he is. If one or two leave him it does not make so much difference. The safest businesses are those which have the widest circle of customers.

Above all, never expect others to do that for you which you should do for yourself. Many men think that certain of the customers might recommend them, and increase their business. Others are envious because a competitor has been favored with patronage on which they think they have some claim. There is, after all, but little friendship in business; it will generally be found, when a matter is thoroughly advertised, that any given work goes to the right man in the right place. He has some qualification which may not be apparent at first sight, but it exists, and his customer knows it.

Finally, these are the times for a display of every kind of reasonable and worthy energy and enterprise. Some people are very energetic and active for a time and then, like certain animals, hybernate through the winter of slackness and depression. This is quite an error; a person cannot eat enough in a week to last a year, it has been said; nor can the activity of a day suffice for a whole season. Trade requires to be constantly and persistently given an impetus by personal canvassing, by circulars, by advertising. Without this it will run down like a clock that is unwound, or expire like a fire without a fresh supply of coal. Perhaps it is better to keep on pushing than occasionally to give a "long push and a strong push." But pushing of some kind is essential in these days, and the prevailing depression will have done good if it call attention to the preceding elementary maxims of business life and to the necessity for following their teaching.

MACHINE-MADE.

From the American Bookmaker

EVERYTHING nowadays seems to be "machinemade." The lace-maker's and embroiderer's arts have yielded to the loom; the portrait painter has been robbed of his vocation by the photographer; the engraver finds it hard to hold the field against photo-processes, the oil-painting has been displaced by the chromo; the artificer in blind and gold tooling sees his work done by a stamp; the illuminator is pushed aside by the power-press and colored inks. And now comes the wire-stitching machine to load our shelves with unyielding and inelastic bindings. Behold! we open some book, with a fair outside, to make the horrible discovery that the dampness of the atmosphere and the chemicals of the paper have attacked the wire, which has stained the volume with rust in some places, and cut through the outer sheets in others. Wire-stitching, while answering admirably for some styles of bookmaking, should be kept religiously away from the binding of books which we intend to lay up as permissible "treasures on earth."

THE CONSTITUTIONALITY OF AN IN-TERNATIONAL COPYRIGHT LAW.

By Thorvald Solberg.

From Science.

MR. APPLETON MORGAN, in his letter upon international copyright in Science for March 5 says: "While always an enthusiastic advocate of an international copyright as a matter of abstract justice to British authors, I have never been able to satisfy myself of the constitutional right of Congress to enact a separate bill for the purpose of effecting one." I do not intend to attempt in this letter to convince Mr. Morgan that the enactment of such a bill would be constitutional, but I think it may not be without interest to the readers of Science to point out that the passage in the Constitution which grants Congress the power to "secure to authors and inventors the exclusive right to their respective writings and discoveries" has been expounded to mean, of necessity, ail authors and inventors, without regard to nationality.

Edward L. Andrews, Esq., as the representative of the Copyright Association, argued before the Senate committee on the library, in 1872, that, as American authors were not specified in this clause, the word "authors" must be taken to mean all authors, wherever resident, and therefore the Constitution "in this respect is mandatory in its character." But Mr. Andrews was not the first person to argue this construction of the Constitution. Thirty-five years earlier this construction had so distinguished an advocate as Mr. Henry Clay. During the copyright agitation of 1836-37 in England, certain British authors sent to the United States an "address" containing a petition to Congress to grant to them "the exclusive benefit of their writings within the United States." This petition, which bears the signatures of fifty-six authors of England and Ireland—a remarkable list of names, including Carlyle, Disraeli (father and son), Bulwer, the poets Southey, Thomas Moore, Rogers, Campbell, Chalmers and Cunningham, Harnet Martineau and Mary Somerville, besides others equally famous---was presented to the Senate by Mr. Clay on Thursday, Feb. 2, 1837. After calling attention to the distinguished names appended to the document, and explaining that it represented that the works of British authors were published in the United States without any compensation being made to them for their copyrights, and that they were frequently altered and mutilated so as to affect injuriously their reputations, because of which grievances they petitioned the passage of a protective law, he commended the address to the attentive and friendly consideration of the Senate, and closed with these words: "Indeed, I do not see any ground of just objection, either in the Constitution or in sound policy, to the passage of a law tendering to all foreign nations reciprocal secur rity for literary property." This petition was referred to a select committee, which reported Feb. 16, through Mr. Clay, and asked leave to introduce a bill granting copyright to the authors of Great Britain and France, which was the first international copyright bill presented to Comgress. The last paragraph of this report contains Mr. Clay's argument, referred to above, and reads as follows: "With respect to the comstitutional power to pass the proposed bill, 🕍 committee entertain no doubt, and Congress, lore stated, has acted on it. The Constitution thorizes Congress 'to promote the progress science and useful arts, by securing, for limd times, to authors and inventors, the exclu-'e right to their respective writings and discov-There is no limitation of the power to tives or residents of this country. Such a nitation would have been hostile to the object the power granted. That object was to prothe progress of science and useful arts. iey belong to no particular country, but to ankind generally. And it cannot be doubted at the stimulus which it was intended to give mind and genius—in other words, the prootion of the progress of science and the arts ill be increased by the motives which the bill lers to the inhabitants of Great Britain and ance."

I believe that the view expressed by Mr. Morun in the last paragraph of his communication correct, and that a "bill to amend the Resed Statutes relating to copyrights"—amendig section forty-nine hundred and fifty-two by riking out the words "citizen of the United tates, or resident therein," and substituting me word " person;" amending section fortyine hundred and fifty-four by striking out the 'ords "and a citizen of the United States, or Esident therein;" amending section forty-nine undred and sixty-seven by striking out the parnthetical clause " (if such author or proprietor a citizen of the United States, or resident merein);" and repealing section forty-nine hunred and seventy-one would secure to foreign uthors protection over their works equal to that ow granted to citizens or residents. It is really a this way that the bill introduced into the Sente by Mr. Hawley grants protection to the rorks of foreign authors; the first section being a reality a limiting provision, stipulating that se protection is only granted to authors of such ountries as confer equal rights of protection to itizens of the United States, in other words a eciprocity clause. By mistake, the Hawley bill eglects to provide for the amendment of secion forty-nine hundred and fifty-two, though areful provision is made for the amendments ecessary in the other sections.

NTERNATIONAL COPYRIGHT IN ENG-LAND.

From the London Daily News, April 24.

THE Government bill "to amend the law respecting international and colonial copyright " was issued yesterday. Its object is to empower De Queen to carry into effect at home and in the Evolution agreed to at the Intermational Conference at Berne in September last. By the existing acts an order in council may direct that as regards literary and artistic works East published in a foreign country, the author whall have copyright not exceeding the period for which home authors of like works have copyright. The Berne Convention gives authors of Merary or artistic works published in any counwhich is a party to the convention, copyright mall other countries which were parties to it. The present bill brings our law into harmony with this arrangement. In certain cases the publaber in the United Kingdom of the work of a living author may take proceedings as though rere owner of the copyright. In cases of theneous production, an Order in Council may settle for purposes of copyright in which country the work was first produced; and if it is a foreign country, the copyright will be such as exists by virtue of its production in that country, and not the copyright of the United Kingdom. Foreign authors are to have ten years, or such other term as the Order in Council prescribes, the right to prevent the production or importation into the United Kingdom of a trans-The bill applies to existing works, and with the reservation of power by Order in Council to exclude any of the colonies, it applies the provisions of the International Copyright acts to the colonies. It is one more clear step in advance toward the much-desired union of all civilized countries in the protection of intellectual property. The next step should be to codify and reform the law of copyright at home.

CO-OPERATIVE CATALOGUING.

By W: I. FLETCHER.

From the Nation, Feb. 18.

THE time has come for a change in the manner of cataloguing public libraries; and as I wish to reach the ears of those who direct our public libraries rather than of those who administer them, and of the general public itself, with some suggestions on the subjects I venture to offer what I have to say to the Nation rather than to the Library journal, where it would reach few outside of the libraries themselves.

Of the money now expended on the support of libraries a considerable share goes to pay the expenses of catalogues, either printed or written. This is as it should be, for no one can doubt that it were better to buy much fewer books and have them well catalogued, than to accumulate no matter how large an incoherent mass with no catalogues, or with insufficient ones. But of this cataloguing expense it is not going too far to say that a very large share is wasted in the reduplication of that which ought to be done once for all. Nearly all our considerable libraries are making or keeping up elaborate catalogues, which are, to a large extent, repetitions of one another. And as the libraries grow, and the public demands on them become more and more intelligent as well as numerous and pressing, catalogues necessarily become more elaborate and complex, especially in the direction of the bibliography of subjects. It is to the great credit of our American librarians as a body, as well as to the men, like Jewett and Noyes, who have so nobly responded to this need with labors far beyond the due call of their position, that we have such admirable catalogues of so many libraries. But our library system is but passing out of its infancy. The demands of the past are but a shadow of what is to come, and already this system of elaborate cataloguing, repeating itself in scores, even in hundreds, of libraries, is breaking down of its own weight. The only question now is, How can it be replaced with something more elastic, less expensive, and capable of meeting the needs of the twentieth century, when our libraries will be numbered by thousands, and the volumes in scores of them by millions?

Co-operation furnishes the clue. For the ten years of its existence the American Library Association has had this as its watchword, and can point with pride to the work already done by its means. The new edition of Poole's "Index to Periodicals" owes its existence to the labors of Afty librarians, each doing a share, where, under the old plan of cataloguing, each must have done the whole in manuscript, as many were doing before the co-operative scheme was arranged. The quarterly index to periodicals now being igsued with the Library journal is another step in the same direction. But these are only first steps, and merely hint at what must follow. The time must soon come when the libraries will no longer undertake to provide subject-catalogues of their own. The author-catalogues will necessarily be kept up, as each library must have a list of its books. But in place of the subjectcatalogues we shall have printed bibliographies of subjects, issued for the most part periodically, and serving equally for one library or another. A shelf (or, in the larger libraries, a series of shelves) of these bibliographies, properly arranged, with a handy index to the volumes, will show the reader what titles to look for on a certain subject, and the library's author-catalogue will give a clue to their shelf location if they are to be found in that particular library. many cases such bibliographies will give an indication as to which of the leading public libraries contain the rarer publications, (This is admirably done in Or. Bolton's list of scientific periodicals lately issued by the Smithsonian Institu-

Now the point of what I have to say is, that such a scheme of bibliographies and subject-indexes is unquestionably feasible, while it furnishes the only possible solution of the problem. For its carrying out, all that is needed is that the directors of our public and college libraries should become alive to its immense economy as compared with the present wasteful system, and should be ready to vote money as subscriptions for this kind of work, in sums which will appear very large at first blush, but which will be much less than those now expended on manuscript work or on local printed catalogues, which can thus be superseded, and not only superseded, but vastly improved upon. The time has fully come for an agitation of this matter. If the intelligent men who direct our libraries and care for the funds which support them can be led to look into it, it cannot be but that they will be quick to join in some scheme by which the results I have tried to outline can be accomplished. A somewhat captious criticism of present methods is already in vogue, and is certain to be destructive of much possible good work if not met by a readiness on the part of library managers to reform what it is certainly not extravagant language to call an abuse.

May I add yet a line to say that as Chairman of the Co-operation Committee of the American Library Association, I shall be pleased to receive from any quarter suggestions which may assist us in forwarding the proposed reform?

IMPERMEABLE WRAPPING PAPER. -- Dissolve one and a half pounds of white soup in a quart of water, then dissolve two ounces of gumarabic and six ounces of glue in another quart of water. Mix the two solutions, warm the mixture, dip the paper in the liquid, pass it between two rolls (a clothes-wringer, for example), and put it to dry. In default of rolls, hang the paper up that it may drip well, or better, pass it between two sheets of dry paper. It deals with the various works of the commentaries and biographies, and to 134 large quarto pages with an aver-5 entries to a page, making in all about ries.

APPLETON MORGAN, we learn from the Post, "has undertaken to carry forward espearian bibliography, which is one of t features of Allibone's 'Dictionary of 'His 'Digest Shakespeareanæ' has be published in the Papers of the New akespeare Society. Part I includes titles pically arranged, no authors' names apin the alphabet.'

T CLARKE & Co. have published a ist of some of the best books on elocuoratory, choice selections for reading aking, etc. (12 p. 32mo.) They have lished a special list [No. 7] of atlases. Is and globes, (8 p. 32mo.;) a list of the Series of phonographic instruction books

Longley, and a list of works on outorts published by their house.

ERARY AND TRADE NOTES.

ROUTLEDGE & Sons have made arnts with G. & C. Merriam & Co. to publingland an edition of the condensed's Dictionary.

PHELPS PUBLISHING Co., Springfield, as published a comprehensive manual, 'The Practical Fruit Grower,' by Prof. synard, of the Massachusetts Agricullege.

FER BROTHERS expect soon to publish e of Rev. Mother St. John Fontbonne, of the Congregation of the Sisters of St. fter the Revolution," translated from the of the Abbé Rivaux by a Sister of St.

L. Stevenson's earlier books, writes une's London correspondent, have belicult to procure, owing to his having his publishers. Chatto & Windus, his ablishers, have the power, it appears, nting either the sale or a reprint of they choose to exercise this power.

DOYLE & WHITTLE, Boston, have in press a new volume by Leander Richardson. The title is "The Dark City," and the work is a humorous and satirical description of things in London as seen by the author during his long residence in that city.

THE CATHOLIC PUBLICATION SOCIETY Co. have published "Why do you believe? or, a Divine Certainty of Faith," and "M. Dupont and the Work of the Holy Face," translated from the French by Christian Reid, with a preface by Mgr. Preston.

T. FISHER UNWIN, London, will shortly publish a new volume by Vernon Lee, entitled "Baldwin: being Dialogues on Views and Aspirations." The same publisher has in press "About the Theatre: being Studies and Essays of Things Theatrical," by Mr. William Archer.

HARPER & Bros. announce "George Eliot and Her Heroines," by Abba Goold Woolson, which is described as a thoughtful and interesting study of the characters of the great novelist and the light they shed upon her own views and personality; also, a new work by Rev. Wm. M. Taylor, of the Broadway Tabernacle, N. Y., entitled "Joseph the Prime Minister."

It is said that an English woman has patented a new idea for inserting advertisements in books. It consists of an envelope attached to the boards of the volume and containing a sheet of advertisements. The patentee anticipates that the adoption of the plan will "cover the expense of publication, and free authors from the censorship of publishers."

Miss Bush is about to publish in England "The Folk Songs of Italy," having been engaged upon the compilation and translation for more than twenty years. The book will give representative songs from each province of the Peninsula, and will be preceded by an account of the history and etymology of the various names and characteristics by which they are locally distinguished.

THE second volume of General Grant's memoirs, it is announced, will not be issued before the 10th inst. The book will have nearly a hundred pages more than the first volume, and is more profusely illustrated. There will be two steel engravings, one of them being a portrait of General Grant, from a photograph, when he was in command of all the armies.

THE SOCIETY FOR THE PROPAGATION OF CHRISTIAN KNOWLEDGE has undertaken the publication of a series of new and original novels by well-known English writers. The novels will be printed on fine paper of small octavo size, and will have striking covers. Mr. Farjeon and the Rev. Baring-Gould have already been secured as contributors. The price has been fixed at 1d. each.

Funk & Wagnalls have published the third and concluding volume of "The Treasury of David," by C. H. Spurgeon. It is an exhaustive commentary on the Book of Psalms, adapted to every class of readers, and containing homiletic hints upon almost every verse. Mr. Spurgeon considers it the great literary effort of his life, and Dr. Philip Schaff pronounces it the "most important and practical work of the age on the Psalter."

A LITERARY COMPANION FOR THE SEASON.

PUBLISHED BY

[The remainder of this space is occupied by the retailer's imprint. For terms see advertising page.]

SEASON OF 1886.

To RETAIL DEALERS:

The Summer Catalogue, issued now for nine years, has been found so useful and profitable by aterprising dealers, that it has become a regular feature of the trade. The tenth issue, in a pecial pamphlet adapted for imprint circulation all through the summer, will be published in pannection with The Publishers' Weekly, early in June.

The imprint editions will contain, in addition to a catalogue of guide-books and light literature for commer reading, an entirely new selection of reading matter both of a practical and entertaining charter, chiefly intended for the use and amusement of tourists, pleasure-seekers, and visitors of summer corts.

Booksellers should remember that, while summer is usually a dull time, the sales of light terature, etc., can be pushed to make a successful business even in this season. The classes the travel are of course those who have money to spend, even in dull times, and the summer is the time when very many bookbuyers do the greater part of their reading. The tide of travel his year is likely to set toward home resorts, instead of across sea. Booksellers at or near temmer resorts should therefore especially avail themselves of this publication, while city dealers thould remember that it will be also useful to tempt stay-at-homes to make investments or to billow up customers otherwise out of reach.

Orders for imprint editions at subscription rates should be sent in st once.

A CHRONICLE HISTORY OF THE LIFE AND WORK O

WILLIAM SHAKESPEARE,

PLAYER, POET, AND PLAYMAKER. By Frederick GARD FLEAY, of the "Shakespeare Manual." With two etched illustrations.

paper, medium 8vo, half leather, gilt top, $4.50.

The theatrical side of the career of Shakespeare has never yet received any adequate consideration, his with the theatres and acting companies in his earlier years not having been traced or even investigated. He with other dramatists, especially with Jonson, have also been grossly misrepresented. While every idle story of gossip has been carefully collected, and the pettiest details of his commercial dealings have been garnered, little has hitherto been given to his dealings with the plays by other men with whom he was fellow-worker, and a late of evidences bearing on the chronology of his work, derived from the early production of English plays in Gerbeen cast aside as valueless. In this work an attempt is made to collect this neglected material, to throw ne the Sonnets, and to determine the dates of the production of all his works. . . . The arrangement of the book is as to appeal not merely to the specialist, but to every one who feels an interest in the greatest writer of any literate crowning glory of our own. the crowning glory of our own.

NOTES IN SEASON.

P. DUTTON & Co. have in press "The Hisof Interpretation" (being the Bampton Lectr 1885), by Archdeacon Farrar.

ARLES H. WHITING has just published nmon Sense on the Labor Question," in hlet form, "designed for the special purof enlightening employés in regard to their s, rights, and privileges."

UGHTON, MIFFLIN & Co. will shortly pubi the Riverside Classics series the story of Cruise of the Alabama," which was pubin the April Century; also, Miss Eliza-Stuart Phelps's "Burglars in Paradise."

C. McClurg & Co. will soon issue a new with the peculiar title of "Haschisch." rting from the usual pathway, the author nade the plot turn upon a new application: powers of the remarkable Oriental drug, isch, which is employed in the detection of. The action of the story takes place in York, Monte Carlo, and Paris.

ARLES SCRIBNER'S SONS will publish this i "Face to Face," a story touching upon trial and social questions. The name of thor is not given, but it is intimated that ork comes from an "experienced and skilful" The first two volumes of the new and medition of Mrs. Burnett's works pubare "A Fair Barbarian" and "That Lass o' Lowrie's." The Scribners are now the publishers of all of this author's novels.

THE PRESBYTERIAN BOARD OF PUBLICATION announce that, through the liberality of the executors of the estate of the late Rev. D. James W. Dale, the plates of his valuable contribution to the literature of baptism have become their property, and that they are now enabled to furnish this valuable work at the remarkably low price of $5 for the set. The former price was $16.

HARPER & BROS. have just ready a new novel by Wolcott Balestier, entitled "A Victorious Defeat," which is said to be strikingly original in subject and treatment, and occupying an entirely fresh field in a way which, a critic says, "proves the author's right to rank among the few earnest and conscientious students of one of the most interesting social phases and experiments known to American life." They also publish this week "George Eliot and Her Heroines," an interesting and discriminating tribute, by Mrs. Abba Goold Woolson;" "Joseph the Prime Minister," by the Rev. Dr. William M. Taylor; and "Economics for the People: being plain talks on economics, especially for use in business, in schools, and in women's reading classes," by R. R. Bowker. have issued in the Handy Series Maria Edgeworth's "The Absentee," and in the Franklin Square Library "England's Supremacy," by J. S. Jeans, and "Trust Me," by Mrs. John Spender.

CASSELL & Co. will shortly publish three novels by authors who have never as yet been introduced to the public. The first of these, "As Common Mortals," will be published anonymously, the author preferring to remain unknown. It is said to be a strong story, the scene of which is laid in Brooklyn. Another, "The Magic of a Voice," is by an American lady, Margaret Russell Macfarlane. The scene of this story is laid in Germany, and it is so thoroughly suffused with the atmosphere of that country that it was at first supposed to be a translation; but inquiry proved it to be original. The other, "Who Was Guilty?" is a curious tale of love, murder, detectives, and morphine, with a denouement that will astonish the reader. It is by a physician, Dr. Philip Woolf, who has used his materials most ingeniously. next volumes in their Rainbow Series will be "Marvellous in our Eyes" and "Witness My Hand." The next issues in the National Library will be Scott's "The Lady of the Lake," Luther's "Table Talk," and Bacon's "Wisdom of the Ancients."

NOTES ON AUTHORS.

E. Z. Judson ("Ned Buntline") is reported to be seriously ill.

EVERYBODY has heard of Oscar Wilde, but not everybody knows his full name. It is Oscar Fingall O'Flahertie Wills Wilde.

MR. MALCOLM MACMILLAN, the eldest son of the publisher, is said to be the author of the story, "Dagonet the Jester," which was lately issued by his father's firm.

MATTHEW ARNOLD, instead of coming over next autumn, will sail for the United States this month. He thinks of giving one address," A Last Word about America," in three or iour of the chief cities.

We print elsewhere Mr. Sherman's rejoinder to the answer of Mr. Henry Holt to his [Roger Sherman's] "Reasons why an International Copyright Bill Should not Pass," not because it adds anything new to the controversy, but to satisfy its author that the WEEKLY does give both sides a hearing. If the reasoning of Mr. Sherman's first three paragraphs is correct, it simply proves that the Constitution of the United States inadequate to cover the moral and economical espects of the case. But his reasoning is not only opposed by all the eminent statesmen who have advocated international copyright, but by The very fact that there is nothing in the Constitution to prevent Congress from extending the same protection to a foreign author that it does to a foreign inventor. However, it seems to us reseless to argue with one who claims that "there is no right or wrong in the case."

Lossing's "History of New York" was evidently too much for the bidders present, for not one of them offered even to start a bid on it. It was therefore withdrawn.

A BOOK MANUFACTORY IN ANCIENT ROME.

In the Illustrirtes Schweizerisches Unterhaltungsblatt für Stenographen we find an interesting account of the production of books in ancient Rome. It is stated therein that, notwithstanding the Romans had no printing-presses, books were at that time produced much more quickly and in larger numbers than most modern works. Paper was used which was almost woven out of the fibre of the Egyptian papyrus, which grows to a height of ten feet, and which has given its name to paper. A Roman residing in Egypt assures us that the yield of his paper manufactory would be sufficient to support an army, and whole shiploads of paper were sent from Egypt to Rome. Before books of any description were reproduced in large numbers, they were read mostly either in private circles or publicly, so that the author could adopt suggestions for the improvement of his work. Wealthy Romans used to own a large number of slaves for all kinds of services, which rendered labor cheap, as they cost nothing in many cases, and had only to be supported. They were mostly prisoners of war, the pick of nations, and often more cultivated (especially the Greeks) than their masters. They were consequently also employed in the education of Roman boys. The works of authors were dictated to a number of slaves, women also being employed for that purpose. Even among freemen and liberated slaves the desire to obtain employment became so great that hundreds of willing hands could be had for writing books at a very low rate of wages. The instruction imparted in the workshops of Roman publishers necessitated a regular course of training, which was to teach the apprentices an easy and elegant handbundred writers, and reckoning the working day rist against Belford, Clarke & Co.

at ten hours, a document which took an hour to write would be multiplied in the course of a day to a thousand copies. The writers became in time expert to such a degree that they combined quickness with elegance. It must also be added that in cases where speed was the first consideration, the use of stenographic contractions became general, and we possess illustrations of their employment in the old manuscripts still in existence. We are also informed that both readers and copyists were instructed and trained, the former in the solution, the latter in the application of contractions. Their object was to copy works as quickly as possible, the use of full words being only resorted to for the best works. The above brief account demonstrates to us the fact that the Romans made the nearest approach to the invention of printing, although they never attained to it. The movable stamps of iron or other metals used by the Romans for marking earthenware vessels or other utensils also prove But the art of rapid writing, which was perfected by them to an unusual degree, counteracted a further development, while the number of slaves and other willing hands at disposal, by which means the most astonishing results were obtained, operated in the same direction.

ANOTHER CHATTERBOX TRADE-MARK DECISION.

In the case of Estes & Lauriat vs. Belford, Clarke & Co., Judge N. Shipman of the United States Circuit Court for the Southern District of New York, on the 19th of April decided that the "name or word 'Chatterbox,' as applied to and used upon the cover of or upon the leaves of books of juvenile character by James Johnston, is a good and valid trade-mark, and that the title thereto for such use in the United States is vested in the complainants; and that Belford, Clarke & Co. . . . have infringed upon the exclusive rights of the complainants in and to the He therefore "ordered, adjudged, and decreed that the complainants do recover of the defendants, the profits, gains, and advantages which the said defendants have received or made or which have arisen or accrued to them from the said infringement; and . . . that the complainants do recover of the defendants their costs, charges, and disbursements to be taxed; and . . . that it be referred to S. FORTY YEARS' PROGRESS IN JUVE-NILES.

BY CHARLES A. B. SHEPARD. From the Boston Sunday Globe.

FORTY years ago children's books, or "juveniles" as they are now generally called, were published to a very limited extent, and the most of them were what is known as goody-goody books, bound in cheap American cloth and unutractive both inside and out.

Munroe & Francis, of Boston, with the branch nouse in New York of C. S. Francis & Co., Mobably had a larger list of children's books han did any other house, unless possibly the American Sunday School Union of Philadelphia, and the best selling ones were, "The Boy's Own Book," "Girl's Own Book," "Parents' Assisant, Miss Edgeworth's stories, Berquin's "Child's Friend," "Mother Goose Melodies," "Marmaduke Multiply," and the "Hieroglyphic Bible." "Robinson Crusoe" and "Arabian Nights," of course, were sold largely, both in complete und abridged editions, and covering the school boys' books at school could frequently be seen "Pirates' Own Book" and "Tales of the Ocean," each of them so horribly illustrated that the pictures would give an average sensitive man to-day a nightmare.

About ten years later Mr. Hammatt Billings furnished the best illustrations for this class of literature, and his work and the engravers' showed great improvement. But to-day, as we look at the pictorial books for young folks produced thirty years ago, we are astonished that we ever accepted them. Not that Billings was not an excellent artist, but the engravers and printers were not educated up to the standard of the past few years.

In 1862 Lee & Shepard commenced the publication of Oliver Optic's books, and dressed them in an attractive manner, and this, together with the interesting style in which they were written, put them in the front rank of juveniles. Many imitations naturally followed. Their sale up to this time has exceeded a million, and there is still a steady and large demand for them.

As to form, 16mo or 18mo juveniles were very popular until a few years since, when the craze for illustrations in juveniles reached the point where there seemed to be a demand for larger pictures, and this, together with the fact that publishers of children's magazines wanted to utilize their old cuts, caused the market to be flooded with what are known in the trade as "board books." consisting chiefly of books with the text written up to the cuts which had previously been otherwise used. Old magazine numbers were mated up and imported in immense quantities and bound with gaudy lithographic covers such excould not fail to catch the eye. But these are nw upon the wane, and a bookseller fights shy #them, leaving their sales chiefly to dry-goods fores and bazaars, and the tendency seems to be ward a return to the size and shape of a book bich can be read without the reader's needing e assistance of some one to hold it while so ang.

Many of the best specimens of illustrations, ess-work, and paper are found in books espeintended for the young, while in the bindg no expense is spared to make their outward pearance as handsome as art can make them. purchaser of one of these illustrated jourbe of the day, as a general thing, has no idea of what it cost to produce the book which he is purchasing, and were the sales as limited to-day as they were forty years since, the publisher could not afford to sell it at many times the price now paid. During the past forty years the sale of juvenile books has increased to an extent which I would not attempt to estimate. Many houses are engaged in their publication, any one of which sell at least five times the quantity sold by all in, say, 1845. Beside this Peter Parley's Magazine and Merry's Museum were at that date the sole occupants of that field, while to-day there are many, each vieing with the others to see which shall produce, weekly or monthly, the most attractive periodical for young people.

In the literature of this last quarter of the nineteenth century the rising generation is certainly not forgotten, and it seems to me to be one of the best signs of social progress that the making of books for our boys and girls has come to be so important a branch of the publishers' business, and to absorb so large a part of the best literary and artistic labor of the country.

COMMUNICATIONS.

REJOINDER TO THE ANSWER OF MR. HENRY HOLT TO MR. ROGER SHERMAN'S REASONS WHY AN INTERNATIONAL COPYRIGHT BILL SHOULD NOT PASS.

To the Editor of the Publishers' Weekly.

SIR: Mr. Holt overlooks the fact that the Congress of the United States grants the privilege to native authors of a copyright in their productions for a term of years as a COMPENSATION to induce them to write useful books for the benefit of the people, but not as an acknowledgment of any RIGHT the author may have in the multiplication of copies of his works.

The foreign author writes for his own market and finds his compensation there, and the same necessity for Congress to legislate in his behalf does not exist, he having nothing to give the American public in exchange for the compensation which he would receive. It therefore becomes a question of "PUBLIC POLICY" pure and simple whether ''science and the useful arts'' would be promoted by according to the foreign writers the same PRIVILEGES granted to native authors; as the foreign author has written heretofore, and will continue to write in the future, without such additional inducement. Congress does not certainly possess by the letter of the Constitution the power to pass any law by which the foreign author can carve out a fortune for himself at the expense of the American public, unless it can be shown that such legislation will "promote science and the useful arts" in the United States.

The cases cited of Morse, Howe, Edison, and Bell come within the provision of the Constitution which gives the power to Congress to "promote science and the useful arts" (Art. I., sec. 8), which clause can only apply to the citizen of the United States, as Congress is not supposed to legislate for aliens. And had Congress imposed upon authors the same conditions that it imposes upon patentees, the American Copyright League would not to-day be able to show a membership of even two hundred. far, then, the native author is shown not to be "open to pillage," but to be directly and amply compensated.

Mr. Holt is still farther in error in his reply to my second reason, for if it is the aim of the Government that its citizens should be elevated above the grade of animals, cheap and good literature is quite as essential as cheap and wholesome food and clothing. The farmer is NOT protected in the product of his labor or intelligence; for just so soon as he creates a new species and parts with a sample thereof, the purchaser has the right to consume it, reproduce it, multiply it, or to sell it in competition with the originator, the same as can be done with the books written by a foreign author; and this no one calls "PILLAGE," because no one recognizes the farmer's exclusive right thereto.

Mr. Holt, in his reply to my third reason, says this reason has nothing to do with the right or the wrong of the case. There is no right or wrong to the case. The question to be decided is whether it is good PUBLIC POLICY to give the foreign author or publisher the monopoly of our markets, so that "the aggregate VALUE of books manufactured in this country would be greater under an International Copyright Law than it is now," owing to the increase in price of all reprints by reason of the monopoly created therein, and the cutting off of a large number of American readers by reason of said advance. Mr. Holt should recollect that a flat denial of a statement is not argument.

Mr. Holt, in his reply to my fourth reason, confesses its force by asking why one should object to granting foreigners a privilege "if it does your own people good," and by his question admits the subject to be one of public policy. It is NOT for the good of the people, but would deprive a large number of readers of the privilege of obtaining, at a very moderate price, the product of the foreign press, which, owing to its cheapness, is now doing more to educate the masses and to train authors and bring about the very end Congress in its wisdom intended when our present Copyright Law was framed, than the most ardent patriot hoped. The competition created by these cheap editions is not injuring the American author, but, on the contrary, is widening the field of his clientage, as will be shown by the success of the Century Magazine (devoted almost exclusively to American authors, whose articles will soon bring them into notice if they have merit) and the almost unprecedented sale of the Grant book.

In answer to my fifth reason, Mr. Holt again flatly denies without giving reasons. Who would benefit by a copyright on such a work as the Britannica? The authors have parted with their interest therein by the very nature of their contract with the publisher, therefore the publisher is the only one to be benefited. Authors from their necessities find themselves obliged to take a lump sum at once rather than WAIT for an uncertainty, consequently the publisher is the one mostly benefited. Few publishers are willing longer to issue works on which a royalty is to be paid to the author, and always insist upon purchasing, save where the author can enforce his own conditions. That the foreign author no longer receives as much royalty from the United States as formerly accounts for his strong desire to introduce the stamp system in the sale of books — he doubts his publisher! The native author would be neglected for the more favorably known foreigner.

As Mr. Holt acknowledges the force of my sixth reason, I have only to add that it is always \ to produce it. The examples of good English good public policy to avoid making any laws | literature given to the public by means of the whose enforcement would require greater effort | cheap editions will show them what is required; than the good produced would warrant.

By Mr. Holt's reply to my seventh reason l see he still is troubled with his potato question, which I have endeavored to explain in my answer to his objection to my seventh question. Congress has no moral right to create a STATU-TORY PRIVILEGE which will give the foreign anthor or publisher a right to carve out a fortune for himself at the expense and to the detriment of the best interest of the American public.

If Mr. Holt means to infer by his remarks to my eighth reason that he was the author of the sophism that the American author could not live in competition with free foreign literature. and wishes to infer that I was aware of it. I feel myself compelled to disabuse his mind, and say that from my limited knowledge of Mr. Holt I would have judged he would have considered his language more fully before getting off such an absurdity; for the statistics of American authorship will controvert him without my attempting it.

American authors are increasing rapidly; they life, where or how I do not know, but believe their rapid increase to be due to the perusal of the very literature now complained of; and if the assertion of Mr. Estes before the Senate Committee is correct, that there are now five thousand American authors, I am certain of it, as there is no other cause to produce such grand effects.

I have always believed that the foreign author was not compensated for his works republished in the United States, but the publishers generally have asserted the contrary, and want to call me "pirate," probably to draw off attention from themselves; but I deny that the goods were "stolen," because from my long intercourse with publishers as a printer, I know the gentlemen would not be guilty of such an offence, though one large publishing house of New York did reprint an English book with a pirated title of an American publication; but then that was because the New York publisher did not recognize the piracy, owing to the fact that the title had been changed from the singular to the plural by the English publisher before pirating it. This is one of the strongest cases I know of against any American publisher.

In reply to Mr. Holt's answer to my ninth question, using again the testimony of Mr. Estes before the Senate Committee, where be stated he had quite a number of manuscripts of American authors in his safe which he said he was unwilling to publish owing to the competition of foreign literature, shows that a great deal more literature is offered to the American publisher than HE is willing to offer to the public. Of course, other publishers feel like Mr. Estes, who prefers to publish an édition de luxe of George Eliot's complete works (to whose heirs he doubtless pays a large royalty) that to undertake the publication of a work of 22 American author whose reputation is not made. While I can commend the business sagacity of Mr. Estes in this particular, I cannot assert that his interest in the American author is as great as he would desire to have it appear.

Mr. Holt, in replying to my tenth question, has fallen into the habit of asking conundrams: which time alone can answer. Good Americal. literature will come just so soon as the Amer ican people have developed the talent necessity the same as a copper plate printed besiding by ok serves as a model for the immature Mr. Holt is again in error in assertat the Encyclopedia Britannica Ametleprint is unauthorized, for it has the authority for its issue known to the an people (it is copyrighted under the f the United States!) while the Scribner does not pay the duty it should to the Holt's reply to the eleventh reason is not point. I intended to call the attention of omittee to that vast array of publications, sduct for the most part of the English the benefit of which the American reader oyed in the past (as I supposed without seation to the English authors, but which now informed is a mistake, and that I the publishers in the United States · only one who does not pay for what I om which the American public would be d in the future, or at least compelled to at a vastly increased price, if Congress pass an International Copyright Law; less the decadence of the English people ucers of literature is admitted, the past dows the future as to what the American s asked to sacrifice to the greed of the an publisher and the idiocy of the memf the American Copyright League, who very nature of their employment cannot i benefit by the proposed law, made proy in their favor, as the product of their immediately becomes the property of ublisher to the extent of nine tenths of American matter issued from the press. s objections to my twelfth reason he beirrational in his argument. BUSINESS NOTES.

Baltimore, Md.-On the 30th of April the building at 6 North Howard Street was burned down, causing a loss of $15,000 to $20,000 to J. H. Medairy & Co., stationers.

COLUMBUS, KAN. - Branin Bros., booksellers and stationers, have dissolved partnership.

NEW YORK CITY.—McHale, Rhode & Co. have opened a handsome book store at 9 Courtlandt Street, 3d door west of Broadway. They will keep both old and new books. Mr. "Frank" McHale, the senior partner, has been with Leggat Brothers from boyhood up, and carries with him a large experience. We wish the new firm all success.

New York City. - John C. Stockwell, who disposes of as much reading matter (to the mills). as any one in the country, has removed from his old quarters at 25 Ann Street to number 44 of the same street.

NORWICH, N. Y.—E. L. Nash has bought the book and stationery business of B. Barber, who, we are sorry to learn, died March 7. Benjamin Barber was a bookseller of the old school, conscientious, and thoroughly liked by all who came in contact with him.

San Francisco, Cal.-F. W. & D. Barkbaus, booksellers and stationers, have dissolved pailnership.

SAN FRANCISCO, CAL.—On April 30, shortly before four o'clock in the afternoon, a fire broke out in the basement of L. & E. Emanuel's furniture establishment on Market Street, between Third and Fourth streets, and rapidly spread to A. L. Bancroft & Co.'s stationery and publishing establishment in the same building. Inside of an hour the building, which is five stories high, was gutted and the entire contents consumed. The fire spread to adjoining smaller buildings, a number of which, with their contents, were also destroyed. The total losses, according to an Associated Press dispatch, are estimated at $750,000, as follows. A. L. Bancroft & Co.. buildings, $120,000 ; insurance, $70,000 ; stock and plant, $400,000; insurance, $120,000. L. & E. Emanuel, stock, $120,000; insurance, $30, 000. Messrs. Bancroft & Co. request all publishers and manufacturers to send their catalogues as soon as possible. All who have been doing business with them are also requested to send duplicate invoices of rail shipments since Maich 15, and of clipper shipments since December ast. We feel confident that not a word of ours is needed to insure prompt action in this matter. Mesars. Bancroft have lost all their plant, and need, therefore, to be helped to the essentials for carrying on business at once. The pluck and well-known enterprise of this firm will no doubt enable them to straighten out their affairs and resume business in a very short time.

SCRANTON, PA.-We regret to hear of the death of R. M. Johnson, bookseller and sunder tioner. Mr. Johnson died of pneumonia, Apr so, at his home near Chester.

LITERARY AND TRADE NOTES.

THOMAS WHITTAKER will issue for summer reading a fifty-cent edition of Frederick Saunders's charming "Pastime Papers." It will be ready early this month.

THE CHEROUNY PRINTING AND PUB. Co., New York, have published a sketch of the adventures of two young Englishmen in New York, under the title of "So English."

THE TRUTH-SEEKER COMPANY have issued, under the title of "A Plea for Impartial Taxation," several speeches delivered before a committee of the New York Legislature in March last.

OWING to a clerical error, the price of Binn's "Orthographic Projection," published by E. & F. N. Spon, was given as 35 cents in the "Index to the April Record of Books." It should have been $3.50.

HOUGHTON, MIFFLIN & Co. announce that the volume on New York in the American Commonwealths series is to be written by the Hon. Ellis H. Roberts. Pennsylvania will be dealt with by Mr. Wayne MacVeagh.

THE AMERICAN STEAM BOILER INSURANCE Co., New York, have published a practical little book for owners, steam users, and engineers, entitled "Useful Things to Know about Steam Boilers," by G. B. N. Tower.

GEORGE A. W. CUMMING has published a neat chart containing sixty-four chess problems by some of the foremost chess players, compiled by the editor of Noah's Sunday Times. The diagrams are printed in red and black, forming a chess-board eighteen and a half inches square. The price is 50 cents.

THE SWEDENBORG PUBLISHING ASSOCIATION have published a little volume, entitled "The True Catholicism," by B. F. Barrett, in which the author sets forth the claims of Swedenborgianism, as he understands it, to be a sufficient basis for the union of all "broad-minded and open-hearted Christians."

A. D. WORTHINGTON & Co. Hartford, Conn., announce a new book by John B. Gough, completed shortly before his death, with a sketch of his life and career by Dr. Lyman Abbott. The book is entitled "Platform Echoes; or, Living Truths for Head and Heart." It will be published by subscription.

HENRY HOLT & Co. will publish in book form Thomas Hardy's "Mayor of Casterbridge," the author having revised it and changed some of the plot since the printing of the work serially was begun. They have also three other novels in hand for this month: "Whom God has Joined Together," by Mrs. Winslow Homer, and "Jacobi's Wife" and "No Saint," by Adelaide Sargeant, author of "Beyond Recall."

FREDERICK WARNE & Co. have just issued "The Fables of Pilpay" in their neat Chandos Classics series. The volumes in this series are admirably gotten up—printed in readable type on good white paper, and are bound uniformly in smooth, dark blue cloth, with white paper label printed in black and red. Messrs. Warne, if we remember aright, were among the first, if not the first, to publish classic literature in handy and cheap shape, and have done much for cheap reading by inducing others to follow in their footsteps.

GEORGE J. COOMBES will issue shortly the second volume of William Winter's dramatic series, to be entitled "The Stage Life of Mary Anderson." It will contain a biography of Mary Anderson supplemented by Mr. Winter's critical papers on the actress' various impersonations. The volume will contain several portraits of Miss Anderson. "Mr. Winter intends to continue this series," says the New York Tribune, and has already arranged his plans for volumes dealing with Edwin Booth, Miss Neilson, Ellen Terry and the Wallacks."

CASSELL & Co. have just ready the second volume of the series of Actors and Actresses of Great Britain and the United States, edited by Brander Matthews and Laurence Hutton. The authors contributing biographical and critical sketches to this volume are Robert W. Low, Joseph H. Ireland, William Archer, Brander Matthews, Laurence Hutton, Henry Gallup Paine, and Harold G. Henderson. The actors and actresses of whom the sketches are written and anecdoles told are George Frederick Cooke, Sarah Siddons, John Philip Kemble, Joseph Munden, Elizabeth Farren, Dora Jordan, Robert William Elliston, Charles Mathews, Charles Kemble, Thomas Abthorpe Cooper, John Liston, Charles Mayne Young, Eliza O'Neill, and William Henry West Betty.

ROBERT CLARKE & Co. announce that they have now in press "The Ohio Index-Digest." prepared by the Hon. John Welch, who ranks among the ablest judges that have sat on the Supreme Bench of Ohio. It partakes of the character both of an index and a digest, but indicates the exact points settled by the decisions with a fulness that makes it more of a digest than an index. The work is so systematically arranged, and black letter catch-words so used, as to make it a satisfactory and ready reference hand-book to the Ohio decisions of all the courts. Cross-references are avoided as much as possible, and in their stead repetitions are adopted. Judge Welch has given much time, study, and care to the preparation of this work, and has verified every entry after its completion. He thus gives, in a single volume of convenient size, a clear, compact, and reliable guide to all the points of law contained in the decisions of the courts. 25 reported and published in one hundred and fitteen volumes of Ohio reports and law periodicals. Several years have been devoted to the preparation of this work.

G. P. PUTNAM'S SONS will publish this month "A History of France under Mazarin, with a Sketch of the Administration of Richelieu," by John Breck Perkins. The work will be comprised in two volumes, printed in large octavo. and will contain photogravure portraits of Mazarin, Richelieu, Louis XIII., Anne of Austria, and Condé. The period described was one of no little importance with reference as well to the influence of France over Europe as to the material modifications it brought about in the organization of the French monarchy. The work begun by Richelieu was completed by Mazarin: and the forty years covered by the rule of the two cardinals include in their term the Treaty of the Pyrenees, the part played by France during the Thirty Years' War, and the picturesque struggie of the Fronde. The careful biographical studies of the two cardinals, of Conde, Turenne, Ren, Rochefoucauld, and also of Molière and Pastal add not a little to the personal increase 🛤

The author has had the opportunity of much original correspondence which has tofore come into print, and which will , in large part, new to both English and n scholars. Special attention has been the social life and customs of the times, reful analysis is presented of the finandition of the country and the financial of the Government. The next volume ory of the Nations series will be "The Germany," by the Rev. S. Baring-This contains a very full list of illustra-:luding portraits from Hermann (Roman own to the present Crown Prince. ILLAN & Co. will shortly publish a new ntitled "Dead or Alive," by the late onway.

Sonnenschein & Co. have in press a the subject of ground rents and builders, written with special reference to some of the more burning questions of the day, by C. H. Sargant.

CHATTO & WINDUS, London, will publish at once "A History of Ireland from the Union to the Introduction of Mr. Gladstone's Bill," by Justin Huntley M'Carthy, the son of the well-known author of "The History of Our Own Times."

SMITH, ELDER & Co. have just published the first volume of a pocket edition, in two volumes, of Thackeray's "Vanity Fair," the price of which is 1s. per volume. The booksellers, it is reported, have subscribed liberally for the edition, which is said to number 50,000 copies. The second volume will be ready a month later.

MR. SWINBURNE'S forthcoming volume of prose miscellanies, to be published by Chatto & Windus, includes his monograph on Mary Stuart, his account of Lamb's manuscript notes on Wither, and his criticisms of Chaucer, Spenser, Shakespeare's sonnets, Milton, Dryden, Pope, Congreve, Prior, Wordsworth, Byron, Landor, Keats, Tennyson, Musset, Emily Brontë, and Charles Reade.

"THE number of prettily printed and utterly twaddling little books of rhyme brought out in these days," says the New York Tribune, "is something calculated to rouse the most stolid reviewer to frenzy. What literary America particularly needs is a school of critics who will promulgate the doctrine that, while commonplace prose can be patiently, if sadly, endured, commonplace verse is criminal and has no appointed niche in the economy of nature and life." We say Amen to that with all our heart!

PUBLISHED MAY 8th:

Mrs. Burnett's Novels.

Messrs. Scribner take pleasure in announcing that, having become the publishers of all of Mrs. Frances Hodgson Burnett's works, they have begun the preparation of a new uniform library edition. It is hardly necessary to speak of the immense popularity of Mrs. Burnett's writings, or of the need which has so often been expressed of a uniform edition of her books in a form suitable for preservation upon the library shelves. The volumes now ready are:

THAT LASS O'LOWRIE'S.

a vol., 12mo, extra cloth, $1.25.

"The best original novel that has appeared in this country for many years."—Philadelphia Press.

A FAIR BARBARIAN.

1 vol., 12mo, extra cloth, $1.25.

"A particularly sparkling story, the subject being the young heiress of a Pacific silver-mine, thrown amid the very proper petty aristocracy of an English rural town."—Springfield Republican.

THE MIDGE.

By H. C. Bunner, author of "Airs from Arcady." 1 vol., 12mo, $1.00.

"Mr. Bunner writes so few books that any announcement of a new volume from his pen is especially welcome.

The Midge' is a story of one of the most interesting and least-known phases of New York life. The French quarter, with its odd characters and its Bohemianism, which Mr. Bunner pictures with much cleverness, offers a particularly effective background to his very charming love-story, told with the skill which the author has so often shown in his short ·stories.'

THE BOAT SAILER'S MANUAL.

By Lieut. EDWARD F. QUALTROUGH, U. S. N., author of "The Sailor's Handy Book." I vol., 8vo, illustrated. $2.00 net.

"A complete treatise on the management of sailing boats of all kinds, and under all conditions of weather; taining also concise descriptions of the various rigs in general use, at home and abroad, directions for handling sailing canoes, and 'the rudiments of cutter and sloop sailing.'

THE RIVERSIDE PAPER SERIES.

A LIST OF THE NEW ISSUES FOR THE

Summer of 1886,

TOGETHER WITH THOSE PUBLISHED DURING THE

Summer of 1885.

The success of "The Riverside Paper Series," first issued last Summer, was so great that Messrs. Houghton, Mifflin & Co. have been led to continue the series for the Summer of 1886. Its aim is to furnish a collection of novels by the best American authors, which will combine excellence of typography and the most attractive appearance, with small cost.

During the last year the issues in the collection included novels by ALDRICH, HOLMES, Howells, Miss Phelps, Bishop, and other well-known writers; and it will be seen that the programme for the Summer of 1886 contains volumes by authors of no less reputation. Of these, "Burglars in Paradise," by ELIZABETH STUART PHELPS—a continuation of "An Old Maid's Paradise," published last year—and "The Man Who Was Guilty," have never before been issued in book form; while the "Cruise of the Alabama," a narrative of the late war, and "Not in the Prospectus," are entirely new. All the volumes of this series are copyrighted, and can be had in cheap form only in this series.

What T. DeWITT TALMAGE and OTHERS say of Geo. Thos. Dowling's New Novel,

WRECKERS

SOCIAL STUDY.

Fourth Edition now ready. 12mo, cloth, $1.25.

- "The immediate success of 'The Wreckers,' by Geo. Thos. Dowling, does not surprise me, or I have watched him all along on his way to the front. Now he puts into the press a book Prilliant, life-like, unique, timely and useful. It is certain that, as an author, he will fully equal lis great power as a preacher."—T. DEWITT TALMAGE.
- "It is full of life and movement, and we fully expect to see it dramatized."—Philadelphia nquirer.
- "'The Wreckers' is a social study, dealing with humble types of life, with a thoroughly ascinating plot, and one elaborated with skill and ingenuity."—Boston Evening Traveller.
- "The story becomes intensely dramatic. The demand for it in this city has taken on the character of a rush."—Cleveland Plaindealer.
- "It is an excellent story, abounding in good lessons. In its romantic characters, fine Lescriptions, sarcasms without bitterness, with its friendly interwoven argument, the author Proves himself no novice, even if it is a first attempt at fiction."—Chicago Inter-Ocean.
- "A book like 'The Wreckers' will help better to a comprehension of our duties to each ther, and a proper understanding of the rights and needs of labor, than would volume upon bolume of essays on political and social economy."—Philadelphia Record.

FIRST VOLUME NOW READY.

Cyclopedia of Painters and Paintin

Edited by John D. Champlin, Jr. Critical Editor, Charles C. Perkins. volumes, quarto, with more than two thousand illustrations.

PRICE, $25.00 PER VOLUME.

MESSRS. CHARLES SCRIBNER'S SONS have the pleasure to announce the completion of which they believe to be the most important and comprehensive yet attempted in its fiel more than five years they have had in preparation an exhaustive Cyclopedia of Paint Paintings of All Times and Schools, a book of reference not only new in plan—since first to present a complete series of biographies of painters, a great dictionary of all well paintings themselves, and an extended bibliography of the art—but also more elaborate lustration and mechanical execution than any work of reference thus far devoted to the subtext being very fully supplemented by portraits, outlines of pictures, etc.

Edition limited to 500 numbered copies, containing fine full-page reproductions by photos etc., which will be used in these copies only.

MRS. BURNETT'S NOVELS.

Messrs. Scribner take pleasure in announcing that, having become the publishers of all of Mrs. Frances Hodgson Burnett's works, they have begun the preparation of a new uniform library edition. It is hardly necessary to speak of the immense popularity of Mrs. Burnett's writings, or of the need which has so often been expressed of her books in a form suitable for preservation upon the library shelves.

The volumes now ready are:

THAT LASS O' LOWRIE'S.

One vol., 12mo, extra cloth, $1.25.

A FAIR BARBARIAN.

One vol., 12mo, extra cloth, $1.25.

THE MIDGE.

By H. C. Bunner, author of "Airs from Arcadia." I vol., 12mo, $1.00.

Mr. Bunner writes so few books that any announcement of a new volume from his pen is especially welcome. "The Midge" is a story of one of the most interesting and least-known phases of New York life. The French quarter, with its odd characters and its Bohemianism, which Mr. Bunner pictures with such cleverness, offers a particularly effective background to his very charming love-story, told with the skill which the author has so often shown in his short stories.

THE LATE MRS. NULL.

By Frank R. Stockton, author of "Rudder Grange," "The Lady, or the Tiger?" etc. 1 vol., 12mo, $1.50.

"The only unfavorable criticism we ever heard promounced upon the short stories of Mr. Frank R. Stockton was that they were short. It is a pleasure to take up for the first time a book in which he treats the reader fairly in respect to quantity."—New York Sun.

NOTES IN SEASON.

Prof. Arthur Sherburne Hardy's new novel, The Wind of Destiny."

WM. S. GOTTSBERGER publishes to-day "The ng's Treasure House," a romance of ancient typt, by Wilhelm Walloth, translated from the man by Mary J. Safford.

Porter & Coates have just published a new ition of the "American Angler's Book," by Laddeus Norris, with a characteristic portrait the author, and a memoir by his intimate end, Joseph B. Townsend.

The Mystery of Pain," by James Hinton, D., a work written in a clear and forcible rie, free from technical terms, containing any good and cheering thoughts, and sheding a ray of light on many of the dark phases human life. Dr. James R. Nichols has prefied the work with an admirable introduction. Ley have also ready a third edition of "Light the Path," a treatise written for the use of the who are ignorant of the wisdom of the stand desire to enter within its influence.

MORRATS BROS. will publish on the 20th lingshie Grandet," by Honoré de Balzac, unleg the fourth volume in their issue of Balzac's works; "Constance of Acadia," the first of the new series of historical novels to be published anonymously, and to be known as the Old Colony Series; "Hours with German Classics," by Frederic Henry Hedge, D.D., author of "Primeval World of Hebrew Tradition," etc.; and a new edition of "A Shadow of Dante, being an essay toward studying himself, his world, and his pilgrimage," by Maria Francesca Rossetti.

CASSELL & COMPANY publish to-day the longpromised volume of "Representative Poems of Living Poets." There have been some delays in the publication of this volume, but they were delays that the public will profit by, as they arose from the great care that has been taken in the making of the book. There are eighty poets, English and American, represented, and there are two hundred and ninety-eight poems. These cover seven hundred and twelve pages, exclusive of the introduction by George P. Lathrop, The publishers have preface, and indexes. spared no pains to make the volume as handsome typographically as its importance in contemporary literature demands.

FORDS, HOWARD & HULBERT will publish at once a new volume on "Southern California," by T. S. Van Dyke, better known as "The Still Hunter" from his book of that title. It is the result of twelve years' experience in that southern country, during which time almost every acre of the ground, from the San Joaquin to Lower California and from the Pacific to Arizona, has been traversed by the author, on foot with rifle in hand. He writes from a full mind after careful observation of the climate, the seasons, the mountains, valleys and streams, the flora and fauna, the hunting and fishing, the farming and fruit raising, the vineyards and gardens and their productions, the climate for invalids, and numberless other features of the The book is an attempt to tell the plain, unvarnished truth about Southern California, and for this if nothing else it will be welcomed. Mr. Van Dyke's graphic style is well-known by the readers of his other books, "The Still Hunter" and "The Rifle, Rod and Gun in California," and his descriptive talent and humor have in "Southern California" a capital field.

TICKNOR & Co. will publish on the 18th inst. The Saunterer," by Charles Goodrich Whiting, a volume of dainty little essays and studies, chiefly about the varied charms of nature. The author is on the editorial staff of the Springfield Republican. "The Familiar Letters of Peppermint Perkins," just issued, is a series of papers touching pretty sharply and wittily upon fashion, society customs, personal frivolity, and ridiculous pretensions generally. They are original, bright, and breezy, and their satire quiet but brilliant. "Red-Nosed Frost," translated in the original metres from the Russian of N. A. Nekrasov, is a capital rendering of this delightful poem. On the lest-hand pages the Russian original is given in Russian type, and on the right-hand pages is printed the English translation. "New England Sunday" (volume iii. of Olden-Time Series) is a delightful little volume, depicting the Sunday of long ago. They have also ready new revised editions of their American guide books—" New England," "The White Mountains," and "The Maritime Provinces," which are desirable companions for the summer tourist.

Abbott, Lyman. In aid of faith. N. Y., E. P. Dutton & Co., 1886. 3-188 p. D. cl., $1.

"The title of this book indicates its purpose. It is written in order to give aid to these who desire to hold fast to their faith, but find intellectual and moral difficulties in so doing. . . It is not so much an attempt to prove the truths of Christianity by logical processes, as to state them in thinkable form. . . It is not so much philosophical as it is personal. It is the record not so much of studies pursued in books as of experiences wrought in my own spirit and in my own thinking."—Preface.

A most interesting study of Moravianism. The story A most interesting study of Moravianism. The story is located in the village of Judea, a Moravian settlement of Pennsylvania, and begins some fifty or mora years back. The heroise is a charming creation, and though her father is a Moravian, her beart is not in the religion. The Moravian method of chosing a wife by "lot" is the heart of the plot. The ordeal that Constance Van Cleef goes through is quite dramatic and pictured with remarkable power. It is the Moravian minister, Mr. Kentor, who is the hero of the "victorious defeat." After obtaining all his heart desires, his better nature conquers, and he yields up his desires, his better nature conquers, and he yields up his claim to Constance, who has been awarded his by "lot."

The opening is ful, of promise. It is in a private box at a London theatre during the last act of "Much ade about nothing," in which Irving and Miss Terry have been enchanting a brilliant audience. We are at ounderstand that fashionable, dashing Leslie Beaton is figuratively on his "last legs," regarding money, and must marry an heiress, without much loss of time, if he wishes to continue in society. A heartless scheme growing out of a newspaper advertisement is concocted by the party, and Leslie is soon brought face to face with his heiress. She is a pretty, yielding little girl, innocent of the plot of which she is almost the victim. The story takes place almost entirely in fashionable London life, its vices and frivolities being well shown up.

RNATIONAL AND COLONIAL IGHT BILL IN ENGLAND.

the London Athenaum, April 24.

time ago there seemed to be a fair the Government would bring in a ling with the whole subject of copyinfluential deputation from the Insociety of Authors and the Copyright explained their views to the Board of were encouraged to hope that the was ready to take up the matter laid down in the bill prepared by body. This, however, seems to bund impossible; and in order not t in the cold when the International laion is formed, and also, we imagto be in a position to meet any advances made by the United States, the Government has found it necessary to bring in and press forward a short International Copyright As things stand, this is, perhaps, as much as could be expected. The Government has its hands full, and is justified in dealing only with that part of the subject which is of the most immediate importance. bill such as is required for the whole subject would be of considerable extent, and would no doubt entail a large amount of discussion; for, however carefully it might be framed, it could not meet the views of every one on a matter touching so many interests, and concerning which there are differences of opinion on matters of detail even among those who agree on the main But, although we recognize that principles. the Government is justified in adopting its present course, it is to be hoped that this bill will not be in any way accepted as a precedent for future legislation, or considered as more than a stopgap. We know by experience what are the evils which result from piecemeal legislation on this subject, and if the existing law is merely to be patched up first in one place and then in another, as opportunity offers or emergency requires, it had better be left alone altogether. What is required is a measure which shall collect the whole of the existing law into one act, modifying and correcting it where necessary, but in any case putting an end to the present state of confusion. That this can be done there is no doubt—indeed it has been practically done in the bill prepared by the Incorporated Society of Authors—and that it should be done nobody acquainted with the matter will attempt to deny.

The present bill merely authorizes Her Majesty to exercise the powers given to her by the previous International Copyright acts for the purpose of joining the Copyright Union, and repeals those provisions of the former acts which are inconsistent with the conclusions of the Berne Conserence. These principally refer to registration and deposit, formalities which are no longer to be required for foreign works. With respect to translations, the author is to enjoy the exclusive right for the full period of copyright, provided only that he publish a translation within ten years from the publication of the original work. This is great extension of the present right, and we cannot help thinking that it is more than is required. The period named by the Berne Conference as that during which the exclusive right of translation should be reserved to the author was ten years only, and in a former article we gave our reasons for thinking that this limitation was advisable in the interests of the public. No doubt it may be said that if this country joins the Copyright Union, any limitation of the rights of foreign authors will have to be applied to native authors as well. But the native author would lose by the extension of the rights of foreigners in this direction as much as he would gain by the extension of his own; and in any case a fair balance should be struck between the rights of authors, whether native or foreign, and the needs of the public. The only other point in this part of the bill which seems to call for special notice is the clause giving it a retrospective effect. Foreign works produced before as well as after the date of any Order in Council will be protected if they still enjoy copyright in their own country. This principle was recommended by the Berne Conference; and as the protection will not prevent the sale of copies made, or in any way apply to anything done, before the date of the Order in Council, it does not seem that any real hardship will be inflicted. But the clause will no doubt raise considerable opposition among publishers, especially publishers of music, who deal extensively in foreign works.

Besides the international question the bill has one or two clauses on colonial copyright, the most important point being that the protection of the copyright acts is extended to works first produced in the colonies. This was recommended by the Royal Commission, and is a step in the right direction. The real difficulty, however, as to the supply of literature for the colonies and the admission of foreign reprints is not touched; indeed, the provision in the bill that the International Copyright acts are to apply to all the colonies not expressly excluded by any Order in Council would only seem to make the matter worse. We believe, however, that the colonial authorities were consulted before this clause was brought forward, and it is to be hoped that by the time the complete copyright bill is introduced a satisfactory solution of the whole difficulty will have been arrived at.

As we take it for granted that this measure is only a temporary one, which will be repealed when the whole subject is dealt with, it would be idle to enter into a more minute criticism of its details. It seems unfortunate that it should be necessary to add another item to the confused mass of legislation on copyright; but as this necessity is caused by the formation of the International Copyright Union, and by the prospect of establishing the rights of English authors in the United States, it can hardly be regretted. The measure dealing with the entire subject is only postponed for a time, and meanwhile authors may congratulate themselves on the advance which has been made toward a proper recognition of their rights both at home and abroad.

MR. O. B BUNCE'S REMINISCENCES OF THE BOOK TRADE.

MR. O. B. BUNCE, one of the patriarchs of the book trade, was recently interviewed by a reporter of the Mail and Express. In discussing the present condition of the book trade, Mr. Bunce's opinion was that "the business in some respects has greatly changed within the past few years. The demand for educational works, for cyclopædias, dictionaries, and books of information is enormous and greater than ever before; but for miscellaneous works, fiction, essays, poetry, books of taste, for what may be called pure literature, there is a very small sale; I think smaller than ever." He also was of the opinion that the reading public that call for such books is absolutely smaller in numbers to-day than it was some years ago, and that the business "of publishing such books isn't worth following; there is really no money in it; it is only the exceptional book that pays."

When asked how he accounted for this state of things, Mr. Bunce replied:

"For the most part by the enormous growth of the newspapers, especially the Sunday papers with their huge supplements, and the magazines. In regard to cheap reprints, I think the estimate of their influence in the matter is a mistaken one. This rivalry in the trade is no new thing. We | mation is immediately accessible by the simplici have had it since about 1844, when the Harpers | ity of its arrangement. Both biographical will began to publish their paper-covered edition of Bulwer's and G. P. R. James's novels at twentyfive cents a number. These were intrinsically cheaper than the twenty-cent Seaside edition, and had an immense sale. Then the mammoth weekly papers, the Brother Jonathan and the New World, were started to furnish cheap reprints of foreign works. In this way the American public first read Dickens and Lever and other popular writers of the day. Winchester, who owned the New World newspaper, was a powerful competitor of the Harpers, but there was no American News Company in those days, and the Harpers' facilities for distribution gave them an immense advantage. So the business of the regular publishers continued to flourish, and about the year 1855, I think, there was a more active publication and a larger sale of American literature than there is to-day. John P. Jewett & Co.'s enormous sale of 'Uncle Tom's Cabin' was, of course, phenomenal; but a hundred thousand copies of "The Lamplighter" were sold, and Scribner had a great success with lk Marvel's "Reveries of a Bachelor" and his other works, and Headley's "Napoleon and his Marshals." Of Ik Marvel's works 75,000 volumes had been sold in 1856. Kane's "Arctic Expedition" also had a large sale. You would be surprised to hear the number of copies sold of the most successful novel of the past year and compare its meagre showing with these figures. And at the time I speak of, the demand for 🛤 low-priced editions of standard works which were issued was enormous. The Harpers and a Boston house published the works of Macanlay and Gibbon and other standard authors, handsomely bound in cloth, at the retail price of thirty cents a volume.

To the question, "Hasn't the number of publishers in that line decreased since then?" Mr.

Bunce replied:

"Yes; eight houses that do not exist to-day were at that time actively engaged in publishing popular American books, and I can count but four that replace them.

"The retail bookstores also were then more numerous and prosperous all over the county than at any time since. But they have graduse ly been killed off, or have been obliged to combine bookselling with the sale of wall-paper and other merchandise. The great establishmens like Macy's and Wanamaker's undersell the small bookseller, and the newspapers and mughzines supplied by mail or by the newsdealers help to ruin his business. The orders which the publishers get from the booksellers have dwindled to very small proportions. Many who formerly were good customers now buy nothing."

A NEW CYCLOPÆDIA OF ART.

CHARLES SCRIBNER'S Sons have just published the first volume of the "Cyclopædia of Painters and Paintings," an exhaustive work, which its projectors believe will take a novel and standard place among authorities on its subject. They found this claim upon its comprehensiveness, authority, arrangement, and bibliography. It is said to be not only a fuller biographical dictionary than now exists of the painters of all times and schools, including prominent contemporaries, but it is as well a dic tionary of works; and in both forms the inforive articles are based upon close research, its being derived from the latest monin all languages and latest catalogues of is and collections, so that the informaen is the best and fullest possible up to The biographical and de-1, 1886. : articles are combined under a single i, enabling readers with no knowledge l-known painting, other than the name, to it and trace its history to its author, der the author the names of paintings found with words of titles italicized, to a glance which pictures have separate A bibliography is appended to icle, embracing besides English works odicals those in French, German, Italnish, Dutch, and Danish. NOTES ON AUTHORS.

EDNA LYALL, the author of "Donovan," it is said, is not in reality Miss "Lyall," but Miss Bailey.

CHARLES STUART PARNELL has written a novel entitled "Lady Drusilla." People who have read it in manuscript declare that it is a psychological study of marked power and originality.

It is reported in Paris that Edmund Goncourt has consented to publish a portion, at least, of his "Memoirs des Frères de Goncourt," and that it will appear during the summer.

Henry Clews, the banker, says the N. Y. Star, has been at work for some time upon a volume of his reminiscences of Wall Street and the famous men who have been conspicuous in the financial world. The book will be issued in July under the title of "Twenty-Eight Years' Experience in Wall Street." The volume is to be illustrated with a large number of portraits.

JOURNALISTIC NOTES.

PHILIP GILBERT HAMERTON will begin in the July Atlantic a series of papers illustrating the contrast between English and French life.

Skandia is the title of a new illustrated magazine intended for circulation among the Scandinavians. The second number has already been issued.

PROF. SIMON NEWCOMB contributes to the current issue of The Independent the first of a series of articles on the labor question, addressed to the common sense of the common people.

MRS. MARY E. BLAKE, who as "M. E. B." is a well-known literary women of Boston, is the author of the graceful stanza on the title-page of "May," which D. Lothrop & Co. publish.

HEBRON, NEB.—Downer & Green, book-sellers and stationers, have been succeeded by Heddington & Green.

KNOXVILLE, TENN. — Samuel Hensel has been admitted to the firm of Ogden Brothers & Co., wholesale and retail booksellers.

NEW YORK CITY.—Phillips & Sons, dealers in old and new books formerly at 80 Fourth Avenue, have gone out of the business. They have taken a cottage at Asbury Park, where they will remain for a year at least.

PITTSTON, PA.—E. S. Barnes, bookseller and stationer, is advertising to sell out.

SAN FRANCISCO, CAL.—A. L. Bancrost & Co. have taken temporary offices at 110 Ceary Street for transacting general business. The office of their manufacturing department is located at top of Sol. Wangenheim's Building, south-east corner Sacramento and Davis streets, entrance on Sacramento Street, where their lithographing and label department has been for the past four years. Parties who had unfilled orders at 721 Market Street are requested to surnish duplicate copy and instructions to the office, corner Sacramento and Davis streets.

Springfield, O.-J. D. Hartney, bookseller and stationer, has sold out.

TROY, N. Y.—The co-partnership existing heretofore between Henry B. Nims, Henry T. Smith, and Joseph Knight has been dissolved by mutual consent, Mr. Smith retiring. Messrs. Nims and Knight will continue the business under the firm name of Nims & Knight.

UNION CITY, TENN.—R. S. Littleton, book-seller, has sold out.

NOTES ON CATALOGUES.

Williamson & Co., Toronto, have issued "A Catalogue of a valuable collection of books and pamphlets relating to Canada and America, with a list of native Canadian books." (40 p. 12°.)

ROBERT CLARKE & Co. have just issued in a separate pamphlet the list of books and pamphlets on the Rebellion and some Confederate publications, which will form part of their "Americana Catalogue for 1886." This latter may be expected next month. (30 p. 12°.)

HENRY ALTEMUS, (The Philadelphia Bible Warehouse), 507 to 513 Cherry Street, Philadelphia, has issued a handsomely illustrated catalogue of his various lines of Family, Pulpit and Reference Bibles, and of his Photograph Albums. His line of Bibles now comprises cheap editions for domestic reading, illustrated fine editions, a new illustrated German Bible (Luther's translation), and new royal and imperial quarto Oxford Bibles. These are all printed in large type on superior paper, and bound in styles to suit the numblest as well as most refined tastes. The text and aids to study, such as commentaries, references, etc., as goes without saying, is the standard, and scholarly in every particular. His line of Photograph Albums for cabinet and cartede-visite pictures are bound in fine silk plush, scalskin and Russia, and in moroccos, with beautiful gold bevel mats, a feature patented by this house.

Dodd's "American Cattle Doctor" was recorded in a recent auction sale catalogue as Dodd's "American Cataloguer," and the collector of bibliography no doubt got a bargain when he secured this heretofore unheard-of treasure for five cents.

A LITERARY COMPANION FOR THE SEASON.

PUBLISHED BY

The remainder of this space is occupied by the retailer's imprint. For terms see advertising page.

SEASON OF 1886.

To RETAIL DEALERS:

The Summer Catalogue, issued now for nine years, has been found so useful and profitable t enterprising dealers, that it has become a regular feature of the trade. The tenth issue, in special pamphlet adapted for imprint circulation all through the summer, will be published; -connection with THE PUBLISHERS' WEEKLY, early in June.

The imprint editions will contain, in addition to a catalogue of guide-books and light literature f summer reading, an entirely new selection of reading matter both of a practical and entertaining the acter, chiefly intended for the use and amusement of tourists, pleasure-seekers, and visitors of summ resorts.

Booksellers should remember that, while summer is usually a dull time, the sales of lig literature, etc., can be pushed to make a successful business even in this season. The class who travel are of course those who have money to spend, even in dull times, and the summer the time when very many bookbuyers do the greater part of their reading. The tide of trav this year is likely to set toward home resorts, instead of across sea. Booksellers at or ne summer resorts should therefore especially avail themselves of this publication, while city deale should remember that it will be also useful to tempt stay-at-homes to make investments or follow up customers otherwise out of reach.

Orders for imprint editions at subscription rates should be sent i at once.

WILL PUBLISH SATURDAY, MAY 29:

THE WIND OF DESTINY.

A Novel, by Arthur Sherburne Hardy, author of "But Yet a Woman." 1 vo 16mo, $1.25.

The great success won by Mr. Hardy's previous novel two years ago causes his newstor to be awaited with eager anticipations. The scene is partly in Europe, partly in America. The novel has a broader scope than the earlier story, and has a deeper vein of thought, a firmer style and even a more absorbing interest than "But Yet a Woman," and is certain to have a large sale

THE TRANSFIGURATION OF CHRIST.

By F. W. Gunsaulus. 1 vol. 16mo, $1.25.

CONTENTS: The Nature and Method of Christian Thinking; The Time of the Transfiguration; The Place of the Transfiguration; The Transfigured Christ; The Appearance of Moses The Appearance of Elias; Jesus Only; The Transfiguration and the Resurrection.

This is a fresh and engaging book on a theme which appeals strongly to the religious imagination of mankind. It is original, scholarly and reverent, and cannot fail to interest those whom its subject attracts.

OLD SALEM.

By ELEANOR PUTNAM. 1 vol. 16mo, $1.00.

This little book contains three articles which have appeared in the Atlantic Monthly: Ol Salem Shops, A Salem Dame-School, and Salem Cupboards; in addition, Two Salem Institutions, and My Cousin the Captain, and an Introduction by Mr. Arlo Bates. The essays at written from a familiar knowledge of what is unique and curiously engaging in Salem usages an traditions, and in a singularly charming style. They ought to find a large circle of readers.

CONTENTS: Lest Over from the Last Century; A House of Entertainment; Accidentall Overheard; A Hard Bargain; A Story of the Siege of Boston; Matthew, Mark, Luke and John

Do not Even the Publicans the Same? Nobody's Business.

"If among American writers there is a greater master of quiet humor than Mr. H. E. Scut der, the author of the eight pieces in this volume, we have not had the good fortune to commacross that gifted individual. We defy the sourcest face not to wear a smile after finishing either of the stories and romances in this book. Moreover, under the guise of simplicity the stories are constructed with excellent wit."—New York Evening Mail.

IN PRIMROSE TIME.

A New Irish Garland. By SARAH M. B. PIATT, author of "A Voyage to the Fortunate Isles," etc. 12mo, gilt top, $1.00.

Irish scenes, associations, and traditions stimulate the unquestionable poetic genius of Mt Piatt. This new volume contains poems on "An Irish Fairy Story," "An Emigrant Singit from a Ship," "Birds-Nesting in Ireland," "The Legend of Monkstowa," "The Ivy of Ireland and others, marked by the originality, vigor, and lyrical felicity which have made Mrs. Piatt previous volumes so welcome to lovers of true poetry.

NEW PUBLICATIONS:

Marion's Faith.

A SEQUEL TO "THE COLONEL'S DAUGHTER." By Captain CHARLES KING, U.S.A., author of "The Colonel's Daughter," "Kitty's Conquest," etc. 12mo, extra cloth, $1.25.

The Boston Literary World says of Captain King's former novel, of which this is a sequel: "There have been a American novels published of late years so thoroughly readable as 'The Colonel's Daughter." There are brilliant aures of garrison life, a taste of fighting and adventure, and a chivalrous love-affair, interwoven with clever sketches of litary types. The style is bright, the dialogue simple and natural, the heroine a charming creature, with just a spice of Ifulness, and the favorite lieutenant one of those fortunate fellows whom most men envy and many women admire." se present story promises to be equally brilliant and entertaining.

Violetta. A New Translation by Mrs. Wister.

A Romance. After the German of Ursula Zöge von Manteuffel. 12mo, extra cloth, $1.25.

"'Violetta' is not a whit less worthy than any of the previous Wister translations. In brief, this novel is thoroughly arming, and should receive a wide and growing circle of readers."—St. Louis Republican.

NOTES IN SEASON.

LOTHROP & Co. announce for early pubin "Uncle Titus," a story for children and ose who love children, from the German lanna Spyri, by Lucy Wheelock.

BLAKISTON, SON & Co. will publish very a translation of the "Lehrbuch der Frauenheiten" (Diseases of Women,) by Prof. F. cel. The book contains a number of very llustrations, and, by arrangement with the r, the American edition will be edited and d.

APPLETON & Co. will publish immediately, International Scientific series, a work on hquakes and Other Earth Movements," by Milne, Professor of Mining and Geology Imperial College of Engineering, Tokio, . "The First Earl of Shaftesbury," the addition to the English Worthies series; lanual of Mechanics," an elementary text-lesigned for students of applied mechan7. M. Gordon; a new edition of George

L. Raymond's "Modern Fishers of Men," a tale of the various sexes, sects, and sets of Chartville Church and community; and a novel by Edward Jenkins, the author of "Ginx's Baby," entitled "The Secret of Her Life."

T. Y. CROWELL & Co. will publish at once a work of importance on the labor question in America by Prof. Ely, of Johns Hopkins University, who is recognized as an authority on the subject. He has given to the preparation of this work much time and thought, and has no doubt produced a work of enduring value to all parties interested in this question. Crowell have in preparation a work of fiction which touches this subject from a Russian point of view, entitled "A Vital Question, or, What is to be Done?" by Nikoliai Garrilovitch Tchernuishevsky, translated from the Russian by Nathan Haskell Dole. The author of this work, a noted Russian liberalist, was banished to Siberia for his liberalistic ideas, and his book has been forbidden in Russia. It is secretly circulated, however, and is immensely popular there as well as in Germany.

Houghton, Mifflin & Co. will publish May 29 a new novel by Professor Hardy, whose previous story, "But Yet a Woman," was so remarkably popular. The new story bears a singular title, "The Wind of Destiny," which is intended to hint at the tremendous, almost fateful power one individual may exert over another. story is partly American in scene, partly European, and wholly bracing, spirited, and interesting. At the same time will appear "In Primrose Time: a New Irish Garland," a thin, tasteful book of excellent new poems by Mrs. S. M. B. Piatt; "The Transfiguration of Christ," a small book of real interest and thoughtfulness, by Rev. F. W. Gunsaulus, formerly of Massachusetts, now of Baltimore; "Old Salem," a series of charming essays about quaint facts and customs and people in Salem, Mass., by Mrs. Arlo Bates, who wrote under the pseudonym of Eleanor Putnam, and whose husband prefixes an introduction; and as the third number of the Riverside Paper series for this season, "Stories and Romances," a book of eight excellent short stories, by Horace E. Scudder.

HARPER & Bros. will publish shortly a story of love on the verandas and among the barracks of Old Point Comfort under the title of "Barbara's Vagaries," by Mrs. M. L. Tidball, wife of Gen. J. C. Tidball of Fortress Monroe; "East Angels," by Constance F. Woolson, which has been published serially in Harper's Magazine; "Joe's Opportunity," and "Rolf House," two capital stories of girl life by Mrs. Lucy C. Lillie; and a volume on salmon fishing by Henry P. Wells, author of "Fly Rods and Fly Tackle," which will contribute much information on that subject, based on personal experience on the salmon streams of Canada. They have in preparation a volume on the labor question, comprising contributions by a number of writers who have had special opportunities of viewing the subject from various and practical standpoints; Prof. Franz von Reber's "History of Mediæval Art," a companion volume to his work on ancient art; J. C. Collins's "Life of Lord Bolingbroke," and Prof. J. H. Thayer's "Greek Lexicon of the New Testament," a work which has been some ten years in preparation, and which, it is thought, will take the first rank among its class.

Adams, Sebastian C. A chronological chart of ancient, modern, and biblical history; synchronized by S. C. Adams; with maps of the world's great empires drawn by Prof. J. A. Paine. 5th ed., rev. and enl. and brought down to 1883. N. Y., Colby & Co., 1886. 14 in. x 28 in. folded map, book form, pap. and cl., $10; on rollers, $15; in portfolio

The chart or map is in chromo-lithograph, mounted on canvas, and is about 25 ft. long by 21/2 ft. wide. The length of the chart is divided by perpendicular lines into the fifty-nine centuries and their decades; across these century spaces pass from left to right colored lines or streams that represent the different historic nations (and lives of the patriarchs), and change their color to indicate every change of rulers; these streams divide, subdivide, unite, or disappear according to the record of the nation represented; thus every nation, with its consecutive rulers and all the leading facts of history, are placed upon a fixed scale and presented to the eye in their proper relations as to time, just as, geographically, a map locates towns, rivers, and countries. Meridians intersect places of the same longitude, in the same manner that century and decade lines on this chart mark contemporaneous nations, rulers and events. The origin of nation, their grand march through the centuries, and their final overthrow are prominent features of the chart, while the confused mass of dates and events that usually comprises our knowledge of history is so sifted and synchronized by it, so lighted with colors, models and illustrations, that the centuries of the past seem transformed into individual realities marked with their peculiar characteristics.

The scene alternates from Winmere to London, England. At the former place we first meet the heroine, Edith Dayton, after a quarrel with her betrothed; this is followed by a reconciliation; then Edith puts into execution her threat to visit London, where she meets Laurence Neale. Some strange complications ensue, and the reader becomes interested in the several love affairs of Laura Vale, Lady Mona, and Saifie Ahedon before Edith's romance shapes itself satisfactorily. The peccadilloes of some of the characters do not lessen the interest in the story, and they certainly add truth to the picture of English society-life.

Behrends, A. J. F., D. D. Socialism and Christianity. N. Y., Baker & Taylor, [1886.]

11+308 p. D. cl., $1.50.

The material comprised in this volume was first used in a series of lectures delivered before the students of the Hartford Theological Seminary. Some of the questions with which socialism deals, such as the rights of labor, the responsibilities and restrictions of wealth, the sources and cure of pauperism, the origin of crime and its proper treatment, and the true doctrine of family life, are critically discussed from the standpoint of a Christian minister, modern socialism being found to be "the enemy of religion and of the family, and so the enemy of man." Opens with a brief historical and descriptive sketch of socialistic phases and methods. The writer is paster of Central Congregational Church, Brooklyn, N. Y.

Fifteen sermons, prefaced by a biographical sketch of Dr. Blake, who died in 1884, while in charge of a most important parish at Taunton, Mass. The sermons are practical and show ripe scholarship and original turns of thought and expression. The writer of the preface mys "he skilfully avoided the seaweed and barnacles of profitless speculation, and dropped his lead where it was sure to fasten itself upon a priceless pearl." For this reason the title "Soundings" has been given to the book.

The mystery around which the plot revolves is one which had separated a husband and wife for many years. The husband, who was supposed to be dead, lived under an assumed name in an out-of-the-way part of England, his son living with him. It is this boy who tells the stery. Becoming wearied of his lonely life, he begs his father to let him go to Oxford. Once launched upon the world, chance brings him to London and in contact with his mother, there being of course no recognition between the pair. How the misunderstanding occurred between the boy's parents and how they are finally reconciled are well told.

The quotation from Tennyson, which serves as a title, also shows the drift of the story. That "Faith and unfaith can ne'er be equal powers" is illustrated in the married life of Vere Danvers, a young English artist, born of a good family, whose wife, Carmen Mendes, is a wonderfully beautiful Spanish girl, whom he met at Boisyla-Reine, a little French town, where his cousin Psyche has been at school. Carmen's passionate nature and natural coquetry almost makes a tragedy of their lives.

On the voyage to England the hero is drowned but the wife saved. After suffering the direct poverty, she finally marries a very bad man, who, upon the death of her first husband's child, endeavors to pain off his own daughter on the English and Spanish relations of his wife. The plot is involved, and there are two villains who lie, steal or murder whenever their behames require it. The sister of the hero is the good gonius of the very sensational story.

683 p. O. cl., 85.

The idea of this compilation, it appears from the pref-ace, first suggested itself to Miss Jeannette L. Gilder, although her name does not appear on the title-page. She did the work, however, of selecting a number of the best poems of each poet, and submitting the list to the poet him-self or herself for final choice. In many cases her choice was approved, in others the poet designated special pieces by which he preferred to be represented. The collection is unique in its way, and has all the attraction of novelty. Eighty poets are represented by three hundred poems, which we feel confident are the best work they have done, at least in the majority of cases. Of counte the limitations of space precluded all thought of accepting long poems.

The Senate Committee on Patents, we understand, has agreed to report with a few modifications the copyright bill which early in the session of Congress was introduced by Senator Chace, of Rhode Island. As finally agreed upon the bill provides for giving to foreign authors copyright in the United States upon the condition that thebooks shall be printed in this country; and the importation of foreign copyrighted books is prohibited. We confess that, whatever elements of success this measure may once have had, here seems to be now little probability that action will be secured upon it during the present ession—in fact, we doubt whether it will find a lace on the calendar at all.

THE INTERNATIONAL LITERARY AND ARTISTIC SSOCIATION will not hold its next congress at ockholm this year, as had been arranged, but Geneva, on the 18th of September. The subcts to be discussed will comprise the right of operty in "lettres missives;" the agreements to publication and the relations between thors and publishers; the right of property in titles of literary and scientific productions; at the assimilation of the right of translation ith that of production.—Academy.

JUSTICE TO AUTHORS.

A. G. McClurg has written a vigorous and clear argument for copyright under the above title, which is printed in the May issue of The Dial, and which will prove profitable reading for all interested in the subject. We must content ourselves for the present with the following extract, but hope to be able to recur to the article in some future issue:

"... We have thought, perhaps, that we could justly fling back the Englishman's fierce words, and could say If our hands are foul, yours are not clean; if there is piracy going on you are doing your full share of it, and are as guilty as we.

"It is hard for an American to be compelled to say that this conclusion is not true. No matter what stealing is going on on either side of the ocean, we alone are responsible. We are to blame for the robbery of our own authors in England as much as for the spoliation of English authors in America. England has done all in her power to stop it, and only asks our co-operation. The law of Great Britain to-day grants the privileges of copyright—that is, of ownership, in Great Britain to the authors of all countries whose laws grant the same privileges in their own territories to the authors of Great Britain. Should we to-day pass an act giving copyright in the United States on similar conditions to the citizens of other countries, an order in council would immediately be issued by the Queen giving to all American authors the same rights in Great Britain that her own authors now enjoy. The English law now recognizes the right of the author to ownership in his works the world over. It only remains for our law to reach the same high level, and the whole shameful wrong, so far as this country and Great Britain are concerned, will end at once. She has done all she can; and now she only waits for us to be as just as she, and pass a similar law, and, by that act, we will secure the rights of the authors of both nations. Can it be that this is known? Does it need more than a plain statement of this situation to the American people, and a plain understanding of it by them, in order that our law shall establish justice for our own and foreign authors, as it establishes justice for all other owners of property?

"The Hawley international copyright law, now pending in Congress, if passed, will do this. Can there be any reasons why it should not be passed? There is much opposition; and some reasons are given, but they may practically be summed up in this one objection: It would not be expedient. We must have cheap books, no matter how we get them. The information, the enlightenment, and the culture which come from books are too great a boon to stop at a little matter of honesty in their acquisition, We would not steal bread and beef for the starving, nor clothes for the naked, nor medicines for the sick, nor coffins for the dead; but we must feed our hungry minds and our aspiring souls on cheap novels, cheap and elevating poetry, cheap and heavenly sermons, even though they be stolen. What rubbish to put honesty against enlightenment!

"The right is always expedient, although it may not always seem so. The dishonest man and the dishonest nation always sacrifice more than they gain, although the loss cannot always be so easily shown, as we believe it can be in this case.

ANSON D. F. RANDOLPH & CO.— A RETROSPECT.

A. D. F. RANDOLPH & Co., as already noted in brief, have removed to a larger and more commodious store on the south side of West 23d Street, at number 38. The interior arrangement of the new premises has been modelled on the plan of the old store so endeared to the hearts of scholars, clergymen, teachers, and literary connoisseurs for upward of ten years. The greatest attraction of that well-stocked bookstore was always the genial, scholarly head, and it goes without saying that, under his direction, the new quarters will soon assume the inviting, home-like look always mentioned by those fortunate enough to spend some of their choicest hours in the companionship of Mr. Randolph and his carefully selected treasures. And yet we think that for some time to come the "old corner" will be referred to with a sigh of regret for its pleasant memories and happy associations.

The present generation hardly realizes that Mr. Randolph's store was not always at 900 Broadway, and may be interested to learn some details of the business career of one of the few remaining men to whom his chosen calling is a profession and not a trade.

Mr. Anson Davies Fitz Randolph was born in New Jersey in 1820, and in October, 1830, went into the New York Depository of the American Sunday-School Union in Nassau Street. lest that service in 1851, and opened a store of his own at 669 Broadway, opposite Bond Street, at that time considered decidedly up-town. Roe Lockwood was then on Broadway near Canal Street; T. J. Crowen, near Houston Street; G. & H. Miller, just above Bleecker Street; and Henry Kernot, publisher of The Lorgnette, just below. These were all considered up-town publishers. The down-town firms were then Wiley & Putnam, at 161 Broadway; the Appletons, at 200; Mark H. Newman & Co., nearly opposite; Stanford & Swords, the Episcopal book store, was at 137; Robert Carter & Brothers were between Chambers and Duane; the Carvilles, on the corner of Pine Street; Charles S. Francis was opposite City Hall Park; Stringer & Townsend in a store under Barnum's Museum. Charles Scribner and M. W. Dodd, were in the Brick Church Chapel; as was also the American Sunday - School Union. American Tract Society was, as now, on the east side of Nassau Street. The Harpers already occupied the premises on Franklin Square.

Mr. Randolph immediately made a specialty of religious and theological works, notwithstanding the fears of his friends, who predicted they would not prove profitable, Mr. Henry Kernot giving him just six months to prove the experiment a failure. In 1851 Mr. Randolph made his first venture as a publisher in the reprint of a little book originally published in Philadelphia about 1826, entitled "Hints to Christians," by Drs. Skinner and Beecher, which hardy, first-born child, is still in print. In May, 1852, the premises occupied by Mr. Randolph and others were torn down to make room for the erection of the La Farge House (soon after destroyed by fire and replaced by the Grand Central Hotel,) and the store was removed to the corner of Amity Street, first occupying half of the corner frontage and in the course of five years the entire lower floor. It was at this corner that Mr. Randolph weathered \ and the Gorham Silver Co.'s building were put exp the panic of 1857. By good fortune the Christ- on neighboring corners, and it was only a quesmas trade of that year was made profitable by the great success of the first book of Dr. Livingston, published by the Harpers just after the panic.

During this period (1857) was started the first of those movements advertised as "original and enterprising," which under diffferent names and in various disguises have almost made legitimate bookselling an impossibility. The first "Gist-Book Store" was opened in the new La Farge Hotel building by Evans & Co., and for awhile did a rushing trade by giving away jewelry and other valuables to every purchaser, and was supposed to make money by a commercial process as yet a hidden science to students of That gift-book bubble burst in economics. time, but, as Mr. Randolph himself remarks, "it left much soap behind, of which many troublesome bubbles of various kinds have since been blown."

Mr. Randolph's regular customers still lived on Broadway and the side streets above Canal, but the city was slowly creeping northward. The war broke out, and the young house did a good business in the printing of sermons, addresses, and pamphlets of all kinds called forth by our national struggle. One of the most important of these publications was a report by the Prince de Joinville on the Army of the Potomac, which was translated by W. H. Hud-bert, and attracted great attention.

In 1864 Mr. Randolph thought it wiser to move a little higher up Broadway, and took the store on the south-east corner of 9th Knoedler, who succeeded Emil Seitz as Goupil's agent, was at that time still on the north-east corner, in spite of all of Stewart's efforts to include that one lot in his dry-goods palace. All the publishers now began to move up-town. The Scribners moved first to White and Broadway, then to Grand Street near Broadway; the Carters advanced to Spring Street; the Appletons went first to Broadway and Leonard Street, and then higher up, near Grand Street; Stanford & Swords went to Broadway near Bleecker Street; Charles S. Francis went near Spring Street; G. P. Putnam had gone out of Park Place, and then out of business, to become Collector of Internal Revenue; M. W. Dodd was on Broadway near Broome Street; C. T. Evans had left the trade; Geo. W. Carleton & Co., formerly Rudd & Carleton, were a new house on Grand Street; Felt & Dillingham and Houghton were on Broome Street. The times }were booming after the war, and the book-trade was worth pursuing, and paying.

Mr. Randolph remained at oth Street twelve years, and in 1876 moved to the corner of 20th Street, which he has just quitted. Almost everybody had moved into the neighborhood of 9th Street and it was becoming crowded, says Mr. Randolph. Wiley. Young, Worthington, Dodd, Mead & Co., Dillingham, Houghton, Francis, and the Trade Sale Rooms were all close neighbors. Mr. Randolph mentions that when he moved to 20th Street Mr. Peter Goelet still kept his cows and peacocks in the front yard of his mansion on 19th Street and Broadway. But that quiet region was soon disturbed by the builders of those imposing structures that now line both sides of the thoroughfare on which he has spent thirty-five years of his business life. Dwellings disappeared more more. The great carpet house of the Sloanes arleton early turned his attention to iterature, and made a most successful n bringing out a translation of Michelet's ur! and "La Femme." The second work slated and delivered to the compositors y-two hours, the translator, Dr. John

W. Palmer, having agreed to forfeit ten dollars per hour for every hour above that time that the work was kept from the printer. Within thirty days it reached a sale of 20,000 copies. The next great enterprise was a translation of Victor Hugo's "Les Miserables," the volumes being published with fabulous rapidity. Although in the midst of the Civil War, the book made a great hit. At the book-trade sale of that year one wholesale dealer bought 25,000 copies of it, the largest sale on record of any single book. Encouraged by the success of his attempts to make Americans familiar with French fiction, Mr. Carleton then planned to publish the complete works of Balzac, at that time the idol of The novels were trans-French novel-readers. lated by Frank B. Goodrich, a son of "Peter Parley," who did his work thoroughly well; but for some unknown reason they fell flat, and after the fourth volume Mr. Carleton abandoned his purpose, having lost a very considerable sum of money, fully convinced that Balzac was not adapted to the taste of American readers. Probably the increase of foreign travel has now educated this then unformed taste, for the translation of Balzac now being issued is eagerly bought and intelligently appreciated.

Diamond Wedding," by E. C. Stedman, which first appeared in the N. Y. Tribune, and gained instant popular notice. Then came the great hit made with the inimitable "Artemus Ward—His Book," which reached a sale of 40,000 copies, and was the topic of conversation from the Atlantic to the Pacific. Encouraged by the popularity of American humor, the "Life and Adventures of Josh Billings" was next offered an equally appreciative public. "Josh Billings" was the fore-runner of phonetic spellers, and for many years that became a favorite vehicle for bright sayings and pointed satires. This talented humorist produced the "Farmer's Alminax," intended to burlesque the old-fashioned Farmer's Almanac so popular half a century ago. Although beginning slowly, the sale of this comic publication rapidly increased, and within a year the fabulous number of 130,000 copies were spread through the land at great profit to author and publisher.

Mr. Carleton produced in book form "The

Among other successful authors introduced to their fellow-citizens by Mr. Carleton were Mary J. Holmes, "Marion Harland," Miriam C. Harris, the author of "Rutledge;" May Agnes Fleming, Richard B. Kimball, and Edmund C. Kirke, whose novel descriptive of the South after the war, entitled "Among the Pines," was a timely and most lucrative investment. Mr. Carleton also wrote himself two or three books descriptive of his travels, under the titles of "Our Artist in Cuba," "Our Artist in Peru," and "Our Artist in Spain and Algiers," in which he showed his great talent for humorous sketching with pen and ink as well as pencil to great advantage.

The firm of George W. Carleton & Co. has been for several years composed of himself and Mr. George W. Dillingham, who was for a long time his head clerk, and who learned the business with Crosby, Nichols & Co., Boston. The retirement of Mr. Carleton leaves Mr. Dillingham at the head of the firm, which is now changed to G. W. Dillingham & Co. For the various details given above we are indebted to the reminiscences of Mr. J. C. Derby in his entertaining volume, "Fifty Years Among Authors, Books, and Publishers," which contribution to the annals of the book-trade bears the imprint of George W. Carleton & Co.

REFERRING to the Cincinnati Enquirer despatch, (printed in our issue of April 7,) the solicitors to the executors of the late Hugh Conway write to the London Academy, under date of

May 5:

"Every word of the novel 'Living or Dead' was written by the author, who left the Ms. completely finished at the time of his death, and It has since been in our custody on behalf of his executors. In December, 1884, the author sold the right of first serial publication to Messrs. W. C. Leng & Co., of Sheffield, who were agreeably surprised on the Ms. being handed to them by the executors shortly after the author's death.

"Messrs. Macmillan & Co. wrote a short time since to Messrs. Henry Holt & Co., the New York publishers, informing them that they had themselves read through the entire Ms. in the late Hugh Conway's handwriting, thus effectually disposing of any false statement of the kind that has appeared in the Cincinnati Em-quirer.

"The only other novel by Hugh Conway, published since his death (excepting the novelette 'Slings and Arrows,' and the collection of three short stories called 'At What Cost?'), is 'A Cardinal Sin;' and this had originally appeared as a serial in a newspaper some years before the publication of 'Called Back.'

NOTES ON AUTHORS.

"MR. CHARLES G. FALL, a lawyer of Boston, will shortly publish "A Village Sketch and Other Verses."

MRS. OLIPHANT is understood to be writing a life of the late Principal Tulloch, which will be published about the end of the present year.

THE title of Miss Rose Cleveland's new book, which a Washington paper says she is writing for a Detroit publishing house, is "You and I; or Moral, Intellectual, and Social Culture."

Mr. Tupper's autobiography, "My Life as an Author, by the writer of Proverbial Philosophy," has just appeared in London, and is said to be creditable to the author's tact and taste.

MARSHAL McMahon is preparing his memoirs with the purpose of explaining certain acts in his life which have been the cause of much unfriendly criticism. The book, however, will not be published until after his death.

ANNA KATHARINE GREEN (Mrs. Rohlfs), author of "The Leavenworth Case," has sent to the editor of The Brooklyn Magazine, for publication in the June number, a denial of the accusation of plagiarism made against her in a recent number of the Boston Literary World.

"MR. J. A. SYMONDS," says the London Academy, "is seeing through the press the last two volumes of his 'Renaissance in Italy.' These deal with the changes wrought by the Catholic Revival. He has also finished 'Ben Jonson' for the English Worthies, and is now engaged on his long-promised 'Sir Philip Sidney' for the English Men of Letters."

MR. EDGAR FAWCETT, it is reported, has decided to delay the publication of his new book of poems, "Romance and Revery," from May until early in June. The reason for this delay is caused by Mr. Fawcett's having added to this new collection of his poems a very ambitious and careful piece of work in blank verse, estitled "The Sorceress," which has never before been printed.

NOTES ON CATALOGUES.

THE first volume of the new catalogue of the Astor Library has just been issued. It contains the letters A to D inclusive, occupying 1118 large octavo pages, and there are upward of 24,500 separate entries. It is a continuation of Dr. Cogswell's Index of authors and books, published in four volumes, 1857-61. The new catlogue covers the additions between 1860 and the end of 1880, numbering upward of 100,000 volumes. We learn from the preface that "this continuation has been prepared chiefly by G: Alex. Nelson. The materials were Dr. Comwell's supplement, interlineations by his successor, F. Schroeder, and a card catalogue introduced by a later superintendent, J. C. Brevoort; but it was found necessary to compare these preliminary entries with the books themselves. Dr. Cogswell's general method has been followed; but a somewhat fuller description and a more frequent analysis have made the work uses-pectedly long. Mr. Nelson has been assisted in the work of revision at different times by W-H. Wilson, T. R. Barnum, G. H. Perry and H. Senter, the last two being still engages upon the work. The catalogue is handsomely printed at the Riverside Press, Cambridge. The three remaining volumes " will follow as fast 🛎 careful printing will allow."

JOHN P. MORTON & Co., Louisville, Ky., have issued a "Select List of Standard Works on Music and Musical Literature," including biographies of the great composers, musical dictionaries, histories of music, books of criticisms and essays, the opera, theory, musical instruments, libretton, etc. (12 p. 16.)

F. O. CHAMBERLAIN, 843 Broadway, N. T. has issued a catalogue of fiction, comprising chiefly the publications of Messrs. Harper Broa., Scribner, Holt, Putnam, Munro, Lovell, Gomberger, Lippincott, Houghton, Mifflin & Co., Ticknor & Co., and D. Appleton & Co. (24 p. 12°.)

JOURNALISTIC NOTES.

W. SETON has written a brief history of Trade Brotherhoods," which will appear in the atholic World for June.

PAUL H. HAYNE has prepared for the June umber of the Southern Bivouac a sketch of the ablic services of Charles Gayarré of New Orans. This article will be followed by a review f Judge Gayarrè's literary labors.

An article by Austin Dobson, illustrated by lenry Sandham and Alfred Dawson, will be see opening paper in the June Century. It is ntitled "A Literary Ramble Along the hames from Fulham to Chiswick;" and the aper contains a "timely" map of the Univerty course.

JUSTICE THOMAS M. COOLEY, of the Supreme lourt of Michigan, is giving his attention to be labor troubles, and is preparing an article on rbitration for the July number of the Forum. I writer combining so much legal knowledge with so wide an experience in practical affairs might to be able to make some useful suggestions.

Hon. DAVID A. Wells's third paper of the series entitled "An Economic Study of Mexico," now running through the Popular Science Monthly, will appear in the forthcoming June number. The series will close with the fourth paper, and it promises, when completed, to be one of the fullest summaries of the real condition of affairs, industrial, commercial, and political, in Mexico, that has appeared since the Mexican War.

WE are in receipt of the first two numbers of the Boston Academy, a quarterly journal devoted to the now popular object of education by correspondence. Special attention is given to the tastes and needs of clergymen. The editor and publisher is Alfred A. Wright, of Boston, who furnishes in each number a department of "Hints upon Bible Greek Words," which will give special prominence to the changes made in the Revised Version of the New Testament. There is also a department of "Suggestive Readings for the Quarter," giving the names of www books of value to teachers and clergymen, and referring to important articles in the current magazine literature. It is an eight-page publi-Quion, clearly printed. It is published at 38 Fromfield Street, Boston.

BUSINESS NOTES.

Boston.—It is reported that the creditors of land, Avery & Co. have adopted the terms of extlement recommended by their committee, hich were that the firm pay the unsecured reditors one hundred cents on the dollar, as follows: Twenty cents cash, twenty cents in a year, and five cents at the end of each quarter therester till the one hundred cents shall have been ally paid, all the time payments to bear six per ent interest and to be secured by a mortgage in the plant given to Abraham Avery as trustee a behalf of the creditors. It was stated at the seeting that Samuel Johnson will retire from the firm as soon as the terms of compromise thall have been agreed to by all the creditors.

BOSTON.—Charles C. Soule, owing to changes the house at 26 Pemberton Square in which be and a store, has taken a temporary stand at 10. 17 of the same street. He hopes to be able, early in the fall, to move into handsome new quarters in James Freeman Clarke's old church in Freeman Place, where, surrounded by the Court House, City Hall, State House, the Athenæum and Union Club, he will be in the very midst of his many friends of the bar.

GARNETT, KAN.—Frank B. Ober, bookseller and stationer, has been succeeded by J. Bronston.

HUNTSVILLE, Tex.—John K. Wiley, book-seller and stationer, has sold out.

NEW YORK CITY.—A. H. Andrews & Co. have removed from 19 Bond to spacious and elegant salesrooms at No. 686 Broadway.

LITERARY AND TRADE NOTES.

THE CAXTON BOOK CONCERN, N. Y., has in press a volume of poems entitled "Lyrics of Life," by John Grosvenor Wilson, the dramatist, who will be remembered as one of the authors of Frank Mayo's popular play, "Nordeck."

G. W. DILLINGHAM & Co. announce two large folio volumes devoted to "The Soldier in Our Civil War." They are to be illustrated by a thousand or more sketches, mostly reproductions from those of the press artists in the field.

THE next volumes in the Badminton Library will be two treating of "Shooting," (1) Field and Covert, and (2) Moor and Marsh. They are written by Lord Walsingham, Lord Lovat, Lord Charles Kerr, Sir Ralph Payne-Gallwey, and Mr. Archibald Stuart Wortley.

S. E. CARSON & Co. will publish at once a new California tourist guide, revised and brought down to date. It will contain two maps of San Francisco—one a bird's-eye view of the city and surroundings, the other a street map. Table of distances, rates of fare, hotels, and routes of travel, etc., will be given as full as possible.

Fuchs & Lang, 29 Warren Street, New York, have just ready a practical treatise on "Photo-Engraving Processes," by A. F. W. Leslie, a well-known photo engraver and artist. It contains thorough instructions in drawing, photographing, swelled gelatine process, wash out gelatine process, zinc etching, drawing on zinc and transfer paper, with full details of the chemicals and apparatus for each of the processes, and is illustrated with samples of work done by each of these processes.

Funk & Wagnalls, by an arrangement with the author and with the previous publishers, have now the exclusive control of Laura C. Holloway's famous book "The Ladies of the White House." Mrs. Holloway is now engaged upon a Bridal edition of the book, which will contain a full and authentic history of Miss Folsom, the bride-elect of President Cleveland. The sketch will be accompanied by a fine steel portrait. The book will be sold, as heretofore, exclusively by agents.

GINN & Co. will publish June 15 a new edition of "Six Weeks' Preparation for Reading Cæsar," adapted to Allen and Greenough's, Gildersleeve's, and Harkness's Latin Grammar, by James M. Whiton; also, in their Classics for Children, "The Peasant and the Prince," an excellent story of the French Revolution by Harriet Martineau, edited with notes for schools. In July they will issue in the same series

"Gulliver's Travels," which will be followed by Scott's "Ivanhoe" and "Guy Mannering," Johnson's "Rasselas," and "Plutarch's Lives." They have in preparation for the series Irving's "Alhambra," the "Arabian Nights," and Irving's "Life of Washington."

"THE NATION" seems to be looming up as a school of authorship. Scarcely is Mrs. Homer Martin's novel published when one is announced by her successor in the literary reviewing of that paper, Miss A. R. Macfarlane. The title of the new work is "Children of the Earth," being suggested by Rosencrantz's answering "As the indifferent children of the earth" to Hamlet's asking him and Guildenstern, "How do ye both?" The attempt has been to make a story of ordinary people, swayed by ordinary motives, with which all "children of the earth" can sympathize. Whatever "questions" may be touched upon are presented in the characters and action, and not by any attempt at "subtle analysis" on the author's part. The scenes are laid on the rocky shore of Nova Scotia and in social New York.

A NEW collected edition of the Sketches and Pencillings of John Leech is announced in Eng-

THE literary event of the hour in Germany is the publication of "Das Tagebuch des Kronprinzen." In the rough and ready form of a diary the book gives an interesting account of the life of the Crown Prince from 1831 to the present day.

ELIOT STOCK, London, has published a useful little book by H. B. Wheatley, entitled "How to Form a Library." In the introduction Mr. Wheatley reviews the aids and authorities on library formation, one of the earliest being by Bishop Cardona published at Tarragona in 1587. The chapters of the book are on How Men have Formed Libraries, How to Buy, Public Libraries, Private Libraries, General Bibliographies, Special Bibliographies, Publishing Societies. Child's Library, and a List of One Hundred Books as suggested by Sir John Lubbock and others.

THE little book on "Milton and Vondel," published recently by the Rev. George Edmundson, says the London Academy, was only a prelude to a comprehensive work which will for the first time give to English readers an account of Vondel and his Dutch contemporaries. Its character may be judged from the title that he proposes to give to it when finished: "Vondel and his Times, a Biographical, Critical, and Historical Account of the Prince of Dutch Poets, the Golden Age of Dutch Literature, and the Herok Era of Dutch Greatness."

TRÜBNER & Co. will issue shortly, in their English and Foreign Philosophical Library, the second and third volumes of Schopenhauer's "The World as Will and Idea," translated by R. B. Haldane and John Kemp. volumes, which consist mainly of what Schopenhauer called "supplements" to the first volume, complete the work. They have in preparation a large work by Hamilton Smith, Jr., upon "The Flow of Water Through Pipes and Open Conduits and from Weirs and Orifices." It will form a quarto volume of about four hundred pages illustrated with seventeen plates. The price will be probably about $6 or $7.

SEASON OF 1886.

To RETAIL DEALERS:

The Summer Catalogue, issued now for nine years, has been found so useful and profitable by enterprising dealers, that it has become a regular feature of the trade. The tenth issue, in a special pamphlet adapted for imprint circulation all through the summer, will be published in connection with The Publishers' Weekly, early in June.

The imprint editions will contain, in addition to a catalogue of guide-books and light literature for summer reading, an entirely new selection of reading matter both of a practical and entertaining character, chiefly intended for the use and amusement of tourists, pleasure-seekers, and visitors of summer resorts.

Booksellers should remember that, while summer is usually a dull time, the sales of light literature, etc., can be pushed to make a successful business even in this season. The classes who travel are of course those who have money to spend, even in dull times, and the summer is the time when very many bookbuyers do the greater part of their reading. The tide of travel this year is likely to set toward home resorts, instead of across sea. Booksellers at or next summer resorts should therefore especially avail themselves of this publication, while city dealers should remember that it will be also useful to tempt stay-at-homes to make investments or the follow up customers otherwise out of reach.

Orders for imprint editions at subscription rates should be sent in at once.

A TIMELY BOOK.

A Guide to American Medical Students in Europe.

By HENRY HUN, M.D.,

Lecturer on Diseases of the Nervous System in the Albany Medical College.

One volume. Octavo. 151 pages. Price, $1.25.

Every year a large number of Americans go to Europe to complete their medical studies. Unfortunately the great rejority of these students have very little definite information about the different universities or about the way in which dicine is taught abroad, and on this account they lose valuable time in getting to work.

The object of this book is to furnish this information, and to give some assistance to the student at the outset of his seign study, which is the time that he stands most in need of aid; and it is hoped that the book may also be of some exterest to medical men in this country, who wish to know how medicine is taught in Europe.

SEASON OF 1886.

To RETAIL DEALERS:

The Summer Catalogue, issued now for nine years, has been found so useful and profitable by enterprising dealers, that it has become a regular feature of the trade. The tenth issue, in a special pamphlet adapted for imprint circulation all through the summer, will be published in connection with The Publishers' Weekly, early in June.

The imprint editions will contain, in addition to a catalogue of guide-books and light literature for summer reading, an entirely new selection of reading matter both of a practical and entertaining character, chiefly intended for the use and amusement of tourists, pleasure-seekers, and visitors of summer resorts.

Booksellers should remember that, while summer is usually a dull time, the sales of light literature, etc., can be pushed to make a successful business even in this season. The classes who travel are of course those who have money to spend, even in dull times, and the summer is the time when very many bookbuyers do the greater part of their reading. The tide of travel this year is likely to set toward home resorts, instead of across sea. Booksellers at or near summer resorts should therefore especially avail themselves of this publication, while city dealers should remember that it will be also useful to tempt stay-at-homes to make investments or to follow up customers otherwise out of reach.

Orders for imprint editions at subscription rates should be sent in at once.

NOTES IN SEASON.

THOMAS WHITTAKER publishes to-day a story entitled "Aspirations," by Helen Hays, who has written many stories for Harper's Young People

THE J. B. LIPPINCOTT COMPANY announce the early publication of a novel entitled "Cut," by G. I. Cervus, author of "White Feathers," "A Model Wife," etc., founded upon occurrences of an intensely exciting character at West Point

HOUGHTON, MIFFLIN & Co. will shortly publish in a neat volume the late Mrs. Arlo Bates' charming papers on the quaint phases of Salem There are five of these papers, and all were published originally over the pseudonym of "Eleanor Putnam."

THE R. WORTHINGTON Co. will publish early next month Mr. Swinburne's "Miscellaneou Essays in Prose and Verse," which include his monograph on Mary Stuart, his account of Lamb's manuscript notes on Wither, and his criticisms of Chaucer, Spenser, Shakespeare's sonnets, Milton, Dryden, Pope, Congreve, Prior Wordsworth, Byron, Landor, Keats, Tennyson Musset, Emily Brontë, and Charles Reade.

HENRY HOLT & Co. have just ready the "Memoirs of Arthur Hamilton, B. A., of Trin ity College, Cambridge, extracted from his letter and diaries, with reminiscences of his conversation, by his friend, Christopher Carr, of the sam college." Arthur Hamilton is a fictitious subject, used as a means of showing and arguing for certain methods of intellectual and spiritual development. It is a book that appeals to intellectual, reflective readers. Adeline Sergeant's new book, "No Saint," is also just ready in both the Leisure Hour and Leisure Moment series. The publication of J. A. Mitchell's "Romance of the Moon" is postponed until the fall.

D. Appleton & Co. will shortly begin a new series of books designed specially for educators bearing the title of the International Educatio series. Two volumes are nearly ready for put lication, one being entitled "The Philosophy of Education," by Johann Karl Friedrich Roser kranz, Doctor of Theology and Professor Philosophy at the University of Königsberg the other "A History of Education," by Pro fessor F. V. N. Painter, of Roanoke College Virginia. This series, which will embrace works by European as well as American authors will be edited by W. T. Harris, LL. D., wh will contribute more or less matter in the differ ent volumes in the way of introduction, analysis and commentary, as well as some of the work entire.

"flexible cover" of modern time is not a new contrivance. The Ms. boo that was the immediate successor of the Roma "Tablets" doubtless had some sort of a flexible cover so that it might be conveniently rolled u and carried about, or thrust under a pillow of into a pocket. The velvet and silken covers of the middle ages lent themselves admirably t such Ms. books as religious teachers and scholar would naturally like to use as vade-mecums, bu when leather came into fashion, the Germans in vented a flexible binding that was, no doubt, ver similar to our modern style. They called "cuir bouilli," which term would lead one t infer that it was a species of thin and fine dressed leather, in which the book was incan no boards being made use oi.-American F

Baring-Gould, S. Court Royal: a story of cross currents. Phil., J. B. Lippincott Co., 1886. 3-417 p. S. cl., 75 c.

A wretched, starving woman strives to drown herself and child in Sutton Pool, from off the quay of ancient Plymouth. They are both rescued, fed, and clothed, and the mother offered a situation if she can give up her child. Joanna, aged twelve, is pawned to Lazarus, an old pawnbroker, for seven years, for half a sovereign. Joanna's life, which occupies the rest of the book, is full of novelty. She is a handsome, shrewd girl, and gradually advances from being the old man's "slavey" to the position of heiress to all his wealth. Life in the old pawn shop is graphically described, and the tragedy of old Lazarus' story, and the romance of Joan-na's, strongly presented. "Court Royal" is the home of an aristocratic family, and is heavily mortgaged to the Jew. To revenge a wrong the owner once did him, he uses every effort to gain possession of it.

Constance of Acadia: a novel. Bost., Roberts

Bros., 1886. 368 p. D. cl., $1.50.

The thinnest thread of story serves the author to sift and combine such historical events of the period of the -Reformation as took place chiefly in the New Acadia, the sometimes French and sometimes English possessions of eastern North America. Constance is a Huguenot, and her one idea is to make earnest Protestants of her husband's followers. He is Lieutenant-General of Acadia. The descriptions of the Jesuit rule of the day, and of the various plans of Louis XIII, and Charles I. to get supreme control of the new colonial possessions, are historically correct. The author gives copious foot-notes referring to his authorities, and his chief aim is to interest his readers to study up the subject for themselves.

Craik, Mrs. Dinah Maria, [formerly Miss Mulock.] King Arthur: not a love story. N.Y., Harper, 1886. 3-236 p. D. cl., 90 c.— Same, 3-236 p. S. (Harper's handy ser., no. 76.) pap., 25 c.

The Rev. Mr. Trevena, a Cornish clergyman, and his wife are travelling in Switzerland for Mrs. Trevena's health, she having just lest a young child. Her doctor tells her of a patient he is attending, who hates her new-born child and will sell it or kill it. Mrs. Trevena adopts the boy and gives him the pet name of King Arthur is honor of his Cornish ancestor. The child's education be-gins in the English home, and Miss Mulock gives one of her sweetest pictures of home life. The scenes between the mother and the healthy, happy, boyish boy are exquisitely written. The secret of his birth is revealed to him toward the close, and he is obliged to live with his lawful relations. the close, and he is obliged to live with his lawful relations. His adopted mother's love and unselfishness never fail. At twenty-one our hero marries a lovely woman.

Face to face. N. Y., C: Scribner's Sons, 1866-

Capital and labor are brought "face to face" in this story of the life of Evelyn Pimlico. She is an English girl who comes to America alone under peculiar circumstances. She visits friends at Newport. She meets : old family friend who grows very fond of her and leave her $15,000,000. Evelyn now tries to make the workers at her mills contented, builds cottages, attends to severage, pays better wages than other mill-owners, etc. See works under the direction of a man who is a radical socialist, a workman, combining the love of luxury of his geniaman father with the brutal instincts of his low-born mother A satisfactory love story runs through the book. The comversations and arguments about improving the lower classes are most interesting, but the author leaves the great problem as unsolved as ever, and does not commit himself to either side of the carefully presented question the rather improbable incident of a man selling for five guineas this story is based. The scene mong primitive people in a remote part of Enge wife being represented as an almost ideal specignorance and innocence. She believes that her has a legal right to sell her, and meekly takes I in her arms and follows her new proprietor. The is a hay-trusser and penniless, and under the inof liquor when he gets rid of his wife. On coming nses he is overpowered with remorse, and makes hat for the next twenty years he will not touch ting liquors. When we meet them again he has rich and Mayor of Casterbridge. He has sought or his wife, who suddenly appears on the scene in acter of a widow, with one child, a grown-up idy. Various complications follow, which are added lsehoods on both sides. Courtship and marriage o a large part in the narrative. As may be exrom Hardy, the character sketching and descripscenery are full of power.

"This work is, as its title denotes, to a great extent what is commonly called a 'sporting novel'—that is, an attempt to give a graphic description of glorious runs, oxers safely negotiated, brooks gallantly charged, rides home along frosty roads, and the other stirring adventures which are met with by those who pursue the 'king of sports'—fox-hunting in the 'shire of shires.'"—Preface. King, C: Marion's faith; a sequel to "The Colonel's daughter." Phil., J. B. Lippincott Co., 1886, 2+446 p. D. cl., $1.25.

"The colonel's daughter" was published in January, 1883. It dealt with the Indian campaigns in our Northwestern states. The leading characters reappear. Army life at West Point and army life in the wilds of the West are strongly contrasted. The heroism of the men and women ordered to the front to meet the treacherous Indians, is worked into a most interesting story. Marion keeps her "faith" in a young officer when an intriguing brother officer has made almost all lose confidence in his innocence of the crime of which he is accused. The descriptions of Western scenery are very fine. The author loves nature and the army almost equally. The time is the Centennial year. The story deals with the campaigns in which General Custer fell.

This brisk description of excursions in Japan, Italy, and Turkey, with memories of happy hours of companionship with friends, to whom the author dedicates his work, is most suitable to pick up for an hour's reading here and there on quiet afternoons. Men, to whom so few books of the kind appeal, will find nothing dull in the racy language of the author, who invariably calls a spade a spade. The cover is odd, being of dark brown satesn with hieroglyphics such as are seen on ten-chests.

PUBLISHERS are requested to furnish title-page proofs and advance information of books forthcoming, both for entry in the lists and for descriptive mention. An early copy of each book published should be forwarded, to insure correctness in the final entry.

The trade are invited to send "Communications" to the oditor on any topic of interest to the trade, and as to which an interchange of opinion is desirable. Also, matter for

"Notes and Queries" thankfully received.

In case of business changes, notification or card should be immediately sent to this office for entry under "Business Notes." New catalogues issued will also be mentioned when forwarded.

"Every man is a debtor to his profession, from the which, as men do of course seek to receive countenance and profit, so ought they of duty to endeavor themselves by way of amends to be a help thereunto."—LORD BACON.

THE annual meeting of the "Booksellers' and Stationers' Provident Association' will be held at George A. Leavitt & Co.'s Trade Sales Rooms, 787 and 789 Broadway, corner of 10th Street, Wednesday evening, June 2, at 8 o'clock. The Association, we learn, has just about held its own in numbers during the past year. Since the last meeting there have been three deaths, the last assessment, No. 26, being issued October 10, 1885. An attempt has periodically been made to make up the maximum of 1000 members, but for some reason the gain always has been neutralized by defection either of the new or old So much seems certain, however, members. that there are eight hundred or more members of the book trade ready and willing to stand by their association, and that is something to be proud of. It is to be hoped that the coming meeting will be well attended.

The book-buyer, who, of late, has been almost as fortunate as the workingman in having friends, is to be congratulated upon the acquisition of another. This is to be known as the "World Literary Bureau." For the simple consideration of subscribing to the World any one may obtain "advantages which even the largest wholesale dealers might ask for in vain," and all this "whether one buys one book or fifty." It might, at this rate, perhaps pay booksellers to change their tactics—subscribe to the World and get their book supplies in that way.

Our readers will find elsewhere in this issue a supplement containing the "Summer Catalogue." Dealers again have a chance to judge of its merits and to decide whether an edition with their imprint might not be used to advantage by them in pushing for some extra business during the vacation season. We are able to fill some more orders, provided they reach us promptly.

INTERNATIONAL COPYRIGHT.

REPORT ON THE CHACE COPYRIGHT BILL.

On May 21 the Committee on Patents of the Senate directed Mr. Chace to report his bill providing for an International Copyright. The bill, it is thought, may pass the Senate unless Congress adjourns much earlier than now appears probable. But the prospect in the House is less favorable. According to a special report to the N. Y. Tribune, "the bill amends section 4952, Revised Statutes, by striking out the words 'citizen of the United States or resident therein.' The proposed amendment will extend the right to foreigners. The provision of the same section relating to the right to dramatize and translate is amended as follows: 'Authors or their assigns shall have the exclusive right to dramatize or translate any of their works for which copyright shall have been obtained under the laws of the United States.' Section 4954, governing the extension of the term of copyrights, and section 4967, relating to damages for infringement, also amended by striking out the words which limit their benefits to citizens of the United States. Section 4971, declaring that nothing in the chapter relating to copyrights shall be construed to prohibit the publication of the works of foreign authors, is repealed. See tions 4964 and 4965, prescribing damages for printing, publishing or importing works protected by a copyright, are amended by limiting their application to the printing and publication of such works, the word 'import' being stricken out of each.

"The following provision is added to section

"That if the author, designer or composer of the book or other article for which a copyright is applied for be not actzen of the United States or resident therein, then the name of such copyright book or other article shall be recorded as above in the office of the Librarian of Congress, not later than the day of its publication in the country of its origin: and in case of a book printed, musical composition or plotograph, two copies of the best edition of the same pristed in the United States shall be deposited with the Librarian of Congress within the term of three months after the date of recording such copyright, in default whereof such copyright shall be held void and of no effect; and after the recording of any copyright as above during the existence of such copyright the importation of any article so copyright ed in the United States shall be and is hereby prohibited and all officers of customs and postmasters are hereby required to seize and detain all copies of such copyrighted articles as shall be entered at the Custom Houses or transmitted in the mails of the United States, but in the case of books in foreign languages of which translations in English are copyrighted, the prohibition of importation shall apply only to the translations of the same and the importation of the books in the original language shall be permitted unless the original shall also be copyrighted, and an American edition thereof shall be issued within three months after the date of entry of copyright.

"An addition is made to section 4858 providing that the charge for recording the title or description of any work of a foreign author entered for copyright shall be $1. The Secretary of the Treasury and the Postmaster-General are required to enforce such rules and regulations as shall prevent the importation into the United States of articles copyrighted under this act. The act is to take effect July 1, 1887. In its report the committee says:

"The United States alone, of all the great civilized mations which have made advances in literature, still refuse to recognize the principle that international comity should apply to the protection of literary property. Your committee recognizes the moral application of comity among nations and believe that the best interest, material, moral, and intellectual, of our people will be promoted by adopting and acting upon that principle in the settlement of this question. The bill, while based upon that principle, recognizes the paramount duty of protecting first the material interests of our own people, and proceeds so far only in the curing the rights of citizens as may be done without injury to vested rights in this country and without interfering with the income of our own labor. It cannot be said that the international feature of this amendment to our copyright law is beneficial to foreign authors only. By its provisions we carefully protect the American publishers and the American artisans who make the books in this country.

"The market of a single country is becoming too narrow for successful authorship. The competition of foreign books which are published without compensation to the author with the works of our own writers is becoming so great that it is almost impossible for a new and unknown American writer to obtain a standing before the public. There is believed to exist an insular anti-American prejudice in the minds of many English authors which together with the fact that if the foreign author were protected by our law without this provision, the most natural course would be for him in contracting for publication in England to arrange with the same publisher to supply the American market. In that case our tariff would become imperative as a protection to the American publisher and the American workman. We should have granted a prescriptive monopoly to the foreign author for our own market."

THE INTERSTATE PUBLISHING COM-PANY.

INTERSTATE PUBLISHING COMPANY, which was recently incorporated at Springfield, Ill., has opened an office at 183, 185, and 187 Wabash Avenue, Chicago, and also at 30 Frankin Street, Boston. The purpose of the company is to prepare such literature for children and young people as will best fit them to become cultured men and women. It will include all lines and departments which are studied during the period while they are in the schools getting an education. Instead of publishing the regular text-books of the schools, the Interstate Publishing Company purpose to supply books which shall be attractive and instructive, but chiefly as reading books—for supplementary reading in schools, in libraries, and at home. Lothrop, of the firm of D. Lothrop & Co., is President; S. R. Winchell, of S. R. Winchell & Co., educational publishers, is Secretary and General Agent, and L. K. Bowers, Treasurer. Among their first publications are the following trom the lists of D. Lothrop & Co. and S. R. Winchell & Co., which have been purchased by the new company: Homer B. Sprague's "Masterpieces in English Literature," also his Shakespeare's "Hamlet," and Milton's "Mask of Comus;" Arthur Gilman's "History of the American People" and "Tales of the Pathfinders;" Miss Dawes's "How We Are Governed;" Ernest Ingersoll's "Old Ocean" and "Habits of Animals;" Miss Yonge's histories of Greece, Rome, England, France, and Germany; Dr. Banvard's "Plymouth and the Pilgrims," "First Explorers of North America," "Southern Explorers," and "Pioneers of the New World," and "Old School Days," by Amanda B. Harris. Books announced for June are "Through a Microscope," by Samuel Wells, Mrs. Mary Treat, and Frederick LeRoy Sargent; "Entertainments in Chemistry," by Harriet W. Tyler, and "The Making of Pictures," by Sarah Whitman. This company has also purchased "The Progressive Dictionary," and changed the title to "The Supplementary Dictionary," which more clearly indicates the nature of the work. It is a new publication, edited by Rt. Rev. Samuel Fallows, D.D., and first published last December by the Progressive Publishing Company, of Chicago. It has been conjectured that the organization of this company had in view the opening of a Chicago branch for D. Lothrop & Co., but this, we are told, is no part of the plan, which is to do only a publishing business and no jobbing. The time seems oppertune for such an undertaking, and with pru-_عنظ

dent management it may be expected that this new concern will be rewarded by a liberal patronage, not only from the schools and libraries, but also from the more intelligent part of the reading public.

TRADE CATALOGUES.

From the New York Sun.

AMERICAN illustrated trade catalogues excel all others in the world. No other country produces any in comparison. With them catalogue printing has become a wonderful and distinct business It is conceded by the most distinin itself. guished European art critics that Americans have surpassed all other nations in printing, and have well-nigh done so in wood-engraving. The great silverware houses of this city publish more costly and gorgeous catalogues than any other line of trade. They usually issue one edition of 7000 copies, because they have about that many One house on Broadway paid $100,000 for its edition of 7000 last year, while other silverware houses paid sums ranging from $35,000 to $50,000. Another house, besides publishing a trade catalogue, issues a handbook for its customers, at a cost of $6000.

The $100,000 catalogues were of folio size, and contained 400 pages. They contained about 4000 words and steel engravings and photographic and lithographic sketches. Each book weighed about fourteen pounds. The big edition consumed forty-five tons of the finest and heaviest calendered paper, made expressly for the purpose, and of a higher grade than used in any other work of the bookmakers' art; twelve tons of card board and 3000 yards of the finest silk cloth for the covers. The presswork alone for the 7000 copies cost $3000, and 210,000 sheets of gold leaf and 49,000 sheets of silver leaf were used.

To print the covers of the books three colors are used. This requires the use of three different plates. The first prints the ground-work, and is worked cold, while the last two, which print in the gold and silver leaf, must be worked hot. Now, in heating these plates they expand one fourth of an inch, so that allowances must be made for the expansion—a difficult job indeed, when some of the figures are very minute, and an imperfect register would result in great loss.

The lithographic work is the chief point of interest, for as many as fifteen tints are often used. In some catalogues a one-page design of three plates cost $1200. One large house on Beekman Street, whose goods include wash basins made of chinaware with colored designs, pays $150 a page for plates. A publishing house up town, which makes a specialty of issuing yearly a co-operative catalogue, charges $500 for a one-page design.

The Hoffman House has got in press a catalogue that will cost $20,000. It will require 100 pounds of ink, costing $30 per pound, or $3000 in all. It will contain sixty-eight pages, with sketches by Bouguereau, Correggio, Chelmonski, Etienne, Sadler, Ball, Schlessinger, and Nast. The design of the book is by Charles Sibley May. The title will be "A Cluster of Gems from the Hoffman House Collection," which also conveys the idea of the book. The sketches will be full-page, and will cost not less than $200 a page.

In the more economical catalogues, such as those issued by the hardware, stove, locomotive. machinery, and cutlery houses there is no sw expensive character of work, but they are printed in the best manner possible, on good surface book paper, and illustrated with the best woodengravings. The cost is often from $8000 to $12,000 for an edition.

THE HARRIS COLLECTION OF AMERI-CAN POETRY.

THE Annotated Catalogue of this remarkable collection, to which we have several times called attention, is rapidly approaching completion, and its publication may now reasonably be looked for at no distant day. The trade, we are glad to hear, as well as the libraries, have greatly encouraged the compiler in his labors by subscribing promptly and liberally. There are, however, a number of copies still waiting for patrons, and it is to be hoped that these may be bespoken before the work of printing is commenced. This is indeed the more to be hoped inasmuch, as we understand, this is not a commercial enterprise, but wholly a labor of love.

The following sketch of the collection may be of some interest to such as may have overlooked our previous references to the subject:

This remarkable collection of the writings of our American poets was commenced more than fifty years since by the Hon. Albert Gorton Greene, of Providence, R. I., whose famous ballad, "Old Grimes is Dead," has given him so wide a reputation. So successful had Judge Greene been in what, to him, was emphatically "a labor of love," that, at the time of his death, January 3, 1868, his collection of American poetry was without a rival in size and value. In the catalogue of the entire library of Judge Greene, which was sold at auction by Bangs, Merwin & Co., New York, are the titles of nearly two thousand volumes in the special department of American Poetry.

A large part of the collection referred to was purchased by C. Fiske Harris, a gentleman of similar tastes with Judge Greene, and who himself had a large collection of the productions of American Poets. In 1874 Mr. Harris printed his "Index to the American Poetry and Plays in the Collection of C. Fiske Harris." At that time the collection numbered 4129 separate volumes, including various editions. To this number were added, up to the time of his death, not less than one thousand volumes.

Shortly after the death of Mr. Harris his cousin, the Hon. Henry B. Anthony, of the United States Senate, purchased the collection alluded to, and by his will left it (adding to it his own well-chosen library of American Poets) to his alma mater, Brown University.

The Catalogue will contain between four thousand and five thousand titles. A peculiar feature of the volume will be the notes upon the more rare and valuable treasures in the collection, and the brief biographical sketches which will be given, so far as it can be done, of all the poets represented in the collection, the needed information with regard to them having been gathered from many sources.

Among the books which the Russian government has put on the index expurgatorius are M. E. Benson's "The Story of Russia;" A. J. C. Hare's "Studies in Russia;" H. W. Little's "Short History of Russia;" E. Noble's "The Russian Revolt;" S. Stepniak's "Russia Under the Tsars;" and Tolstol's "Christ's Christianity."

COMMUNICATIONS.

CHARLES L. WEBSTER & CO. EXPLAIN.

42 EAST 14TH STREET (UNION SQ.))
NEW YORK, May 21, 1886.

To the Editor of the Publishers' Weekly.

SIR: Our attention has been called to an advertisement of John Wanamaker, who has pirated on nearly every legitimate trade in the city of Philadelphia, and now he is dabbling in books. He not only professes to understand how to run his own business, but he writes a long homily on book publishing and publishers' methods, a knowledge of which is only gained by long experience and personal attention.

We profess to understand our own business, and to mind it. We are not interested in the management of other people's business, and do not wish to interfere with it in any way; but when we are attacked we propose to defend ourselves.

We are met with the assumption that we have no right to control the sale of our own property in our own way; it is assumed, even by some in the book trade (by which we mean the proprietors of book stores), that our property is their legitimate plunder, and they join in a general piratical cruise to seize it.

We, as subscription publishers, are engaged in no interference with the business of these tradesmen; we do not attempt to get books published for the trade and work them by subscription; but, on the other hand, the trade in many cases attempt to interfere with our methods by suborning our agents, and thereby inducing them to commit a criminal offence, for which they are liable for punishment. We are glad to say here that there are many honorable exceptions in the trade, who strictly attend to their own affairs and attempt no interference with ours.

To define Mr. Wanamaker's position:

We will say that any book store or other dealer exposing the "Personal Memoirs of U. S. Grant" for sale does so with the knowledge that it is an interference with our business and is against our wishes.

Any book store or other dealer exposing the above work for sale has obtained the book, either directly or indirecty, by collusion with some one of our agents, and has induced him to break his contract; and any one who buys a copy of the Personal Memoirs from these dealers encourages these men to continue the fraud.

For the benefit of the book trade and the public, we will state, what already should be well known, that every one interested in the sale of the Memoirs is anxious that it be sold strictly by subscription. Mrs. Grant is thoroughly in accord with our method of work; by it we have increased the sale immensely; published and sold the largest edition of a book ever issued in the history of the world; paid the largest sum by over double on the first volume alone ever paid to any author of a book; and we shall be able to pay Mrs. Grant a larger check than the first, thereby giving the author over four times the largest amount ever paid for a single book, or nearly, if not over, half a million dollars, all within one year from publication.

Booksellers have been in vogue since the middle of the fifteenth century, and their combined record to the present time cannot show such results in circulation with benefit to the author; Philadelphia party loudly proclaims that book had been published proper y, as he tlesignate, greater results would accrue. telligent people of this country do not e word of every theorist; they reason salogy; they compare results with what en done before, knowing that opinions ap and easily expressed. Results are de-I in intelligent investigation; and without rit of boasting, we challenge the world to parallel to this case. When we say that ard and intelligent work has been exerthe management and sale of this work, e only what facts will justify. And we our subscribers and the country to take oks only from our authorized agents, and show results that will justify all that we omised.

are not in sympathy with Mr. Wanamethods; we cannot see how the book an be; and the great public who live by trades and occupations, many of which ght to be monopolized by him, can cerhave no interest in sustaining this course. we the public to judge whether or not a to obtains a small lot of books by inducagent to betray a trust, and who then advertises he is selling a book (in which nor is largely interested in the profits) at ed price, is best subserving the author's great public cannot hope to obtain the t this cut price, for he has but a few but his representations may make them fied and cause them to delay receiving are these agents designated in this man's sement as "book peddlers"? The y of them are old soldiers who fought eneral Grant and loved him. They have to save their country in her mand, and my are striving to earn an honest living in CHARLES L. WEBSTER & Co.

OBITUARY.

Mr. Enstry M. Smith, for many years connected with the New York office of L. Prang & Co., died on the evening of May 6 at his (ather's house in Manhasset, Long Island, at the age of fifty-eight years. Mr. Smith was known as a man of industry and integrity, and had had a wide experience. At one time he was a mer-chant in Callao, Peru, and while there was commissioned Consul by Kamehameha V., King of the Hawaiian Islands.

PROFESSOR JOEL DORMAN STEELE, widely known as the author of a series of school books, died suddenly of heart disease at his home in Elmira, on the 25th inst. He was born at Lima, N. Y., in 1836, educated at Albany and Troy, and in 1866 became principal of the Elmira Academy.

Dr. Dio Lewis, the well-known reformer, dled at his home in Yonkers, N. Y., on May 22. He was born at Auburn, N. Y., on March He was indefatigable as a speaker and writer, and no doubt did much good by calling attention to hygienic abuses, and especially by advocating physical exercise for women.

CLAUDIUS B. PATTEN, cashler of the State Bank, Boston, threw himself in front of an express train on the Old Colony railroad on the morning of May 22, and was instantly killed. He was quite extensively engaged in literary work, his latest production being a book entitled "England as Seen by an American Banker," published recently by D. Lothrop & Co.

LEOPOLD VON RANKE, the eminent German historian, died in Berlin on May 23d, in the ninety-first year of his age. Dr. von Ranke was born at Wiehe, in Thuringia, on December 21. 1795. His first work was published in 1824, "The History of Roman and German Nations from 1494 to 1535." The work which first gave him European reputation was entitled "The Popes of Rome," which was really a continuation of "The Princes and Peoples of Southern Europe." This work appeared in 1834. The "Weltgeschichte," which he hoped to make his magnum opus, has been left incomplete. Of the nine volumes planned, six have, however, been written, and it is hoped that sufficient notes and documents may be accumulated to permit at least one more volume to be added by the histurian's literary legatee. Among his more recent publications were "A History of Wallenstein," 1869; "The German Powers and the League of Princes," being a history of Germany from 1780 to 1790, published in 1871; "A History of England, Principally in the Seventeenth Century," 1875, and two biographies of Frederick the Great and Frederick Wilhelm, 1878.

NOTES ON AUTHORS.

MATTHEW ARNOLD'S son is said to have set to music some of his father's poems, and will presently publish them.

CAPT. CHARLES KING, author of "The Colonel's Daughter "and " Marion's Faith," is a son of Gen. Rufus King, once editor of the Milwaukee Sentinel.

MR. T WEMYSS REID has, at the request of Mrs. Forster, undertaken to write a memoir of the late Mr. W. E. Forster. The biography will deal with his personal and private life as well as with his political career.

JOURNALISTIC NOTES.

THE full title of the organ of the Theosophists in this country is "The Path: a magazine devoted to the brotherhood of humanity, Theosophy in America, and the study of occult science, philosophy, and Aryan literature." It is edited by Wm. Q. Judge, and published under the auspices of the Aryan Theosophical Society of N. Y. Communications may be sent to A. H. Gebhard, P. O. Box 2659, N. Y.

A NEW monthly periodical has been started in Philadelphia under the self-explanatory title of Art for All. Particular attention will be paid to various art industries, such as bronze-casting, art metal work, modelling, glass-staining, manufacture of tiles, the weaving of Smyrna rugs, etching, engraving, etc. The object of the journal is amusement as well as instruction, and space will be given to the stage, with illustrations of characters when possible. Criticisms will be given of books on art subjects, and of new paintings by American and foreign artists.

LITERARY AND TRADE NOTES.

It is affirmed that Clara Louise Kellogg is the heroine of the serial "Taken by Siege," now running in Lippincott's Magazine.

LITTLE, BROWN & Co. have just published 'Bates on the Law of Limited Partnership;' 'The Road and the Roadside,' by W. B. Potter; and 'Robert C. Winthrop's Addresses and Speeches on various occasions from 1878 to 1886."

LEE & SHEPARD have just issued a "Handbook of English History, based on Lectures on English History, by the late M. J. Guest, and brought down to the year 1880, with a supplementary chapter on the English literature of the nineteenth century," by Francis H. Underwood. The book contains maps, chronological tables, etc.

MR. JOSEPH GEORGE CUPPLES, of the firm of Cupples, Upham & Co., Boston, will join the Order of Benedicts on the 2d of June next. Miss Harriet Elizabeth Nichols has given her consent, and the cards say that the ceremony takes place at the North Congregational Church, Haverhill, Mass., at 2 P.M. We offer our congratulations.

As we go to press news reaches us of a disastrous fire that occurred in the large brick and stone building at Congress Street and Wabash Ave., on the 26th inst. The occupants of the building were Van Antwerp, Bragg & Co., Belford, Clarke & Co., Donohue & Henneberry, and R. S. Peale & Co., all in the book trade. The loss is roughly estimated at a million dollars.

W. I. HARRIS & Co., Boston, announce another book by the author of "Two Strokes of the Bell." It is to be called "The Romance of the Lilies," and will soon be issued. It is said to be less sensational but more original than its predecessor. The scene is laid, for the most part, in an obscure seaside village in Maine; and the central figure is a girl of sixteen—a charming, unconventional character—who unconsciously plays a strange part in a powerful tragedy.

JOEL MUNSELL'S SONS, Albany, N. Y., intend publishing a journal written by Captain Pausch, who was the chief of the Hanau Artillery during the Burgoyne Campaign. The Ms. of the journal was recently discovered by Mr. E. J. Lowell in the State library of Cassel, who has written an introduction for a translation and annotation made by Wm. L. Stone. The journal is said to give a "new view of the Hessians as sufferers at the hands of their English comrades."

"THE NAVAL HISTORY OF THE CIVIL WAR" by Admiral David D. Porter, is to be issued by The Sherman Publishing Co., 294 Broadway, N. Y. How soon the work may be expected is doubtful, as Mr. Stearns, one of the partners in the concern, has obtained an injunction against the company, which, for the present, prevents them from disposing of anything connected with the work. In the motion for the injunction it was asserted that advance orders call for from 17,000 to 20,000 copies of the history.

A "CENTENNIAL History of the Protestant Episcopal Church in the Diocese of New York, 1785–1885," with seven steel portraits of the bishops of New York, and other illustrations on wood, facsimiles of autographs, etc., will be ready early in June, from the press of D. Appleton & Co. This valuable contribution to the history of the Episcopal Church in this country has been prepared by General Wilson, a member of the committee chosen by the Diocesan Convention of 1885, the others being the Assistant Bishop, Dr. Henry C. Potter, and Dr. Morgan Dix, Rector of Trinity Church.

M. Shirley Geyer, 63 Duane Street, N. Y., has just published "Geyer's Reference Directory of the Booksellers and Stationers of the United States and Canada, also containing a list of all Paper Mills in the United States and Canada, giving daily capacity and kind of goods manufactured." The work seems to be thoroughly done—it claims to give 15,000 addresses—but, as far as the directory of booksellers is concerned, we regret to say is not altogether accurate. Of course, allowance must be made for first issues of this kind, and it is therefore to be hoped that with each succeeding year it will become more correct.

SCRIBNER vs. APPLETON.—The base-ball nine attached to the house of Charles Scribner's Sons played its initial game of the season at Bay Ridge, Long Island, on Saturday afternoon, May 22, and scored a decided victory over their opponents, Messrs. D. Appleton & Co.'s nine, as the following score will show. The runs scored were divided between the players as follows:

KEGAN PAUL & Co. will publish at once Henry Larkin's volume of personal reminiscences, "Carlyle, and the Open Secret of His Life."

A NEW volume of poems by Victor Hugo, entitled "La Fin de Satan," and containing six thousand verses, is announced to appear on the 22d of the month.

MR. RUSKIN'S publisher announces cheap issues, at an early date, of two books which have hitherto only been accessible either in the rare first editions or in the costly octavo reissue. These are "Time and Tide by Weare and Tyne," and "The Crown of Wild Olive."

GEORGE REDWAY, of London, is about to publish a translation, by Mr. E. J. W. Gibb, of the "History of the Forty Vezirs," a Turkish story-book of the fifteenth century. It is asserted that the only complete translation of this collection of tales that has hitherto appeared in any European language is that published in German by Dr. Behrnauer in 1851.

New Novels for Summer Reading.

BY THE MOST POPULAR AUTHORS.

MARION'S FAITH.

A SEQUEL TO "THE COLONEL'S DAUGHTER." By Captain CHARLES KING, U.S.A., author of "Kitty's Conquest," etc. 12mo, extra cloth, $1.25.

The Boston Literary World says of Captain King's former novel, of which this is a sequel: "There have been few American novels published of late years so thoroughly readable as 'The Colonel's Daughter.' There are brilliant pictures of garrison life, a taste of fighting and adventure, and a chivalrous love-affair, interwoven with clever sketches of military types. The style is bright, the dialogue simple and natural, the heroine a charming creature, with just a spice of wilfulness, and the favorite lieutenant one of those fortunate fellows whom most men envy and many women admire." The present story promises to be equally brilliant and entertaining.

VIOLETTA.

A Romance. After the German of Ursula Zöge von Manteuffel. Translated by Mrs. A. L. Wister. 12mo, cloth, $1.25.

"'Violetta,' as adapted by Mrs. Wister, is a clever novel. The characters are clear-cut, natural and strong. The situations are full of interest, the dialogue is bright and vigorous. The heroine is a particularly happy conception, worked out with much skill. There is decided power in the book, and a delicacy of manipulation so rare as to be very agreeable. Mrs. Wister has so skilfully adapted the story that it could not read more smoothly if it had been written in English."—New York Tribune.

COURT ROYAL.

A STORY OF CROSS-CURRENTS. By S. BARING-GOULD. 16mo, extra cloth, 75 cents; paper cover, 25 cents.

"For a novel that holds the reader with the intensity of the best French romances, commend one to 'Court Royal,' in the Lippincott Select Series of Summer Novels. It is an intense and highly-wrought story of the cross-currents of life. The plot is deeply exciting, but never exceeds probability."—Evening Traveller, Boston.

IN A GRASS COUNTRY.

A STORY OF LOVE AND SPORT. By Mrs. H. LOVETT CAMERON, author of "Pure Gold," etc. 12mo, extra cloth, 75 cents; paper cover, 25 cents.

"It is sparkling with jollity and out-door life, has exciting and affecting love scenes, and the movement of the plot is resistless in fascination. The reader will find plenty to keep his attention."—Harrisburg Evening Telegraph.

A MENTAL STRUGGLE.

AUTHORIZED EDITION. A Novel. By the "Duchess," author of "Lady Branksmere," "Phyllis," etc. 16mo, extra cloth, 75 cents; paper cover, 25 cents.

"It is a capitally-told story, in the best vein of the 'Duchess.' is full of life and incident, humor and sprightlines, and will be read through to the end and laid down with regret."—Pittsburgh Chronicle-Telegraph.

THE WRECKERS.

A Social Study. By George Thomas Dowling. Fourth edition. 12mo, cloth, $1.25.

"It is an excellent story, abounding in good lessons. In its romantic characters, fine descriptions, sarcasms without bitterness, with its friendly interwoven argument, the author proves himself no novice, even if it is a first effort in action."

Southern California:

s Valleys, Hills and Streams; its Animals, Birds and Fishes; its Gardens, Farms and Climate. By Theo. S. Van Dyke, author of "The Still Hunter," etc. 12mo, extra cloth, bevelled, $1.50.

This book is the result of twelve years' experience in that southern country, during which time almost every acre of e ground, from the San Joaquin River to Lower California and from the Pacific to Arizona, has been traversed by the athor, on foot, with rifle in hand. He writes after careful observation, of the climate, the seasons, the mountains, valleys ad streams, the flora and fauna, the hunting and fishing, the farming and fruit-raising, the vineyards and gardens and eir productions, the climate for invalids, and numberless other features of the land.

The book is an attempt to tell the plain, unvarnished truth about that much-lied-about country, Southern California, and for this if nothing else it will be welcomed.

LIGHT, SUMMER READING.

FOUR NEW NOVELS.

I

By Joaquin Miller. The DESTRUCTION OF GOTHAM."

Price, $1.00. Just ready.

This is a most graphic story of the times, showing the conflict between the upper and lower stratas of society in New York, ending in a great disaster to the city itself. It is an intensely interesting and powerful story. Joaquin Miller is a writer whose fame is world-wide. Says The London Times:

"His writings are charged with passionate life, and display a fervor of poetic appreciation and sympathy, combined with startling beauty and power."

II.

By Julian Hawthorne.

TWO NOVELS:

(1) "THE TRIAL OF GIDEON"

AND

(2) "THE COUNTESS ALMARA'S MURDER."

Both bound in one volume. 75 cents. (Ready about June 20th.)

The plot of the first novel is laid in prehistoric times, on the hills of Moab, that of the second in New York City.

The Independent, New York, says:

"Julian Hawthorne can choose no better compliment upon his new romance (Archibald Malmaison) than the assurance that he has at last put forth a story which reads as if the manuscript, written in his father's indecipherable handwriting, and signed 'Nathaniel Hawthorne,' had lain shut into a desk for 25 years, to be only just now pulled out and printed. It is a masterful romance, short, compressed, and terribly dramatic."

III.

"THE HISTORY OF A RECLUSE."

Price, $1.00. Ready about July 20th.

Mr. Hume in this story treats of some of the practical difficulties in solving the labor and other social problems. It is an interesting and most suggestive story.

IV.

By Ivan Turgenieff.

TWO NOVELS:

(1) "AN UNFORTUNATE WOMAN"

AND

(2) "ASS'YA."

Both bound in one volume. Translated direct from the Russian for this publication, by Henry Gersoni. Price, 75 cents. Ready about August 20th.

Able critics pronounce Turgenieff the foremost European novelist of recent times. Enthusiastic scholars in England are even learning the Russian language, in order to read his works in the original.

Renan says:

"No man has been as much as he the incarnation of a whole race."

The Literary World, of London, says:

"He is an artist of the first order. His style is bright, picturesque, intensely human, and irresistibly fascinating."

The New York Tribune;

"Turgenieff's characters are vital; they suffer with a pathos that irresistibly touches the reader to sympathy."

OTHER WORKS OF FICTION.

ASHES OF HOPES. By Julia A. Flisch. 12mo, cloth, $1.50.

The New York Sun: "This is a novel of decided interest. An intricate and ingenious plot is developed with skill; the interest is invariably sustained."

PRINCE SARONI'S WIFE AND THE PEARL-SHELL NECKLACE. Two novels. By Julian Hawthorne. Bound in one volume, 12mo, 117 pp., paper, 15 cents; cloth, 75 cents.

ARCHIBALD MALMAISON. By Julian Hawthorne. 12mo, 126 pp., paper, 15c.; cloth, 75c.

HIMSELF AGAIN. By J. C. Goldsmith. 12mo, 286 pp., paper, 25 cents; cloth, $1.00.

L'EVANGELISTE. A novel founded on the doings of the Salvation Army. By Alphonse Daudet. Translated by Mary Neal Sherwood. 12mo, 304 pp., paper, 50 cents; cloth, $1.00.

THE FORTUNES OF RACHEL. By Edward Everett Hale. 12mo, 221 pp., paper, 25 cents; cloth, $1.00.

SWEET CICELY; or, JOSIAH ALLENAS A POLITICIAN. By Josiah Allen's Wife (Marietta Holly). 12mo, illustrated, 390 pp., $2.00.

Will Carleton: "Retains all the peculiar spicy flavor of her former works, and is better than any of them because of its alternate pathos and humor."

Ed. Union Signal: "It comes from the very depths of her heart. It is quaint, humorous, original. She strikes hard blows, but with a velvet hand."

TRUE, and Other Stories. By George Parsens Lathrop. 12mo, 270 pp., paper, 25 cents; cloth, $1.60.

249, THE GOLD-SERKER OF THE SIEB-BAS. By Joaquin Miller. 12110, 148 pp., paper, 15 cents; cloth, 75 cents.

MUMU, AND THE DIARY OF A SUPER-FLUOUS MAN. Two novels. By Ivan Turgoniest. Translated from the Russian by Henry German. 12mo, 131.pp., paper, 15 cents; cloth, 75 cents.

A Spray of Pine.

w Burroughe's " Signe and Seasons." (Houghton.)

WONDER why it is that the pine has an anlook, a suggestion in some way of antiquity? because we know it to be the oldest tree? or not rather that its repose, its silence, its angeableness, suggest the past, and cause it and out in sharp contrast upon the backnd of the flitting fugitive present? It has a look of permanence! When growing from ocks it seems expressive of the same geologic uity as they. It has the simplicity of primihings; the deciduous trees seem more commore heterogeneous; they have greater tility, more resources. The pine has but idea, and that is to mount heavenward by lasting empires in thy decay.

regular steps—tree of fate, tree of dark shadows and of mystery.

The pine is the tree of silence. Who was the Goddess of Silence? Look for her altars amid the pines—silence above, silence below. Pass from deciduous woods into pine woods of a windy day and you think the day has suddenly become calm. Then how silent to the foot! One walks over a carpet of pine needles almost as noiselessly as over the carpets of our dwellings. Do these halls lead to the chambers of the great that all noise should be banished from them? Let the designers come here and get the true pattern for a carpet—a soft yellowish brown with only a red leaf, or a bit of gray moss, or a dusky lichen scattered here and there; a background that does not weary or bewilder the eye or insult the ground-loving foot.

How friendly the pine-tree is to man-so docile and available as timber and so warm and protective as shelter. Its balsam is salve to his wounds, its fragrance is long life to his nostrils; an abiding, perennial tree, tempering the climate, cool as murmuring waters in summer and like a wrapping of fur in winter.

The deciduous trees are inconstant friends that fail us when adverse winds do blow, but the pine and all its tribe look winter cheerily in the face, tossing the snow, masquerading in his arctic livery, in fact holding high carnival from fall to spring. The Norseman of the woods, lofty and aspiring, tree without bluster or noise, that sifts the howling storm into a fine spray of sound; symmetrical tree, tapering, columnar, shaped as in a lathe, the preordained mast of ships, the mother of colossal timbers; centralized, towering, patriarchal, coming down from the fore-world, counting centuries in thy rings and out-

Midge's Literary Progress.

From Bunner's "Midge." (Scribner's.)

For she had begun a course of study. She had at first expressed a doubt as to there being anything left for her to learn; but after a test examination, the Doctor had become convinced that not only must her education be taken in hand at once, but he must take it in hand himself. No school was fitted to cope with such a bewildering combination of knowledge and ignorance. In simple arithmetic she had great proficiency. She could calculate with marvellous rapidity in French, German, English and American currency. She had, so to speak, an empirical knowledge of European geography. She could read fluently in French and English. But she had never regarded it as necessary or expedient to learn to spell in either language. He asked her to give him a specimen of her hand-writing. She evaded compliance at the moment, but the next morning, when he left the house, he found this note hid in his hat:

Mi dire everte

i louve you bot i louve not the riting

i can djiographie à ritmatique franche ingliche and a litle too couque bot not the riting seau wel

When he had got this insight into her system of phonetics, he went out and bought a lot of school-books, and he began his task of instruction with many forebodings. But she soon relieved his fears. She saw that he desired it, and she studied hard. She learned only too rapidly: but she retained a fair proportion of what she learned. Of course, he had to make some allowance for her habits of independent thought. the end she retained a profound contempt for the unpractical character of the man who wrote the spelling-book.

"Acme, apostroph', asth-ma," she said, running her finger down the column, "what shall he want of such words like those? I never shall Apple, acorn, ashes—there is the sense. If you go take a walk in the country, you see acorns, you see apples. But you never shall say: 'See the beautiful apostroph''—'look at the fine asth-ma.' It is a stupidness, to write such words that nobody will say."

The spelling-book was a humiliation for the Midge, and in self-defence she sought to vindicate her claim to intellectual maturity by demanding some French books to read. The Doctor went to the little "Librairie" with the blue sign, in South Fifth Avenue, and bought a couple of volumes of the Bibliothèque Rose—the "Mémoires d'un Ane" and "l'Auberge de l'Ange Gardien." She contemptuously rejected both as childish and wholly beneath her. She wanted novels. So late one afternoon he made a solitary excursion to Brentano's.

There was a pretty young woman at the desk. She had a sweet and kindly face, and the Doctor addressed himself to her. She pointed with her pen to the far-off counter where the French books were sold, and when he reached it, a courteous young Frenchman laid before him a half-dozen of the latest importations. The covers were enough for the Doctor.

"Here!" he expostulated, "this won't do. I want something for a young lady—pour une jeune fille—see? This isn't the sort of thing at all."

But the courteous young Frenchman had been carried off by a group of rather too well-dressed men, with handsome, over-fed faces, who seemed to be in search of just that "sort of thing," in a more exalted degree.

"Try this!" said a voice over his head. The Doctor looked up bewildered, and saw on the top of a small step-ladder, set against the bookshelves on the wall, a broad-shouldered young man in a rough tweed suit, with a cloth travelling cap on the side of his head. . . .

This is the sort of thing you want, I guess," he said: "there isn't a blush in it—perfectly safe." He handed the Doctor a copy of Sardou's "Perle Noire," and he smiled again as his eye ran over the volumes that had been proffered by the courteous Frenchman.

" Pretty hard lot he gave you, didn't he? But then French novels mostly are a pretty hard lot, Captain."

"Did you tell me this book was all correct and proper?"

"Straight as a string, sir. How old—I beg your pardon—but how old, about, is the young lady? I might find you something else."

Let me see," mused the Doctor, aloud, "let me see. She was born twelve or thirteen years That'll make her—say about eighteen or twenty, now, as far as I can calculate.

The young man stared in frank amazement.

You see," the Doctor went on, "she's a rather peculiar young woman. You can't tie her down to years, the way you would any one else. If you want to put it in plain, solid figures, she's only twelve or so. But sometimes I think she's a little older than I am myself. I'm not sure that I can get literature aged enough for her. At any rate, she wants regular grown-up French novels, and she's got to have them-if they can be got full-blown and respectable."

He checked himself with a frown. What was he doing, running on thus like a garrulous proud parent, in the presence of a perfect stranger! It was small consolation to reflect that he had been talking to himself, rather than to the stranger.

But the young man set things right with his cheery, friendly laugh, and in five minutes the two were ransacking the shop for virtuous French fiction.

When their search was ended, the afternoon reception was well-nigh over. In the streets the gas-lamps blazed brightly through the heavy dusk, flickering in a chill, raw wind that had suddenly come up from the East River. The Doctor buttoned his coat, but the young man seemed quite comfortable in his tweed suit, as they strode down University Place together.

A Surprise.

From Miss Burnham's "Next Door." (Tickner & Ca)

"I AM so glad you did not happen to mention up-stairs where you were living." she said, as they stood waiting for a car.

Aunt Ann started. "Well," she exclaimed, "it would be a pretty state of things if I couldn't mention it now. Kate, my dear child," beginning an excited fumbling in her pocket, "it just comes over me that I haven't the least idea what street I do live on. Stupid critter that I am, leaving the house as I did this morning without looking around me. I've no patience with my self. But that," pointing to an approaching horse-car, "is the same colored and looking car as runs by our house. I've got the number and street written down, and if it's in my purse I'm ill right," and she drew forth her purse and earched it nervously. "It ain't there," she ancounced at last, in a desperate tone.

"Never mind," said Kate, soothingly, Ou are sure these are the right cars we can get and ride until you recognize the house."

"But I never should," with a despairing gestre; "it's in one of these blocks that looks all There was a rat on the upper step this worning, but Mr. Sharp took it off. Oh, I ain't t to be let go loose. I need a keeper," and unt Ann turned around wildly. In the midst I her anxiety a large cat sitting in a neighborig window attracted her attention. handsome cat!" she exclaimed, "most as andsome as Kits," she continued, admiringly. Why," in blank astonishment, "I do believe -Kate Standish, it is Kits. Hold me, Kate, I elieve I'm dizzy. That's my own cat and my wn house, and I live next door to you!" and

As the truth dawned upon Kate, she joined in ne laugh, but some thought turned her grave.

Lunt Ann sat down on the steps without ceresony and laughed immoderately.

"Do you think it would be possible to keep it rom Margery?" she asked. "If she knows this he will be running in and out at all hours."

"Bless her heart, why shouldn't she?" rearned Aunt Ann, wiping her eyes. "Well, could we have asked anything better than this?" he added, rising from her lowly position. Kate Doked the reverse of grateful. Her brows knit bemselves in the effort to decide instantly on be right course.

"Walk up and down a little, Aunt Ann, you are not in so much haste, now," she said, offerog her arm.

Why, won't you come in?" returned the Mber, hospitably.

"Not just now, thank you," replied the girl, mading her aunt along the sidewalk. "I want talk about Margery. She will be delighted to we a place so near where she can run in informally. You see how she chafes at the life we ead, and how she craves some excitement. I do bot like the idea of her meeting these strange men, of whom we know nothing.

"Why, Kate, what do you mean, child? I know a great deal more of Ray Ingalls than I do M you, and his mother was a perfect lady, a little my and pernickety, but a refined woman. As for the rest, they were every one picked out by Uncle John himself!" and Aunt Ann looked Around at her companion triumphantly. "Uncle John! What Uncle John?"

"Ray's. He's in his uncle's office, you know. What an old head yours is, Kate, to be on such young shoulders. Why, child, it's pitiful to see you so strict and caretaking at your age. You cought to be lighter-hearted.

"I am light-hearted, believe me," returned Kate, smiling, "excepting when Margery is un-

Well, let the child get what pleasure she can Promise me To keep your home a secret, if possible, for a By that time you will have made the acmintance of your family; and promise me one more—that you will not introduce any of to Margery until I give you permission."

'Well, well," and Aunt Ann bridled a little, fattered myself I was going to take care of 'long after your mother's death,' said Abdullah, you young people when I got here. As far as that goes, it seems as though I might as well have stayed at home."

Kate stood still, and took one of the speaker's hands as she faced her. "You would not say that, nor be vexed, if you knew what a gratification it is to me that you have come. I feel more respectable and less isolated. I have had a great deal of care, and it is natural to me now to look ahead and be cautious. You must not misunderstand me about Margery. She is only very impulsive, and very anxious for a good time, and I wish to shield her from any social position in which she would not have been placed had parents and fortune remained to us.

Aunt Ann looked into the earnest face, which lit up with a sudden, brilliant smile.

"So you will promise me?"

"Yes, dear, if you think it necessary," responded Aunt Ann, meekly; and then they separated, going up their respective steps, and entering the houses; one going to Margery, and the other to Kits.

Ruhainah.

From Stanton's "Ruhainah." (Cassell & Co.)

Ruhainah was only seventeen years of age. but she had for the last few years of her short life exerted an influence over her aged father's life of which he was fully conscious.

Abdullah in his youth had been a desperate man, violent, fiery, and revengeful, but in the hands of his daughter Ruhainah he was as gentle as a lamb. Indeed, it was only in the apartment of Ruhainah that Abdullah found rest from the turmoils of life.

Among strict Moslems the cultivation of music is unlawful, for it is said that the Prophet put his fingers in his ears when he heard the strains of a

'But that was not such music as Ruhainah's,' old Abdullah would say. And the fond old father loved to recline and listen to the sweet strains of his daughter's melody as she would accompany herself on the rebāb.

How the old man's face would lighten up as he gazed on the pensive profile of his daughter's face as she would sing so sweetly the words of the Arab poetess!

"O rare virtue and beautiful natural trait, Which never will change by the change of estate! when clad in his armor and prepared for the The army rejoiceth and winneth the day!"

"Father! why have you not married me to some old Cabul prince, or to some ugly Sheenwaree chief?" said Ruhainah, as she struck her little fingers playfully across the rebāb and looked inquiringly into his face.

'' My child, why do you ask me?''

"I never thought of it before," she said; "but this morning your Sheenwaree wife said her tribe were determined to claim me in marriage for their chief."

The old man's face became serious, and taking Ruhainah's hand tenderly, he said, very solemnly:

"Ruhainah, do you really wish to be mar-

" No, why should I?"

"Ruhainah! I once had a strange dream regarding you."

"Oh, do tell it, father; I do so like dreams." "It was many years ago—in fact, it was not with some hesitancy, "that I was sleeping at noonday under a shady rock in the Gandnamak Pass, and you, then a little babe, were resting in my arms, that Jesus, the Spirit of God-upon whom be peace appeared to me and said, Abdullah! that child is mine; let her be as my Virgin Mother.' I thought he took you away, but when I awoke you were playing with my beard. I have often wondered what could be the meaning of that dream! Can it be that you are destined to live a virgin life? For, many a time since then have I sought to betroth you, but the fate of the Almighty God seems against When a child, you were betrothed to the youngest son of the Governor of Herat, but he was assassinated that very night. I had promised you to a Candahar chief, and he was slain in battle. And it was only yesterday that I heard the Ameer had decided to demand you for his son Gholam Hyder, the very day the young prince It has been well said in the sacred Koran, All things have been created after a fixed decree,' and your destiny, my rose, seems to be but to cheer and comfort an aged father at the close of his long and checkered life."

"And what more happy destiny than mine, father dear?" she said, as she playfully thrust her fingers into his long white beard and with her left hand struck a cheerful chord on the mode.

Two Students.

From Cromford's " Tale of a Lonely Parish." (Macmilian.)

JOHN was a constant source of wonder to his companion the Honorable Cornelius Angleside, who remembered to have seen fellows of that sort at Eton, but had never got near enough to them to know what they were really like. Cornelius had a vague idea that there was some trick about appearing to know so much and that those reading chaps were awful humbugs. How the trick was performed he did not venture to explain, but he was as firmly persuaded that it was managed by some species of conjuring as that Messrs. Maskelyne and Cook performed their wonders by sleight of hand. That one human brain should actually contain the amount of knowledge John Short appeared to possess was not credible to the Honorable Cornelius, and the latter spent more of his time in trying to discover how John "did it" than in trying to "do it" himself. Nevertheless, young Angleside liked Short after his own fashion, and Short did not dislike Angleside. John's father had given him to understand that as a general rule persons of wealth and good birth were a set of overbearing, purse-proud bullies, who considered men of genius to be little better than a set of learned monkeys, certainly not good enough to black their boots. For John's father in his misfortunes had imbibed sundry radical notions formerly peculiar to poor literary men, and not yet altogether extinct, and he had accordingly warned his son that all mammon was the mammon of unrighteousness, and that the people who possessed it were the natural enemies of people who had to live by their brains. But John had very soon discovered that though Cornelius Angleside possessed the three quali-Scations for perdition, in the shape of birth, wealth, and ignorance, against which his poor father railed unceasingly, he succeeded neverbaless in making himself very good c Angleside was not overbearing, he purse-proud, and he was not a bully contrary, he was unobtrusive and st simple in manner, and he certainly ne tioned the subject of his family or fortus rather pitied him, on the whole, until I to discover that Angleside looked up t account of his mental superiority, a John, being very human, began to like

The Light that is Felt.

G. Whittier, in "St. Gregory's Guest." (Houghton.)

A TENDER child of summers three,
Seeking her little bed at night,
Paused on the dark stair timidly.
"Oh, mother! take my hand," said she,
"And then the dark will all be light."

We older children grope our way
From dark behind to dark before;
And only when our hands we lay,
Dear Lord, in Thine, the night is day,
And there is darkness nevermore.

Reach downward to the sunless days
Wherein our guides are blind as we,
And faith is small and hope delays;
Take Thou the hands of prayer we raise,
And let us feel the light of Thee!

Why We Love Tennyson.

From Cooke's " Poets and Problems." (Ticknor & Co.)

More than Browning, Swinburne, Wordsworth, Byron, or Shelley is Tennyson read and admired by all classes of men. He does not represent a class, a sect in religion or art, a tendency in thought and sentiment, or a social type and movement. However strong his love of music and beauty and cultured refinement, he is not the poet of the artistic school. It is to Rossetti, and not to Tennyson, we are to look The renascence, for the poet of the art-revival. the Broad Church movement, the advancing triumphs of science, the reform agitation, and the growth of the representative principle in government, may all find expression in Tennyson's poetry; but it is as a lover of man, and as a poetic student of life in its endless variety of manifestations, that he comes to us with his appeal to heart and mind.

Tennyson sings of the loves and hopes and sorrows and burdens of men. There is pathos and there is tenderness in his poetry; the passion and energy of a strong man, and the sympathy of one who loves his fellows. He delights to wander along the English hedge-rows and rivers, and to watch the ocean from sandy shore or high cliff. Not the less he delights in the simple duties and experiences and sentiments of men in cot and hall, city mansion or lone farm-Mountain and brook, tiny moss in some sequestered nook, or bird sweeping o'erhead in airy mazes of movement, alike engage his thought and inspire his song. He sings of "Enoch Arden" and "The Lord of Burleigh," "The Miller's Daughter," and the fair women of his dream, with sympathy for each alike; not because of his class or rank, but because of his numanity and his life-experiences. Lyric passion and freedom, idyllic peace and beauty, he most of all finds it in his heart to sing of in tender lay or stately poem. He is the poet of life and hope, who knows it is life and not death for which the men of his time are panting with eager aspiration. The poetry of Tennyson may well remind us that the world is always hungry for sentiment. There are those who are ready to sneer at what they call "sentimentalism;" but it is in the region of sentiment that most people pass the greater part of their lives. It is not possible for us all to be learned and wise. It is not possible, either, that we should have no other mental diet than common sense and reason. So long as man is man, so long as he is a being of feeling, will he love sentiment and crave for it. The poet, preacher, or novelist who can go to the heart is sure to be sought after. He will give satisfaction and comfort where much wiser men fail.

A Musical Vis-a-Vis.

From Sidney Luska's " Mrs. Peixada." (Cassell & Co.) THE invisible musician had now abandoned her exercises, and was fairly launched upon a song, accompanying herself with a piano. Arthur nor Hetzel recognized the tune, but they greatly enjoyed listening to it, because it was rendered with so much intelligence and delicacy of expression. They could not make out the words, either, but from the languid, sensuous swing of the melody, it was easy to infer that the theme was love. There were several verses; and after each of them occurred a brilliant interlude upon the piano, in which the refrain was caught up and repeated with variations. thought he had never heard sweeter music in his life; and very likely he never had. woman," he declared, when silence was restored, "that woman, whoever she is, has a soul—a rare enough piece of property in this materialistic age. Such power of making music betokens a corresponding power of deep feeling, clear thinking, noble acting. I'd give my right hand for a glimpse of her. Why doesn't some mesmeric influence bring her to the window? Oh, for an Asmodeus to unroof her dwelling, and let me peep in at her—observe her, as she sits before her key-board, unconscious of observation!" Even Hetzel, who was not prone to enthusiasms, who, indeed, derived an expert's satisfaction from applying the wet blanket, admitted that she sang "like an angel."

Arthur went on, "Opera? Talk about opera? Why, this beats the opera all hollow. Can you conceive a more exquisite mise en scène? Twilight! Lingering in the west—over there behind the cathedral—a pale, rosy flush! Above, a star or two, twinkling diamond-like on the breast of the coming night! In our faces, the fragrance of the south wind! Below us, the darkling river, alive with multitudinous craft! Can your Opera House, can your Academy of Music boast anything equal to it? And then, as the flower and perfection of this loveliness, sounding like a clarion from heaven, that glorious woman's voice. I tell you, man, it's poetry—it's Rossetti, Alfred de Musset, Heinrich Heine—it's—

Hello! there she goes again."

This time her selection was the familiar but ever beautiful Erl König, which she sang with such dramatic spirit that Hetzel himself exclaimed, when she had finished, "It actually made my heart stand still."

"'Du liebes Kind, komm geh mit mir!"
hummed Arthur. "Ah, how persuasively she murmured it! And then, "Mein Vater, mein Vater, und hörest du nicht?"—wasn't it blood-curdling? Didn't it convey the entire horror of the situation? the agony of terror that bound the child's heart? Beekman Place has had an invaluable acquisition. I'll wager, she's as good and as beautiful as St. Cecilia, her patroness. What do you guess, is she dark or fair, big or little?"

"The odds are that she's old and ugly. Patti herself, you know, is upward of forty. It isn't probable that with her marvellous musical accomplishments, this lady is endowed with youth and beauty also. I wouldn't cherish great expectations of her, if I were you; because then, if you should ever chance to see her, you'll be so much disappointed. Better make up your mind that her attractions begin and end with her voice. Complexion? Did you ask my opinion of her complexion? Oh, she's blonde—that goes without saying."

"Wrong again! She's a brunette of the first water; dusky skin, red mouth, black, lustrous eyes. You can tell that from the fire she puts into her music. As for her age, you're doubly mistaken. If you had the least faculty for adding two and two together—arithmetician that you are—you'd know at once that a voice of such freshness, such compass, and such volume, could not pertain to a woman far beyond twenty. On the other hand, no mere school-girl could sing with such intelligent expression. Wherefore, striking an average, I'll venture she's in the immediate vicinity of twenty-five. However, conjectures are neither here nor there. Where's Josephine? Let's have her up, and interrogate her."

With this speech, Arthur began to pound his heel upon the roof—the method which these young bachelors employed to make known to their domestic that her attendance was wanted. When the venerable Josephine had emerged waist-high from the scuttle-door, "Josephine," demanded Arthur, "who is the new tenant of the corner house?"

Burns's Birthplace.

From "H. H.'s" "Glimpses of Three Coasts." (Roberts.)

Ayr is the cottage in which Burns was born. It is about two miles south from the centre of the town, on the shore of "Bonnie Doon," and near Alloway Kirk. You cannot go thither from Ayr over any road except the one Tam o' Shanter took: it has been straightened a little since his day, but many a rod of it is the same that Maggie trod; and Alloway Kirk is as ghostly a place now, even at high noon, as can be found "free Maidenkirk to Johnny Groat's." There is nothing left of it but the walls and the gable, in which the ancient bell still hangs, intensifying the silence by its suggestion of echoes long dead.

The Burns cottage is now a sort of inn, kept by an Englishman whose fortunes would make a tale by themselves. He fought at Balaklava and in our civil war; and side by side on the walls of his dining-room hang, framed, his two commissions in the Pennsylvania Volunteers and the menu of the Balaklava Banquet, given in London to the brave fellows that came home alive after that fight. He does not love the Scotch people.

"I would not give the Americans for all the Scotch ever born," he says, and is disposed to speak with unjust satire of their apparent love of Burns, which he ascribes to a perception of his recognition by the rest of the world and a shamefaced desire not to seem to be behindhand in paying tribute to him.

"Oh, they let on to think much of him," he said. "It's money in their pockets."

The room in which Burns was born is still unaltered, except in having one more window let in. Originally, it had but one small square window of four panes. The bed is like the beds in all the old Scotch cottages, built into the wall, similar to those still seen in Norway. Stifling enough the air surely must have been in the cupboard bed in which the "waly boy" was born.

"The gossip keekit in his loof; Quo' scho, 'Wha lives will see the proof,— This waly boy will be nae coof; I think we'll ca' him Robin.'"

Before he was many days old, or, as some traditions have it, on the very night be was but, a olent storm "tirled" away part of the roof of e poor little "clay biggin," and mother and be were forced to seek shelter in a neighbor's Misfortune and Robin early joined mpany, and never parted. The little bedroom now the show-room of the inn, and is filled ith tables piled with the well-known boxes, pinishions, baskets, paper-cutters, etc., made from 'camore wood grown on the banks of Doon and These articles are all stamped with some ctures of scenery associated with Burns or ith quotations from his verses. It is impossible see all this money-making without thinking hat a delicious, rollicking bit of verse Burns ould write about it himself if he came back to-There are those who offer for sale articles ay. aid to be made out of the old timbers of the lossgiel house; but the Balaklava Englishman couts all that as the most barefaced imposture. There wasn't an inch of that timber," he says -and he was there when the house was taken own--" which wasn't worm-eaten and rotten; ot enough to make a knife-handle of!"

One feels disposed to pass over in silence the Burns Monument," which was built in 1820, it a cost of over three thousand pounds; "a circular temple supported by nine fluted Corinhian columns, emblematic of the nine muses," ay the guide-books. It stands in a garden over-ooking the Doon, and is a painful sight. But in a room in the base of it are to be seen some relics at which no Burns lover can look unmoved—the Bibles he gave to Highland Mary, the ring with which he wedded Jean (taken off after her death), and two rings containing some of his hair.

It is but a few steps from this monument down to a spot on the "banks o' bonnie Doon," from which is a fine view of the "auld brig." This shining, silent water, and the overhanging, silent trees, and the silent bell in the gable of Alloway Kirk, speak more eloquently of Burns than do all nine of the Corinthian muse-dedicated pillars in his monument.

The Pilot of the "Ariel."

From "The Log of the 'Ariel.'" (Cupples.)

In Booth Bay we took on board a pilot who was to serve us for a couple of weeks. His age is uncertain, and so are his features. Rain, fog and salt water have nearly washed out his eyes, and his face and neck have, by many years of exposure to a merciless climate, been worked into a neat imitation of alligator skill. He has no hair to speak of, only a few bleached little curls, which grow in a promiscuous, hopeless way in the furrows. He has a wife and fourteen (14!) living children, whose home is a small house in a little sheltered bay on the coast near Booth Bay, and he can lie Baron Munchausen all out of sight. During the foggy period, when he had nothing to do, he told some tall shark stories and some events in his life which would have made the famous Baron yellow with envy. And he told them with such a sweet, innocent, con-Mence-inspiring manner that you could not help admiring his art.

He smokes a small, vicious-looking black pipe, which he once, while he was steering, asked me to relight, taking it out of his mouth and serenely handing it over to me. I was so taken by surprise that I did, without a murmur, but looked that he was well furnished with matches the test of the time.

Flights Inside and Outside Paradise.

By George Cullen Pearson (Putnam).

BE warned then by my experience since my self-banishment. Think not, O ambitious and dissatisfied dweller in paradise, because the field is small and you can fairly fill it—at least in your own idea—that you possess the capacity for spreading yourself over a much larger area. In Eden you are breakfasted and dinnered and picnicked into the idea that you are some very important factor indeed in the sum of things, and have only to step out into the world to be recognized as one of the great ones of the earth; that lucrative positions will be created for you, money flung at you, fatted calves killed for you. fondly hope that you will see fulfilled in practice the epistolary gush which persons, who years ago posed as your friends, have at intervals poured upon you when they thought you safely fixed for life thousands of miles away from them; and — oh! most cutting delusion of all—you believe that you will prove to be what your fellow Peris have ever been to you—helpers in adversity, comforters in sorrow and jolly companions every one.

Ruinous conclusions, drawn in great measure from your own conceit and of which the first few steps in the outer world will have shown you the folly. You have left behind you light and warmth, sympathy and steady friendship, and you have walked out into fog and darkness, selfishness and indifference.

I am not writing for you, my Dives brother, who now and then go forth in all the glory and glitter which attend a well-filled purse, to dazzle the world with a display of those savings which you have accumulated in years of labor in the fields of Eden, when the spinnings of glossy silk and gatherings of fragrant tea have been abundant and profitable; or where flattery, judiciously sown on the good soil of patronage, has produced a crop of fat government contracts. To you—so long as the money holds out—the tempered sunlight of Eden and its perennial, if modest, flowers are but poor things when compared with the lime-light and the red fire and the tinsel and stage jewels of the great world, and in the first whirl of the varied pleasures afforded by the "dear, damn'd, distracting town," Eden will seem a very slow place indeed. To you, then, O Cræsus, I have naught to say, except to wish that you may remain contented wherever you may be, whether inside or outside Eden, and the jolly good fellow you always were. If you find your greatest happiness outside, stop there by all means.

But I am sure that when you are married, as you deserve to be, to one of the richest and most amiable of earth's fair daughters, you will in after years tell your children (of whom "may you have nine," as a Turkish beggar-woman wished me one day in return for two-pence-halfpenny charitably bestowed, and to whom I made hasty rejoinder, dreading the evil eye, "Madam, your blessings return upon your head and be tenfold") of the happy hours passed in Eden, and of the thousand delights of that far-off land. Yet neither to your children nor to the wife of your bosom will you catalogue all; only occasionally, when the latter is absent, in a quiet chat with some old comrade over the walnuts and the wine. you will, amid wicked chucklings and low-voiced confidences and anxious glances at the diningroom door, confess that thuse hours were the happiest of your life.

Moravian Hospitality.

From Balestier's "A Victorious Defeat." (Harper.)

HAVING yielded to the abundant Moravian hospitality, he made a point of seeing the best in it. Judea was exquisitely provincial, certainly, but that was part of its charm, and March at least would not have added a pennyweight of sophistication to it if he could. If it were to be complained that the life was absurdly narrow, March, in his invincible satisfaction for the moment with it, would have freely owned the truth of all that could be said in this direction, but he would have urged that one might sometimes grow a little tired of the broader life. One could always angle in the wide, swift currents; it was interesting to whip the brooks occasionally. This was, of course, especially true when those brooks were American. The genuine hospitality was not an every day matter; when one was in the luxurious enjoyment of it, for what could it be advantageously exchanged?

His life from day to day was very simple, and though it embraced much observation in the direct line of his mission, seemed to have no other very large aim. Nevertheless, he was fully occupied. There appeared to be a great many things in Judea that might be done with pleasure, and Dr. Van Cleef busied himself unwearyingly in searching these out and setting them before him.

"I want to drive you to the Old Basin this afternoon," he would say at breakfast; or on another morning, "Constance, my dear, why not show Mr. March Indian Gorge to-day? Now there are the clock works. You have seen them? Oh, of course, but not Moravian clock works;" and "we omitted the Widows' Choir yesterday, Constance. You must take Mr. March through it. I want you to see our whole system, sir." The doctor seemed to think some part of his duty left undone in a day for which he had provided no certain plan, and his repertoire was apparently exhaustless. But March enjoyed the days which were less carefully mapped at least as well; and his issueless wanderings with Constance through the settlement; and their morning talks in the garden had a value of their own which the pleasantest of their regularly scheme excursions—and they were certainly delightful in their way—quite lacked.

Constance did not permit their guest to disturb the even order of her daily occupations, however. In the afternoon she often spun—a graceful employment, at which, in the Moravian habit, she sang the Spinne Lieder. As she softly hummed the quaint airs which the church of the Unitas Fratrum has wisely provided for this, as for all the industries of her children, her daintilymade foot rose and fell in time, and while the easy motions of her head and figure recurred in harmony, one hand spanned the distaff as the other ran to and fro, drawing forth the slight thread, and returning. In the evening she was wont to sit before the great, cheery wood fire, the natural centre of their little circle. While her father read Miss Cynthia knitted, and March talked with Constance. At these times she was often skilfully elaborating some woman's fancy in embroidery by the light of the massive candelabrum, or doing that more prosaic sewing which the laundresses of Judea were accustomed to render weekly to the personal care of the housewife. Toward the close of the evening she would lay aside her work. As they sat thus confront- | vance. Now may we look for stirring work their talk was of many things; and if the literature or the art of which they occasionally spoke clung rather anxiously to English skirts, that was perhaps to be expected, though disappointing to March's adoptive patriotism.

Contrasts.

From King's "Marion's Faith" (Lippincott). "WHAT is so rare as a day in June?" sings the poet, and where can a day in June be more beautiful than at this Highland Gate of the Peerless Hudson? It is June of the Centennial year, and all the land is ablaze with patriotic fervor. From North, from South, from East and West, the products of a nation's ingenuity or a nation's toil have been garnered in one vast exhibition at the Quaker City; and thither flock the thousands of our people. It is June of a presidential nomination, and the eyes of statesmen and politicians are fixed on Cincinnati. It is the celebration of the first century of a nation's life that engrosses the thoughts of millions of hearts, and between that great jubilee and that quadrennial tempestin-a-teapot, the nomination, who but a few lonely wives and children have time to think of those three columns far, far out in the broad Northwest — those three columns of regulars, cavalry and infantry, rough-garbed, bronzed and bearded, steadily closing in toward the wild and beautiful region along the northern water-shed of the Big Horn Range, where ten thousand hostile Indians are uneasily watching their coming? On the Atlantic seaboard comrades in full-dress uniform, with polished arms, are standing guard over government treasures on exhibition, and thoughtless thousands wonder at the ease and luxury of the soldier's life. Out on the frontier, in buckskin and flannel, slouch hats and leggings, and bristling prairie-belts, the little army is concentrating upon an outnumbering foe, whose signal-fires light the way by night, whose trail is red with blood by day. From the northeast, up the Yellowstone, Terry of Fort Fisher fame, the genial, the warm-hearted general, whose thoughts are ever with his officers and men. leads his few hundred footmen, while Custer, whose division has flashed through battery after battery, charge after charge, in the great Rebellion, now rides at the head of a single regiment From the northwest, down the Yellowstone, with but a handful of tried soldiery, comes Gibbon; he who led a corps at Gettysburg and AP pomattox. From the south, feeling his way along the eastern base of the Big Horn, with less than two thousand troopers and footmen. marches the "Gray Fox," the general under whom our friends of the -th so long and so successfully battled with the Apaches of Arizona. He has met his match this time. Cheyenne. Ogallalla, Brulé, Uncapapa, Minneconjou, Sans Arc, and Blackfoot, all swarm over the broad and breezy uplands in his front, or lurk in the deep shade of the lovely valleys. Twice have they sprung upon him and checked his advance. Once only has he been forced to hesitate, but now, as the longest days of the year approach and the glistening dome of Snow Peak is yet warm with the flush of the setting sun, when "morn, in russet mantle clad," tinges the castern slopes with glowing light: now, at last, the long-dreaded leaders of the border warfare are being hemmed in between the encircling ading the flaming logs in the wide chimney-mouth, ' along the bluffs and boulders of the Big Hark.

The Prig at Oxford.

From " The Life of a Prig." (Holt.)

FILLED my rooms at Oxford, where I held a owship, with books about the religions of the st, and I cultivated the acquaintance of meno had similar interests. After all, I was hapr at Oxford than anywhere else, and my am was that Oxford should become the Rome mental emancipation. There was already a imising spirit of free thought among the inger dons. While I agreed with Schopen-ter that the world was the worst possible rld, I believed that Oxford was the best posle Oxford, and that my own college was the t possible college. I hoped to become in e the great apostle of pessimism at my uniwity, and to that end I devoted myself to deep l intense study. Much as I liked many ngs in Buddhism, Confucianism, Zoroastrian-1. Mohammedanism, Süfism, Schopenhauerand Manicheism, I felt that they would rere some mastication and digestion before I ered them to the public. Nevertheless, I was ifident that I should, by and by, be enabled to Iver 2 pure gospel to those who were seeking ht in the University of Oxford. Until I build have perfected my religious scheme, I inaded to foster unorthodoxy of every descripin, so far as lay in my power, both among aduates and undergraduates, for a stirring of e waters was obviously necessary, and a seekg for truth must be engendered. Much as I me now distrusted by old and orthodox dons, ere was a mystery about me which was attracre to others, and I became a marked man. lowed my beard to grow, and reduced my visits the hairdresser, acquiring a wild, weird, and seresting aspect. Moreover, my conspicuous beence from the college chapel raised me much the esteem of the undergraduates.

One evening, I was invited to meet Mr. Bright ones, the celebrated Orientalist, who at that me was on a visit to Oxford. He had spent mny years in different parts of Asia, and his bject in coming to Oxford appeared to be rather show its inhabitants their ignorance than to we them the benefit of his own knowledge. arly in the evening he observed to me that it ras quite hopeless to attempt to learn anything f Oriental religious unless one could read the inguages in which they were originally written, and he advised me, if I wished to take the matter p-as if I were not already well known to be ne of the most deeply read men on the subject t the University-to study Eastern languages or three or four years as a preliminary step. I faliked the man's whole tone, and he annoyed se excessively by smiling at the very idea of any iscussion of the religions which I had mastered "You will find something about o thoroughly. hat in such and such a work of mine," was his smal reply to any attempt at conversation conerulng Eastern creeds, and when I expressed by admiration of a certain book, he made a long notation from it in Persian, and asked whether hat was one of my favorite passages. At last I bld him that I was thoroughly acquainted with he principal sacred books of the East in English, and completely imbued with their religious spirit. discases, and I cannot understand any educated Englishman being so foolish as to desire to embrace them. But in these days there is a restless craving for anything that our teachers have warned us against, and heterodoxy alone is a sufficient attraction to lead some people after any nonsense. My great fear is lest a number of literary fools should bring the venerable but. mistaken old creeds of the East into disrepute and ridicule, by aping them or serving them up for modern use in a sort of hotch-pot. The ancient Eastern creeds are instructive, because they show the yearnings of men of good-will for a light which they did not possess, but it would ill behoove us to yearn for their darkness. That would prove us to be men of a spirit very different from that of the old pagans. The wise student of paganism will accept the spirit of many pagans, but not their religions."

How much deceived I had been in what I had beard of this man! He was said to be a great Orientalist and a thinker—I found him a fool—but, alas! how many men have I not found to-be fools?

Mr. Craig Goes A-hunting.

From Poste's " John Bodewin's Testimony." (Ticknor.)

When the sylvan meal was over, Mr. Craig unslung his shot-gun from his saddle and clambered down into the heavier timber, in search of wood-pigeons, he said, an object which excited the derision of the other men of the party. Bodewin referred to the "man in the wilderness," and asked Mrs. Craig, as an authority on nursery rhymes, to quote for him:

"The man in the wilderness asked me How many strawberries grew in the sea, I answered him as I thought good— As many as red-herrings grow in the wood,"

"What are you laughing at?—because he goesto the wood for wood-pigeons?" asked Mrs.

Craig.

"To this particular wood," said Hillbury.
"You would not laugh at a man for going to the sea for fish; but if he were much of a fisherman he would hardly go to Baffin's Bay formullet."

They sat under the low spruce boughs by the lake, talking and listening in the rustle of the-deep tideless water and the sur-r-r-ing of the wind in the trees. Mr. Hillbury produced his-fossils, delicate forms of earliest organic life imprinted in glistening pyrites on the dark Silurian state. The ladies held the fragments of the old sea-beach on the palms of their hands, and examined them with a magnifying glass, exclaiming over them in their soft staccato. Once there came from the wood the sound of a single shot. Bodewin and Hillbury both recognized it as the note of Craig's gun.

by admiration of a certain book, he made a long motation from it in Persian, and asked whether hat was one of my favorite passages. At last I bid him that I was thoroughly acquainted with the principal sacred books of the East in English, and completely imbued with their religious spirit. It was a disappointment to me to hear that the great authority on Eastern religions was inself an Irvingite, and that these religions, as disposs, presented no attractions to him. Bodewin jeered at his friend a little for his popular science, and was rebuked by Mrs. Craig. She had herself more than once interrupted Mr. Hillbury, and asked for a moment's silence, during which she seemed to listen for sounds from the wood.

Southern California.

From T. S. Van Dyke'e "Southern California." (Fords, Howard & Hulbert.)

THE prices of land may be based upon a false foundation—to wit, climate, scenery, and general comfort. Nevertheless, people pay them. This has been going on for years, and is constantly on the increase. Year after year rapidly increases the number of those anxious to buy and improve. Who dare say when this will stop? That lands are in many places too high, even if judged by this standard, in no way affects the correctness of the standard itself as compared with the common standard of eastern farming land. So steady in its advance has this demand been for years, that the shrewdest and wealthiest business men-men familiar with Florida and all the pleasure resorts of America —consider it a certain basis of calculation. no other part of the world equally remote from great commercial centres, and equally unknown, would such a development scheme be even thought of as is now in full headway on Coronado Beach, the peninsula that forms the harbor of San Diego. Its winters are warmer than those of Florida, yet its summers are colder than those of the coast of New England. Lashed on one side by the long rollers of the Pacific, and commanding a delightful— a marvellous—view of ocean, islands, promontories, table land, and lofty mountains, it contains nearly three thousand acres of fine land, lying in almost perfect shape to cut into a thousand gardens where tropic fruits will bloom, that the frost might nip on much of the mainland, yet where all the flora of the temperate zone will also be at home. has long been known that this would one day make the rarest watering-place in the world. But when? This year one hundred and ten thousand dollars were paid for it in its native State, and three times as much is being spent upon it before a lot is offered for sale.

The Poetry of Fly-Fishing.

From Orvis and Cheney's "Fishing with the Fly." (Houghton.)

"OF all sports ever sported, commend me to angling. It is the wisest, virtuousest, discreetest, best; the safest, cheapest, and in all likelihood the oldest of pastimes. It is a one-handed game that would have suited Adam himself; and it was the only one by which Noah could have amused himself in the ark. Hunting and shooting come in second and third. The common phrase, 'fish, flesh and fowl,' clearly hints at this order of precedence. . . . To refer to my own experience, I certainly became acquainted with the angling rod soon after the birchen one, and long before I had any practical knowledge of 'Nimrod' or 'Ramrod.' The truth is, angling comes by nature. It is in the system, as the doc-

Henry Ward Beecher, and Charle ley Warner's most graphic pen picture inimitable sketch, "A Fight with a Trout number of really good books on America sports is principally made up of angling a fact which goes far to establish the William T. Porter's assertion, namely man ever truly polished a book unless l something of an angler, or at least loved cupation. He who steals from the ha men into the green solitudes of Nature banks of gliding, silvery streams, un checkering lights of sun, leaf and cloud, ways hope to cast his lines, whether of or the 'record book,' in pleasant places.'

This may be appropriately suppleme the opinion, poetically expressed by the author, with reference to the art of fishi the artificial fly, thus: "Fly-fishing h designated the royal and aristocratic bi the angler's craft, and unquestionably most difficult, the most elegant, and to taste, by myriads of degrees the most and exciting mode of angling. of three, four or five pounds weight, and times heavier, with a hook almost invisi a gut line almost as delicate and beaut single hair from the raven tresses of a n sylph, and with a rod not heavier than a whip, is an achievement requiring no lit ence of mind, united to consummate skill be not so, and if it do not give you sor pretty palpitations of the heart in the I ance, may we never wet a line in Lake or raise a trout in the Susquehanna."

After All.

William Winter, in "Bugle Echoes," (White, Allen,)

The apples are ripe in the orchard,
The work of the reaper is done,
And the golden woodlands redden
In the blood of the dying sun.

At the cottage-door the grandsire
Sits pale in his easy chair,
While the gentle wind of the twilight
Plays with his silver hair.

A woman is kneeling beside him;
A fair young head is pressed,
In the first wild passion of sorrow,
Against his aged breast.

And far from over the distance
The faltering echoes come
Of the flying blast of trumpet
And the rattling roll of drum.

And the grandsire speaks in a whisper.

"The end no man can see;
But we give him to his country,
And we give our prayers to Thee."

The violets star the meadows,
The rosebuds fringe the door,
And over the grassy orchard
The pink-white blossoms pour.

But the grandsire's chair is empty,
The cottage is dark and still;
There's a nameless grave in the battle-f
And a new one under the hill.

And a pallid, tearless woman
By the cold bearth sits alone;
And the old clock in the corner
Ticks on with a steady drawn.

HOW TO BECOME

QUICK AT FIGURES.

"Few things are more deceptive than facts, unless it be figures,"—DISKAELI.

This book, now in its thirteenth edition, has certainly made a place for itself without cosflicting with the teacher or the taught, because it fills the gap between the school-room and the counting-room.

The school-boy of to-day is pushed alorg from one grade to another, regardless of any short. quick methods, so common and so necessary in business life.

The graduate fresh from the high school is often amazed at the butcher's or grocer's clerkhow rapidly they arrive at results without mental labor which he could not accomplish without paper and pencil.

That this book fully covers that field of instruction is attested by its large sale. Price, $1.00. Agents wanted. It is the best canvassers' book published.

nge Case of Dr. Jekyll LAWNTENNISASA GAME OF SKILL.

With the latest revised rules, as played by the best clubs. By Lieut. S. C. F. Peile, B.S.C. Edited by Richard D. Sears. I vol., 12mo, flexible cloth, 75 cents.

CONTENTS:

Preface by the American editor. Hints to Beginners. Common Faults. General Principles and Club Rules. The Single Game. The Double Game. Rules that are Often Disregarded. When to Take a Bisque. A Chapter for Ladies. Laws of Lawn Tennis. Table Showing Method of Calculating Differential Odds.

Mr. Peile's little volume appeals directly to that large class of tennis-players who are anxious to become proficient in the sport. Mr. R. D. Sears, who holds the championship of America, has added much that will interest American readers; his notes are always practical, and cannot fail to be of service even to experts in the game. The London Saturday Review, in a long review of the book, says:

Mr. Peile has more than usual insight into the game of lawn tennis, and has some valuable teachings to bestow. His little book tells players what they ought to do and what they ought not to do. . . . The book is, in fact, a companion of the game of lawn tennis, and should be in every player's hands."

By Lafayette C. Loomis, A.M., with plans and . catalogues of the Chief Art Galleries, Maps, Tables of Routes, and 160 illustrations. I vol., leather, 16mo, 600 pages, $3.50.

"Only words of praise can be spoken of this work. Any one who has been abroad and has endeavored to remember where some building or statue was to be found, and has hunted through guide-book after guide-book, will appreciate an alphabetical index, by whose aid everything which one needs to know may be found in a moment. One can see how this book would save vexation and expense a hundred times its cost."—Christian Advocate, N. Y.

English Hymns,

heir Authors and History. By the Rev. Samnel W. Duffield. Large 8vo, cloth, $3.50.

This work is the result of many years' research and study, is thoroughly reliable and exceedingly interesting. To all wers of hymns it will prove exceedingly interesting. It was the history of more than 1000 hymns.

Chas. 8. Robinson, D.D. (author of "Laudes commi,") says: "It pleases me altogether. It is full of afformation, ranging from positive crudition down to racy becolote. The arrangement leaves nothing needed for ease? a swift consultation. I have been repeatedly asked for lat such a manual for use in praise meetings. For such terpose there is nothing better, nothing so good in the lange of our hymnological literature; of this I feel sure."

Miss Cleveland's Book

Rose Elizabeth Cleveland. Square 12mo, 191 pp., $1 50; subscription edition, with portrait of authoreas, $1.00; gilt, $2 50.

Harriet Beecher Stowe: "A book of which il American women may well be proud. Far from any-hing weak or sentimental, it is an expression of vigorous tabus of thought, of high culture, of firm principle and timest feeling."

Charles A. Dana, Editor New York Sun, says: Miss Cleveland's Interary style is characterized by vigor of expression, abundance of imagery, and a certain rhythmic reality that makes passages here and there read almost like black verse."

"THE ONLY STANDARD BOOK OF QUOTATIONS. . . INDISPENSABLE AS WEBSTER."-Boston Post.

Hoyt-WardCyclopædia of Quotations.

Compiled by J. K. Hoyt and Anna L. Ward. Royal Svo, cloth, $5.00.

A PUZZLED MAN RELIEVED.

"Some time ago I saw the quotation ' Peace hath victories more renowned than war.' I desired to know the author of it. I saked a score of scholars and others, but none could tell me. One day I heard of your Hoyt-Ward Cyclopædia of Quotations, and in it at once found the quotation, with the author's name affixed, by means of the concordance in the volume."

27,000 QUOTATIONS, English and Latin. 50,000 LINES OF CONCORDANCE.

ANY QUOTATION CAN BE FOUND, even if only a word of it is remembered.

N. Y. Horald: "By long odds the best book of quotations in existence."

Ohristian Union: "The compilations of Allibone (over which we have often grown wrathy enough) and Bartlett (which it drains to the dregs) are quite out of competition."

Hom. Abram S. Howitt, M.C., writes. "The work is indispensable to authors, scholars and speakers. The completeness of the indices is simply astonishing, and altogether the design is so well executed as to leave nothing to be desired on the part of those who may have occasion to find or verify a quotation. And who is there who has not such need?"

Josiah Allen's Wife:

Sweet Cicely; or, Josiah Allen as a Politician.
A Novel. By Josiah Allen's Wife (Marietta Holly).
12m0, 390 pp., $2.00.

Loudon Literary World: "Full of strange humor, heart-breaking pathos, and piquant, healthy, down-right apontaneous fun."

Miss Frances E. Willard: "I prophesy 'Sweet Cicely's' gentle, firm hand shall lead Josiah Allen's Wife onward into literary immortality."

Will Carleton: "Retains all the peculiar, spley flavor of her former works, and is better than any of them because of its alternate pathos and humor,"

Union Signal: "It comes from the very depths of her heart. It is quaint, humorous, original. She strikes hard blows, but with a velvet-gloved hand."

The Story of Don Miff,

As TOLD BY HIS FRIEND, JOHN BOUCHE WHACKER. A Symphony of Line Edited by Virginius Dabney. Second Edition. 12mo, extra cloth, $1.50.

"This is a very original and interesting book. It is hard to find a page that does not arrest attention by striking thought or odd conceit, some flash of wit, or, what is better still, a delicious waggery; and when the attent thus arrested it is hard to lay the volume down. It is the author's purpose to paint, in all sincerity and truth, vit life as it was before the late war."—Baltimore American.

"It is unquestionably a remarkable book, and far away out of the common order. It is evidently out of the heart of an able and genial man, and makes literature that will live. There are honest tears and happy smiles the reader of 'Don Miff,' and they are evoked by the touch of no skilless hand."—New Orleans Picayune.

This work will supply a want in the library of the busy practitioner, who necessarily frequently meets with configuration of surgical disease or injury on which he desires to have immediate information as to diagnosis and treatment. With view of assisting him, as far as it is possible for a book to do so, in arriving at a correct diagnosis (on which suitable to ment must of course depend), a series of articles on the diagnosis of the injuries and diseases of the several regions of body has been introduced, as well as general articles on Deafness, the Eye, Skin Diseases, etc. The surgical affects will be found fully described under their names, in alphabetical order. The subjects are treated of, so far as is procable, in the following order: 1, Cause; 2, Pathology; 3, Systems and Diagnosis; 4, Treatment; 5, Prognosis.

MACMILLAN & Co. have just issued the long-expected journal of "The Cruise of H. M. S. Bacchante, 1879–1882," compiled from the journals, letters, and note-books of Prince Edward and Prince George, of Wales, sons of the Prince of Wales. The work is said to "present a fresh and simple record of their impressions from an intelligent study of the countries visited, with a painstaking collection of data."

D. C. HEATH & Co. have just ready a new and enlarged edition of "Common Minerals and Rocks," by W. O. Crosby, Assistant Professor of Mineralogy and Lithology, Massachusetts Institute of Technology. The addition is nearly equal in amount to the original book, and is on the subject of petrology. It is illustrated by forty figures, which add very materially to the clearness and value of the text. This little volume is not merely a guide to teachers, but it is also a simple and logical presentation of the leading facts and principles of structural geology, and is well adapted for class use. They have also just ready "The Teacher's Manual to Accompany Sheldon's Studies in General History," which contains summaries of all the results expected to be attained by the student's work; "Lectures to Kindergartners," by Elizabeth P. Peabody, a valuable series of eight lectures on the kindergarten; and "Bibliography of Pedagogical Literature," selected and annotated by Dr. G. Stanley Hall, of Johns Hopkins Univer-They have in press a "Text Book on Civil Government," by Woodrow Wilson, of Bryn Mawr, designed for classes in high schools and colleges, containing essays on origin of government, early history, nature and forms, function, laws, etc.

JOURNALISTIC NOTES.

MR. JULIAN HAWTHORNE has become literary editor of the World, and Mr. G. P. Lathrop fills the same place on the Star.

THE June Magazine of American History is a strong and interesting number. Six articles of antiquarian and historic prominence precede three of current war literature.

GINN & Co. announce that they will soon issue a Zoological Journal, edited by C. O. Whitman, of Milwaukee, Wis., which will occupy a field at present entirely unfilled. It will be issued semi-annually.

MR. CHARLES D. BAKER contributes to the current number of the Monthly Advance, which is published at No. 117 Nassau Street, an article on "Nathan Hale, the Martyr Spy of the Revolution," one object of which is to arouse public sentiment to a proper sense of the justice of erecting a monument to this neglected hero. A Nathan Hale Monument Association is now being formed, and the Advance will hereafter give it a steady and zealous support.

The collecting of postage-stamps has become quite a popular pursuit in this country, as well as abroad, its advocates here being estimated at over a hundred thousand persons. Up to the present time the literature of stamp collecting has been confined to amateur papers, but the growing demand for literature of this class is shortly to be supplied by a thirty-two page monthly magazine, devoted entirely to this subject. This new literary venture is announced to appear July 1, and will be called the Stamp Collector. It will be published by F. J. Abbott, 293 Dearborn Street, Chicago, Ill.

Balzac, Honoré de. Eugénie Grandet. Bost., Roberts Bros., 1886. 4+294 p. D. hí mor., $1.50.

"Eugénic Grandet has always, and justly, been regarded as one of Balzac's masterpieces. It is high tragedy in humble life. Perhaps nowhere in the 'Comedie Humaine' is the author's profound knowledge of human nature so fully displayed. There is, in truth, no miser in fiction to be compared to Grandet, and none whose portrait has been so elaborately finished, with such myriad fine lines and touches, with such laborious detail, with such marvellous verisimilitude. Eugénie Grandet is reared under the roof of this man. She and her mother are his slaves. The fascination of 'Eugénie Grandet,' as of all Balzac's books, is the thorough naturalness of the whole. The reader is made to feel, not that he is perusing a fiction, but a biography; that all this actually happened. The translation is careful and, as a rule, accurate. The choice of English corresponds well and faithfully to Balzac's nervous, compact, electric style. The power of the original is clearly shown. In fact, the publishers could not have found a more capable and in all respects trustworthy interpreter of the great French master."—N. Y. Tribune.

 By thus harmonizing the truths which free traders Derceive with the facts that to protectionists make their theory plausible, I believe I have opened ground upon which those separated by seemingly irreconcilable differences of opinion may unite for that full application of the trade principle which would secure both the largest production and the fairest distribution of wealth."— Preface.

Hamilton, Kate W. Wood, hay and stubble. Phil., Presbyterian Bd. of Pub., 1886. 336 p. D. cl., $1.25.

The story illustrates the text, "If any man build upon this foundation, gold, silver, precious stones, wood, hay, stubble, the fire shall try every man's work, of what sort it is." A family consisting of two brothers and three sisters are the actors. The young wife of the elder brother is the good genius of the tale. Especially is the lesson taught of the wretchedness of a life of shams, of the attempt to keep up appearances, whether in the household or in the religious life. The pure gold of a sincere, earnest, honest Christian character stands out in relief against the background of seeming, of pretence, and of half-heartedness in service.

Hardy, Arthur Sherburne. The wind of destiny. Bost., Houghton, Mifflin & Co., 1886.

307 p. D. cl., $1.25.

The author of "But yet a woman" showed originality of thought and diction. In the succession of scenes and grouping of characters which the "Wind of destiny" shifts almost too quickly before our hearts and minds he shows the same originality and even greater skill in making few words say much and seem to mean even more. Schonberg, a philosopher, and Harold, an artist, meet as students in a French college. Harold marries. His wife's family cast her off. After some years Harold and his wife die, leaving two little girls to the care of Schonberg. He takes them home, and he dies at the age of sixty. The influence for good and ill exerted by human beings upon one another in the most fleeting meetings, the irresistible power of love and the irresistible force of circumstance, are the author's key-notes. The book is suggestive to a rare degree, but

The prologue, in two chapters, shows first a South American scene and the parting between a very young man and the wife who has married him out of spite, because her love was set aside by Cuthbert Durnford, her cousin, to marry riches. The second chapter shows the English house of Cuthbert, where his wife is dying and telling her daughter that the curse of the Durnfords is sudden death, caused by ungoverned will and anger. The motherless girl, Marjorie, is the heroine. She learns discipline after many tribulations, and finally marries a man who is strong and helps her evade the curse of the Durn-

Praced, Mrs. Campbell. The head station: a novel of Australian life. N. Y., Harper, 1886. 236 p. S. (Harper's handy ser., no. 77.) pap.,

A large cattle station in New South Wales is the scene of several studies in human nature. The scenes and customs of life at the Antipodes are vividly sketched; the story moves, and has plot and originality. The devotion of colonists to the mother country is well brought out. Enghad's practice of sending troublesome and criminal young men to people her foreign possessions is severely criticised. The dialogue is spirited and suggestive.

Radestock, Paul. Habit and its importance in education: an essay in pedagogical psychology; from the German by F. A. Caspari, with an introd. by G. Stanley Hall. Bost., D. C. Heath & Co., 1886. 9+117 p. D. cl., 65C.

The author assumes that, so far as education becomes a science, or teaching a profession, it will rest more entirely upon psychology. Education he regards as progressive habituation, and good habits as even more important than good principles. Habit not only lays down the trunk lines of association, and thus gives direction, but it turnishes momentum of mind and will. He also holds that we have truly learned not what we can be examined on, but what has become second nature or habit.

These nine lectures were written during the summer of 1885, and for the most part delivered in the writer's pulpit. The author aims to present Christianity and infidelity in their practical results, and speaks to the people, with young men specially in mind. His subjects are: The folly of atheism; Has God made any revelation of himself to man? Can we dispense with God? Is the Bible inspired? The divinity of Jesus Christ; Probation after death: Some gausse of infidelity: Some weeknesses of death; Some causes of infidelity; Some weaknesses of infidelity.

and diagram, D. cl., $1.50.

The title is almost self-explanatory. The book is practically a guide book, a commentary, and an exposition of Dante's great poem. The author says: "My plan is very simple. After in some degree setting forth what Dante's universe is as a whole, and what autobiography and history show his life experience to have been, I proceed to expound in greater detail the physical and moral theories on which his three worlds are constructed, and to narrate, now in his own words, now in a prose summary, the course of his stupendous pilgrimage."

Co., 1886. 22+316 p. D. cl., $1.25.

Scriver was born in 1629. He refused the offer to be court preacher and spiritual guide to the Queen of Sweden, at that time the most powerful Protestant kingdom in the world, prompted by attachment to his sorely afflicted fatherland. The "Emblems" are a series of short sketches, which present the religious reflections of a devout and acute mind in connection with the common objects or occurrences of daily life, such as: A new suit of clothes; good weather; feeding the hens; the pillow; washing the hands; etc.

Paul Hernshaw has accidentally killed his brother. He is just out of prison when the story opens. He determines to live down his shame in the very place his crime has been committed. He becomes overseer for his brother's wife, but after eight years is again turned off and taunted with his orime. A revivalist, preaching in the little town, brings back his faith in God. He becomes the man's assistant, and does work among the sick and poor that no one else will do. The two or three clergymen introduced are excellent studies. "Let him who is without sin among you cast the first stone," is the burden of the tale.

The Inblishers' Weekly.

FOUNDED BY F. LEYPOLDT.

JUNE 5, 1886.

Publishers are requested to furnish title-page proofs and advance information of books forthcoming, both for entry in the lists and for descriptive mention. An early copy of each book published should be forwarded, to insure correctness in the final entry.

The trade are invited to send "Communications" to the editor on any topic of interest to the trade, and as to which an interchange of opinion is desirable. Also, matter for " Notes and Queries" thankfully received.

The editor does not hold himself responsible for the views expressed in contributed articles or communications.

In case of business changes, notification or eard should be immediately sent to this office for entry under "Business Notes." New catalogues issued will also be mentioned when forwarded.

All matter, whether for the reading-matter columns or our advertising pages, should reach this office not later than Wednesday noon, to insure insertion in the same week's issue.

"Every man is a debtor to his profession, from the which, as men do of course seek to receive countenance and profit, so ought they of duty to indeavor themselves by way of amends to be a help thereunto."—LORD BACON.

THE BOOKSELLERS' AND STATIONERS' PROVIDENT ASSOCIATION.

THE seventh annual meeting of this Association was held on the evening of June 2, at the rooms of George A. Leavitt & Co. There were present the usual quota—fifty members—not the same fifty that comprised the meeting in June, 1885, but very nearly the same. Promptly at eight o'clock Mr. C. T. Dillingham, the President, called the meeting to order. The minutes of the previous meeting were read and approved. Then the Secretary, Mr. A. Geyer, read his report, as follows:

Mr. President and Gentlemen of the Booksellers' and Stationers' Provident Association of the United States: To-night brings the seventh annual meeting of the Association, and we have to report another year of prosperity for our members. Facts speak for themselves, and it may be more agreeable for you to hear a detailed statement of the work done by your officers the last year, than to listen to any flight of rhetoric from While other associations have felt the hand of death heavily among their members, this Association has had but one member called to join the silent majority. So noticeable has been the absence of assessments among us that every day has brought to the office of the Secretary letters of inquiry as to the reason. Only one reply could be made, and that was the general good health of our members. There has been nothing to mar the workings of the Association during the past year. No suggestions have been offered, no new plans for increasing the efficiency of the Association been proposed. All seem to be satisfied to let well enough alone.

Balance on hand June 2, 1885

We trust the same good fortune which has attended us during the past year will go with us into and through the coming year—that the As sociation will increase and prosper both in numbers and influence, and to this end we trust every member will use his individual influence to build up our numbers to the full limit allowed by the constitution. There is no reason why the Book and Stationery trade should not have three thousand members in its Provident Association instead of the few we have. The benefit is great. the expense small. It rests with the members to bring the value of the Association to their friends. and to urge them to join our ranks. While is health and strength we are apt to feel that death is far distant—that not to us but to some other will the dread summons come; but who can tell where or when the bolt will fall. It is not for yourself—it is for your wife and little ones we plead—for those near and dear to you. Can you afford to take the risk of insuring yourself, when the average cost per year in this Association is 855 | so small? This question must be faced and answered. Do it now.

2 The report was approved.

Mr. William Abbatt, formerly of A. S. Barnes Co., who is now interested in insurance matrs, we believe, spoke at length in favor of a serve fund. In his opinion, societies that :pend on assessments alone are doomed to in sooner or later. In reply to Mr. Abbatt's marks, several members seemed to voice the entiment of the majority present that the time and not yet arrived when any changes could be ade in this direction. We are inclined, howper, to believe that the arguments of these Deakers did credit to their hearts rather than to meir better judgment. There certainly is much ▶ be said in favor of a reserve fund, notwith-Landing its drawbacks, and we hope that before range the Association will give the matter serious Etention.

Mr. W. T. Amies made a suggestion which Fe are also sorry was not entertained more serieasly. He was in favor of establishing a permanent home for the Association, where the raembers might gather at any time, where Trangers might make their headquarters—which, In fact, might become a rallying place not only for the booksellers' assistants, but for the whole book rade and kindred branches. Further than this. me had in mind a school where the young and ambitious apprentice might be able to obtain inormation which now he rarely acquires, or, at Dest, attains under difficulties. In short, it was to be a place for instruction as well as for sociability. We trust this will not remain an idea, but will in time be put in practice.

Mr. John Lane then proposed that a committee of three be appointed whose duty it should be to canvass the trade and to urge those not yet members to join this year. The Chair appointed Mr. C. F. Vogelius, John Lane, and W. T. Amies.

The meeting then proceeded to elect five trustees to serve for three years in place of W. S. Merriam, J. A. Holden, T. R. Knox, G. J. Leary, and D. Pritchard. There were cast hirty-six votes, giving the majority to the old woard, which therefore remains in office.

Resolutions were then passed thanking Messrs. George A. Leavitt & Co. for the use of heir rooms, Messrs. Cassell & Co. for the use of their offices for the sessions of the Board of Trustees, and the trade papers for courtesies extended.

THE CAMPAIGN AGAINST UNDER-SELLING IN GERMANY.

ACCORDING to the Börsenblatt, one hundred and one publishing houses have combined their efforts to break down the system of Schlenderei (underselling), which, it seems, has proved itself as obnoxious abroad as it has done here.

To effect the object in view, it has been deter- Holmes, and our distinguismined to enforce the statutes of the Berlin Book- receive special attention.

sellers' Union, which do not allow the bookseller to give his retail customer a discount of more than ten per cent from the published price of a book, and prescribes a commission of twentyfive per cent on the net prices of second-hand and remainder books.

Every ambiguous offer of discount, in cypher or otherwise, through the public press, or in shop windows, or by printed circulars, or any other modes of access to private individuals, is interdicted.

Any charge of contravening the rules of the Union must be brought before the committee of inquiry, which consists of five Berlin publishers and five committeemen of the Berlin Booksellers' Union.

On the charge being proved, the offender is to be reprimanded and cautioned that on a repetition of the offence application will be made to the publishers who have joined the Union for a restriction on the amount of discount allowed to the offender. Should a second charge be brought against the same bookseller, and be proved before the committee of inquiry, an application will at once be made to the allied publishing firms to reduce the amount of trade discount allowed to the offender to fifteen per cent from the published price.

The restriction of discount cannot be withdrawn until the offender has given a written promise not to repeat the offence, and has paid a fine of fifty marks (about $12.), which fine will go toward augmenting the funds of the Berlin Rooksellers' Panerulant Union lin Booksellers' Benevolent Union.

Every case of restriction of discount is to be made known throughout the trade.

THE CENTURY DICTIONARY.

For the past five years the Century Co. has been engaged in preparing a dictionary of the English language, of which Professor William D. Whitney, of Yale College, is editor-in-chief —the purpose being to make a more comprehensive work than has yet appeared in popular form, to include, in addition to a very full collection of individual words in all departments of the language, all technical phrases, not selfexplaining, in law, the mechanical arts, the sciences, etc. Indeed, it is designed to make this dictionary so complete in its definitions of all branches of science and art that even the specialists will need nothing further. The number of "new" words in many of these departments is said to be surprisingly great. The dictionary will have also a remarkably complete system of cross-references, and will embody in itself a dictionary of synonyms which will add greatly to its value.

A prominent feature of the new work will be its encyclopædic character. Its definitions will be fuller and more complete than is customary in works of this kind; it will go further into the various uses and meanings of words, and in many cases will give full explanations and descriptions of matters historical, scientific, legal, mechanical, etc. Quite an army of persons has been at work for several years reading standard American and English books in search of quotations, of which an immense number will be used. American writers, such as Emerson, Lowell, Hawthorne, Irving, Whittier, Longfellow, Holmes, and our distinguished scientists, will

The publishers are taking great pains with the illustrations, of which there will be about 5000. They are employing the same class of artists and engravers that contribute to their magazines, and they mean to make the result something hitherto unknown in the world of dictionaries. Each picture as it is drawn, and again after it is engraved, is submitted to the specialist to whose department it belongs, that its scientific accuracy may be guaranteed. Of these specialists there are about thirty, working at their homes in New York, Baltimore, Washington, New Haven, Cambridge, and elsewhere, each being individually responsible for all the definitions in his department, and all under the general supervision of Professor Whitney, who will himself have special charge of the definitions in the department of philology, in which he is famous, and of the spelling and pronunciation. It is understood that he will not adopt a phonetic method of spelling, though on theoretical grounds he is known to favor it. Professor Whitney is not only recognized as the most eminent American philologist, but the London Saturday Review has recently pronounced him the foremost English-speaking scholar in his department. In addition to the specialists, a force of about fifty assistants has been busy collating material and preparing copy for the printer, the final work on which is done with type-writing machines at the Century Co.'s office.

The inception of this scheme was a desire to · improve and Americanize the "Imperial Dictionary" of Great Britain, brought out in this country by the Century Co. five years ago. the work of altering it advanced, it became apparent that a better plan was to begin de novo, and so the far greater work of making a new dictionary of the English language was begun. Two or three years must still elapse before it will appear, and in the mean time opportunity is offered by the publishers to those interested in helping on so useful a work to contribute material and suggestions to it. Much valuable matter has been received in this way from many scholars and practical men all over the world.

SOME "BOOK PEDDLERS."

From the Philadelphia Evening Telegraph.

IT may be a surprise to the public at large to know that among the corps and class of men bearing the business name of book agents, Bonaparte—when a lieutenant, unemployed at the capital, and too honorable to duplicate his pay accounts—took the agency for Boulanger et Cie., the noted publishers of the Pont Neuf, for a work entitled "L'Histoire de la Révolution." Bonaparte tried to secure from the publishing company the whole department of La Vendée, but he was only given a suburban Parisian arrondissement. In the foyer of the great Palace of the Louvre, amid countless bric-à-brac of the reign of Louis, the great monarch, can be seen to-day, under a glass case, the little canvasser's outfit of the great emperor, and within it the long list of names which his assiduity secured.

George Washington, while surveying Fairfax County in his youth—prior to the fateful Braddock expedition—was a book agent. The work he canvassed for—a copy of which is now among the relics of the Patent Office—was Bydell's | poleon Bonaparte. The work may be expected "The London of Stoke-on-Trent Square, Amer- \ in the full.

ican Savage; How He May be Tamed by the Weapons of Civilization." Washington sold over 200 copies in and around Alexandria, Va.

Jay Gould sold books as an agent. Mark Twain sold books as an agent. Longfellow sold books as an agent. Daniel Webster paid his second term's tuition at Dartmouth by acting as local agent in Merrimac County, N. H., for De Tocqueville's "America." Bret Harte was a book agent in the fall of 1849 or spring of 1850. General Grant, subsequent to his resignation from the army, before his venture on the Dest farm, took part of the territory of a general agent of Putnam's to dispose of Irving's "Co-Ex-President Hayes footed it all over southern Ohio, when a mere lad, getting subscriptions for Baxter's "Lives of the Saints" Blaine began life as an humble canvasser in Washington County, Pa., selling a "Life of Henry Clay, the Mill Boy of the Slashes." Bismarck, when at Heidelberg during a wister vacation, having had his allowance cut short by his father the Baron, canvassed for one of Blumenbach's hand-books.

James Lackington, a Methodist preacher, commenced to canvass the works of John Bunyan, published by the Rivingtons of London, in 1779, and subsequently became one of the largest booksellers and publishers in England. Thoseas Kelly, who was a canvasser in London, after ward became the proprietor of the house for which he was working and accumulated a tortune. He became Lord Mayor of London in 1834, and died worth nearly $2,000,000.

Thomas Guy, the celebrated philosopher, carvassed Bibles. At his death, besides endowing one of the most magnificent charities in Europe -Guy's Hospital—he left a large fortune to his heirs. James Blackie, of the house of Blackie & Sons, Glasgow, was a canvasser, and was very successful. It has been related of him that, after he had made a large fortune and was Lord Provost of Glasgow, incog. he would test the merits of his new publications by a personal canvass of the leading men of his city, after which he would hand his list over to his agents.

Mr. Jones, of the National Publishing Company of Philadelphia, now president and proprietor, was a brilliant and successful canvasser fifteen years ago: F. B. Collier, of New York, a man now rated at half a million of dollars, fifteen years ago was a successful canvasser. George Gebbie, the principal of the enterprising firm of Gebbie & Co., Philadelphia, fine art publishers, will be remembered by the book buyers of twenty years ago for his activity as a genial, intelligent canvasser.

And so we could go on. Many of these names are familiar to the public; some of the number are among us to-day. Everything in any line of business rests with the man—no matter what line, whether dry goods, groceries, drugs, or books. He can make it honorable or dishonor able as he sees fit.

Amenities of Bookselling.—"Yes," ie bookseller, "we have a great deal of our line of business; but I presume a nany of the things that seem funny to us not strike the ordinary observer as spemusing. For instance, a person came in er day and wanted to know the price of a Mr. Waverley's novels. Another asked st of David Copperfield's works in paper A lady looking for something to read commended by one [of my clerks to try ing of George Eliot's. 'He is a good 'said she. 'I have read a number of his and like them very much.' The indisite mixing of drugs and books in the same lso causes many laughable things to occur ple getting in the wrong place. Only last man sidled up to me, and sliding a pint out of his pocket, requested me to 'fill it e best burbin for medical purposes.' And so it nd you have no idea how these foolish ifles help out the humdrum every-day ny of store life."--Harper's Bazar.

LITERARY AND TRADE NOTES.

CHARLES L. WEBSTER & Co. announce that they will issue in the fall the memoirs of General George B. McClellan.

GINN & Co. will publish early in July "A Beginner's Book in French," by Sophie Doriot, with comic illustrations designed for children.

T. Y. CROWELL & Co. will publish immediately a translation of the principal works of Nikolas V. Gogol. The first of the series will be "Taras Bulba," which is to be followed by others as rapidly as the translator—who has most of them already translated—can prepare them for the press.

BAKER & TAYLOR announce that neither they nor the author (A. J. F. Behrends) of "Socialism and Christianity" were aware until the book was fully made, and on the eve of publication, that the Cherouny Publishing Co. had previously issued a pamphlet by Henry W. Cherouny with the same title.

THE ALDINE BOOK PUBLISHING COMPANY has just issued "A Nihilist Princess," translated from the French of M. L. Gagneur, a powerfully written story. Wanda Kryloff, the leading character in the story, is said to be Sophie Pieoffsky, a young lady celebrated for her beauty, refinement, and unflinching courage, who was hanged in St. Petersburg for her share in the assassination of the Czar.

Houghton, Mifflin & Co. have in preparation a new, complete, and systematic edition of Longfellow's works in eleven volumes, crown octavo. The prose will occupy two volumes, the poetry six, and three will be given to the translation of the "Divina Commedia." Footnotes, head-notes concerning the history of the separate works, copious indexes, and several portraits will make this edition particularly valuable. It will be printed from new plates, will be published during the fall, and the price will be $16.50 for the set in cloth.

The fire which recently destroyed the printing establishment of Mr. H. H. Bancroft, the Pacific Coast historian, we are glad to learn, will fortunately result in no interruption in the work of the historical department. The loss, which was a heavy one, fell almost entirely upon Mr. Bancroft, and the first volume of the "History of Oregon," the plates of which were destroyed, cannot be issued as soon as was hoped. The plates of seven other volumes were destroyed, and also an entire edition of a biography of Porfirio Diaz, by Mr. Bancroft. The next volume in the historical series will now be "California," Volume V.

G. P. Putnam's Sons announce that they propose to follow the publication of Lodge's edition of Hamilton's Works, which they expect to complete by midsummer, with the issue of a new and complete edition of the Works of Benjamin Franklin. The set is to be edited by the Hon. John Bigelow, who has made himself the authority on matters connected with the history and bibliography of Franklin's writings. The edition will, like that of the "Hamilton," be a limited letter-press issue, printed from type, which will be distributed as used. It will be completed in ten royal octavo volumes uniform with the "Hamilton," and will contain two portraits and possibly further illustrations.

ESTES & LAURIAT officially announce that they have admitted to their firm as partners the following-named gentlemen: Charles E. Brown, Walter M. Jackson, Isaac R. Webber, Seneca Sanford, and Asa H. Walker. The firm name will remain unchanged, both Mr. Istes and Mr. Lauriat retaining an active interest in the concern. Mr. Brown will, as heretofore, have general charge of the wholesale department, and will represent the house as traveller. Mr. Jackson will have charge of the manufacturing and publishing department. Mr. Webber will conduct the library department, and Mr. Sanford the retail department. Mr. Walker, who has had a large experience in the subscription book business, and who has just retired from the vicepresidency of the Jones Brothers Publishing Company of Cincinnati, O., will have general charge of the subscription department of the new firm. By the above change the old partners believe that with the infusion of new and younger blood the firm will be strengthened and its business greatly enlarged, teeling assured of its ability in the future to eclip successful record of the past thirteen Mr. Lauriat having, by extended vacation Europe and the South, fully recovered his i and spirits, will continue to devote at leas half of his time to the interests of the busin

THE MAN WHO WAS GUILTY.

A Story of San Francisco Life. By Flora Haines Loughead. In "Riverside Paper Series." 50 cents.

A realistic story of California, in which a criminal expiates his offence by imprisonment, but then finds that is avenues to a respectable life do not readily open to him. Yet the book is not a social-science pamphlet, but a story of decided power and of almost sensational interest. It has not before appeared in book form.

The Diary and Letters of Thomas Hutchinson, Esq.,

Captain-General and Governor-in Chief of His Late Majesty's Province of Massachusetts Bay, in North America. With an Account of his Government of the Colony during the period preceding the War of Independence etc., etc. Compiled from Original Documents. Edited by his grandson, Peter Orlando Hutchinson. Vol. II. With Portraits of Governor Hutchinson, Lieutenant-Governor Oliver and Chief-Justice Oliver. Sta. $5.00 net.

The first volume of the "Diary and Letters of Thomas Hutchinson" proved so acceptable to students of America history that the editor, Mr. Peter Orlando Hutchinson, has prepared another volume, concluding the work. The Diagonarrates events and debates of importance both in England and America, and discusses the movements and abilities leading English generals and admirals during the Revolutionary War. Additional matter is given from the "Diary Chief-Justice Peter Oliver," who left Boston on its evacuation by the British and went to Halifax, and thence to English.

THE SYNTHETIC PHILOSOPHY OF EXPRESSION

As applied to the Arts of Reading, Oratory and Personation. By Moses True Brown, M.A., Principal of the Boston School of Oratory, and Professor of Oratory at Tufts College. 1 vol., crown 8vo, $2.00.

Prof. Brown, who has for more than twenty years been a careful and enthusiastic student and teacher of the scient and art of oratory, has in this volume made a full and impressive presentation of the subject. He has aimed to show have the philosophy of Darwin, Mantegazza and Delsarte "may be applied to the conscious art forms which every expressive speaker must employ;" and in a systematic, philosophic method he has endeavored to state the principles which under all successful efforts at the adequate expression of human thought in reading, recital, oratory and dramatic representation. The book is one of great value to clergymen, lawyers, actors, political orators, and to all other public speakers.

NOTES IN SEASON.

7. Y. CROWELL & Co. have just ready "A al Question, or, What is to be Done?" by G. Tchernuishevsky, translated from the meian by Nathan H. Dole and S. S. Skidelsky.

THE J. B. LIPPINCOTT Co. have just issued a of "Mary Wollstonecraft Shelley," by den Moore, which no doubt will become the hority on its subject. They have also just dy "Cut: a Story of West Point," by G. I. rvus, who is already well known to novel iders as the author of "A Model Wife," White Feathers," etc.

ROBERTS BROS. issue this week "Justina," a w novel in the No Name series; "India Re-ited." by Edwin Arnold, author of "The ght of Asia," with thirty-two full-page illustions from photographs selected by the author; d "Baldwin: being Dialogues on Views and spirations," by Vernon Lee, author of "Euprion. They have also ready a fine line of oks in paper covers for summer reading, of

H. Davenport Adams, entitled "Good Queen Anne, or, Men and Manners, Life and Letters in England's Augustan Age;" a handy little volume for the house gardener, entitled "Rus in Urbe, or, Flowers that Thrive in London Gardens and Smoky Towns," and a new issue of "The Chronicles of Crime, or, New Newgate Calendar," a curious collection of memoirs and anecdotes of notorious characters who have outraged the laws of Great Britain from the carliest period to 1841, by Camden Pelham, with fifty-two engravings, from original drawings, by Funk & Wagnalls have just published a skit in the vein of "The Battle of Dorking," entitled "Bietigheim." The substance of the volume is supposed to be a lecture delivered by John W. Minor, M.C. at Denver, in 1932, on one of the decisive battles of the world fought March, 1891, at Bietigheim, a charming little Swabian town in the lower Neckar valley, by the allied forces of the United States, Great Britain, France, Italy, Spain, and Turkey, against Germany, Austria, and Russia, in which the latter suffered defeat. The author prophesies 'most startling changes, geographical, social, and otherwise. The book is evidently written by one who has thought much on the subject, and is well worth reading.

G. P. PUTNAM'S SONS will publish shortly "Reminiscences of the Filibuster War in Nicaragua," by General C. W. Doubleday. General Doubleday took part, as a young man, in Walker's campaigns, and the narrative of his personal adventures and the operations of Walker's little army will be found to possess interest as a dramatic story, as well as historical value as a record of events which belong to the history of the relations of the United States with Central America. They will also publish shortly "A Life in Song," a volume of poems by George Lausing Raymond, Professor of Rhetorle in Princeton College; and "American Railroads: Considered from the Point of View of Investors," by John Swann.

HOUGHTON, MIFFLIN & Co. publish this week the second and concluding volume of the " Diary and Letters of Thomas Hutchinson," at one time Governor-in-chief of the Colony of Massachasetts Bay. Governor Hutchinson was a stanch Loyalist, and this book, which describes matters and discussions which took place both in England and in America during the Revolutionary War, will be highly valued by students of American history. With this will appear an important volume on "The Synthetic Philosophy of Expression," by Moses True Brown, well known as a Professor of Oratory and a reader of unusual dramatic power. This book comprises the results of many years of study, and cannot fail to be highly valuable to all who have occasion to speak in public and wish to speak most effectively. With these will appear a new and carefully revised edition of "Boston Illustrated;" a new and enlarged edition of Taswell-Languead's important work on "English Constitutional History;" the "Reporter Digest," which includes a careful digest of important cases reported in the American Law Times Reports and in the Reporter from 1874 to 1884-a. SCRIENCE & Welford have just issued an in-breaking work, in two octave volumes, by W. | Haines Longbead.

Bietigheim. N. Y., Funk & Wagnalls, 1886.

The unknown author, looking with a prophetic eye into the distant future, depicts the probable fate of the United States and Europe. "Bietigheim" is a great battle which takes place in Germany during the war of 1890-'91. This war is brought about by a number of little disputes between this country and Germany concerning the rights of our naturalized citizens. The campaign, in which the European states, with the exception of Russia and Austria, are our allies, is fought in Europe—the Americans being the victors. The result is a spread of Republicanism throughout Europe, and an almost total ruin of imperialism at the beginning of the 20th century. The moral influence of our own country in this condition of things remedies many of the evils now existing between labor and capital springing from monopolies, the tariff, etc.

"The personages of the narrative are all plain people. The story deals largely with amoreus entanglement, matrimonial scheming and domestic harmony or discord, and several of the participants in the interlacing dramas are consistently and almost strongly drawn.... The chief charms of the book lie in its unpretentiousness, its easy style, and in its sympathetic feeling for out door life, and for New England scenery; there are occasional touches of mild humor, there is virtually no padding, and the whole book, if unexciting, is honorable and high minded."—Boston Daily Advertiser.

The story of a little fisher-lad who turns out to be the heir to a great name and fortune. He passes his youth in an humble cottage in a fishing village of Cape Cod with his grandparents. There seems to be a mystery about his mother's family, though it is know she was an Italian. Lillo, as he is called, shows at an early age great artistic talent, which is afterward developed in Italy, to which country he makes his way, after the death of his relatives. A large portion of the story takes place in Florence, where Lillo obtains much success as a painter, and discovers he is a count, and the heir of the great house of Romanos. The book is a novel, dealing toward the end with love and marriage. The author has hitherto been known as a writer of children's stories.

Appleton, 1886. 210 p. D. pap., 25 c.

The author of "Ginx's baby," best known as a writer of social satires, has here attempted a novel. The effort is a most successful one. The scene is laid in the county of Somerset, England, and the story has for its motive the well-worn device of a young man being disinherited on account of marrying in opposition to his father. The father is a minister of the Church of England, a proud, obstinate man, who dies suddenly after making his unjust will. All he leaves his son Jack Poyntz is an old desk of his mother's containing old papers. Many months after the rector's death, the examination of these papers shows that Jack is heir to a large fortune from his mother's brother, and also that a secret is contained within their pages which has a singular influence upon the lives of several of the characters. This mystery is well kept.

Many mistakes mended: containing two thousand five hundred corrections in speaking, pronouncing, and writing the English language; with practical hints on composition and punctuation. N. Y., N. Tibbals & Sons, [1886.] 6+315 p. D. cl., $1.

While the author admits that there are several books which treat of words and their proper uses, he claims there are none which cover the field occupied by this volume. Besides the correction of faulty sentences, it strives to show the correct application of many words which are frequently misemployed, and calls attention to a number of familiar words often mispronounced. Every point on which a verdict has been rendered has been investigated, such authorities having been consulted as Alford's "Queen's English," Cobbett's "Grammar of the English language," Moon's "Bad English," Bain's "Grammar," Blair's "Rhetoric," Crabbe's "Synonyms," Roget's "Thesaurus," Ayres's "Orthoepist," and other works.

Strange to say, this is the first life that has been written of the wife of Percy Bysshe Shelley, and the daughter of William Godwin and Mary Wollstonecraft. Not only her influence on Shelley's life and genius, but her own vigorous intellect and individuality, entitle her to a place among eminent literary women. "Frankenstein" alone gave her a world-wide reputation; but she wrote many other works of value and importance. Her romantic life is ably told from childhood until her death in 1851; connected with it we get many interesting details of her samous parents and husband. The writer's style is warmly appreciative and very interesting.

The subject of this monograph is the statesman of the Restoration, born 1621, died 1683. The previous biographics that we have had of him have represented him as utterly corrupt, or have endeavored to prove him a much-slanderod man, and very near to perfection, morally. Mr. Trailibas chosen a middle course, and simed to show that he was at least no worse than his contemporaries. His estimate of the earl is summed up in the following paragraph:

"Ambition and contentiousness, the love of conflict and the love of power, were the dominant impulses of his career and the all-sufficient explanation of his conduct. He quitted Charles I, for the Parliament, because he saw the avenues of advancement closed against him in the King's services. He abandoned the Commonwealth for Charles II, because he saw that a restoration was inevitable, and hoped by assisting to further it to lay the foundation of his political fortunes under the new order of things,"

The gossip and love affairs of a little English country town, with the manageves of scheming mammas to marry their daughters and to get into society, are the themes of this bright, claver little story. It has all the attractiveness of the author's other stories—"Mignon," "Houp-La," etc.—and shows the same intimate knowledge of English army life.

Woods, Mrs. Kate Tannatt. That dreadful boy: an American novel. Bost., De Wolfe, Fiske & Co., 1886. 2-316 p. D. cl., $7.

"The author has traced the life of a bright and mercural little fellow from the cradle, through childhood up to manhood, showing how, despite the overflow of vitality that kept him in bot water a great deal of the time, he had the right stuff in him, and came out eventually at the top. The author does not believe in family whipping, and a part of the moral of the book is to show the uncleasances of such so-called 'ducipline.' The book is for grown readers, and contains much food for thought, aside from its interest as a story. It is brought out in hand-some form."—Boston Transcript.

THE EDUCATIONAL CATALOGUE.

Work on the EDUCATIONAL CATALOGUE is being rapidly pushed forward, and if the houses hat have not as yet been heard from will send as their data at once, we hope to be able to sue the CATALOGUE promptly on the 17th of July.

The CATALOGUE will follow the alphabetical ystem, which has been observed during the ≥ast years—the result of many years of experi-≥nce—which has been pronounced by the trade be most satisfactory for practical use. It in-Indes a price-list arranged alphabetically by author's or editor's name, and a detailed sublect-index, referring from each specific subject 坏 authors of books on that subject, so that The advantages of both a finding list for the trade and a class catalogue for the use of schools are combined. We had under consideration, as indeed we have had for several years, the introduction of a telegraphic cipher, but we could not Bee our way clearly enough to a practical realization of the idea. There do not seem to be enough subscribers at present who want such a code, to justify us in increasing the cost of the CATALOGUE; and, besides, we do not think it Teasible to add another to the two or three ciphers elready in use in jobbers' catalogues. Unless the educational publishers will combine to devise and use one code, it will be useless for individwals to attempt anything of the kind on their own responsibility. Such a course would lead to consusion, and thereby deseat the purpose for which it was invented.

As to the value of the EDUCATIONAL CATALOGUE, which is now in its seventeenth year, what we said of it several years ago holds good the present time: "It is of value to publish, we for acquainting dealers and schools with the Y school books, and especially in the edition with advertisements distributed to about six thousand educational institutions, as a direct means of bringing out the points (in their own advertisements) of their particular books. It is especially of use to retail dealers in the imprint editions, which do not include advertisements, because it helps to retain such trade as is to be had, and keeps their names before the schools as general booksellers also." In the general interest of American bibliography, as well as in the particular interest involved, we trust to have the continued support of both branches of the trade for the EDUCATIONAL CATALOGUE.

A HANDY BOOK IN A FEW VOLUMES.

From the Gentleman's Magazine.

About the year A.D. 618 the T'ang dynasty was established, and the land had rest from its long internal wars. Under the peaceful sway of this imperial house a library of 80,000 books was collected, and rightly to appreciate this statement it is necessary to remember that though the art of making paper from the inner bark of trees, fishing nets, and old rags had been discovered by the Marquis Ts'ai about one hundred years before the Christian era, that of printing was not known, or at least not generally adopted, till about the year A.D. 1000, under the patronage of the emperors of the Sung dynasty. From that time to the present each successive dynasty has done its part to encourage literature—none more heartily than the Tartar race who now reign. The Emperor Yunglo, of the Ming dynasty, who ascended the throne A.D. 1403, resolved to have a vast encyclopædia compiled which should embrace all desirable knowledge.

For this purpose he appointed no less than two thousand commissioners, who, after toiling for four years, presented the emperor with a nice, handy book of reference in 22,937 volumes. However valuable this work might have proved, it was decided that it was rather too voluminous for the printers, so the fruit of so much toil was stored in manuscript in the imperial palace at Pekin, where its remains are still treasured. The idea thus suggested was carried out three hundred years later by the Manchoo emperor, K'ang-hi, who commissioned the wise men of the Empire to illustrate upward of six thousand subjects, by collecting all allusions to them which might be scattered among existing books. This encyclopædia of extracts was published in A.D. 1726, and consists of upward of 5000 volumes containing the cream of Chinese literature.

A complete copy of this very comprehensive and valuable work has been secured for the British Museum, whose own amazing catalogue scarcely eclipses that of the imperial library published at the close of the eighteenth century, and enumerating upward of 173.000 volumes on all branches of literature, without including works of fiction, dramas, or any books relating to the Taouist or Buddhist religions. It is, however, necessary to add that the majority of these books are little more than mere commentaries, by intellectual pigmies of modern days, on the writings of men possessed of a far wider range of thought and freer imagination than these the cramped descendants.

OBITUARY.

RICHARD MARCH HOE.

RICHARD MARCH HOE, the senior member of the printing-press firm of R. Hoe & Co., of New York, died suddenly of heart disease at Florence, Italy, on the 7th inst. Mr. Hoe was born in New York in 1812. His father, a machinist, had come to this country from England in 1803, and started the machine-shop which now exists on a large scale. In 1827 the first cylinder press was invented by the elder Hoe, and almost at the same time Richard, who had been attending a common school, was admitted into the workshop. He, too, developed the same mechanical ingenuity which had already made his father somewhat famous. He labored faithfully, and in 1837, when twenty-five years old, he invented the double-cylinder press. In 1846 Mr. Hoe perfected the rotary or lightning press. This invention preceded the improved Applegath press, used by the London Times for several years, and was used in almost all newspaper offices then in existence in New York. On this new press the form of type was secured upon the surface of a large horizontal cylinder, and printed at every revolution as many papers as the machine had impression cylinders. These cylinders were at first four in number, then six, then eight, and then ten, giving finally a maximum production of twenty thousand single sheet copies an hour. Before this type revolving press was invented, the machines used printed by moving the form of type back and forth, as on a plane. In 1851 R. Hoe & Co. built a big press for the Sun, and the completion of this piece of work was celebrated by a dinner at the Astor House to Mr. Hoe After the art of stereotyping was developed, Mr. Hoe, in con-nection with his partner, S. D. Tucker, suc-ceeded in building the "Web Printing Ma-thine" which prints both sides of cuts, and folds for mail or carrier filteen thousand copies of an eight-page paper in an hour. Colonel Hoe was twice married. His first wife was Lucy Gilbert, of the old Westchester village of South Salem. They had two daughters, who married brothers The elder, Emily, became the wife of Silas Lawrence, and Ada was married to his brother, De-Witt Lawrence. The Colonel s second wife was Miss Mary Gay Corbin, of Philadelphia. Three daughters were born to them. The eldest has just married Mr. Platt. The other two married cousins; Mary is the wife of John Henry Harper, and Fannie of John Harper.

TARE TIME TO READ. It pays Newspapers are better than nothing; but books are better than newspapers Fénélon said: "If the crowns of all the kingdoms of the empire were laid at my feet, in exchange for my books and my love for reading, I would spurn them all." And he knew something about the subject, for he wrote one of the most delightful books ever put in type. I mean his "Adventures of Tele-I don't care if you are good as gold, it will refine you. Try it, and no matter if it doesn't belong to you, use it properly. Don't dogear it, don't mark passages, don't stain the pages with fruit or candy, don't sit on it, tock on it, give it to the baby to play with, or train your bull pup with it. A good book has feelings. Never outrage them .- American Bookmaker.

JOURNALISTIC NOTES.

JOHN WANAMAKER, of Philadelphia, it is reported, intends publishing an illustrated weekly magazine for children.

ACCORDING to Book Chat, Mr. Wolcott Balestier, the author of the charming remance, "A Victorious Defeat," is editor of Tid-Bits.

The Office is the title of a new periodical devoted to the interests of office men, including business managers and accountants. Published from 205 Broadway, N. Y.

The Decorator and Furnisher for June (New York, 30 E. Fourteenth Street) has introduced a number of improvements. The pages have been reduced somewhat in size, giving a wider margin and reducing the columns from three to two. An elegant colored plate, showing original designs for two ceilings—Renaissance and Louis XV. styles—is a feature of this number.

LITERARY AND TRADE NOTES.

WALT WHITMAN is about to publish a collection of prose and poetry under the title of November Boughs." He has just passed his sixty-seventh birthday.

B. F. DICKERSON, of Detroit, Mich., is to be the publisher of Miss Rose Cleveland's novel, "The Long Row." The manuscript is now in the hands of the printer, and the book will be in the market as soon as possible.

THE INTERNATIONAL TYPOGRAPHICAL CON-VENTION, in session this week at Pittsburg, Pa., received as an absolute gift, to be used "without condition or suggestion of any kind," a check for $10,000 from Messrs. G. W. Childs and A. J. Drexel, each contributing $5,000.

BELFORD, CLARKE & Co. write us that in the newspaper account of the total destruction of their Chicago building and contents by fire on the 26th day of May, it was generally stated and feared that the plates of the Fremont Memoirs were destroyed. This is not the case, they say. All the original plates were in vaults in Philadelphia and New York, and only one original copper-plate map was destroyed; of this General Fremont had a proof, and a new one will be at once reproduced. The fire will only delay publication a few weeks.

Carleton and his former employees was signally manifested on his retiring from business. The day after expressing his determination to withdraw from business, the men in his employ presented him with a gold-headed cane, accompanied by a letter, signed by them individually, bearing testimony of their esteem and of his worth. The day before Mr. Carleton sailed for Europe he called his employees together and presented them with a check for $1000. As he boarded the steamer the next morning he was greeted by a beautiful floral piece and the "good-bys" of his men on the wharf.

A. C. McClurg & Co. will soon issue a novel with the striking title, "Mr. Desmond, U. S. A." It is an army story, the scenes and incidents being laid at Fort Leavenworth, and the characters taken from military life. The tale is simply and directly told; the situations are striking, and in the general treatment of the story the author has avoided the improbable. Fort Leavenworth, the largest and finest and man Lockyer, G. du Mauri Most stirring of the Western Army Posts, has not before, it is thought, been invaded by writers of fiction, and affords a very picturesque background for the tale. They have in preparation a volume of "Standard Oratorios," by George Upton, which is to be a companion to his "Standard Operas." The book will include chapters on requiems, Stabat Maters and Te Deums.

BENJAMIN R. TUCKER, Boston, has just issued an English translation of the famous Russian novel, "What's to be Done?" by N. G. Tchernychewsky. This novel and its author have a remarkable history. The work was written in 1863 in a St. Petersburg dungeon, where the author was confined for twenty-two months prior to being sent into exile to Siberia. The author was not only one of the foremost literary men of Russia, but one of the earliest and most influential of the Nihilists, and, though still in exile, he is even yet looked upon by the Nihilists with a peculiar veneration. His influence upon the youth of Russia was of the most extraordinary and widespread character, and was chiefly exercised through this romance, "What's to be Done?" The book was suppressed by the Czar, but not before it had had a large circulation.

E. & J. B. Young & Co. call attention to the "Peniel" cards for Christmas and New Year's which, they believe, will rapidly win favor on account of their artistic merit and the distinctively religious character of their mottoes and verses. These latter are original, and have been contributed by the Bishop of Exeter, Canon Bell, D.D., Horatius Bonar, D.D., and other eminent authors. Every number in this series, as regards design and workmanship, has been executed in the most artistic and careful manner, and is of uniform merit. The Christmas and New Year's series are sold separately, and the cards are put up in neat printed wrappers, containing simply a set of the designs of any one number, thus enabling the dealer to order the cards in quantities to suit his local trade.

MR. JAMES BRYCE'S work on American institutions, in which he expounds the nature and workings of the American system of government, is nearly ready for the printers. Its publication has been delayed in consequence of Mr. Bryce's appointment to the British Under Secretaryship for Foreign Affairs.

A CABLE dispatch from London, dated June 8, states that Mr James R. Osgood, the representative of Harper & Bros., was entertained at dinner on the evening of the 7th inst., at the Continental Hotel, by Mr. Edwin A. Abbey, the well-known American artist. Covers were laid for fifty, and the list of guests included the following distinguished names: L. Alma Tadema, G. H. Boughton, Sir James D. Linton, Frederick Barnard, Alfred Parsons, Charles Keene, of Punch; T. Anstey Guthrie, Linley Sambourne, of Punch; F. D. Millet, J. R. Robinson, editor Daily News; Edmund Gosse, T. JUSTINA.

16mo, cloth, black and gold. Price, $1.00.

This is the 35th volume in this widely popular series of novels, and "Justina" will be found not a whit behind its edecessors in interest. It is a story of country life in New England, having for its motif the sacredness of the marriage lation.

INDIA REVISITED.

y EDWIN ARNOLD, M.A., author of "The Light of Asia," with 32 full-page illustrations from photographs selected by the author. One volume, 12mo, cloth. Price, $2.00.

A book which will be likely to attract attention in consequence of the enormous sale which the author's "Light

Asia 'has had in this country.

This edition of Mr. Arnold's book is the author's edition, published by arrangement with him.

BALDWIN:

Being Dialogues on Views and Aspirations.

y Vernon Lee, author of "Euphorion: Studies of the Antique and the Mediæval in the Renaissance," "The Countess of Albany" (Famous Women Series). 12mo, cloth. Price, $2.00.

"In few living women so notably as in Vernon Lee are brilliancy and depth, vigor and gentleness, width of intel-tual range and closeness of illustrative argument found constantly together. . . . For the titles alone of the six essays, rer and above the splendid Introduction, have we space; and they are given in the belief that their mere suggestiveness ill take many a reader direct to the book. They are 'The Responsibilities of Unbelief,' 'The Consolations of Belief,' of Honor and Evolution,' Of Novels,' 'The Value of the Ideal,' and 'Of Doubts and Pessimism.' "—London elegraph.

The designs and wording have special reference to the Christas Festival as the Anniversary of the Birth of Christ, and the general excellence of workmansip makes this line of Cards one of most exceptional attractiveness.

Aside from their artistic and special merit, these Cards offer two features which will recomend themselves to the trade.

- Instead of being put up in the usual bulk packages peculiar to most foreign cards, they are offered in neat printed wrappers containing a set of the designs of any individual number.
- The Christmas and New Year's series are put up separately, thus avoiding any arbitrary proportion, and enabling each dealer to order them according to the demands of his local trade.

Sample books are now ready, and will be shown by our travellers on their next trip. Descriptive lists will be furnished on application.

THE

For 1886 [Seventeenth Year].

The Educational Catalogue has been found so valuable to the Trade, not only as a finding list, but for circulation among educational customers, for the purpose of soliciting orders and saving at the same time much troublesome correspondence, that its permanent continuance is recognized as a necessity.

The catalogue this year follows the alphabetical system pronounced by the experience of the trade the most satisfactory for practical use. It includes a price-list arranged alphabetically by author's or editor's name, and a detailed subject-index, referring from each specific subject to authors of books on that subject, so that the advantages of both a finding list for the trade and a class catalogue for the use of schools are combined. No other list in the market gives this practical combination.

The list has been entirely reset, to include the new books in their proper alphabetical order, and also to embody all the corrections of prices, omissions, or other errors in last year's catalogue.

Publishers' prices are in all cases given—retail, if retail (in first column); "net," if "net" (in second column); where a "mailing" percentage is specified by the publisher, the "mailing price" is given in the retail column marked with an asterisk. A carefully drawn explanation in the heading, to private buyers, adapts the catalogue to the use of the retail trade.

It should be understood that, of the regular retail-price publishers, only the retail price is given, and the net prices only of those publishers who make it a practice to mail net-price lists to schools—in fact, make their net prices their regular school-supply prices. This point is emphasized in order to meet the objections raised to the quotation of net prices.

It should be well considered that any attempt at withholding, from the educational public, what the publisher, through his agents, advertisements, lists, and circulars, takes special pains to make known, must be an unwise policy. It is not objectionable, but quite proper and legitimate, to charge the retail or mailing price for single copies of any book; but the Educational Catalogue is not generally given away to single-book customers. It is intended only for those who purchase for schools in quantities. Now any one putting himself on record by quoting fictitious prices, or prices other than those quoted by the publisher (which prices, it is now understood, are generally still subject to a trade discount), necessarily must drive his school trade into the hands of those who solicit their orders from a catalogue, the prices of which tally with that of the publishers.

The following paragraph from a previous year's Educational Catalogue further elucidates the reasons for our strict adherence to publishers' prices: "Plainly, if it wished to sustain its official character, it was bound to respect the desire of those who have a right to stand by their prices, and who, should their established prices be disregarded, could by their public protest soon discredit the Educational Catalogue as well as these who handled it for circulation. At a time when the public mind, from causes so often discussed and lamented in these columns, is fast losing faith in honest prices, so far as books are concerned, it is of the utmost importance that there be one official list which can be consulted with confidence by the public, as well as by the trade.

In making up special orders for the Educational Catalogue, booksellers should bear in mind that it possesses not only temporary value, but will serve its purpose during the whole year. No imprint edition of less than 100 copies can be supplied. Orders for editions should be sent to us at once.

CASH TERMS.

With sole imprint of ordering firm, and stitched, per 100 copies, $5; per 1000, $40.

There is no extra charge for printing name, business card, etc., on the imprint page; the last page is left blank at the disposal of the dealer, but any copy for that, advertising special lines or general business, will be set up and printed thereon for $5, or $1 if plate is sent.

 Copy for imprint and shipping directions should accompany the order.

The regular Educational Number of "THE PUBLISHERS' WEEKLY" will be supplied at 25 cents per copy, or five for $1, postpaid.

NOTES IN SEASON.

ROBERTS BROS. will issue shortly "Miss Melinda's Opportunity," by Mrs. Helen Campbell, author of "Mrs. Herndon's Income," etc. They will also issue immediately "Susanna Wesley" in the Famous Women series.

Porter & Coates will publish about the 1st of July "Joe Wayring at Home, or, the Story of a Fly-Rod," the first volume of a new series of books, by that favorite writer for boys, Harry Castlemon, to be known as the Forest and Stream Series; "Helping Himself, or, Grant Thornton's Ambition," by Horatio Alger, Jr., being the fourth and concluding volume of the Atlantic Series; "Footprints in the Forest," by Edward S. Ellis, being the third and concluding volume of the Log Cabin Series; and two books that appeal especially to girl readers—"Ways and Means," by Margaret Vandegrift, and "Holidays at the Grange, or, a Week's Delight," by Emily Mayer Higgins.

HARPER & Bros. have just ready a volume of essays on "Bolingbroke, an historical study, and Voltaire in England," by John C. Collins, which throw light on two singularly interesting episodes in the political and literary history of the eighteenth century; "Aristocracy in England," as Adam Badeau, the author of a "Military History of U. S. Grant," had an opportunity of seeing and studying it between the years 1869 and 1881; "Rolf House," a delightful storyfor boys and girls, by Lucy C. Lillie, with numerous illustrations; "Pluck," a novel by John Strange Winter, in their Handy Series; and "The Crack of Doom," a novel by William Minto, in the Franklin Square Library.

G. P. Putnam's Sons issue this week two volumes in the Story of the Nations series—one on Norway, by H. H. Boyesen, and one or Germany, by Sabine Baring-Gould, with the collaboration of Arthur Gilman; a "Manual of Differential Medical Diagnosis," by Dr. Condict W. Cutter, in which the author endeavors to contrast the symptoms of the diseases that are most liable to be confounded one with another, and choses for such symptoms those that will most readily call forth a differential diagnosis; the fifth volume of German Classics for American Students—" Schiller's Ausgewählte Briefe," selected and edited, with an introduction and commentary, by Pauline Buchheim; and a volume of poetry by Lillian Rozell Messenger, entitled "A Vision of Gold, and Other Poems."

TICKNOR & Co. have just ready "A Moon-. light Boy," a new novel, by E. W. Howe, author of "The Story of a Country Town," upon which he has been engaged for two years; "Romance and Revery," a new volume of poems, by Edgar Fawcett, handsomely printed on imported handmade paper, with rough edges; "An Epigramatic Voyage," by Denton J. Snider, author of "A Walk in Hellas," etc., a quaint volume of blank verse, recording remembrances and reminiscences of a classical American scholar's travels between Latium and Hellas. They have also ready two new volumes in their Students Series of Standard Poetry—" Young People's Tennyson' and "Byron's Childe Harold," edited, with notes and introduction, by W. J. Rolfe, each in one volume, beautifully illustrated.

D. Appleton & Co. will publish shortly a new book by James R. Gilmore, (" Edmund Kirke,") entitled "The Rear Guard of the Revolution," a narrative of the pioneers that first crossed the Alleghanies, and settled in what is now Tennessee, under the leadership of two remarkable men, James Robertson and John Sevier; "Studies in Modern Socialism and Labor Problems," by T. Edwin Brown, D.D., of Providence, which contains a brief history of Socialism and Communism, a careful exposition of what the advocates of these theories claim, an acknowledgment of what is just therein, and a searching criticism of their defects; a volume of translations into the Spanish from American literature, by Señor Don Juan Valera, recently Spanish Minister to our Government, entitled " Ecos de America;" an edition both in Spanish and English of Señor Valera's novel, "Pepita Jimenez," which has appeared in eight editions in bookform in Spain, and been translated into German, French, Italian, and Bohemian; a monograph on André and Hale, under the title of "The Two Spies." by Benson J. Lossing, fully illustrated; "Admiral Blake," by David Hannay, and "Steele," by Austin Dobson, in the English Worthies series; and "Doris's Fortune," by Miss Warden, author of "The House on the | Marsh," in their Twenty-five Cent Series.

These essays were originally contributed to the Quarterly Review and to the Cornkill Magazine. As now presented they have been carefuly revised and considerable additions made to them. They have been collected in a volume "not because the author attaches undue importance to them, but because he ventures to think that they throw light on two singularly interesting episodes in the political and literary history of the eighteenth century, and because he is willing to believe that, as they are the result of more research than will perhaps appear on the surface, they may be of some use to future biographen of Bolingbroke and Voltaire."

McCosh, Ja., D.D. Psychology: the cognitive powers. N. Y., C: Scribner's Sons, 1886. 7-245 p. il. D. cl., $1.50.

In preparing this text-book, Dr. McCosh has had the experience of thirty-five years as a teacher and student of mental science to draw from. He has endeavored, by many interesting illustrations taken from life, to avoid the condemnation "dull as a text-book" so often quoted. He says: "It will be shown in this work that the honest and careful study of the human mind in an inductive manner undermines the prevailing philosophic errors of this age; saves us from idealism on the one hand and agnosticism on the other; and conducts us to realism, which in a rude state was the first philosophy, and when its excrescences are pruned off will be the last.'

cl., $1.

Scene laid on the Nova Scotia coast near Halifax. An undisciplined, beautiful girl of generous impulses and brilliant intellect lives a lonely life with her grandmother, an original creation of modern fiction. Two lovers of strongly contrasting characters have a controlling influence on the life of the heroine. The story is a powerful study of the inmost recesses of a woman's heart and mind. The title is taken from "Hamlet."

Mendenhall, J. W., D.D. Plato and Paul; or, philosophy and Christianity: an examination of the two fundamental forces of cosmic and human history, with their contents, methods, functions, relations and results compared. Cin., Cranston & Stowe, 1886. 777 p. O. cl., $3.50.

The following extract, taken from the author's introduction, further explains the object of his work: "In Christian lands little or no attention has been given to the philosophic character of Christianity, its defence being largely historical or in form theological; hence the philosophic thinker, finding his method abjured, has been led to conclude against the philosophical value of religion, and has pronounced it a superstition. To acquaint him with the primordial ideas of religion, vindicating them from the philosophical standpoint, and to re-impress the image of truth upon the mind of man, the mistakes of materialism, and the insufficiency and frigidity of a godless philosophy, and the deep, pervasive, and unquenchable spirit of Christianity, with the authority of its truths, and the sufficiency of its revelations, must be fully and comprehensively shown, and this is attempted in the volume here presented."

*Michigan. Supreme Court. Michigan reports, by H: A. Chaney st. rep. V. 55, Oct. 8, 1884-Jan. 21, 1885. Chic., Callaghan & Co., 1836. 17+698 p. O. shp., $3.50.

Miller, J. R., D.D. Silent times: a book to help in reading the Bible into life. Bost., I

T: Y. Crowell & Co., 1886. 266 p. D. d.,

Its aim is to bring the divine lessons down, and give some hints of the way they may be used on common days, and in the actual experiences of those days. The title "Silent times" is suggestive of the need of seasons of quiet in every life that would grow into full, rich beauty.

Minto, W: The crack of doom: a novel. N. Y., Harper, [1886.] 78 p. Q. (Harper's Franklin sq. lib., no. 530.) pap., 20 c.

"It may safely be said of a novel with a comet for here that it inaugurates a new departure in fiction. Heterogeneous as is the human world dealt with in ' The crack of doom,' it all revolves around a certain comet whose flaunting tail threatens the earth with destruction. By aid of the comet the characters are paired comfortably off in the end; by aid of the comet the villains are killed off the moment they become as villains useless in the economy of the story; by aid of the comet the heroine comes at the end of the third volume into a fortune . . . If the reader expects to draw a good deal of amusement from a story so quaintly conceived as this, he will not be disappointed. A fine vein of animal spirits runs through the whole, and even when a tragic thread is interwoven in the humorous structure, it remains still a comedy."—The Atheneum.

DAVID VAN NOSTRAND.

It is again our painful duty to write "the end" against a life rich in usefulness and devotion to its calling. David Van Nostrand died at his home, No. 23 West Twentieth Street, New York City, on Tuesday afternoon, June 14. His health had been feeble for a year, and he had been confined to his house since January.

David Van Nostrand was born in the city of New York in December, 1811, and was a de-Seendant of one of the Dutch settlers of the province. In 1826, when fifteen years old, he entered the service of John P. Haven, who was agent for the important publications of Crocker & Brewster, of Boston, and who at that time had a book store at the corner of John Street and Broadway. After being associated for eight years with Mr. Haven, (who, in the meantime, had withdrawn from the agency of Crocker & Brewster, and had begun business in the Tract House on Nassau Street,) Mr. Van Nostrand, in 1834, we believe, established a new house under the firm name of Van Nostrand & Dwight, Mr. William R. Dwight being the partner. They published chiefly religious books.

In 1837 the firm was dissolved, and an interregnum of twelve years enabled Mr. Van Nostrand to pursue his favorite scientific studies, especially of books on engineering. During a part of this time he was employed as an accountant in the office of General J. C. Barnard, who was then directing the construction of fortifications at New Orleans. His earlier occupations had gained him the acquaintance and friendship of many young men and scholars, who subsequently became prominent as literary and scientific men or as professors or directors of educational, literary, and scientific institutions of the United States. Here he came in contact with milltary men, and formed acquaintances and connections which had an important influence in subsequently establishing him as, par eminence, the military publisher of his country. Returning to New York about the year 1850, he recommenced on a modest scale the business of a bookseller at the corner of John Street and Broadway, opposite the shop in which he had worked with Mr. Haven. Called upon first to import military and scientific books for individual officers of the United States Army with whom he had previously formed acquaintance, then for the United States Military Academy at West Point, then again for various learned institutions, his business rapidly expanded and naturally allied itself with that of a publisher, and his establishment in New York soon became the resort of military men, college professors, engineers, and, in general, of all seeking works on the sciences, on engineering, practical mechanics and manufactures, or on military subjects.

Up to this time the United States, while prolific in practical applications of science, especially the military and naval sciences, had been, through obvious causes, somewhat sterile of literary expositions of its works. The ten years previous to 1860, however, showed a great and rapid development of such works, and with no name is this development more intimately associated than that of Mr. Van Nostrand. His genial, liberal character and enterprising spirit, united with a great business capacity, attracted to his establishment most of those who read such works as well as those who wished to publish or desired to prepare them. The civil war gave an especial impetus to his business by creating an immense demand from the Government officers and from the volunteer soldiery for military and naval works, foreign and of his own publication. Somewhat singularly, too, this period of intense activity was prolific of works on such subjects, by officers and others, which have been eagerly sought for in foreign countries; and the works issued by his house on tactics, artillery, naval and marine, on fortifications and military engineering, on cavalry, and on the modern applications of iron to fortifications and ships, and on torpedoes, are standard authorities. and perhaps the most valuable that have appeared in any country. In 1869 the growth of his business obliged him to seek for more spacious quarters, and he removed to the present location at 23 Murray and 27 Warren streets.

Among the most important of his publishing enterprises may be mentioned the translation of Jomini's "Life of Napoleon I.," being a complete history of Napoleon's campaigns from 170% to 1845, translated by the late Major-General

Halleck, just before the outbreak of the Rebellion, and brought out profusely illustrated, preserving all the maps and plans of the original work. An early copy of the work was sent the author, then eighty years of age, who sent a letter of thanks expressing his surprise that the only English edition of his work should be the outcome of American enterprise. Later he published a translation of the same author's treatise on "Grand Military Operations," in two volumes, and an accompanying atlas illustrative of the campaigns of Frederick the Great. Speaking of his military publications, we must not forget the "Rebellion Record," which was first published by C. T. Evans, then by G. P. Putnam, but which early came into the hands of Mr. Van Nostrand. This, it will be remembered, was edited by Frank Moore, comprises twelve volumes, and gives an important diary of events from the outbreak of the civil war to its close. In addition to the more formal documents introduced, it contains many maps and portraits, as well as a vast number of newspaper scraps, songs, biographical sketches, military orders, proclamations, and other matter essential to the future historian. In a more peaceful direction S. Whipple's work on "Bridge-building," a conspicuous one on Van Nostrand's list, has revolutionized the science of bridge-building, which may truly be called an American art. Few publishers would have undertaken this now standard work, but the author's enthusiasm so fired the publisher that the great work was begun, the author himself, it is said, setting the type, making the wood-cuts, and attending to the entire mechanical work of the first edition. Among the later and more important publications may be mentioned the series of mathematical text-books of Prof. Bowser, which have a very large sale. Mr. Van Nostrand's catalogue covers between eighty and ninety octavo pages. Almost all the leading names of American scientists are included in it, and to him more than any other one man belongs the glory of having aided specialists in their investigations and researches by his devotion to the work he had chosen from inclination and sympathy, at a time when even the most sanguine could never have reasonably looked for the success his untiring energy and special fitness have realized. Indeed, but few men are so constituted as to be able to wait patiently for the growth of a great business in a field which promises no reward except as the fruit of many years of toil.

In all his busy life Mr. Van Nostrand remained a man of social tastes and interests. He was one of the earliest members of the Union League Club, and for many years took an active part in its affairs. He was also a member of the Century Club, and of the St. Nicholas and Holland societies. He was a religious man, and a prominent member of Calvary Church. He was twice married. His first wife was a daughter of the Eev. Dr. Isaac Lewis, an eminent Presbyterian clergyman of | book as a chattel, to himself and his beirs for all New York City. His second wil survives him, time, but under the Constitution the same on but he leaves no children but he leaves no children.

SENATOR CHACE ON COPYRIGHT.

SENATOR CHACE concludes a letter to the New York Tribune, which had criticised some provisions of his bill, as follows:

Further on you say: "Yet while we recognize an author's property in his purse or his coat everywhere, we insist upon circumscribing his right to his book by geographical boundaries," and you proceed to quote the following language from McClurg:

To take away an Englishman's gold on its arrival in New York, or to submit for one moment to an American citizen being robbed of his personal effects on their arrival in London, are things which could not be thought of. But to plan common sense is there really any difference between the and the confiscating of the foreigner's book?... Granted the abstract right of an author to property in his writings, and that right cannot justly be limited by the boundaries of his own country, but must follow him the civilized world over. The Englishman's book is as much his own in America as his trunk, and the American's book is as much his own in England as his coat or his hat. Then you say: "This is elementary ethics; but a great many American writers and speakers on copyright have not yet learned it." Here McClurg makes the same error which nearly all authors have made in treating this subject, and you seem to have adopted his error—namely, you and they make no distinction between a chattel or any other species of property, the possession of which is a common-law right, and a special privilege, such as a patent right or a copyright. McClurg, yourselves and many others fall into the error of treating the right w these two kinds of property as being based upon the same principle, but I submit that when you quarrel with the committee in regard to that matter you will also have to join as co-defendants the framers of the Constitution and all the statesmen of the world thus far, for nowhere in the civilized world are the two kinds of property recognized as standing upon the same basis. The framers of the Constitution, Article 1, Section 8, clause 8, use the following language: "Congress shall have the power . . . to promote the progress of science and useful arts by securing for limited times to authors and inventors the exclusive right to their respective writings and discoveries." So you see that the fathers who framed and adopted the Constitution entertained the "dishonest principle" also, and did not grant the "abstract right of the author." And not only so, but every Government that has enacted a copyright law has been equally dishonest. Further, how could you expect us to grant to authors a privilege which is inhibited by the language of the Constitution? You say: "While we recognize an author's property in his coat everywhere, we insist upon circumscribing his right to his book by geographical boundaries." If I were disposed to be captious I should point out that you had fallen into an error, for his right to his book is as much a common law right as his right to his purse or his coat. Can you not see the difference between his right to the book as a chattel and a copyright? This difference is well illustrated by the pheasant proposition. The common law protects a man in the possession of his pheasants, no matter how many may be hatched out on his domain, but it does not protect him in the right to hatch pheasants. The common law protects the author's right to his and that for special reasons. It is matter of magret that not only such as yourselves, but a preat number of very intelligent gentlemen who follow the profession of authorship, should allow abemselves to be misled by this strange misapprehension in regard to these two kinds of

You also take exception to the efforts of the committee to protect the "income of labor." And here again you use the chattel argument, as though it were a moral wrong to prevent a foreigner's bringing his property into this country freely and without charge. What is the elect of the protective principle of which your fournal has been the ablest defender in this country? The duty upon books is twenty-five per cent; in other words, practically, before we than Englishman bring four books into this country the people of the United States demand of him enough money to pay for one book, and we do it for the purpose of securing the "intome of labor in this country " Are you preared to renounce all your professions of right in that regard? I trow not, but prefer to believe that upon further thought you will disayow this afticism upon the bill.

As regards the authors themselves, a very large majority of them seem unable to emancifie themselves from the misapprehension that the author's property in his production is a common-law right. I will not attempt to argue the question of the original principle, but content myself with simply suggesting to those gentlemen whether it would not be well for them to becure such rights as they may under the Continution first for their brethren abroad and take be other contract afterward, for they will find that a very big one. Probably they will not and one statesman in a thousand the world over who will agree with them.

From Harper's Wiekly, Tune is

Senator Chace asserts copyright to be a speial privilege of monopoly, and not a common aw right. This is true so far as this, that egislation in England and in this country has mactically annulled the original right at comnon law, and many of the best friends of the uthor's right have urged that it is better to raive the question of such right pending the iscussion of a proposition to give the foreign uthor the benefit of a recognition of a limited erm of copyright. This is the view taken by 'rofessor Huxley before the English Commision, and it does not compromise in the least the laim of absolute right.

Senator Chace is aware, of course, that the ct of Anne was not designed to abolish, but to rotect, the author's right. Subsequent action Parliament and our own legislation, indeed, ave proceeded upon the theory that copyright s not a right at common law, but a specific rant for the benefit of the State. The Constiation of the United States recognizes no abtract right in the author, and expressly gives im a limited copyright, not because it is his, nd should be secured to him, of right, but " to romote the progress of science and useful arts." 'he constitutional argument for international opyright is that it will promote the progress of cience and the useful arts in the United States. f its opponents can show that it will not do eat, they will have a standing in the Constituon. But the strength of the demand lies in the onsciousness of the citizen that the measure is sentially just.

UNDERSELLING IN THE NETHER- 'LANDS.

THE Dutch booksellers, following the lead of their German confrient, have formed a similar union to that of the Berlin booksellers mentioned in our issue for June 5. " Underselling is not only injurious to the interests of the bookseller," says the London Publishers' Circular, " but it is also dangerous to public morality; for, as is pertinently remarked by Heer Gouda Quine, in the Nieuwsblad voor den Boekhandel of the 18th ult., the book-trade stands in this exceptional position; that whereas (firstly) in other trades the manufacturer or producer does not fix the selling price of his productions, in the book-trade, on the contrary, the price of all literary productions is fixed by the publisher; and (secondly), while in other trades the quality of other goods differs according to place and circumstance, in the book-trade this is not the case, because the published price of a book is patent to all book purchasers. Consequently, while we are free to confess the perfect right of a purchaser to expect a good article and bis money's worth for his money, we can scarcely think he is morally justified in expecting any of our trade to give him that lawful profit which should enable the bookseller to pay his rents, rate, and taxes, the salaries of his assistants, to meet his other business expenses, and to keep himself, his wife, and family."

A NEW HOME FOR THE GERMAN BORSENVEREIN.

THE laying of the corner-stone of the new building for the German Bürsenverein was made the occasion of a grand parade and a great festival day on May 23, for the city of Leipzig. The ground on which the building is to stand is a free gift from the city of Leipzig to the booktrade of the German Empire. The old Börsenverein was built just fifty years ago, and at the time seemed gigantic in its proportions. But the numbers of the members have grown from three hundred to more than one thousand, and the amount of work done in the great book-trade clearing house, together with the new methods of doing it, require a much larger building to-The large procession of city authorities and every trade connected with the book-trade in the remotest way marched to the Wagner "Tannhäuser" march, the speeches were enthusiastic, and weather and all else combined to make the laying of this corner-stone memorable far beyond the limits of Leipzig.

ROMANCE OF THE LEON BROS. From the N. Y Tribune, June 13

BIBLIOPHILKS will learn with some surprise of the sale of the valuable library of rare books in all languages collected by the Leon Brothers in their store under the Fifth Avenue Hotel on the Twenty-third Street side. The three brothers belong to a Polish family. During the Revolution of 1863, in Poland, the political prejudices of the family brought them into disrepute with the Emperor of Russia, and one of the brothers was an exile in Siberia for twelve years, and the others were imprisoned. The youngest brother upon his release came to this city and opened a small cigar-store in East Washington Square. He was a great student, and then formed the nucleus of the large cu'lection of books which was afterward placed in charge of the brothe next in age, who came to this country after his return from exile in 1875. A few months later the eldest brother leased the estates of the family for a dozen years and also came here. It was then that the Twenty third Street book-store was opened. The leases in Poland are now about to expire, and the eldest brother will return to Poland to take charge of the estates. The brothers acknowledge that "Leon" is an assumed name, but they refuse to divulge their real name. Leon is the Christian name of one of the brothers, and it was adopted as the surname in this country for convenience.

COMMUNICATIONS.

AN APPEAL TO PUBLISHERS IN BEHALF OF THE TRADE LIST ANNUAL.

THE PUBLISHERS' TRADE LIST ANNUAL has become a necessity to the book-trade. To satisfy this necessity, publishers should respond early, cheerfully, and unanimously, to make the Annual complete and perfect. Every publisher should be represented; it is certainly to his interest to have his catalogue in such form that it will be kept for reference an entire year. Don't fail to insert your catalogue, and begin its preparation in time.

The publishers of the "Trade List Annual" have done their share to make it a success. The "Record of New Books," the "Index" to same, and the "Educational Catalogue," now embodied in the Annual, are all features that make this trade tool worth more than is asked for it.

Publishers should show their appreciation by contributing catalogues liberally; and booksellers should show theirs by contributing subscriptions liberally also.

Cotumbus, O., June 8, 1886.

[We print the above at the request of the representative of a large Western house, who is anxious that the Annual shall include the catalogues not only of every publisher but of every house in any way connected with the book or stationery trades. We have a reat hopes ourselves of accomplishing this in time. It is not so long ago that we were obliged to point out by lengthy arguments the usefulness of the Annual. That is now no longer necessary. And the time will come when every one who has anything to sell to booksellers and stationers must arrive at the conclusion that it will pay him better to economize in other directions than in saving the expense of inserting his catalogue in the " Trade List Annual " The booksellers, by the way, never required coaxing. They needed but to subscribe to the voltime one year to convince them that they could not afford to do without it as long as they kept a store. - Ep. P. W.]

NOTES ON AUTHORS.

MR. A. P. SINNETT'S forthcoming story, devoted to the mysteries of Theosophy, will be entitled "United."

REV. T. P. HUGHES, at present located at Lebanon Springs, N. Y., is the author of "Ruham nah" and "A Dictionary of Islam."

MR. JUSTIN H. McCARTHY'S forthcoming "History of Ireland from the Union to the latroduction of Mr. Gladstone's Bul," has been sent to the printers, and is likely to be published during the present season.

JULIAN HAWTHORNE's two new novels, "The Trial of Gideon," a story of prehistoric times of the hills of Moab, and "The Countess Almara & Murder," a tale of New York, are promised for an early date. They will be published under one cover.

Sir Charles Gavan Duffy has written a new book on certain episodes in the political history of Ireland, which, though comparatively recent, are not very well known. It will be published by Chapman & Hall in the course of the present month, under the title of "The League of North and South, 1850 to 1855"

"MR. MALCOLM MACMILLAN, who has been for some time at work upon the life and writings of Samuel Richardson," says the Atherican, "would be extremely obliged to any possessors of letters from or to the celebrated novelist who would send transcripts to him at 29 and 30 Bedford Street, Covent Garden, or in the case of larger collections would give him some opportunity of consulting the originals."

Harper's Bazar for June 12 contains a portrait and sketch of Mrs. Henrietta E. V Stannard (John Strange Winter), author of "Bootle' Baby," etc. She was born at York, Eng., January 13, 1856, and is the daughter of H. V Palmer, rector of St. Margaret's, York, formely in the Royal Artillery. Mrs. Stannard says that "Bootles' Baby" was refused by many magnines before it was accepted by the London Graphic,

JOURNALISTIC NOTES,

THE CATHOLIC PUBLICATION SOCIETY Co. have commenced the publication of a new illustrated monthly journal, entitled Cathelic Minnous, for the benefit of the Society of the Propagation of the Faith. The journal is edited in the Bishop of Salford, and will be devoted entirely to furthering the missionary work of the Roman Catholic Church all over the world.

In America there are only two monasteres maintained by the Trappist monks, and no monastic order has a more singular history or follows more rigid customs. One of these monasteres in which the vow of perpetual silence is enjoined, is located at Dubuque, lowa, and the second is in Nelson County, Ky., a short distance from Louisville. This second is called the monastery of Gethsemane, and is the subject of a magazine article by Morton M. Casseday. The article, well-illustrated, will appear in the Southern Bivouse for July.

BUSINESS NOTES

COLUMBUS, KAN. - Branin Bros., booksellen and atationers, have dissolved pandership.

MASSILLON, O. Skinner Bros., besteeden and stationers, have dissolved paraership.

PARIS. Tex.—Troy & Ragland, booksellers, have sold out.

PHILADELPHIA, PA.—Fasy, Comber & Co., publishers and booksellers, have been succeeded by Frank A. Fasy.

PITTSFIELD, MASS.—J. B. Harrison, book-seller and stationer, has sold out.

SAN FRANCISCO, CAL.—F. W. & D. Barkhaus, booksellers and stationers, have dissolved partnership.

Springfield, O. -J. D. Hartney, bookseller and stationer, has sold out.

MESSRS. J. B. LIPPINCOTT & Co. have removed from Russell Street to much larger and more convenient premises at 10 Henrietta Street, Covent Garden.

HARPER & Bros.' London Agency.—We learn from the London Publishers' Circular that "owing to the crowded state of Messrs. Low's present premises, Mr. Osgood has taken an office opposite, at No. 30 Fleet Street. It should be noted, however, that this removal in no way interferes with the publication of Harper's Magazine and Harper's Young People, which will be continued, as usual, at 188 Fleet Street. In this connection we are desired by Messrs. Sampson Low & Co. to mention that, having been unable to complete the arrangements they had hoped to make for enlarging their present premises, which their business has quite outgrown, they have decided to erect much larger and more suitable premises in the immediate neighborhood, into which they will remove as soon as the new buildings are completed."

LITERARY AND TRADE NOTES.

T. Y. CROWELL & Co. have in press a new story by Miss Mary B. Sleight, entitled "The Flag on the Mill."

D. LOTHROP & Co. have just published "Spun from Facts," by Pansy, her latest and in some respects her best work.

THE Atlanta Constitution has discovered that Miss Murfree is engaged to "Mr. Charles Egbert Craddock, a burly six-footer, living near Pulaski, Tenn."

MRS. GORDON L. FORD, the granddaughter of Noah Webster, has nearly completed a biography of the lexicographer which, it is expected, will contain much of his interesting private correspondence.

THE vest-pocket edition of "Don't" has been received with much favor, and the sales of this edition has already run the aggregate number circulated in this country up to 80,000. We learn that a translation of "Don't" into Russian is on the eve of publication in St. Petersburg.

D. LOTHROP & Co. have in preparation for early publication an illustrated volume by Mrs. Mary Bradford Crowninshield, the wife of Commander Crowninshield, entitled "Among the Lighthouses," detailing the experiences of an inspector with two lively boys among the lighthouses on the Maine coast.

FUNK & WAGNALLS announce that in the new edition of Holloway's "The Ladies of the White House" (which will be entirely rewriten and issued in two volumes), in addition to the sketch of Mrs. Grover Cleveland, the biographies of Miss Harriet Lane, Mrs. Lincoln, Mrs. Grant, Mrs. Hayes, and Mrs. Garfield will be brought down to date.

THE JOHN W. LOVELL Co. have issued a novelty in their Lovell's Library (No. 750) in the shape of the fac-simile of Hugh Conway's "Somebody's Story," which he contributed to the "Shakesperean Show-book," in 1884. The fac-simile of the MS. of the story is preceded by the story in type and a note by J. S. Wood, the editor of the "Show-book," which, by the way, was gotten up to benefit the Chelsea Hospital for Women.

THE NORTH AMERICAN PUBLISHING COMPANY publish this week, by subscription, "Reminiscences of Abraham Lincoln," edited by Allen Thorndike Rice. Biographical sketches are given of the distinguished men who contribute the various papers. These sketches were chiefly written by the men themselves. In all cases they were revised by them or by their relatives. The portraits of these authors were made from photographs furnished by them.

GINN & Co. will publish next month Lotze's "Outlines of Æsthetics," translated and edited by Prof. George T. Ladd, of Yale. This volume treats of the theory of the beautiful and of phantasy, and of the realization and different species of the beautiful. Then follow brief chapters on music, architecture, plastic art, painting, and poetry. An appendix contains a brief biography of Lotze. This volume will be of the same size as those issued already. The "Outlines of Logic" will be the next volume in this series.

J. B. LIPPINCOTT Co. announce a volume on the "La Plata Countries of South America," by E. J. M. Clemens; "A Soldier's Reminiscences in Peace and War," by Gen. R. W. Johnson; a new novel by Mrs. Annie S. Gilchrist, entitled "Harcourt;" two volumes of poetry, one by Emily T. Charles, the other by H. S. Hagert; F. Anstey's new novel, "A Fallen Idol;" and two medical works—"The Accommodation and Refraction of the Eye," by E. Landolt, M.D., and "The Parasites of Man," by Prof. Rudolf Leuckart, both of which have been translated from the German.

ROBERT BARRY COFFIN, better known by the pseudonym of Barry Gray, died at his home in Fordham, June 10. He had been an invalid for nearly two years, suffering from general debility. Up to that time his signature had been a familiar one for thirty years over sketches and short stories. Many of his writings were collected and arranged for use in book-form, resulting in the publication of a set of works that ran through several editions, and had a large sale. Those that will be best remembered are "Matrimonial Infelicities," "Cakes and Ale at Woodbine," "My Married Life at Hillside," and "Who is the Heir?" After dropping out of sight for a number of years, and the demand for them continuing, the books were issued in a fresh edition of six volumes two years ago by Hurd & Hough-

THE O. JUDD Co. have just ready a book entitled "How to Handle and Educate Vicious Horses," by Oscar Gleason. In addition to full directions for handling vicious horses, breaking colts, etc., the volume comprises very instructive chapters on teaching horses tricks, how tell the age of horses, shoeing, diseases, ladies' equestrianism, also a dissertation on dogs, how to teach them and how to treat their diseases. They have also just ready a revised and enlarged edition of Dr. George Thurber's work on "Silos and Ensilage." They have in preparation a work on "Fly-fishing and Fly-making for Trout," etc., by J. Harrington Keene, with plates of the actual material for making flies of every variety, together with chapters by Robert B. Roosevelt and other authorities; also, a new, revised and enlarged edition of "An Egg Farm—the management of poultry in large numbers," by H. H. Stoddard.

JESUP WHITEHEAD, 183 North Peoria Street, Chicago, Ill., has written and will publish early in July a new American cook-book, entitled "Cooking for Profit," which claims to be adapted for the use of all who serve meals for a price. The book is divided into three parts, the first of which treats of Restaurants, Oyster and Fish Houses, Ice Cream Saloons, Fine Bakery and Dairy Lunch Dishes, etc. The second part has chapters on "Eight Weeks at a Summer Resort," "Our Daily Bill of Fare, and what it Cost," "A Chef's Diary of One Season's Catering at a Summer Boarding-House," " Cost of Every Meal, Quantities and Cost of Every "Economical Cookery, High-style Cookery, Expenses, and How Much Money was Made." The third part is devoted to "Artistic Cookery and Notes on the London Cookery and Food Exhibition," with instructions in ornamentation. The work will be fully illustrated, and will have a copious index.

THE MILTON BRADLEY Co., Springfield, Mass., have in press a work that promises to be of great value to teachers and those who are interested in the natural method of teaching. It is entitled "The Kindergarten and the School," and comprises five chapters. The first is entitled: "Froebel, the Man and His Work," a concise life of Froebel and a history of his work, by Miss Anne L. Page, a kindergartner in Boston, which is largely a compilation and condensation from the mass of material on the subject in English and German. The second chapter is entitled "The Theory and Methods of the Kindergarten," by Miss Angeline Brooks, now of New Haven, Conn., a carefully prepared paper, in which the attempt is made to state in clear language that which was often very involved in Froebel's writings, even to German scholars, and which has been made worse in translations made by some not familiar with the spirit of Froebel. The third chapter, on "The Gifts and Materials of the Kindergarten," is a plain and brief statement of the material used by Miss Brooks, illustrated by wood-cuts and colored plates. The fourth chapter explains "The Use of Kindergarten Material in Primary Schools, by Mrs. Alice H. Putnam, of Chicago, who has charge of the kindergarten department in Colonel Parker's Normal School at Normal Park, The fifth chapter is entitled near Chicago. "The Connection of the Kindergarten with the School," by Mrs. Mary H. Peabody, of New York City. This is an original and philosophical paper on the continuation of the Froebelian or natural method through the primary to the grammar grade of instruction, and leading up to the teaching of the sciences and the natural introduction of manual work in continuation of the occupations of the kindergarten.

Cassett & Co. will publish next month Mr. Robert Louis Stevenson's new story, "Kill-napped."

LONGMANS, GREEN & Co. have in the prema volume of reminiscences by Hobart Pashs. It will be entitled "Sketches of My Life."

WILLIAM BLACKWOOD & SONS annuate "Haifa, or, Life in Modern Palestine," by E. Laurence Oliphant, with numerous illustration and diagrams.

HACHETTE & Co. announce a new illustrated edition of M. Duruy's "History of Greect," as a companion work to the same author's "History of Rome," of which Messrs. Kegan Pail, Trench & Co. are publishing an English translation. It will be in three volumes, of 800 pages each, illustrated with about 1500 engravings and 50 maps and plans.

MACMILLAN & Co. will publish, under the title of "India under British Rule," a continuation of Mr. J. Talboys Wheeler's "History of India from the Earliest Ages." "The work." says the London Literary World, "will tell the story of British rule from the establishment of the East India Company to the present time, and Mr. Wheeler's object has been to give not a mere chronicle of events, but a description of the political and social changes which have made the country what it is.

"M. Zola's next novel, on which he has already begun to work, is to be a study of French peasant life," says the St. James' Gazette. In "Terre," as he purposes calling it, he will portray the peasant as he conceives him, bringing out more particularly the fierce earth-hunger which is at the bottom of his nature, and which too often brings his worst and most savage instincts into play. At the same time M. Zola recognizes in "the man who lives in constant contact with the soil" a certain element of dignity and even grandeur of character, to which he expresses his intention of doing full justice.

TRUBNER & Co. have just issued the second and third volumes completing the translation of Schopenhauer's "The World as Will and Idea." "The difficult task of rendering the work into easy and flowing English and also of preserving the exact sense of the writer," says the London Hookseller, "was one of such magnitude that for years it seemed as if Schopenhauer's magnet of the must forever be read in the original. At length Messrs, Haldane and Kemp essayed the task, and the testimony of scholars is all but unanimous to the admirable manner in which they have carried out their undertaking."

"GRIFFITH, FARRAN & Co.," says the Lon-don Academy, "have in preparation a series of shilling volumes, to be called the 'Ancient and Modern Library of Theological Literature, containing examples of the works of the greatest writers of the Christian Church, and including books of meditation and devotion, hiographies. hturgies, etc. The editor is the Rev. P. H. Droosten, Rector of Bingham, Nottingham. Among the works already selected are the 'Coslessions' of Augustine, R. Wilherforce's 'Fire Empires,' Sermons of St. Chrysostom, Herhert's Poems, Jeremy Taylor's 'Holy Living.' Baxter's 'Saint's Rest,' Athanasius's 'Oraposed to publish the first three or four rolling together in September new, and threaders a luserays of a wouth, HILADELPHIA COOK-BOOK.

By MRS. S. T. RORER,

OF THE PHILADELPHIA COOKING SCHOOL.

besides the multitude of Recipes for "things that are liked," Comments on ways of Cooking, the Selection of Things to be Cooked, and the Utensils to Cook them with. Mrs. Rorer is a high authority on all matters relating to Cookery, and the book offers the best results of her long experience.

The Philadelphia Ledger says:

The Philadelphia Cook-Book has a right to its name, and its name carries assurance everywhere of choice recipes ntily savored dishes. . . . Mrs. Rorer's book is considerably more than a collection of fine recipes. There are ple who understand the constituents of food as this lady does, and the page or two of preface at opening of each of the subject are valuable. They show indirectly why Mrs. Rorer's recipes always 'come out' right."

The Philadelphia Inquirer says:

Somebody has said that 'the true philosopher is a man of one book.' The same might be said of the true cook— is the book. It contains, at a rough estimate, 2,500 recipes, written in simple language. . . . The book has a value. The reader is told in a few words what are the dietetic qualities of the various foods treated. . . . t, but not least, this volume is the outcome of the Philadelphia Cooking School, which is the embodiment of that skill for which Philadelphia is famous all over the world. Happy is the man in whose wife's kitchen it shall be a constant use."

SOCIALISM !

COMMUNISM!

A VITAL QUESTION; or, What is to Done.

By Nikolai G. Tchernuishevsky. Translated from the Russian by Na Haskell Dole and S. S. Skidelsky. 12mo, 472 pp., $1.25.

In the present translation the American public has an opportunity of studying who Russian government regards as revolutionary literature.

Written with all the enthusiasm which an ardent soul could feel at the first breath of blowing on a land long ground down under the heel of oppression, it made an immense; tion throughout Russia.

The tendency of the book was, however, quite too liberal, and it was hardly brough in book form before it was ruthlessly suppressed. Its author was imprisoned and finally has to Central Russia, where at last accounts he was still living under strict police supervision

His book is secretly circulated in Russia, and the topics discussed—The Laber tion, the Social Condition of the Masses, and the Elevation of Womanhood—have be "A Vital Question," not only in Russia, but throughout the world.

The radical views of the author will provoke criticism, excite discussion, and doubtle condemned; but whatever may be thought of Tchernuishevsky's solution of these protethere can be no doubt of the intense moral purpose of the author, and in the developm these theories, which are treated with a master hand, consists the real greatness of the box he Rear-Guard of the Revolution.

By EDMUND KIRKE, author of "Among the Pines," etc. With Portrait of John Sevier, and Map. 12mo, cloth. Price, $1.50.

Many readers will recall a volume published during the war entitled "Among the Pines," appearing under the penme of Edmund Kirke. The book attained a remarkable success, and all who have read it will recall its spirited and aphic delineations of life in the South. "The Rear-Guard of the Revolution," from the same hand, is a narrative of e adventures of the pioneers that first crossed the Alleghanies and settled in what is now Tennessee, under the leader-ip of two remarkable men, James Robertson and John Sevier. Sevier is notably the hero of the narrative. His career is certainly remarkable, as much so as that of Daniel Boone. The title of the book is derived from the fact that a body hardy volunteers, under the leadership of Sevier, crossed the mountains to uphold the patriotic cause, and by their nely arrival secured the defeat of the British army at King's Mountain.

Von by Waiting.

A NOVEL. By Edna Lyall, author of "Donovan," "We Two," etc. 12mo, cloth. Price, $1.50.

"The Dean's daughters are perfectly real characters, the learned Cornelia especially; the little impulsive French roine, who endures their cold hospitality and at last wins their affection, is thoroughly charming; while throughout the ok there runs a golden thread of pure brotherly and sisterly love, which pleasantly reminds us that the making and arring of marriage is not, after all, the sum total of real life."—London Academy.

THE

Publishers' Trade-List Annual

For 1886 (Fourteenth Year).

A Large 8vo, over 2500 pages. (Ready in September.)

The improvements of recent years in the Trade-List Annual have given such general satisfaction that there will be no change in the forthcoming volume (fourteenth year) as to the essential features, which are:

- 1. The latest Catalogues of American Publishers and Manufacturers, contributed by themselves and arranged alphabetically by the firm names.
- 2. A complete reprint of the "Publishers' Weekly" full title RECORD OF BOOKS published (inclusive of all the descriptive notes) from July 4, 1885, to June 26, 1886. In order to facilitate reference, it will be accompanied by a full INDEX, by which every book on record can be found, whether it is looked for under author, title, or subject.
- 3. The "EDUCATIONAL CATALOGUE" for 1386, which is used by the entire trade and educational interests as the most representative reference-list of School-books.

The above Lists, all bound in one volume, present in their combination so convenient and time-saving a working-tool as to make it indispensable to every one who has any interest in the purchase and sale of books.

The patent "DUPLEX INDEX" having given such general satisfaction last year, we have decided to apply it to all copies of the "Annual" this year. The price of the book before publication will be ONE DOLLAR AND A HALF NET, including the index. Volumes supplied with the "DUPLEX INDEX" have the alphabet printed on the concave surface as well as on the margin of the page, which enables instantaneous reference, whether the book is open or shut. The price of the book will be raised to Two Dollars net after day of publication.

Delayed or unpaid subscriptions are not entitled to the subscription price ($1.50).

Remittances should be made by check, express or Post-Office money-order, or registered letter, as we cannot be responsible for any losses. Receipt for remittance will be sent by return mail.

Unless special shipping directions are received, copies ready for delivery will be dispatched by express unpaid. Parties so desiring can have their copies sent by mail, or by prepaid book-rate express for 70 cents per copy extra.

THE

For 1886 [Seventeenth Year].

The Educational Catalogue has been found so valuable to the Trade, not only as a finding list, but for circulation among educational customers, for the purpose of soliciting orders and saving at the same time much troublesome correspondence, that its permanent continuance is recognized as a necessity.

The catalogue this year follows the alphabetical system pronounced by the experience of the trade the most satisfactory for practical use. It includes a price-list arranged alphabetically by author's or editor's name, and a detailed subject-index, referring from each specific subject to authors of books on that subject, so that the advantages of both a finding list for the trade and a class catalogue for the use of schools are combined. No other list in the market gives this practical combination.

The list has been entirely reset, to include the new books in their proper alphabetical order, and also to embody all the corrections of prices, omissions, or other errors in last year's catalogue.

Publishers' prices are in all cases given—retail, if retail (in first column); "net," if "net" (in second column); where a "mailing" percentage is specified by the publisher, the "mailing price" is given in the retail column marked with an asterisk. A carefully drawn explanation in the heading, to private buyers, adapts the catalogue to the use of the retail trade.

It should be understood that, of the regular retail-price publishers, only the retail price is given, and the net prices only of those publishers who make it a practice to mail net-price lists to schools—in fact, make their net prices their regular school-supply prices. This point is emphasized in order to meet the objections raised to the quotation of net prices.

It should be well considered that any attempt at withholding, from the educational public, what the publisher, through his agents, advertisements, lists, and circulars, takes special pains to make known, must be an unwise policy. It is not objectionable, but quite proper and legitimate, to charge the retail or mailing price for single copies of any book; but the Educational Catalogue is not generally given away to single-book customers. It is intended only for those who purchase for schools in quantities. Now any one putting himself on record by quoting fictitious prices, or prices other than those quoted by the publisher (which prices, it is now understood, are generally still subject to a trade discount), necessarily must drive his school trade into the hands of those who solicit their orders from a catalogue, the prices of which tally with that of the publishers.

The following paragraph from a previous year's Educational Catalogue further elucidates the reasons for our strict adherence to publishers' prices: "Plainly, if it wished to sustain its official character, it was bound to respect the desire off those who have a right to stand by their prices, and who, should their established prices be disregarded, could by their public protest soon discredit the Educational Catalogue as well as those who handled it for circulation. At a time when a the public mind, from causes so often discussed and lamented in these columns, is fast losing faith in honest prices, so far as books are concerned, it is of the utmost importance that there be one official list which can be consulted with confidence by the public, as well as by the trade.

In making up special orders for the Educational Catalogue, booksellers should bear in mind that it possesses not only temporary value, but will serve its purpose during the whole year. No imprint edition of less than 100 copies can be supplied. Orders for editions should be sent to us at once.

CASH TERMS.

With sole imprint of ordering firm, and stitched, per 100 copies, $5; per 1000, $40.

There is no extra charge for printing name, business card, etc., on the imprint page; the last page is left blank at the disposal of the dealer, but any copy for that, advertising special lines or general business, will be set up and printed thereon for $5, or $1 if plate is sent.

 Copy for imprint and shipping directions should accompany the order.

The regular Educational Number of "THE PUBLISHERS' WEEKLY" will be supplied at 25 cents per copy, or five for $1, postpaid.

NOTES IN SEASON.

GEORGE J. COOMBES announces "The Life of Edwin Booth," "The Life of Adelaide Neilson," a volume of essays on the acting of Ellen Terry, a memoir of Lawrence Barrett, a memoir of John McCullough, and a biographical account of all the actors of the Wallack family, all by William Winter. The Wallack book will be a companion to Mr. Winter's biography of "The Jeffersons."

HARPER & Bros. publish this week "The American Salmon-fisherman," by Henry P. Wells, author of "Fly-rods and Fly-tackle," with illustrations, and map showing location of salmon rivers; a series of papers on "The Labor Problem," edited by William E. Barns, with an introduction by Richard T. Ely and special contributions by James A. Waterworth and Fred Woodrow; also, "The Story of Music and Musicians for Young Readers," by Lucy C. Lillie. In the Handy Series they publish "Cynic Fortune," by D. Christie Murray, and in the Franklin Square Library they issue "Buried Diamonds," by Sarah Tytler.

W. H. LOWDERMILK & Co., Washington, D. C., publish this week the long-expected "Shakespearean Referee." by J. H. Siddons. This is a cyclopædia claiming to contain 4200 words, obsolete and modern, occurring in the plays of Shakespeare, with original and other explanations, commentaries, annotations, etymologies, etc., derived from a great variety of authentic sources, to which are added translations of all the Latin, French, Italian, and Spanish words occurring in the plays, etc. They have also just ready "The Maternal Ancestry and Nearest of Kin of Washington," a monograph of twenty-eight pages and a genealogical chart.

CLEAVES, MACDONALD & Co. are now settled at their new stand, 131 Tremont Street, near Winter Street, and opposite the Common. They occupy three floors—the first, second, and the basement. The rooms are very light and cheertul, and capacious enough to carry a very large stock. They have just ready a new volume of "Poems," by James Riley, being a selection from his best work. He is well known to the readers of the Boston Transcript by his contributions to that paper. They will issue shortly a new edition, revised, of Walter Colton's works, comprising "Three Years in California," "Ship and Shore," "Sea and Sailor," "Land and Lee," "Deck and Port," "Constantinople and Athens," in five handsome volumes. They will issue in the fall handsome editions of Dickens and Thackeray in fine bindings, with new and elegant designs. The firm intend to make a specialty of fine bindings, having unusual facilities in this line.

JOURNALISTIC NOTES.

THE Boston Courier, June 20, has an interesting sketch of the enterprising and progressive house of Cleaves, Macdonald & Co., the successors of Lockwood, Brooks & Co.

In the July number of the Century there will be printed an anecdotal sketch of Mr. Stockton, with portrait, entitled "The Author of The Lady, or The Tiger?" by C. C. Buel.

MR. WILLIAM WINTER has written for the August number of Harper a long article on Joseph Jefferson and the Jefferson family of actors, which will be illustrated with the fine portrait of Mr. Jefferson as Bob Acres made by Mr. Alexander.

THE strongest article in the July Harper's is on the "New York Produce Exchange," by Dr. Richard Wheatly. The doctor's former articles on the Customs House, etc., as this, were the outcome of years of preparatory work. Every item and every figure has been derived from authoritative sources, and nothing that is put down for fact has been taken from hearsay.

THE niece of Thomas Carlyle Mrs. Alexander Carlyle, dissatisfied with Mr. Froude's work as her uncle's literary executor, entrusted all the Carlyle papers to Prof. Charles Eliot Norton, of Harvard College. To dispel the false opinions of Carlyle's nature and temper, which he thinks were misrepresented by the course which Froude followed, the American editor has published two volumes of Carlyle's correspondence, and now. completes his work by a collection of his personal reminiscences of Carlyle, and an arraignment of Froude. The temper of the article, which is to appear in the New Princeton Review, is said to be calm and judicious, and to set forth Carlyle in a light which will be new to many. It is believed that Mr. Froude must either produce fac not generally known or suffer greatly in repr tion for candor and literary honesty.

Arnold, Edwin. India revisited. Author's ed. Bost., Roberts Bros., 1886. 5+324 p. il. D. cl., $2.

A series of articles descriptive of India, which were published recently anonymously in the London Daily Telegraph. When the author's name was made known, it was acknowledged that no one but Mr. Arnold could have written them. The London Bookseller, in reviewing the work, says: "We indeed have India in our midst. Their castes and customs, their pride and prejudices, can be transported to us only in the shape and manner in which Mr. Arnold has undertaken to accomplish. And to those who entertain no hope of ever seeing the land of the Hindu and Mahomedan, we would suggest that they read this volume." Throughout the volume are interspersed several pleasant poems and metrical translations of Mr. Arnold's, hitherto unpublished, and they help effectively to illustrate some of the topics which he discusses.

Baring-Gould, Sabine, and Gilman, Arthur. The story of Germany. N. Y., G: P. Putnam's Sons, 1886. 18+437 p. pors. and il. D. (The story of the nations ser., no. 5.) cl., $1.50.

"The absorbing story begins with pictures of the surgings of the nations—the Huns, the Sclavs, the Goths, the Saxons, the Franks; it tells of the throes by which the heroes of old brought the great people to its independent life; recounts the struggles of the various Teutonic families among themselves, and of all of them with their neighbors, and brings up vividly the power of an idea, as it shows the strife and perplexities arising from the Imperial sceptre, as well as the dire contest that followed the schism of the church and in a short time involved all Christendom in disputes touching the highest interests of humanity. The reader of the story of Germany is thus brought face to face with problems of the deepest moment."—Preface.

Prof. Boyesen had for many years been ambitious to write a history of Norway, "chiefly because," he says, "no such book, worthy of the name," existed in the English language. So when the publishers of this series proposed to him to write the "story" of his native land, he eagerly accepted their offer. The story, however, according to their plan, was to differ in some important respects from a regular history, dwelling particularly upon the dramatic phases of historical events, and concerning itself but slightly with the growth of institutions, and sociological phenomena. It therefore necessarily takes small account of proportion, more space being given to the national hero, Olaf Tryggvesson, than to many of the kings.

Death (The) of Hewfik Pasha: a confession. N. Y., Funk & Wagnalls, 1886. 89 p. D. cl., 60 c.

A story which claims to be based on fact, but which is apparently wholly fictitious. The hero is a young Englishman who is represented as having dined with Hewak Pasha, ex-Prime-Minister of the Sultan of Turkey, the day he was assassinated. He is arrested on suspiciou, but he is proved innocent of the murder. Why the Pasha was assassinated and the circumstances which led up to the deed profess to be told by a beautiful woman, who is the heart of the mystery.

Begins with a prologue supposed to be enseted in India in the eighteenth century. There is a temple scene in which many idob are mutilated and destroyed, and one, a comparatively new-comer among the gods, keeps its place and power. Then comes the story laid in London of the present day. The author of "Vice versa" in this story uses all the day and human in abouting the markings of theory. me day The author of "Vice versa" in this story uses all his old wit and humor in showing the workings of theoremy. And Nebelsen is the devotee of the new faith, and time of his conversations, rendered in a mixture of Norwegian and German pronunciation of the poculiar phrane-elegy of theosophy, are very amusing. A very ugly idel given by a young girl to her lover brings him continued ill-luck until it finally is "a fallen idel," and the world make bright for all.

as "The story of a country town" or "The mystery of the jocks," is lightened by a delightfully humorous style of narration. The purpose of this novel seems to be to illustrate the sacredoms of the marriage tie. It is a story of New England, in which Justina Wilton's and John Rolfe's hopeless love for each other occupies the greater part of the narra-tive. Rolfe had as a boy been trapped into a marriage which had wrecked his whole life, but he had considered it his duty to patiently endure his troubles, until he grew to love Justine. The struggle that then comes to both of them, between love and duty, is full of pathon.

On his release he determines to return to the scenes of his youth and live down his diagrace by working hard and paying back the money he has stolen. The rebuffs and insults he receives and the matrust he meets with almost everywhere almost break him down. But he succeeds in getting work at last, and after years of patient industry reinstates himself with his old friends. Some sensible suggestions about prison reform add to the value of the book.

The plan of this volume was conceived with the object of accumulating trustworthy evidence concerning the personal traits and private utterances of Abraham Lincoln-from the men still surviving who became distinguished characters during the great Civil War. The distinguished men who speak are Gen. Grant, Elihu B. Washburse. Geo. W. Julian, Reuben E. Fenton, John P. Usher, Geo. Sewall Boutwell, Gen. B F. Butler, Chas. Carleton Cof-fin, Frederick Douglass, and many others. A mographical electric of all of these men showing their relation to natural sketch of all of these men showing their relation to national events is added, and portraits of many of them and a few scenes from the early life of the great war President give additional interest to the book. The fac-timile letter box Seward to Adams, then English minister, with the Pros-dent's corrections, is also given.

AN ENGLISH VIEW OF THE CHEAP MOVEMENT IN LITERATURE.

From Booklore.

So much has been heard lately about the wonderful revolution which is taking place in he prices of good books, that it may not be unprofitable to take a rapid glance at what may be alled, in the absence of a better term, "The Cheap Movement in Literature."

Probably not many people are aware that, enturies before printing was ever dreamt of, he prices of books were, if anything, lower than it present. Martial himself states that "the irst book of his 'Epigrams' could be bought, neatly bound, for an English equivalent of less han three shillings, while a cheaper edition was n the market, and offered at about half that price. His thirteenth book of "Epigrams" was retailed at not much over sixpence per copy. These prices ruled, it should be remembered, when each and every book had to be written separately. The feasibility of producing books it the prices enumerated does not appear obvious at first sight; but it is easily explained by the act that the transcribing was performed by specially trained slaves, so that, with one dictatng, almost any number of a particular book could be manufactured and "turned out" in a very short period.

The series of cheap books which the firms of Cassell, Routledge, and Ward & Lock have each, with apparently precisely the same object in view, brought before the public notice, cannot, in truth, be regarded as such very great novelties. No one can study the book-producing history of the last century and a half without becoming convinced of this fact.

For centuries prior to the introduction of printing, the commercial aspect of the "book" trade was of a very singular nature. The demand rarely exceeded the supply, while the books themselves had no definite commercial value. Bartering was particularly the only method by which one collector possessed the duplicate books of another. Even a century after printing had become acclimatized at Westninster, very little progress had been made in the definiteness of prices, a chaotic state of things which only in the last years of Elizabeth's reign gave way to something like homogeneity.

Competition has been at all times the bugbear of high prices, and the arguments which one so often hears about conferring a national blessing in reducing the prices of commodities very naturally resolves itself into an argument that is merely individual and selfish. Had it not been for competition, it is difficult even to conjecture what would have been the ruling prices of books to-day.

The really great strides toward the cheapening of literature were made during the concluding quarter of the last century, and not before. John Bell, who was born in 1745, and died at Fulham, at a good old age, in 1831, may be regarded as the pioneer of this great "cheap" movement. He must have been a brave man, for he defied the combined efforts of about forty publishing firms. These firms held a meeting at the Chapter Coffee House, in Paternoster Row, and the result of the conference was the issue of "Johnson's Poets," to the designation of which. however, it is said that the Doctor objected. "Bell was," to use an expression of Charles Knight, "the very Puck of booksellers," and his extensive edition of the poets of Great Britain, "from Chaucer to Churchill," did more to open out the great storehouse of poetical literature than all the efforts of his predecessors combined.

For comprehensiveness of design, as well as for cheapness, the literature which John Cooke commenced issuing, and which his son Charles augumented, was a great improvement upon anything before attempted. Leigh Hunt observes in his "Autobiography:" "In these times Cooke's edition of the British poets came up; I got an old volume of Spenser, and I fell passionately in love with Collins and Gray. How I love these little sixpenny numbers containing whole poets. I doted on their size; I doted on their type, on their ornaments, on their wrapper containing lists of other poets, and on the engravings from Kirk!" The writer of this paper has now before him a nearly complete series of the various little books issued by Cooke, and a few in the original "whity-brown" paper covers. Cooke's editions, as the second-hand bookseller would say, were issued in sixpenny weekly parts, and were divided into three sections: select novels, sacred classics, and select poets; the entire issue running to several hundred weekly parts. Anticipating the "large-paper copies" of to-day, Cooke had printed a "superior edition" at one shilling. At the time of issue it would have been difficult to imagine the great boon these pretty little volumes were. The Cookes, both father and son, each amassed a large fortune. A comparison of Cooke's edition—taking into account the cost of illustrating, of specially compiled memoirs, and the restrictions which literature at that time was under—with any of Cassell's, Routledge's, or Ward & Lock's cheap publications, will not reveal any very striking improvement. The older series may contain fewer pages, and may not be printed on the best of paper; but for accuracy and cheapness they cannot be surpassed, and it is a great question whether they are even equalled.

William Suttaby, of Stationer's Court, was another pioneer who, early in the present century, issued a cheap series of books.

after printing had become acclimatized at West- "Dove's English Classics," which ran to ninster, very little progress had been made in between one hundred and two hundred volume he definiteness of prices, a chaotic state of were rather better "got up" and dearer."

Cooke's, but they served, nevertheless, a most useful purpose. They had at first the imprint, "Published by J. Walker and other Proprietors;" but Dove, who was an extensive printer, afterward christened them with his own name. The J. Walker referred to, who was an active promoter of the cheap movement, was the publisher whom Peter Pindar boasted of having taken in." When Wolcot was at the height of his popularity, Walker wanted to purchase the copyright of his poems, and offered an annuity of £200, but the poet demanded £400, urging that "as he was very old and in a dangerous state of health, with a d-d asthma, and stone in the bladder, he could not last long." During the somewhat protracted negotiations, every time "Peter" called upon Walker, the former assumed a distressing cough, and so cleverly imitated one in great agonies that the publisher, maturally concluding that his customer would soon die, at last agreed to an annuity of £250, and the offer was accepted. This was a good stroke of business for the poet, but the publisher soon found out the mistake he had made. The illustrations in "Dove's" editions were by Courbould, Unwins, and other eminent artists of the day. Sharpe's editions were even still more beautifully got up than Dove's.

Within the past half century the efforts which have been put forth to popularize literature are indeed numerous. Headed by the unfortunate Constable, publisher after publisher seems to have followed in the same track, or to have struck out a still more novel line. Routledge, Black, and John Dicks are the great pioneers of the modern "sixpenny" movement. With all Constable's enthusiasm, did he ever dream that a generation or so after his death all Scott's works would be purchasable for about half a sovereign, or that for the price of a quart of "mystic fourpenny" the Londoner may purchase whichever novel of this great author he pleases?

Dicks has long been regarded with disfavor by "the trade," but for all that the benefit which his republications have conferred is undoubtedly very great; the chief complaints which can be raised being the inferiority of paper, and the second-rate type which is not unfrequently employed. His series of plays at one penny will always be a boon to those whose means are small; and his shilling Shakespeare is a marvel of cheapness.

The efforts of Charles Knight, the brothers Chambers. Beeton, and Cassell, are so well known that they need scarcely be referred to; and the splendid work of the late H. G. Bohn has put all poorer students under an obligation, the extent of which they alone can express. Expensive books, unless exceptionally good, stand no chance at all, and cheap literature but little unless of the highest quality. The Chandor Classics of Warne & Co., which commenced wather over twenty years ago, cannot but be highly commended.

The cheap movement in monthly periodical literature dates from the appearance of the Cornhill, under the editorship of Thackeray; and a still cheaper and equally successful innovation dates from the first issue of Longman's.

And here we must be content to leave the great and cheap movement in literature, perfectly confident that the momentous changes which must in the course of time naturally take place, will be for the benefit of mankind and for the advancement of human progress.

Volving a large amount of money, there being no international copyright law, the enterprise was abandoned. Mr. Saunders had presented was abandoned. Mr. Saunders had presented will be for the benefit of mankind and for the authors, but up to this day advancement of human progress.

THE HOUSE OF HENRY ALTEMUS.

From the American Brokmaker.

THE house of Henry Alternus is of long standing. It was established in 1790 by Schadrack Taylor, who was succeeded in the business by his apprentice and nephew, Joseph T. Altemus, the father of the present proprietor. Joseph T. Alternus won a widespread reputation for the quality of his bindings, and was specially noted for fine finishing and tooling. Many of the labor-saving devices now employed were introduced by him. He imported from England a coggle press, which he arranged so as to do certain classes of finishing on the sides of books that had been done previously by hand. This was practically the first introduction in this country of stamping on the sides of books. Afterward, under his personal supervision, be had made a large embossing press for heavy to lief work. This effected a great revolution it bookbinding. Besides improvements made by him in many of the processes of bookbinding he originated many styles of binding, a number of which have since become standard. Among these are: Heavy panelled and bevelled boards, inlaid sides, embossed leather backs and clots sides on school-books in place of the old style full-skiver binding.

At the death of Joseph T. Altemus, in 1851, his son, Henry Altemus, succeeded to the business, just having completed his term of servet as apprentice in his father's bindery. He brought with him the same progressive spirit isto the business. He was the first to use cutting machines for trimming the edges of books, and among the first to use the backing machine, both of which are now found in every bookbindery is the country. He was among the first to mannfacture photograph albums in this country, and introduced the well-known patented hinge-back album, the strongest album made. He was the first bookbinder to sew books by wire, by which process at present fully fifty per cent of books produced in London, Berlin, and Leipsic are sewed, London alone operating over 700 machines.

The firm occupies the five-storied building 507 to 513 Cherry Street, its capacity of production being 5000 books per day.

FREDERICK SAUNDERS.

WE extract the following particulars of the liferary career of Mr. Frederick Saunders, of the Astor Library, and author of "Salad for the Solitary," and other popular works, from "Talks about Authors and Books," contributed to the Wakefield [England] Free Press, by Mr. William Andrews, Secretary of the Hull Literary Club

Frederick Saunders was born in London, 18 1807 (son of Mr. Saunders, of the firm of Saunders & Otley, publishers, London). In 1837 be opened in New York a branch of that establishment, for the reissue of works which the London house had purchased. After a prolonged effort, to secure protection of their property, involving a large amount of money, there being no international copyright law, the enterprise was abandoned. Mr. Saunders had presented some half dozen memorials to Congress, from American and British authors, but up to this and such a treaty has not been effected. He was

'ard opened a publishing and bookselling busiess in that city, but not meeting with success, e accepted an appointment on the editorial staff f Mr. Bryant's paper, the Evening Post. Subequently, in 1859, at the instance of Mr. Washagron Irving, he was elected by the trustees of be Astor Library, as an assistant-librarian, and a 1876 he was put in general charge of the Instiution as librarian, which position he still holds. Er. Saunders has been a frequent contributor to he periodical literature of New York, having rritten for the Knickerbocker, the Democratic Rehor of the following works: (I) " Memories of the Great Metropolis," (2) " New York in a Nuthell," (3) "Salad for the Solitary" (1855), of which some five thousand copies were sold in be mouth of the publication. (4) "Salad for he Social" (in 1856), which work was highly ommended by the British Quarterly Review. In 858 Mr. Saunders issued a small quaint collecion of gems, entitled " Pearls of Thought," and he following year he produced another volume of literary essays, entitled "Mosaics." During the years 1868-72 Mr. Saunders published a resutifully illustrated quarto volume, entitled 'Festival of Song," a series of evenings with he lyric and epic singers; the illustrations were egarded as in advance of the art productions of hat day. Two other works will complete the ist of his productions—one entitled "About Woman, Love, and Marriage," and the other, Evenings with the Sacred Poets," of which a fixth and enlarged edition has recently apseared. This work, like "Salad for the Soliary," may be said to have secured for itself a permanent place in our contemporary literature. Mr. Saunders's last volume—the fruitage of his utumn hours—is entitled "Pastime Papers," which has been published quite recently by Thomas Whittaker.

self exclusively to literature. He was a contributor to the North American Review, the Atlantic Monthly, Harper's Magazine, and many other periodicals, and during the war wrote political editorials for the Boston Transcript. Almost all of Mr. Whipple's lectures, casays, and contributions to magazines have been published In book form, and bear the titles: "Essays and Reviews," "Literature and Life," "Success and its Conditions," and "Character and Characteristic Men.

MRS. ARTHUR H. Noves, who was better known under the name of "Toler King," and who is said to have written two volumes in the No Name Series, died at Grand Forks, Dak., on June 10. She was the author of "Rose O'Connor," "Off the Rock," and other works in which the relations of Irish landlords to tenants are depicted.

Mosas A. Dow, the founder and proprietor of the Waverley Magasine, died in Charlestown, Mass., June 22. He was born at Littleton, N. H., on May 25, 1810. He established the Waserley Magazine under the most discouraging citcumstances, but he persevered, and lived to draw an annual income, it is said, of $150,000.

NOTES ON AUTHORS.

MR. WILFRED WARD is about to publish a volume entitled "The Clothes of Religion," a reply to "Popular Positivism," and has obtained an indorsement for it, in advance, by Cardinal Newman.

Mr. Alexander Ireland, author of "The Book-Lover's Enchiridion," "Bibliographical and Critical List of the Works of William Hazlitt and Leigh Hunt," etc., is preparing a selection from the voluminous writings of Hazlitt and Hunt. The works of both deserve to be better known than they are to the present generation of readers.

THE botanist, Prof. Arnold Dodel-Port, of Zürich, has written a biography in two volumes of Conrad Deubler, the Austrian " peasant philosupher," who died in 1884. Deubler first came into public notice in 1853, says the Evening Post, "when a Vienna paper made it known that there lived near Ischl a peasant, who corresponded with Zschokke, David Strauss, and other free-thinkers. The result was that the Archduchess Sophie, whose favorite summer resort Ischi was, called on that peasant to see whether he was really as 'dangerous to the State as painted. She found her worst suspi-cions confirmed, even Shakspeare's works being in his litrary. In consequence of this discovery, Deubler was arrested and 'for spreading irreligious works' sentenced to two years' imprisonment. After serving his sentence, Deubler returned to his home and soon entered into correspondence with many of the most prominent thinkers of the day, Feuerbach and Häckel being among his particular friends. Strauss's 'Life of Jesus' was directly inspired by Deubler's wish for a popular work on the subject. In spite of the originality of his mind, Deubler remained a peasant in his ways of expression as well as in his mode of life. He never even learned to write orthographically,

BUSINESS NOTES.

BALTIMORE, MD.—We learn that a meeting of the creditors of J. W. Bond & Co., booksellers and stationers, has been called.

Buffalo, N. Y.—The bookstore and stock of H. H. Otis was damaged by fire and water on June 15, during the progress of a fire in an adjoining building.

CLEVELAND, O.—On June 1 the firm of Burrows Brothers & Co. became an incorporation with the title of "The Burrows Brothers Company." The incorporators are the three members of the old firm (Messrs, Charles W. and Harris B. Burrows and Mr. E. L. Schinkel), together with Mr. Byron E. Helman (also of the lumber firm of Allyn, Young & Co., of Cleveland, and well known in educational circles throughout Ohio) and Mr. Joseph W. Burrows, for many years connected with the old firm. All become active working members of the new concern. In addition, Messrs. J. M. Goldstein, Wm. E. Ward, and J. J. McWilliams, old and valued employés, take stock and become directly identified with the welfare of the company. With abundant capital, increased working force, and a determination to watch their customers' interests in the same careful and energetic manner that has assisted the rapid growth of their business in the past, they trust to merit in an even greater degree the earnest attention of all, both buyers and sellers.

CUTHBERT, GA.—E. S. Parks has retired from the management of the book business of the estate of Thomas Powell.

FAIRBURY, NEB.—J. C. Paxton, bookseller, has sold out.

LEAVENWORTH, KAN.—Crew & Hewett, book-sellers and stationers, have dissolved partnership.

NEW ORLEANS, La.—It is reported that H. Billard, dealer in French books and stationery, is asking an extension.

New York CITY.—The New York Manifold Book Company has been incorporated by James L. O'Connor, L. Wesley Frost, and Albert H. Jocelyn.

PARIS, TEX.—Troy and Ragland, booksellers, have sold out.

SIOUX CITY, IOWA.—Porter & Webster, book-sellers, have dissolved partnership.

SUPERIOR, NEB.—S. C. Warriner, bookseller, has sold out.

WASHINGTON, D. C.—We learn from Geyer's Stationer that John F. Paret has applied to his creditors for an extension.

LITERARY AND TRADE NOTES.

PROF. HARDY'S new romance, "The Wind of Destiny," although published only a few weeks ago, is already in its sixth thousand.

THE edition on large paper of Longfellow's works, of which 500 copies are printed, has all been ordered, although it will not be published until the fall.

THE CHAUTAUQUA PRESS have just published cal, social, political, and commercial, of the a game of "Mythology Roman and Greek," Colonies of Australia and New Zealand. The which has been so well received that the first compilation of the work has been placed in the edition was exhausted in supplying the demand hands of Mr. George Collins Levey, C.M.G., in Boston alone. The game is to be played and Mr. A. Patchett.

like the game of authors. It presents one hundred of the principal mythological characters arranged in "books" according to natural classification. It is handsomely printed in colors, and the cards are of good size and substantial.

A SMALL party of ladies and gentlemen, including Robert W. De Forrest and wife; Louis Tiffany, the artist, and wife; Henry Holt, the publisher, and Miss Knox, daughter of Prof. Knox, of Lafayette College, are enjoying a novel trip on the Pennsylvania Canal. A canal boat was fitted up for them in such a way as to rob it of much of its uncouth appearance, and, with a cook and several servants, they started a week ago to make the journey from Bristol to Mauch Chunk. The trip will last three weeks.

Funk & Wagnalls have in press, for early publication, "The Life of Schuyler Colfax," by J. O. Hollister, a member of the Colfax family. The biography has been prepared with the approval and the assistance of Mrs. Colfax. It is written in a terse, animated style, and gives a graphic account of the scenes and events in which Colfax figured, as well as a just and appreciative estimate of the man himself. The book will be a large octavo, and will have for frontispiece a steel portrait of Mr. Colfax. It is to be sold by subscription.

MILTON BRADLEY & Co. have two new games to be used in kindergartens for children, as well as for parlor amusement. "The Wordmaking Tablets" are one-inch square letters mounted on card-board that are to be put together to make words, which are afterward placed in sentences; "The Primary Language Tablets" are large and thick, so that they can easily be laid on the desk without any guide to hold them. They consist of a quantity of familiar words of which the children are to form sentences about their work and play. The same box also contains a little extra box of letters, so that a needed word may be shaped to complete These are cut small so the words may correspond with those already made on the tablets. These letters and words will be found a useful addition to the primary school-room.

CHAPMAN & HALL have published a book by Mr. T. H. S. Escott, entitled "Politics and Letters."

BLACKWOOD & Sons have three new novels in press: "A House Divided against Itself," by Mrs. Oliphant; "A Strange Inheritance," by F. M. F. Skene; and "Lesterre Durant," by the author of "Miss Molly."

MR. A. GARDNER, of Paisley, will shortly publish "Some Personal Reminiscences of Carlyle," by Mr. A. J. Symington, who for many years enjoyed the close friendship of Carlyle. The book will attempt to place Carlyle's life before the public in a more favorable light than some of the biographie have done.

GRIFFITH, FARRAN, OKEDEN & WELSH announce that they are preparing a Biographical Dictionary, giving a short but succinct account of all persons who have been connected with the discovery, exploration, and development, physical, social, political, and commercial, of the Colonies of Australia and New Zealand. The compilation of the work has been placed in the hands of Mr. George Collins Levey, C.M.G.,

A Guide for Parents and Children,

Second Edition, with Revisions to Date.

Compiled by Miss C. M. HEWINS,

Librarian of the Hartford Library Association.

- "Meets most admirably the demand for carefully selected lists, and contains valuable and interesting counsel."—W. E. Fostze.
- " By far the best catalogue of books of this kind that has ever appeared."—S. S. GREEN.
- "Deserves more extended praise than we have space for. It will bring joy to the hearts of hundreds of parents,"—Nation.
- "For them (the parents), as well as for librarious and teachers, the book will serve an excellent purpose, for it is by far the best guide that has been printed, and there is nothing in it that is not of excellent and interesting quality."—Boston Transcript.
- "A little manual long needed. A classified list of good books is given, with indications as to the age and sex to which they are best suited. The list is prefaced by hints as to how children should be taught the right use of books, a more on good reading in English and American history for children, and a "symposium" on children's books, containing interesting extracts from many sources. Must Hewins may safely be accepted as an authority and guide by parents and buyers of children's books,"—Good Literature.

OFFICE OF THE PUBLISHERS' WEEKLY,

31 Park Row, New York.

D. Lothrop & Co.,

Boston,

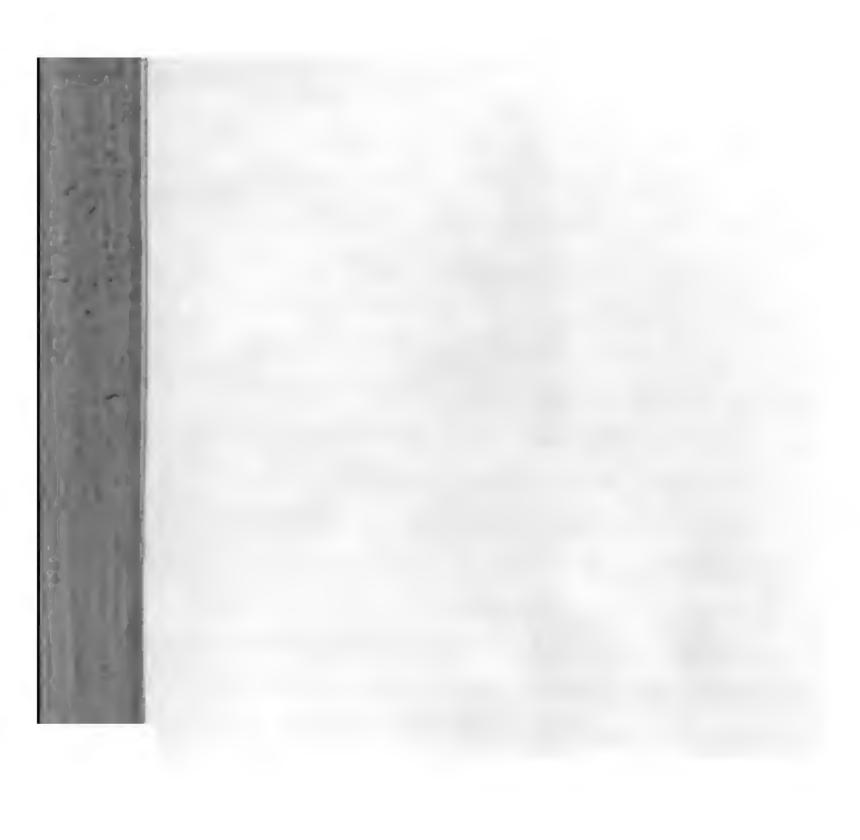

Will publish the Boston Book Bulletin July 1st, containing 48 pages, illustrated, to which is added a supplement of 16 pages, containing a brilliant list of new books, and new editions in course of publication for the holidays. All booksellers will do well to see this list before making up their orders. (It is sent free on application.)

Messrs. D. Lothrop & Co. not only announce the finest Art Books and most important Illustrated Books in elegant bindings, but their list of Children's Books is surprisingly large, varied and attractive, even for this house, whose list has for years been the leading one of the country. They are also offered at surprisingly low prices. Fully Illustrated Quartos of the size formerly sold at $1.50 are now placed at $1.00; those formerly sold at $1.25 now are 75 cents; the retail price of Illustrated Quartos 9\frac{1}{2}x12 at 30 cents; others, 8x11, at 20 cents. This is the day of low prices, and those who order D. Lothrop & Co.'s publications will find that the quality in every particular is still of the best.

The Boston Transcript says:

"Messrs. D. Lothrop & Co.'s large line of books for children and youth is distinctively American as to text, being adapted to our surroundings and modes of thought. These publications, with their fine illustrations by American artists, are educational as to art, while their literary excellence has gained for them a preference over the imported lines and placed them in the front rank."
